The medal department of the British mint has been reinforced and now has capacity for turning out 10,000 medals per week. During the last half of the last year the preparation of military medals was pushed on, "the bulk of those struck being on account of the war in South Africa, in anticipation of its early termination." By the end of the year 102,042 South African medals had been struck and issued, to be engraved with the names of the recipients.

How He Escaped.

She—Did you ever camp out in the woods?

He—No. The only time I ever was out of my head was when I had the typhoid fever, and they kept me under guard in the hospital all through it.

Candidate Not Tall Enough.

A young woman at Conway Springs, Kan., advertised for a husband and the advertisement was answered by a young farmer living near Pratt. Correspondence followed and in time the pair became engaged. Recently the young fellow went to see his lady love for the first time. When he arrived at her house and before he could salute her she scanned him over critically and said: "I can never marry you. You are three inches shorter than my ideal and we never could live happily." And that ended the affair.

BISHOP GRANT, OF INDIANAPOLIS.

Writes His Rec for the Famous C Remedy, Pe-ru

Bishop A. Grant of Indianapolis, Ind., writes the following letter:

Indianapolis, Indiana, 3349 N. Pennsylvania Street.

Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.: Gentlemen—"I have been using Peruna for catarrh and can cheerfully recommend your remedy to anyone who wants a good medicine."—A. Grant.

Prominent members of the clergy are giving Peruna their unqualified endorsement. These men find Peruna especially adapted to preserve them from catarrh of the vocal organs which has always been the bane of public speakers, and general catarrhal debility incident to the sedentary life of the clergyman. Among the recent utterances of noted clergymen on the curative virtues of Peruna is the above one from Bishop Grant.

The day was when men of prominence hesitated to give their testimonials to proprietary medicines for publication. This remains true today of most proprietary medicines. But Peruna has become so justly famous, its merits are known to so many people of high and low station that none hesitates to see his name in print recommending Peruna.

Rev. E. G. Smith, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, of Greensboro, Ga., writes:

"My little boy had been suffering for some time with catarrh of the lower bowels. Other remedies had failed, but after taking two bottles of Peruna the trouble almost entirely disappeared. For this special malady I consider it well nigh a specific."—Rev. E. G. Smith.

Rev. A. S. Vaughn, Eureka Springs, Ark., says: "I had been prostrated by congestive chills and was almost dead; as soon as able to be about, I commenced the use of Peruna. I took five bottles; my strength returned rapidly and I am now enjoying my usual health."—Rev. A. S. Vaughn.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

FALLING HAIR

Prevented by Shampoos of CUTICURA SOAP and light dressings of CUTICURA, purest of emollient skin cures. This treatment at once stops falling hair, removes crusts, scales, and dandruff, soothes irritated, itching surfaces, stimulates the hair follicles, supplies the roots with energy and nourishment, and makes the hair grow upon a sweet, wholesome, healthy scalp when all else fails.

MILLIONS USE CUTICURA SOAP

Assisted by CUTICURA OINTMENT, for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and soothing red, rough, and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings, and chafings, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Millions of Women use CUTICURA SOAP in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and excoriations, for too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women and mothers. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used these great skin purifiers and beautifiers to use any others. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients, and the most refreshing of flower odours. No other medicated soap is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Thus it combines, in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, the BEST skin and complexion soap, and the BEST toilet and baby soap in the world.

Complete External and Internal Treatment for Every Humour,
Consisting of CUTICURA SOAP, to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle; CUTICURA OINTMENT, to instantly allay itching, inflammation, and irritation, and soothe and heal; and CUTICURA RESOLVENT to cool and cleanse the blood. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring, itching, burning, and scaly skin, scalp, and blood humours, with loss of hair, when all else fails. Sold throughout the world. British Depot: F. NEWBERY & SONS, 27 Charterhouse Sq., London, E. C. POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CORPORATION, Sole Props., Boston, U. S. A.

The Waddingham and Grosz school district, in Avery Township, held a bas'ket social on last Friday night that was a genuine success right from the start. An extended program lasting an hour and thirty minutes consisting of songs, recitations, dialogues and march drills was rendered by the children who did nicely. The baskets, fifteen in all, sold for $18.10. One of the baskets sold for as much as $3.10 and another for $2.40, and it wasn't so easy to buy any of them. The fellow with the coin was the whole thing. It was the livliest all around good social time and entertainmet we have ever attended and that's saying a good deal as we have been to a heap lots of them.

ROSS PHELPS.

The U. D. M.— Arnold, the Klemme barker who was brot back to Algona for swearing at Mrs. Geo. Boevers, was tried in 'Squire Taylor's court. He came back full of fight and brought A. C. Ripley from Garner to appear for him When Mr. Ripley learned the true situation he told Mr. Arnold he had better swallow his wrath and swear off swearing at women. 'Squire Taylor assessed him $5 and costs which amounted to about $50, and Mr. Arnold went home with considerable diminished ideas of his own size when compared with the powers that be. Mr. Arnold has received a salutary lesson. There are a great many self made men in the world who have dwelt on their own importance so long that they need taking down a peg.

That's too bad! We did not suppose the president of the Klemme bank would pour forth a volume of maledictions upon any one outside of the members of his family, but it seems as if he has no regard for others. Lest some one should make a mistake in identity we wish to inform them that the Arnold in question is the Senior, the elder Fred, the bank president! and not the Arnold that is cashier in the State Savings bank of this city. Fred Jr. would sooner cut his own throat than have any thing of this nature come up. Swear at a woman! Well hardly. He'd a great deal rather send out of town to get his job printig done. He's a nice, good morally honest, young fellow Fred is. He's cashier of the bank, by gum. A good fellow —for the other town!

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors requires antidotes capable of neutratizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is perfectly solu le and pleasant to the taste, so it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drundards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy and as many more have been made temporate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today thatthey discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent or misleading 'improvement.' Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The Home Gold Cure is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar' thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 or $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. GREAT OPPURTUNITIES

The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Norther Railway Company is nearing the completion of it's 140 miles of new extensions in the very richest portion of Southwestern Minnesota. The six new towns, Reading, Wilmont, Lismore, Kenneth, Waters and Conger are rapidly becoming commercial centers for the rich and allready thickly settled country surrounding. There has been no "Auction sale of lots" or any attempt to "Boom" these towns; their growth being the result of a demand for convenient markets.

It is the purpose of the railway company to encourage the continuous substantial growth of the towns on their lines. In order that each town may receive the attention of "ownership," it has been decided to sell each town entire, including all unplatted land to private parties. For terms of such purchases, address the undersigned. For business openings or purchase of lots address the Town Lot Agent of the respective town.

Workidg Night and Day.

The busiess and mightiest little thing that ever was made is Dr. Kings New Life Pills. These pills change weakness into strength, listlessness into energy, brain-fag into mental power. They're wonderful in building up the health. Only 25c per box. Sold by Harr.

Josh Westhafer, of Loogootee, Ind., is a poor man, but he says he would not be without Chamberlain's Pain Balm if it cost five dollars a bottle, for it saved him from being a cripple. No external application is equal to this liniment for stiff and swollen joints, contracted muscles, stiff neck, sprains and rheumatic and muscular pains. It has also cured numerous cases of partial paralisis. It is for sale by J. L. Harr, Druggist.

A Shocking Calamity

"Lately befell a railroad laborer" writes Dr. A. Kellett, of Williford, Ark. "His foot was badly crushed, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly cured him. Its simply wonderful for Burns, Boils Piles, and all skin eruptions. Its the world's champion healer. Cure guaranteed. 25c. Sold by Harr.

A Communication.

MR. EDITOR—Allow me to speak a few words in favor of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I suffered for three years with the bronchitis and could not sleep at nights. I tried several doctors and various patent medicines, but could get nothing to give me any relief until my wife got a bottle of this valuable medicine, which has completely relieved me.—W. S. Brockman, Bagnell, Mo. This remedy is for sale by J. L. Harr, Druggist.

Stood Death Off.

E. B. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a grave digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malaria, kills disiase germs and purifies the blood; aid digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Only 50c at Harr's Drug Store.

A Certain Cure For Dysentery and Diarrhoea

"some years ago I was one of a party that intended making a long bicycle trip" say F. L. Taylor of New Albany, Bradford Co., Pa. "I was taken suddenly with diarrhoea, and was about to give up the trip, when editor Ward of the Laceyville Messenger, suggested that I take a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I purchased a bottle, and took two doses, one before starting and one on the route. I made the trip successfully and never felt any ill effect. Again last summer I was almost completely run down with an attack of dysentery. I bought a bottle of this same remedy and this time one dose cured me." Sold by J. L. Harr.

A Night Of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from Pneumonia before morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Troubles. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Harr's drug store.

And do not strike a note;
The doctor's been here seven times
Since father rode the goat.

He joined the lodge a week ago
Got in at 3 a. m.
And sixteen brethren bro't him home.
Though he says he brought them.
His wrist was sprained and one big rip
Had rent his Sunday coat—
There must have been a lively time
When father rode the goat.

He's resting on the couch to-day
And practicing his signs—
The hailing signal, working grip,
And other monkeyshines,
He mutters passwords beneath his breath
And other things he'll quote—
They surely had an evening's work
When father rode the goat.

He has a gorgeous uniform,
All gold and red and blue.
A hat with plumes and yellow braid,
And golden bangles too.
But, somehow, when we mention it,
He wears a look so grim,
We wonder if he rode the goat.
Or if the goat rode him.

A newspaper item claims that the Armours are endeavoring to secure the entire crop of western apples. According to the story they wish to secure one million barrels of apples for which they are willing to pay three million dollars. With the present short crop there would be a big profit this year in the outlay. If the Armours can make a small fortune out of these apples why can't the farmers make it for themselves? The chief reason is that they are not organized like the firm of Armours, but are acting as individuals.

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted part. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. ROOSEVELT TAKES OATH

Formally Assumes the Duties Which Were His By Law.

Buffalo, Sept. 15.—Theodore Roosevelt, who yesterday was tragically elevated to the chief magistracy of the American republic by the death of President McKinley, entered this state of mourning yesterday afternoon, after a remarkable and perilous journey from the heart of the north woods. He had been president, under the constitution and law of the land, since the minute the martyred president ceased to live. All the duties and powers of the office had developed upon him, but he was as powerless as the humblest citizen to exercise one of them until he had complied with the constitutional provision, requiring him to take a prescribed oath to support and defend the constitution and laws of the United States. He took that oath at 3:30 yesterday afternoon in the library of the residence of Ansley Wilcox, a personal friend, with whom he stopped earlier in the week when the physicians thought President McKinley would recover from the wound inflicted by the assassin.

The scene was a most affecting one. The new president had just come from the Milburn house, where his predecessor lay cold in death. Overcome by the deep personal sorrow he felt, in his characteristically impulsive way, he had gone first to the house of mourning to offer his condolence and sympathy to the broken-hearted widow.

Secretary Root, who twenty years ago, had been present at a similar scene when Arthur took the oath after the death of another president who fell a victim of an assassin's bullet, almost broke down when he requested Mr. Roosevelt, on behalf of the members of the cabinet of the late president, to take the prescribed oath. There was not a dry eye in the room.

The new president was visibly shaken, but he controlled himself, and when he lifted his hand to swear, it was as steady as though carved in marbel. With the deep solemnity of the occasion full upon him, he announced to those present that his aim would be to be William McKinley's successor in deed as well as in name. Deliberately he proclaimed it in these words:

"In this hour of deep and terrible national bereavement, I wish to state that it shall be my aim to continue absolutely without variance the policy of President McKinley for the peace and prosperity and honor of our beloved country."

The great far-reaching significance of this pledge to continue the policy of the dead president, announced at the very threshold of a new governmental regime, profoundly impressed his hearers and President Roosevelt's first step after taking the oath was in line with its redemption. His first act was to ask the members of the cabinet to retain their portfolios in order to aid him to conduct the government on lines laid down by him whose policy he had declared he would uphold. Such an appeal was not to be resisted and every member of the cabinet, including Secretary of State Hay and Secretary of the Treasury Gage, who were communicated with in Washington, has agreed for the present, at least, to retain their several portfolios.

The president has made no plans as yet. He said he was so shocked by this national calamity that has thrust new responsibilities upon him that he had no time yet to think of his future career at Washington. He will remain here quietly today and on Monday will accompany the funeral train to the national capitol.

STEEL STRIKE SETTLED

Amalgamated Association Loses a Long Fight.

New York, Sept. 15.—The great steel strike which began on June 30, was brought to an end at a conference held yesterday between the leaders of the Amalgamated Association and officers of the subsidiary companies of the United States Steel Corporation.

An agreement was signed, under which the men will return to work in the mills that have been idle, on Monday morning. The announcement was made at the office in this city of the American Tin Plate company, where the conference was held.

The full terms of the settlement were not divulged, and it was announced that this was in accordance with agreement between the parties to the conference.

It was learned, however, from an authoritative source that no concessions were made by the United States Steel Corporation. It was also learned that the Amalgamated Association gave up its fight to control in the following mills:

The Crescent, Irondale, Chester, Star, Monongahela, Demmler and Monessen mills of the American Tin Plate company.

The Joliet and Milwaukee mills of the Federal Steel company and all of the mills of the American Tube company.

Torrance Heads G. A. R.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 14.—Judge Ell Torrance of Minneapolis was unanimously elected commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic at yesterday's session of the annual convention.

General Daniel E. Sickles of New York withdrew from the fight, leaving the field to Stewart and Torrance. The balloting stood 230 to 476 in favor of Torrance, when Commander Wagner, who had the Stewart interests in hand, moved to make the nomination unanimous.

The members of the McKinley cabinet all started from comparatively humble beginnings. Secretary Hay was clerk to Lincoln; Root taught school; Griggs was a law clerk; Hitchcock clerked in a store; Gage at 15 was a bank clerk; Smith was a compositor in early life; Long did chores on a farm, and Wilson at 20 was a farm hand.

DEATH OF THE PRESIDENT

Bullet Fired by Assassin Czolgosz Completes Its Foul Mission.

"GOD'S WILL BE DONE, NOT OURS" HIS LAST WORDS.

After every resource was exhausted for over twenty-four hours, after the sinking spell early on Friday morning, death came to William McKinley, the twenty-fifth president of the United States, at 2:15 o'clock Saturday morning at the Milburn residence, Buffalo, N. Y.

WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

For many hours the President's hold on life was so slight that the work of the surgeons was confined to watching the flickering spark without attempting to fan it into life artificially.

Hope Abandoned at Midnight.

Practically all medicines and oxygen treatments were abandoned a considerable time before midnight. All hope was abandoned then, and the only thing left to do was to wait for the worn out machinery to run down.

Mrs. McKinley had been with the President twice during the early part of the evening.

Just before the President lost consciousness Mrs. McKinley knelt at his side. He knew her and said: "Good-by all; good-by. It is God's way; not our will, but Thine be done."

Loss of Consciousness.

McKINLEY AS A RAW RECRUIT.

ful drafts of oxygen, seemed to fade away soon after 10 o'clock, and consciousness was lost permanently.

Around what was supposed to be the actual deathbed, besides the surgeons in the case, were Abner McKinley, Miss Helen McKinley, and Mrs. Duncan, the brother and sisters of the President. They were hurriedly called to witness the passing of a brother and a President. Yet an hour seemed to be delayed from one brief moment to another.

Members of Family Gathered.

Down-stairs and in the hall were the other members of the family, Mrs. Abner McKinley, a sister-in-law; Miss Mary Barber, the President's favorite niece; Mrs. McWilliams of Chicago, a cousin; Lieutenant James McKinley, a nephew; John Barber, a nephew; Mrs. Baer, a niece; with Mr. Baer, and Secretaries Root, Wilson, and Hitchcock, and Attorney General Knox. The latter, with Secretary Long, had arrived only a few minutes before midnight, and Secretary Long left about 10 o'clock, so that he was not present when the end came.

Officials See the End.

Next in official importance among the watchers were Senator Hanna, Controller Dawes, Senator Fairbanks, Governor Yates of Illinois, J. H. Milburn, President of the exposition, in whose house the President died; Colonel Myron T. Herrick, with his wife; and half a score of others who came and went. Included among these were Colonel W. C. Brown, Abner McKinley's law partner; Russell B. Harrison, son of a former President; Webb C. Hayes, son of a former President; and many others whose figures could scarcely be distinguished in the gloom.

The Struggle With Death.

The President's turn for the worse came at 2 o'clock on Friday morning, and it was almost exactly twenty-four hours later before the last flicker of life had died away. It was the heart which failed early in the morning following upon the partial collapse on Thursday night, and all through the terrible day into the night the heart of the good President beat with irregular throbs which told of the inevitable end.

Mrs. McKinley Informed.

Mrs. McKinley was warned that it was only a question of minutes before the end came, but as these minutes drifted into hours her strength failed completely and she was forced to retire, under the commands of the physicians, who alone could tell whether life was extinct or not.

Final Deathbed Scene.

The result was that when the end really came, at 2:15 o'clock in the gray, foggy morning, those present in the death chamber were only Miss Helen McKinley, Mrs. Duncan, Abner McKinley, James McKinley, John Barber, and Dr. Rixey. The other physicians had left the room when it was decided that human skill could not save the President.

Sad News Given to Public.

Secretary Cortelyou came out of the Milburn house about 2:20 a. m., and in a voice that trembled with emotion announced:

"The President died at 2:15."

He then gave the names of the family and friends present at the bedside when the end came and returned to the house.

Immediately thereafter the party that had been assembled in the house during the night broke up, coming down the walk singly and in pairs.

Men Weep as They Leave.

Everybody was deeply affected. Several of the men were sobbing aloud as they passed on their way to their carriages.

Secretary Wilson says that the party will go first to Washington, where the body will lie in state in the Capitol, but interment will be in Canton, O. The details of the President's funeral will be in charge of the Secretary of State. Through him notices and invitations to distinguished foreign representatives will be extended.

Congress May Attend Funeral.

The wishes of the members of the President's family will be observed and the character of the services will depend entirely on them. Congress will attend in a body, if the services are held at the national capital, but if they are performed at Canton this arrangement may be changed.

The House is not organized, and the oath has not been administered to the members elect, but they will be in charge of the Sergeant-at-Arms of the last House, who holds over in office. The Senate, being a continuous body, will be present officially, with President Pro Tem Frye at its head, and the Sergeant-at-Arms in charge of the details.

Secretary Root and Secretary Long will detail suitable bodies of military and naval forces to be present at the funeral.

Death Caused by Heart Trouble.

The President's heart gave trouble from the beginning, but its erratic action was at first thought to be due to the shock of the wound, but when the would had begun to progress favorably the heart gave more trouble and anxiety than ever. Its action became feeble and finally gave out altogether.

The President's death was due to heart exhaustion, but some of the physicians do not believe there was organic heart trouble. The theory of at least one of the physicians is that the original shock of the first bullet over the heart had much to do with the trouble which caused death.

Slayer Saved by Darkness.

A noticeable theme of comment was occasioned by the hour at which the death occurred. It partook somewhat of the providential that the event should have come in the dead of night instead of the early evening, when the thousands who gathered on the streets of the city were in no tender mood. Had the death come earlier it is possible that the authorities would have had to cope with more or less violence.

Crowds Surround Jail.

During the early part of the evening crowds began to gather about the station-house, where the assassin, Czolgosz, was confined, and the purpose of their gathering was at no time mysterious. People gathered rapidly, who openly declared they intended to lynch the assassin, if the President died.

The authorities were fully alive to the situation and agents of the secret service reported that the people were excited beyond measure. There were not only the people of Buffalo, indignant at the disgrace to their city, but strangers, who had no neighborly respect for the local authorities.

Gov. Odell pacted promptly and gave orders to protect the jail. Thus the assassin was safe from penalty for the miserable death he had dealt out to the President.

All the World Mourns.

All Friday and Friday night 80,000,000 of Americans stood in thought and heart at the bedside of their dying President. A simple people, devoid of the arts which in other lands are used to decorate the emotions, they knew only how to sorrow in silence and hope that the impending blow would be spared.

In his daily life the President of the United States is merely its first citizen—a plain man in plain clothes, accessible to other plain men in plain clothes. By virtue of his office he is only the foremost among his equals, and as such he meets his fellow citizens without claiming or expecting from them the studied deference or ostentatious affection which is so sedulously displayed in the capitals of other lands.

Yet for days, while this man of the people lay stricken by the assassin, bound down by wounds, and hovering between life and death, 80,000,000 men, women, and children turned from the tasks of a crowded life, forgot their personal strivings and personal griefs, and in dire suspense reached out for the least word of comfort, of courage, or of cheer from their President's bedside.

Sorrow, affection, and anxiety were written across the face of the whole nation, throughout the days and throughout the nights, and now, with the blow fallen and the watching done, the land gives itself over to the mourning which no crown or scepter could command, which no throne could gather to it, and now the civilized world has joined us in grief over our calamity.

The republic may appear at times ungrateful, for its heart is deep, but he who finds that heart has not lived or died in vain.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

His Work Done.

The nation mourns as one which has suffered a great loss, but a loss which is not irreparable. His work has been, to a great extent, accomplished. Of the problems which confronted him when he was elected, or which have arisen since his election, nearly all have been happily solved by him.

The war with Spain has been conducted to a successful conclusion. The country is at peace with all mankind. It is tranquil and prosperous. There are no threatening clouds visible on the political or business horizon.

If the President thought of himself at all in his last moments he could have taken comfort in the reflection that he had well-nigh fulfilled his mission—that he had done for the people all and more than they had expected of him, and had won for himself fame that time cannot obeliterate. So far as one can read the future there was little of great moment left for him to do for his country during the next three years except to carry out that policy of the extension of its commercial relations outlined by him in his last public address.—Chicago Tribune.

The Return of the Cameo.

Old-fashioned cameos are now in the hight of fashion, as is almost every kind of jewel that boasts of antiquity. Cameos are worn as ornaments and figure in belts and bands in the latest embroideries. Many of the old-fashioned brooches with huge jewels in the center, which we have abjured with a vengeance, are coming back to us, not to wear as a brooch, but in combination with leather, velvet or chiffon in the ornamentation of dress. Among the choicest new jewels are pendants of dull rough gold with imbedded jewels and pendants of natural pearls or bits of turquoise suspended by tiny gold links. The color combinations in many of these ornaments are rich and exquisite.

A Perfect Boy.

"I never heard of but one perfect boy," said Johnny, pensively, as he sat in the corner doing penance. "And who was that" asked mamma. "Papa—when he was little," was the answer. And silence reigned for the space of five minutes.

Over 100 delegates to Colorado Federation of Women's Clubs narrowly escaped death in dynamite explosion, thought to be work of Cripple Creek miners' unions.

The platform of the Free Society has also been added to the cumulative evidence of the anarchist conspiracy. This document binds its members together to advocate and work for the destruction of the existing social order, and continues:

"As in former times no privileged class ever relinquished its tyranny, no more can we take it for granted that the capitalists of the present day will forego their privileges and their authority without compulsion. It is, therefore, self-evident that the fight of the proletarian against the upper and middle classes must be of a violent character and that mere wage conflicts can never lead to the goal.

Urges Force as Only Remedy.

"We show by numerous illustrations that all attempts which have been made in the past to do away with the existing monstrous social system through peaceful means—for example, the ballot box—have been useless, and will be so in the future.

"Force is the only remedy.

"We know, therefore, that the ruling class will not voluntarily relinquish its prerogatives and will make no concessions to us. Under all these circumstances there is only one remedy left—force.

Gives Platform of Six Planks.

"1. Destruction of existing class domination through inexorable revolution in international activity.

"2. The building of a free society on communistic organizations or productions.

"3. Free exchange of equivalent products through the productive organization without jobbing and profit-making.

"4. Organization of the educational system upon non-religious and a scientific and an equal basis for both sexes.

"5. Equal rights for all without distinction of sex or race.

here of the arrest of Edward Wolczynski, of this city, in Chicago, Sergt. Doran and Detective Schmunk were detailed to search the house in which he lived at 1870 Broadway. They found stored away on top of a cupboard fifty feet of fuse, such as is ordinarily used in the manufacture of dynamite bombs. The information was at once telegraphed to the Chicago authorities.

The Scourge of Damascus

A Story of the East...

By SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

CHAPTER VII.—(Continued.)

When the princess was alone, she trembled beneath the weight of the new thought that had been wrought upon her. Flight was something that had not made its way to her mind before, but now that it had been presented, she could not dismiss it. She had revealed her whole feeling, so far as the king was concerned, in her speech to Albia. There may have been other springs within her soul which she did not then dare to touch; but in her own soul, unsupported and uninfluenced by other causes than such as spring from reason and reflection, had grown a fear of Horam, and a terror of being his wife. She had dreamed of poor Helena until the dead queen seemed almost an attendant spirit upon her, sent to warn her. The night passed, and the day came; and she had resolved that she would not marry with the old king if she could avoid it. When Albia came, and asked her what she had determined, such was the purport of her answer.

'But," said the bondmaiden, "there is but one way in which the sacrifice can be avoided. Are you ready to flee?"

In the afternoon the king made a visit to the house of his prime minister and spent a short time with Ulin. He never looked more repulsive. He was loud in his words of love, and made the announcement that fortune had turned full in his favor. It was evident enough that he had been taking more wine than usual. When he went away, Ulin sank down upon a low stool, and buried her face in her hands.

"Albia," she said, when she felt like speaking, "I can bear no more. I would rather die than give myself to that man. If I should die, my father would 'ose me; but if I flee from Damascus, I may at some time return to him. If you can prepare for leaving the city, I will accompany you this very night."

The bondmaiden promised that she would do all in her power; and without waiting to waste time in useless words, she went forth to search for the help she needed.

Evening came, and Ulin had not shrunk back from the decision she had made. There were two reasons why her home had not power to win her back from her resolve. The death of her mother had taken away the brightest part of that home; and, furthermore, its character of home was soon to be changed if she remained. It could not be her home any more.

CHAPTER VIII.

Hobaddan.

Thus sat the princess, presenting herself with every available reason that could favor her in her resolution, when Albia came in, with a quick step and a flushed cheek.

"My mistress," she said, when she had assured herself that they were alone, "there is a man in the garden who wishes to speak with you."

"A man!" cried Ulin.

"He says it is a case of life or death—of life or death to an individual, and of life or death to a city," pursued the bondmaiden, without noticing the interruption. "He gained entrance to the garden, and has been searching for the lady Ulin. He did not tell me his name; but I know that he was with the robbers at the Palace of the Valley, and he says he is a friend of Julian. If you will see him now, I can conduct him up without danger of discovery."

"In mercy's name, Albia, what mean you?" The princess trembled like an aspen. "What can he want with me?"

"I think he is an honest man, my lady; and I think you had better see him. I only speak my own feelings."

"Does he say that Julian sent him?" asked Ulin, trembling more violently as that name fell from her lips.

"Julian did not send him," replied Albia; "and yet he comes in behalf of Julian. I think the noble young chieftain is in danger, and this man hopes that you may be able to render some assistance."

"Indeed, Albia, I must not do such a thing. It would not be proper. I must not do it. What is the robber chieftain to me?"

"I know not of a verity, my lady, that such is the man's hope; but I do know that he prays most earnestly to see you. Yet, if you will not see him I will carry to him your word."

"What will he do if I refuse?"

"He will go away, and trouble you no more."

"Are you sure of this, Albia?"

"I am, my lady. He bade me say unto you that you should act your own pleasure. He urges no claim, and will take no offense at refusal, but he prayerfully asks that you will grant him audience."

The princess was not proof against the spirit which prompted to the reception of the robber. It was not wholly curiosity which moved her. There were feelings working within her which she could not have explained, even to herself. She told Albia that she might conduct the man to her apartment.

"You will come with him, Albia; and you will remain with me while he is here."

The bondmaiden went away, and ere long returned, followed by a tall, stout, middle-aged man. As the rays of the lamp fell upon his face, revealing features that were far above the average in their stamp of manhood, Ulin recognized him as one whom she had seen with Julian in the Valley of Lycanius. He bowed very low as he entered, and when he saw how the maiden was affected by his presence, he proceeded at once to open his business.

"Noble lady," he said, in a tone which might at once have banished all fear from the minds of his listeners, "I have come to you upon a most strange business, and I will use as few words as possible in presenting it to you. My young master is in danger."

"My name is Hobaddan, and I am Julian's lieutenant. I have been with him from the period of his earliest childhood. Since he was large enough to lift a lance, I have been his friend and companion. He was given into my care during his opening youth; and when he reached the estate of manhood I was content to serve him. I love him as a brother—aye, better than most brothers love. I love him tenderly and devotedly. And all his followers love him. A thousand stout men love and worship him."

What did all this mean? Why had Hobaddan come to tell her this? Ulin trembled, knowing not wherefore, and gazed anxiously into the speaker's face.

"Lady," pursued the lieutenant, who had stopped a moment, as though he would assure himself that his language gave no offense, "my master is in danger. He is in the hands of his deadliest enemy. He is in this city—cast into a dark, deep dungeon, and Horam means to kill him!"

Ulin turned pale as death, and clasped her hands upon her bosom. Her look signified that she would ask how it happened.

"I will explain," continued Hobaddan, "how this misfortune befell my chieftain. Have you ever seen an Israelite named Judah?"

"I know him well," said Albia. "He is the king's slave."

"And two black men, named Osmir and Selim?"

"I know them also," answered the bondmaiden.

"They came to our camp," said Hobaddan, "and told so fair a story that they were admitted to fellowship, and the blacks were placed as servants near the person of our chieftain. But the result proved that they were sent out by Horam, and that their mission was to capture the Scourge of Damascus. And this work they have accomplished. How they did it I cannot tell. I only know that we missed our leader, and that the three conspirators were missing with him. I came at once to this city, and have succeeded in discovering what I have told you. Julian is in prison, and of course the fate of death awaits him."

"But sir, said Ulin, struggling to speak calmly, "what can this mean to me?"

"Noble lady, I know that the thought of seeking you was a wild one; and perhaps you will say it was monstrous; but I could think of no other course. I know that your father was prime minister; and that you were in a position to wield some influence. There is not an officer in Damascus to whom I would dare to apply. Is there not some way in which you can help me?"

"How, sir? Help you in what?"

"In setting my young master free."

"Indeed, sir, you have taken a step most wild. How should I, the daughter of Aboul Cassem, dare to step in between justice and its victim?"

"Ah, lady," returned the lieutenant, "some of us think that others higher than Julian owe more to justice than does he."

"Still, sir," pursued Ulin, "it is most absurd to think that I could help you in this."

Did Ulin appear like one offended? No. Did she treat the name of Julian as though she deemed him worthy of the fate which threatened him? No. She seemed rather to be struggling to put away some feeling of a very different character. The lieutenant evidently read her nature, for he proceeded earnestly:

"Do not misunderstand me, lady. Were the work simply to set Julian free, I should not have visited you. The work I would give into your hands is the salvation of Damascus. If our master is slain by the king, this city must suffer terribly. The vengeance of those who love the chieftain will be dreadful. If Julian falls beneath the sword of the king's executioner, his followers will draw more blood from the life of this people than Polypses drew when he ravaged the city of the northern plain. To save all this, noble princess, can you not help me? Is there not some way in which you can remove the bolt from the door of the chieftain's prison-house?"

Ulin was trembling more violently than before.

"O, sir," she cried, giving full scope now to her feelings, "you find me powerless to help you. I have not the influence which you ascribe to me. If I had the power, I would not hesitate. If I were the jailer, and held the keys of the prison door, I would set your master free; but, alas! I am more weak than you imagine. I am more like a prisoner than like a princess!"

At this juncture the bondmaiden arose from her seat and moved forward. Her dark eyes sparkled with peculiar fire, and her fair brow worked as though the bain were revolving mighty thoughts.

"Dear lady," she said, addressing her mistress, "there is but one way in which we can render the assurance which this man seeks."

"Speak, Albia," said Ulin, betraying a suddenness of emotion which told very plainly how her desire ran.

"Not now, my mistress," returned the girl. "I must have time: If this man can come to our garden two hours past midnight, I can tell him more."

"Is there help?" asked Hobaddan, eagerly.

"I cannot tell you now," replied Albia. "I can only tell you this! If there is help, it is to be found only in one quarter. I will look for it there; and, at the time I have mentioned, you shall know the result. I will look for it if my lady is willing."

"And I am pardoned for my intrusion?" said Hobaddan.

"Yes," returned Ulin. She would have said more, but Albia was already at the door, and the robber had turned to follow her.

CHAPTER IX.

The Dark Hour.

"It seemed like a dream to Ulin. She closed her eyes—and opened them—and arose—and walked across the chamber—simply to assure herself that she was awake. Was it possible that a member of the robber band had been to see her—had been within her chamber—had come, and had gone? A friend and companion of Julian's seeking her for aid in behalf of the chieftain? She was trying to make it appear real, when her bondmaiden returned.

The door was closed, and Albia remarked, as she took a seat:

"He will be in the garden two hours past midnight, my lady; and if we can help him, we must do our work as speedily as possible."

"The thing may be possible," replied Albia, in a thoughtful mood. "If you would serve him, I think a way can be opened to the accomplishment."

The princess reflected a few moments, and then said:

"If the man who was here spoke the truth, it may become my duty to help him; and certainly his story seemed plausible. I can very easily see how the powerful robber band, moved to desperation by the death of their beloved leader, might wreak most terrible vengeance upon this city; and surely, if we can be the means of averting so dire a calamity it is our duty so to do."

"I think it is," added Albia.

"But," continued Ulin, "if Julian is in the power of the king, he must be in one of the strongest dungeons; and a strict guard must be kept over him How can we reach him?"

"I can think of but one way," returned the bondmaiden, laying down the plan with her finger as she proceeded. "Osmir and Selim had a hand in capturing the young chieftain; and it is not impossible that they may have a hand in guarding him. I judge so from the fact that the capture of the robber has not yet become generally known in the city, which would certainly have been the case if the king's officers had known it. Now we have some claim upon the gratitude of this Osmir, and I think he is, by nature, grateful enough to repay us. He is the man whom we found faint and dying upon the shore of the lake, and who must have died if we had not nursed him. You remember the circumstance?"

"He had almost been killed by some slaves of Aleppo," explained Albia.

BELGIAN HARES A PLAGUE.

They Increase Rapidly and Constitute a Menace to Agriculturists.

A little more than one year ago the English wild rabbit, under the name of the Belgian hare, was introduced into this city, says the San Francisco Argonaut. It had previously been known in southern California for about five years. The daily papers welcomed the stranger and assisted the importers in working up an excitement. Animals for eating were readily sold for $5 apiece, and the price of fancy specimens for breeding purposes ran up to several hundred dollars. At that time the Argonaut alone pointed out the danger of the introduction of this animal. They multiply with great rapidity and are large eaters. By the established figures of increase it was shown that one pair of rabbits would be represented at the end of the first year by twenty-two, and that at the end of five years the descendants of this original pair would number 3,809,322. So long as the rabbits were kept in captivity these figures would not seriously affect anybody, but the owner who was called upon to feed them. But should they escape or be turned loose the result would seriously affect the entire community. How serious this would be may be gathered from the experience of Australia, into which country they had been imported to furnish game for men of leisure who took an interest in sport. They increased so rapidly that they began to interfere with stock-raising and agricultural operations. They consumed the herbage up to the very doors of the farmhouses, destroyed orchards and gardens and caused the abandonment of land that had formerly produced thirty bushels of wheat and sixty bushels of barley to the acre. A war of extermination against the pest was inaugurated. Wire fences were built—one of them between 400 and 500 miles long and costing $3,850,000—to restrain them in bounds, but they burrowed underneath. During three successive years $730,000, $1,250,000 and $2,500,000 were paid as bonus to persons who killed them off. This represented more than 35,000,000 scalps, but still the plague continued.

Bavarians Keep Dogs.

Bavarians are not extravagant, but no family is so poor that it can not afford to keep a dog. Dogs are everywhere in Munich, and every tram car passing has a string of dogs after it—dogs whose owners are passengers. At the entrance of the large shops groups of sedate, patient dogs can be seen waiting for their masters. In the cafes the dogs are prominent. Everybody takes his animal with him—sometimes two or three—and, after the dogs have lapped their beer or saucer of coffee—for the dog fares like his master—there is a great scampering and shuffling under the chairs and tables, but no one seems annoyed at the melee. It is from the banks that dogs are rigidly excluded, and a porter is placed at the door of each bank for the purpose of checking your pet, like an umbrella or a parcel. The Munich dog, mostly a dachshund, is intelligent and good-natured. He romps with the cats without biting them, carries umbrellas and canes much larger than himself, and is never disobedient, except when he has indulged in too much beer.

Trees Which Look Like Stone.

The visitor to the Falkland Islands sees a number of what appear to be weather-beaten, moss-covered bowlders of various sizes scattered here and there. On attempting to turn one over, he is surprised to find that it is anchored to the ground by roots of great strength. These are not bowlders—they are trees! No other place in the world can show such a peculiarity of "forest" growth. The Falkland Islands are exposed to a strong Polar wind, which renders it impossible for trees to grow in the proper form. Nature has consequently adapted herself to the prevailing conditions, and produced this strange form of plant life. These "living stones," as they are called, are quite devoid of "grain," and it is next to impossible to cut them up and utilize them for fuel.

Ice Cream Not a Luxury.

Newport is the millionaires' playground, the aggregate of the wealth of the summer colonists amounting to over $100,000,000. Thus in July and August Newport is the richest town in America. Six hundred thousand dollars is spent in the town itself, among the tradespeople, during the season, and the town has more banks than any other place of its size in New England. Not more than a thousand persons make up the personnel of this stately colony—and 2,000 servants. A small boy recently summed up Newport in these words: "They eat ice cream three times a day."—Collier's Weekly.

When Mr. Evarts, who was my near relative and a man with whom I could take a liberty, came into the Senate, I said to him that we should have to amend the rules so that a motion to adjourn would be in order in the middle of a sentence, to which he replied that he knew of nobody in this country who objected to long sentences except the criminal classes.—Senator Hoar in Scribner's.

A GLOWING REPORT.

AN INDIANA MAN COMPARES WESTERN CANADA WITH THE UNITED STATES.

What Mr. Frank Fisher, a Prominent Dunkard, Has to Say After a Trip Through Canada.

The Department of the Interior at Ottawa has just received from Mr. E. T. Holmes, the agent of the government stationed at Indianapolis, Ind., the following letter, which requires no comment. It is only necessary to state that Mr. F. Fisher, the writer of the letter is one of the most prominent of the Dunkards and a man upon whose word the utmost reliance can be placed. His home is at Mexico, Ind., and he will be pleased to substantiate verbally or in any other way all that he says in his letter.

To My Many Friends—I am pleased to make a report to you of the pleasant visit my wife and I had in Western Canada.

We visited the territorties of Alberta, Assiniboia, and Saskatchewan, and found them far surpassing our imagination, but little did I expect to find such rich, loamy soil, so much of it, and so uniform in its level prairie lay. I do think the soil of Canada as a rule equals if not excels the finest prairie farm lands of Indiana. These lands are immense in their richness, and when once the sod is rotted and pulverized, it is as pliable and as easily cultivated as Indiana sandy soil.

Western Canada, from my point of view, offers as fine opportunities for mixed farming as any place in my knowledge. The long, sunshiny days, together with the rich soil, produce very fine wheat, oats, barley, flax and other cereal products. There is scarcely any attempt to raise corn, except early varieties for table use. The season is too short to depend upon maturing field corn. From the standpoint of getting this land ready for the plow, I must say that I never saw such a vast extent, practically all ready so all that one has to do is to hitch up the plow and go to work. This is not the case with all the Canadian land, however; some of it has quite a bit of timber, much of it may be called brush land, and some of it has lovely forest groves, dotted here and there, thereby covering a hundred and sixty acres.

I have no doubt but that this country excels as a grazing or ranching country, because they have such rich grass, having an abundance of rain to keep it fresh. They also have plenty of water streams, and as a rule water may be reached at a depth of from 20 to 40 feet. From this you can see there can be plenty of hay mown for winter feeding, and I have had reliable farmers to tell me that their stock will feed on hay alone, and be ready for market in the spring. Upon inquiring about the expense of raising a steer, a farmer replied that he did not consider it would cost any more than $4 or $6 to develop a three-year-old steer.

I truly think Canada offers a fine opening for a young man or a man who is renting land in Indiana. One hundred and sixty acres of good black land will cost you only $10 at the time you enter it, and by plowing and cultivating five acres each year for three years, gives you one hundred and sixty acres of good land for $10. This land can be bought from the railroad companies, private corporations or the government for $3 to $4 per acre.

From a financial standpoint, I believe that for a series of years (five) a young man can make $10 in Canada, whereas he would only make $1 here, and I feel sure that I spent more money to get my eighty acre farm in White county, Indiana, cultivated than it would cost me to cultivate eight hundred acres in Canada. This may seem a strong view to take of the matter, but when you take into consideration the clearing, ditching, fencing and the expensive breaking in of the stumps, and then compare the expense to that of land needing only the breaking, you will conclude that it is not such a wild or exaggerated statement as you might at first think.

I enjoyed the balmy, breezy atmosphere, which was bracing and refreshing, and the cool nights which made it so pleasant for sleep.

On making inquiries regarding the winters in this country, I learned that the people never suffer from the cold, as the weather is dry and invigorating, and in a great many places farmers and herders allow their stock to run outside the year round.

One great advantage to the settlers in Western Canada is the free creameries established by the government and run exclusively in the interest of the farmer.

I visited Thomas Daley, a farmer near Edmonton, Alberta, who showed the oats he had raised, some of which took the first prize at the Paris Exposition last year. The same yielded 110 bushels to the acre in 1899.

Yours truly,

The Japanese emperor has an allowance of $2,000,000 a year, to maintain the dignity of his office and have a good time. This is equal to $5,479 a day. At the close of the Chinese-Japanese war parliament awarded him 20,000,000 yen ($10,000,000) in gratitude for the able manner in which he directed military and naval operations.

"OH, MAMA, Something is Biting Me."

It is not itching piles that ails you or your child. It is the pin or seat worm that causes you or your child to have rectal trouble. Soon after retiring for the night the worm appears. It bites and stings and causes scratching and aching. Mothers know what it means when the child cries out: "Ma, Ma, something is biting me." And sure enough, upon examining her child, she finds the naughty, white, sharp pointed at both ends, the troublesome pin worm imbedded in the child's rectum. This worm causes more nervousness to young or old persons than any other disease. And the itching is not piles but pin worm. The only sure and harmless remedy is STEKETEE'S PIN WORM DESTROYER. Jean Carrere, of the Paris Matin, who returned recently from South Africa, relates an encounter of Lord Kitchener with a dandy officer who had an unfortunately effeminate taste in trifles. The young man came to him one day bringing a dainty silk handkerchief upon which, in accordance with a prevailing fashionable fad, he desired him to inscribe his autograph. Lord Kitchener took the handkerchief, and remarked: "This is doubtless your sister's handkerchief?" "No," replied the dandy, smiling amiably, "it is mine." Lord Kitchener handed it back without writing on it, only inquiring as he did so, with an air of serious interest: "And what sized hair-pins do you wear?"

"When the governor's coaching party drove up to the hotel at Williamstown last week," says the Boston Transcript, "it naturally attracted a considerable crowd to the broad verandas. In this gathering was a colored woman, wearing a capacious smile and accompanied by a little miss 7 or 8 years old. The latter advanced as the party alighted and holding out her hand, said: "How do you do, Governor Crane; my father is a governor, too." "Who is your father?" asked the governor. "Governor McMillin of Tennessee," was the reply. The little maid seemed to assume that the duty of entertaining devolved largely upon her, and she discharged it with much sweetness and unconscious grace.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Bath, N. Y., Sept. 16th.—There is now at the Soldiers' and Sailors' Home here an old soldier who has been nearer death than anyone who has lived to tell the story.

His name is A. E. Ayers. For many years he lived in Minneapolis, Minn. where he is well known.

Four physicians of that city once told Mr. Ayers that he could not live four days. He had Brights' disease.

As a last resort he tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. He is strong and well today

He says: "I was in the very presence of death, but Dodd's Kidney Pills saved me. They are the greatest medicine in the world."

A local musical critic of Hagerstown, Md., wrote thus of a performance of "Iolanthe," which was recently produced there: "Melodic curve of divine intensity vaulted aloft mirroring the perturbations of music's soul and painting the struggle for subliminal expression upon the airy fabric of voice dreams. Ecstatically, yet orderly, the chorus rang its accompaniment, dashing the serene waves of its cloud-capped visions right to the ultimate bars of human reach. The audience was sympathetic and enrapt, hanging with dramatic fervor to the meticulous inspiration of the passionate verve of the sinuous, irresistible direct and co-ordinate harmonies, which passed oft the ivory gates and scored their triumphs in the very heart of music' capital."

Eight years ago, in Bowling Green, Ohio, an attractive young lady was ardently wooed by a desirable mate. She then was graceful in form and feature, and weighed just 125 pounds. Since that time she has been increasing in size, and at present tips the beam at 319 pounds. The young man considers this too large an armful of loveliness, and has broken off the match. She has begun suit for breach of promise.

Two eagles were taken from a nest in a tree at Huntley, Ill., by Harry Burns, a fifteen-year-old boy. He was attacked by the old eagle as he was descending, and the bird made a determined fight to recover her pets. The boy resisted violently, and succeeded in reaching the ground, where he was almost overcome by the eagle, when some farm hands drove off the bird with the aid of pitchforks. The lad's face was badly lacerated, and he was sent to Chicago for treatment.

Iowa News

Conrad Youngerman, one of the oldest and most public spirited citizens of Des Moines, and owner of the Youngerman and Crocker buildings, died on the 10th, after a very short illness from lung fever.

The senatorial convention for the Thirty-fourth district, after balloting 115 times, adjourned to meet at Onawa September 18. Each county voted for its own candidate on every ballot from first to last, and at the time of adjournment there were no signs of a break in any direction, though it appears to be clear enough that Harrison or Monona county will in the end nominate either a Harrison county or a Monona county man.

Steve Kirkman, an insane man confined in the county jail at Albia, broke jail and is at liberty and heavily armed. Kirkman was found insane by the commission on insanity. He appealed to the courts. A jury found he was insane. A saw and revolver were passed through the bars to him and he sawed off a bar and kept other prisoners quiet with the revolver. He was very angry during the trial at his wife and other witnesses and there is apprehension he will murder one or more of them.

J. C. Ilgenfritz, foreman of the Rock Island construction crew which is placing a new iron bridge over the Iowa river at Iowa City, was instantly killed by being thrown from the bridge to the river bed 55 feet below. He was superintending the work of laying an iron girder, which slipped, causing an iron bar to strike him on the side, throwing him from the car on which he was standing and clear off the trestle. In his descent he struck a projecting beam, which crushed his chest, fractured his spine and broke one leg and wrist. He has been connected with construction work on the Rock Island for over twenty years, making Des Moines his headquarters.

Otis Green, who murdered his divorced wife at Des Moines a few days ago will get well. He told City Physician Schiltz that he wanted to live, that he was sorry he killed his wife. Both his eyes are gone, and a portion of the left cheek bone has been extracted, having been broken by the bullet that passed through his head just back of the eyes. Dr. Schiltz says that the only danger will be from septic miningitis, and from the look of the wounds such result will not follow. Green is the man who shot his wife and them himself Monday morning on Locust near Thirteenth street, because of jealousy, and because his wife refused to return to him after a divorce secured at Albia last June.

Waterloo is to have the largest canning factory in the world. The Waterloo Canning company has purchased machinery sufficient to double the capacity of their enormous plant. The machinery for the new plant, added to the present excellent outfit, will make the factory proficient to turn out 320 cans of corn a minute or in an ordinary canning season, 4,000,000 cans. Manager G. W. Drake says the factory will have no equal in the entire canning world. At the present time the Waterloo factory is the only corn-preserving plant in the world run by a complete, continuous calcium system of cooking, rinsing and cooling. There is one other calcium factory in the states, and that is at Mt. Morris New York.

An accident which might have resulted most disastrously occurred in the yards of the Chicago & Northwestern at Boone. Engineer Leslie Strong was hurt and is now quite sick at the city hospital. Strong had just gotten down from his engine in the yards and was turning a steam valve. In so doing the hot steam was blown into his face and he gave a quick step backward onto the track of No. 15, which train was coming in. Probably the noise made by the escaping steam deadened the noise made by No. 15. Strong was struck by the corner of the pilot in the back and knocked down and several feet from the track. His back was bruised and marked and his right leg was broken about half way above the ankle. The flesh was torn and bruised and it is thought he was injured internally.

For the first time in the history of the country, according to ex-Judge Mitchell of Ottumwa, a court of record has rendered an opinion in effect that pension money and notes given for funds of the same character held by guardians are not taxable. The case at issue was that of the treasurer of Wapello county against Calvin Manning, guardian of John Schwabkey, insane, to recover a back tax discovered by tax ferrets, on some $8,000 received from the government, representing back pension and funds saved from the same source since the original back pay was received. The guardian promptly took the case into court, taking the ground that pension money, either in the form of cash or securities, is not taxable, and after a long fight the court takes his view. Judge Fee rendered the decision.

Twelve-year-old Evelyn Majerous of Mosalem township, Dubuque county, as a result of a hunting accident, received the contents of a shotgun in her shoulder. The child's injuries, while of a very serious nature, may not, in the opinion of the attending surgeon, result in death.

A special election on the proposition of voting a tax to the Des Moines Southern railway was held in Winterset a few days ago. The proposition carried by a large majority. The voters who were opposed to the tax conceded that it would carry before the election was held, and most of them did not go to the polls.

W. H. L. King, manager of one of Newton's foremost factories, was trampled by mad horses in plain view of hundreds of citizens at the northwest corner of the square a few days ago. A team belonging to H. Sampey, hitched to a heavy wagon, became frightened and ran away. They crashed into the carriage of Mr. King with terrific force. He was thrown under the hoofs of the horses and trampled about the head and shoulders in a horrible manner. Physicians say he cannot survive. His two horses were killed outright and the carriage is a total wreck.

Reports from Kendrick township, Greene county, indicate that the strange beast which has been worrying men and scaring children into hysterics is still at large. A big party scoured the timber in search of the animal, but found no sign of him, yet the very next day it is reported he fell upon a herd of cattle and stampeded them. The tracks of the beast appear to prove that the animal is unlike anything known in this section, being much larger than the tracks of any dog and of a different print altogether.

PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR

Des Moines, Sept. 15.—Governor Shaw issued a proclamation yesterday morning formally announcing the death of President McKinley to the people of the state and paying a tribute to the departed chief executive. It follows:

The State of Iowa, by the Governor—A Proclamation: William McKinley, president of the United States, is dead. With profound sorrow I make the formal announcement of his death, which occurred at Buffalo, N. Y., at 2:15 o'clock this morning. Three times in our history has the hand of an assassin been successfully raised against the life of the nation's chief executive. Eighty million Americans stand appalled that such deeds of violence are possible where law is supreme, and where justice according to law is the corner-stone of liberty. But, even amid our sorrow and our shame, there abides this great consolation that the departed leaves a stricken people the priceless legacy of a blameless life. As a citizen, William McKinley was emplary; as a soldier, he was valiant; as a statesman, the peer of the greatest; as a public servant, faithful; as a husband, ideal; as a Christian, commendable; and at all times and under all circumstances, he was a gentleman. Wherever Christian civilization exists or shall hereafter be established, now and to all time, wives will recount the devotion of that husband, and parents tell the story of that life.

Now, therefore, I, Leslie M. Shaw, governor of the state of Iowa, do hereby recommend to the people of this state that on the day that shall be set apart for the funeral all secular pursuits be suspended in order that a mourning people may unitedly do honor to the departed, and at the same time counsel with themselves abstinence from such conduct and teachings as lead to disregard for the forms of law and disrespect for those whom they have placed in authority.

I further direct that the capitol be draped in mourning and that flags be displayed at half mast from all public buildings until the close of the day of the funeral.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the seal of the state of Iowa.

Done at Des Moines, this 14th day of September, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and one.

Leslie M. Shaw.

By the governor,
W. B. Martin, Secretary of State.

The governor also sent out messages of condolence to Mrs. McKinley and Secretary Cortelyou, and a third assuring President Roosevelt of the loyal support of the people of Iowa.

It will require $4,341,108 to run the state government for the next two years, according to the estimate made by Bert Gunderson, chief clerk of the revenue department of the state auditor's office. The report has just gone to the printer and will be included in Auditor Merriam's biennial report to the legislature, in which that body will act in making appropriations at its next session for the two years ending June 30, 1903. The cost of running the state government as estimated is over $700,000 more than the estimate made two years ago for the biennial period now drawing to a close, the total of that estimate being $3,577,423. Of the increase $500,000 is for the institutions under the state board of control, made necessary by the fact that Cherokee hospital will open next year and that there has been an increase in the population of other state hospitals. Increased endowments for the educational institutions are also included.

Dr. Benjamin M. Failor, one of the oldest practicing physicians of Newton, was slugged at 11 o'clock a few nights ago near the northwest corner of Jasper's lumber yard, and died at 5 o'clock the next morning. Dr. Failor was visiting pleasantly with his daughter, Mrs. Grandstaff, who came a short time ago from Burlington for a visit at home. A call for him came and he went to the home of Will Graham, operator at the Rock Island, who lives in the north one of the three Armstrong houses just south of the depot. Coming out of the house he spoke a moment with Harry Amos, who stood on the front porch with a young lady of the house. He passed on up the street. Soon Amos and the lady heard a blow struck. They remarked it, but thought nothing more of it. Adam Sharf, Sr., stood on the porch of the second house south and saw the doctor pass and also heard a blow. He thought he saw a man run across the street west. Amos started up the street in about five minutes after the doctor left. As he drew near where the doctor lay he heard a strange breathing sound in the dark and, thinking it a dog, got out in the street and started on. In a moment he met a party of young people. He spoke of what he heard there in the dark and in a moment they came upon Dr. Failor lying on his back, knees drawn up, breathing heavily. He was carried into Henry Wert's house and Dr. Rob was called. When he arrived and it was seen that the doctor was badly injured the police were notified. Dr. Failor was carried to his home on a cot. He was partially conscious and delirious for a couple of hours. He could tell nothing as to his assailants. One pants pocket was torn out and his watch had been torn off, leaving part of the chain. No clue has yet been found. Trains were watched and other towns notified. Dr. Failor was 76 years old and had practiced in Newton for many years.

James C. Irwin, a prominent citizen and public official of Burlington, killed himself by hanging to a bridge. A short time ago he suffered a stroke of paralysis, and his mind has not been in the best of condition of late. It is believed he was demented when he did the deed. A railroad crew first saw him hanging from the bridge, and notified the authorities.

Emil Voolker, a switchman employed for several years in the Milwaukee yards at Dubuque, was instantly killed while coupling cars. He was caught between the bumpers. It is said the couplings were out of order. He leaves a wife and one child.

The following call has recently been issued: "To the people's party of Iowa—Greeting: As secretary of said party, I am in receipt of an urgent request that we attend as people's party, as many as can, a called conference of reformers to be held at Kansas City September 17, 18 and 19, to consider the best means of getting our needed reforms into law. Individually I think it would be well to attend and aid in any move that will help us out of the imperialism we are so fast sinking into. Respectfully, Thomas J. Newberry, secretary state committee people's party."

In a hand-to-hand fight, Duncan McDonald of Greene county killed the beast which for a month has been prowling about the northern part of the county, killing stock and paralyzing women and children. McDonald found the animal feasting upon a sheep and went after it with a club, finally dispatching it, although not until the animal had bitten McDonald on the leg. It develops that the beast, which it was believed, on account of its large tracks and size, must be a panther or mountain lion, was a very large timber wolf, a species unknown in the vicinity.

CATARRH OF KIDNEYS

Quickly Develops Into Bright's Disease.

[PE-RU-NA CURES CATARRH WHEREVER LOCATED.]

John Herziger, son of Alderman Herziger, of Neenah, Wis., and Vice President of the Neenah Young Men's Club, writes in a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio, the following:

"After suffering for two years with kidney trouble I received relief and a cure from using your wonderful medicine, Peruna.

"For months I was unable to work on account of a severe pain in my back, and when I was able to do anything I was in pain and distressed most of the time.

"Hearing so much of the good results people had obtained through the use of Peruna I determined to give it a trial and it was a lucky day for me when I did so. I am well now and it only took a few bottles of Peruna."—John Herziger, 307 Commercial street, Neenah, Wis.

Two years suffering with catarrh of the kidneys, unable to work on account of the severe pain; could find no relief from medicine; gave Peruna a trial and was promptly cured—such was the experience of John Herziger of Wisconsin.

This experience has been repeated many times. Not only in Wisconsin but in every state in the Union. It was indeed a lucky day for this young man when his attention was called to Peruna. What would have been the result had he continued suffering on and fooling away precious time with other remedies, no man can tell. But it is almost certain that it would have ended in incurable Bright's disease of the kidneys, which sooner or later would have proved fatal.

Congressman Bankhead's Statement.

Congressman J. H. Bankhead of Alabama, one of the most influential members of the House of Representatives, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., gives his indorsement to the great catarrh remedy, Peruna, in the following words:

"Your Peruna is one of the best medicines I ever tried, and no family should be without your remarkable remedy. As a tonic and a catarrh cure I know of nothing better."—J. H. Bankhead.

Samuel R. Sprecher, Junior Beadle Court Angelina No. 3422, I. O. O. F., 205 High St., Los Angeles, Cal., writes:

"I came here a few years ago suffering with catarrh of the kidneys, in search of health. I thought that the climate would cure me but found that I was mistaken, but what the climate could not do Peruna could and did do. Seven weeks' trial convinced me that I had the right medicine and I was then a well man. I know of at least twenty friends and members of the lodge to which I belong who have been cured of catarrh, bladder and kidney trouble through the use of Peruna and it has a host of friends in this city."—Samuel R. Sprecher.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

WHAT CAUSES DANDRUFF.

The old idea was that dandruff is scales of skin thrown off, through a feverish condition of the scalp, is exploded. Prof. Unna, Hamburg, Germany, European authority on skin diseases, says dandruff is a germ disease. The germ burrows under the scalp, throwing up little scales of cuticle, and sapping the vitality of the hair at the root. The only hair preparation that kills dandruff germs is Newbro's Herpicide. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Not only cures dandruff, but stops falling hair and causes a luxuriant growth. Delightful hair dressing.

The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Norther Railway Company is nearing the completion of its 140 miles of new extensions in the very richest portion of Southwestern Minnesota. The six new towns, Reading, Wilmont, Lismore, Kenneth, Waters and Conger are rapidly becoming commercial centers for the rich and allready thickly settled country surrounding. There has been no "Auction sale of lots" or any attempt to "Boom" these towns; their growth being the result of a demand for convenient markets.

It is the purpose of the railway company to encourage the continuous substantial growth of the towns on their lines. In order that each town may receive the attention of "ownership." it has been decided to sell each town entire, including all unplatted land to private parties. For terms of such purchases, address the undersigned. For busine sopeings or purchase of lots address the Town Lot Agent of the respective town.

GENERAL TRAIN EN ROUTE FROM WASHINGTON TO CANTON—A SCENE AT A WAY STATION.

...mmunications said the simple services.

Great Throng Joins in Hymn.

Troops banked the streets about, but the thousands who had gathered near stood in places for five hours held the ground, catching up the broken strains of "Nearer, My God, to Thee." The silence of calm had come; the silence of supreme excitement had passed. "It was not at him," said the minister of the church, all but hidden from sight by the mountains of blooms and floral pieces that bound in the pulpit and choir loft, "that the fatal shot was fired, but at the heart of our government." Then he added: "In all the coming years men will seek, but will seek in vain, to fathom the enormity and the wickedness of that crime."

In that respect it was the scenes of Wednesday enacted over again with increased intensity All along through the great black lane of people that stretched from the McKinley home to the cemetery—quite two miles—were men and women weeping as though their dearest friend was being borne to the grave.

Every Eye Dim With Tears.

About the tomb itself the outburst of grief was still more striking. As the casket was borne into the vault there was not a member of the cabinet who was not visibly affected, while several were in tears, with their handkerchiefs to their eyes. Secretary Root, although controlling himself to some degree of outward calm, was deeply moved, while President Roosevelt repeatedly pressed his handkerchief to his eyes.

A Communication.

MR. EDITOR—Allow me to speak a few words in favor of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I suffered for three years with the bronchitis and could not sleep at nights. I tried several doctors and various patent medicines, but could get nothing to give me any relief until my wife got a bottle of this valuable medicine, which has completely relieved me.—W. S. Brockman, Bagnell, Mo. This remedy is for sale by J. L. Harr, Druggist.

Stand Death Off.

E. B. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a grave digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malaria, kills dislase germs and purifies the blood; aid digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Only 50c at Harr's Drug Store.

A Certain Cure For Dysentery and Diarrhoea

"some years ago I was one of a party that intended making a long bicycle trip" say F. L. Taylor of New Albany, Bradford Co., Pa. "I was taken suddenly with diarrhoea, and was about to give up the trip, when editor Ward of the Laceyville Messenger, suggested that I take a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I purchased a bottle and took two doses, one before starting and one on the route. I made the trip successfully and never felt any ill effect. Again last summer I was almost completely run down with an attack of dysentery. I bought a bottle of this same remedy and this time one dose cured me." Sold by J. L. Harr.

A Night Of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from Pneumonia before morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Troubles. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Harr's drug store.

Josh Westhafer, of Loogootee, Ind., is a poor man, but he says he would not be without Chamberlain's Pain Balm if it cost five dollars a bottle, for it saved him from being a cripple. No external application is equal to this liniment for stiff and swollen joints, contracted muscles, stiff neck, sprains and rheumatic and muscular pains. It has also cured numerous cases of partial paralisis. It is for sale by J. L. Harr, Druggist.

FARM, ORCHARD AND GARDEN.

By J. S. TRIGG, Rockford, Ia.

Thanks for the prospect of a fine crop of turkies and cranberries.

The present drouth in England is the most protracted and severe any the country has ever known.

The latest estimate of the spring wheat crop of Minnesota and the two Dakotas is 183,000,000 bushels.

A Texas steer weighing 2,200 lbs. sold on the Chicago market recently for $162, or six cents a pound.

It is an fait now in select social circles to refer to a charming girl as a potato and not as a peach.

Short though the corn crop of the country may be, there will be more than enough to make all the whisky.

The forage on any field of fairly good corn is worth, if shredded, not less than $15 at the present price of hay.

And now comes a man with a seedless watermelon. This is all right, but how is this melon to be propagated?

One man located in the woods of northern Minnesota has a potato crop in this year which will bring him in the handsome sum of $12,000.

Forty-three million Russians living in the interior provinces of that country are on the verge of starvation owing to continued drouth and crop failures.

An investigation shows that there are but six varieties of the timber growing in the Philippine Islands of any value for export purposes as cabinet woods.

Porto Rico produces the best tobacco, coffee, sugar, oranges and pineapples in the world, which fact gives this little island as a part of the union a most important place.

We note that 26 hogs raised in Kansas on alfalfa and just topped off with a little corn sold recently for $25 per head. There are great possibilities connected with hogs and alfalfa.

It seems that King Corn Phillips comes out of his assignment dead in no sort of shape to go on with his corn-growers' scheme, whereby the price of this cereal was to be permanently raised.

The Irish potato remarked to the sweet potato lately that for once in their lives they were trotting in the same class in the matter of price—yams and murphies alike are three cents a pound.

It will be out of place and bad form for the boarder to make any slighting remark about the prunes on his bill of fare this winter, for prunes with potatoes have passed into the list of luxuries.

Petty thieving has taken a new turn this season over much of the country in midnight raids upon the potato heads. A man whom we know had an eighth of an acre cleaned up in one night recently.

We feel safe in predicting that there will be no corn burned for fuel in any part of the west the coming winter. And yet in 1896 corn at 10 cents a bushel was a cheaper fuel than soft coal at $6 per ton.

We note the case of a creamery which cost the stockholders $4,500 but a short time ago, being closed out at sheriff's sale and bringing only $425. Creameries depreciate in value pretty rapidly when they are not used.

A farmer in a western state concluded he would raise a little less corn and grow some strawberries, so he set out a four-acre patch last year and this year sold 22,000 quarts from the field, for which he received $1,000.

The packing-house trust of Chicago is a far-reaching organization. Last year they added to their meat interests poultry and eggs, and this year they have buyers out seeking to control the apple crop of the west.

A Minnesota farmer during the excessively heated harvest season of this year humanely left his horses in the barn and hitched his traction engine onto his harvester, cutting all his small grain by steam power.

Sheboygan county, Wisconsin, maintains 105 cheese factories and but one creamery and this is preparing to make cheese instead of butter. It would seem as thought the calf would have a pretty hard road to travel in that county.

Some potato growers insist upon hilling up their potatoes, while others give the crop level culture. This season of drouth the hill system proved almost fatal to the crop, while potatoes deep planted and given level culture are a good crop.

It has been proven a possible thing to make a millionaire out of just a common everyday farmer, engaged solely in tilling the soil and producing crops and stock. Missouri has one and Illinois two or three such agricultural plutocrats.

The peculiar climatic conditions of the past summer favored the man who planted poor seed and planted his corn late. Because he wins out this year it is no reason why his example should be followed, as he would fail nine years out of ten.

The onion is never quite so attractive to us as when we get a sniff of an onion stew in some neighbor's house as we go home to dinner. For us mean a root as the onion. It has a good many fascinating ways with it.

Tea culture, ostrich farming and the growing of dates are three new things which are attracting the attention of progressive agriculturists. If we can only succeed in raising the tea and the ostrich plumes we can depend upon our nice girls to make the dates.

In the old days when whiskey could be bought for 25 cents a gallon a first class row could be started at a barn-raising or a vaucus for less than a dime, but this is beaten by the present cheapness of wine in France, where a gallon sells for less than one cent.

With a frostless September we shall have fine results from our fall garden. Planted July 30th, we had plenty of radishes in twenty days; in thirty days the string beans were in bloom and in thirty-five days an early variety of sweet corn was almost ready to tassel out.

If a dairyman will provide well-cured clover hay, silage cuts when the grain is in the dough, and corn ensilage, he need not buy bran or other costly rations furnishing protein, for his dairy herd. Any cow will milk to her full average capacity fed the above rations.

If you borrow a tool of any kind from your neighbor be man enough to see that it is promptly returned when done with and in as good shape as when you got it. It wears on a man's piety to lend a sharp scythe and get it back with the edge destroyed by improper whetting.

Dry seasons have one thing to their credit and that is the superior quality of all farm products grown and saved. The entire hay crop of the central west was saved this year bright and fragrant, and entirely undamaged by rain, no insignificant item, when in some seasons it is more than half spoiled.

One of the poorest things which this country exports is one of these hog, oil or mining millionaires who tours Europe with money to burn and disgusts a cultured and ancient chivalry with a blokish, barbarian effrontery—a get-rich-quicker libel on all that is graceful, polite and courteous in American citizenship.

Common prairie hay baled, is selling for about $10 per ton in nearly all western cities and scarce at that. In northern Minnesota are hundreds of thousands of tons of this sort of hay to be had for the cutting, and lots of men are now busy cutting this hay, baling and shipping it and are making good money out of their speculation.

As it looks to us, what with Uncle Sam taking in a revenue of $50,000 a month from makers of adulterated and bogus butter, and engineering a first-class lottery scheme in direct violation of the law which he has made for the government of his big family, it would seem that he needs the services of an evangelist, for he certainly is in no shape for the undertaker.

A farmer coming into the house one evening picked up his one year old baby, when the house cat jumped up in his lap beside the child. Taking one of the baby's hands in his he stroked pussy's fur the wrong way, so charging the child with electricity that when the mother took hold of the child it dropped over insensible and apparently dead. The aid of the doctor was required to restore the child to consciousness. It is far better to let the baby pull the cat's tail than stroke her back.

When the public health and the private pocketbook run counter to each other the dear people had better be looking after their health, for private greed, unchecked, would kill off whole communities if it could make a dollar a head doing it. The adulteration of food products is a big enough question to justify the serious attention and radical action of the U. S. congress. Because the fools will buy and eat adulterated foods it is still no reason why the rascals should be allowed to sell them.

A Jersey cow in Wisconsin consumed the following amount of food during the period of one year—bran of the value of $12.70, hay $7, ensilage $9, oats $10.80, gluten meal $5.40, pasture $5, total $49.95. She gave 14,474 pounds of milk, which made 740 pounds of butter, which sold for 25 cents per pound, amounting to $148, leaving a net profit of $98.75. This is interesting as showing what a cow is capable of doing when of the right breeding and given proper care.

An aged farmer of a western state sent the following pathetic inquiry to the census office lately:

"Our boy went away nineteen years ago and we have no heard from him since. I guess I am to blame for it all; I worked him too hard and we often had words about it, until one day he told me he was going to be his own master, and I guess he has, for he went off and we have never heard from him since. Could you help mother and me to find him?"

Every father can apply this to his own case.

A green, raw country boy the son of German parents who live on a farm, was given at the age of twenty-one a team of horses and a wagon and $2,000 in cash to start him in life. We met this young man five years later, the other day, and he told us that he owned 170 acres of fine land for which he had refused $60 per acre and had $2,000 worth of personal property and owed only $2,000 all told, which debt he would wipe out this year. When this can be done it is folly to say that the day of opportunity is past for the American boy.

Baled Corn Fodder.

Baled shredded corn fodder should come to the front this year with hay as scarce and high-priced as it is all over the country. It is a most valuable forage for dairy cows and work horses—in point of nutritive value equal to the best timothy hay. One hundred tons of this fodder was sold lately in a western town at $10 per ton. There is but one drawback to its general introduction and that the need of doing the shredding and baling when the forage is thoroughly dry, otherwise it will mould in the bale.

An Old Fool.

Here is the story of an old agricultural fool. His wife died, like enough overworked, when he was 60. He advertised for a new wife and got one from the Denver region. He paid her $5,000 the day he married her. He managed to live with her four months and then one morning when the chores were done, went out back of the barn and put a bullet through his head. The Jezebel then traits into the probate court and has one-third of the old man's estate set off to her. Strange, but just the way of the world.

The Lesson of the Year.

Drouth keeps the people of India face to face with starvation; it broods over central Russia and paralyzes the efforts of millions; it girdles Australia and makes a desert of once fruitful farms, and here in the great Mississippi valley no lesson has been more sharply defined the past season than that of learning how best to conserve moisture in the soil. The early and the latter rains may fall, full or scant as the case may be, and the wise farmer will learn how by deep tillage and constant cultivation to raise good crops even with a minimum of rainfall. No subject is of greater importance than this.

About Sugar.

The United States used 2,300,000 tons of sugar the past year. One million tons of this was produced on American territory—Louisiana 350,000 tons, northern beet sugar 150,000 tons, Hawaii 350,000 tons, Porto Rico 150,000 tons—this million tons paying no duty, while 1,300,000 tons were imported, upon which the duty was $46,800,000. The protest which the consumer has in this matter is that the one million tons paying no duty was held and sold by the sugar trust at a price based upon what it cost to import foreign sugar and pay the duty on it. When this country gets to producing two million tons instead of one million, this order of things will be reversed or there will be a howl from one end of the country to the other.

Depraved Appetites.

Animals, like men, frequently are the victims of depraved appetites. Post mortem examinations of animals which die of no known disease frequently show that a mass of foreign and wholly indigestible matter has accumulated in their stomachs. We once lost a valuable mare whose stomach contained over three pounds of barbed wire, nails and similar trash; a reader writes us from Pennsylvania of extracting a solid ball of compressed hair from the stomach of a pig. We are asked why animals eat these things. It is probable that the cause will be found in the fact of the domestication of the animal, under which condition it is not left free to select its food by instinct and is thus derived of certain food elements essential to its health. We doubt if wild animals are ever thus affected.

A Valuable Farm Machine.

Ten years ago all the corn which was cut and shocked had to be done by hand labor and the doing of it became as near hard work as anything found on the farm. It was always difficult to get the help to do this work and when done the corn was left in such shape that it was an all round nuisance to handle. Now the corn harvester is available, cutting up and tying in handy bundles from eight to ten acres of corn per day, and enabling any grower of corn to secure his rough forage from his corn field instead of from meadow lands. The general adoption of this plan will add twenty-five per cent to the acreage of any corn and stock-raising farm in the country. Thousands of these machines have been sold in every western state the past few weeks.

Feeding Steers on 50-Cent Corn.

A good many feeders are debating just now as to the wisdom of trying to feed steers for beef the coming winter, the question being whether they can make anything feeding 50 cent corn. One thing is certain—there will be a great falling off of beef production in any event; this fact is likely to put good beef animals up to fancy prices by next spring, and if a man has the right sort of steers—well bred beef animals—we had just as soon take our chance feeding them 50 cent corn this year as 30 cent corn in ordinary seasons. Then the side issue of the hogs associated with the feeding of the steers is sure to be a good proposition. Now mind, this statement is predicated upon the kind of steers fed, for we would not attempt the job with scrub stock.

As a re- lt of the agreement to fuse the mocrats are given the head of the cket; supreme court justice and vo regents of the university go to e populists. The ticket is:

Justice of the supreme court—Con- d Hollenbeck of Dodge county.

Regents of the university—J. H. oyston, Frontier county; Fred G awxby, Nemaha county.

Cresceus Defeats The Abbot

Readville, Mass., Sept. 23.—The reat stallion Cresceus, obtained a rmer grasp on his crown as king o e trotters by defeating his only val, The Abbott, on the Readville rack in three out of four heats. The wo fastest trotters in the world aced for a $20,000 purse, offered by homas W. Lawson, and the money hich the 12,000 people paid to see he event all went to a well known eal charity. The weather was per- ect, but the track was very heavy rom the recent rains, although looked fast, so that no records ere broken or even approached. In act, the fastest time, that in the ast heat, was only 2:07¾.

Milwaukee Train Wrecked.

Dubuque, Sept. 23.—In a collision big engine and several loaded reight cars of the Milwaukee road vere badly wrecked on the Illinois Central track, as the train was en- ering the city, near the rock cut. The Milwaukee train should have topped at the junction till the Illi- ois Central train had passed. The oss to the Milwaukee is estimated at $20,000.

Only One Voter.

On a recent municipal election day n Wurtemburg, only one person—a police sergeant—took the trouble to vote, and he elected the whole muni- cipal council.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

STATE ASKS A REHEARING.

In Osteopathic Case the State Files an Answer to Adverse Decision.

Des Moines, Sept. 23.—The state board of medical examiners has filed its answer to the petition of C. L. Parsons, a graduate of the S. S. Still College of Osteopathy, who demanded a certificate from the board. This follows defeat for the board on demurrer. The answer is based practically on two points. It is held by the board that an examination of the Still college was made and it was found not to be a "regularly conducted college of osteopathy." The board holds that the law gives it full authority to judge concerning this point, and its decision must be taken as a finality. Yet it provided regulations for "regularly conducted" schools, and they are observed by Still college. It is further contended that the law which authorizes the board to grant certificates to graduates of colleges of osteopathy is unconstitutional in that it creates a privileged class. The general law governing the granting of certificates to physicians requires that all applicants must have completed four full courses of twenty-six weeks in a reputable medical college, and no two of these terms may be taken the same year. The board holds that it would be unconstitutional to grant certificates to graduates of a college of osteopathy which did not have a course of this length. Still college claims to do it. This case will come up this term of court, and its outcome will be awaited with great interest. C. L. Parsons commenced the suit last winter, and it is a test case, in that if he succeeds in forcing the board to grant him a certificate upon the application which he has on file, all graduates of Still college will have the same privilege

THREE BOLD BANK ROBBERIES.

Fort Dodge, Sept. 21.—Bank robbers dynamited banks at the towns of Hardy and St. Joe, about twenty miles from this city. At the former they entered a hardware store, where tools were taken to do the work. They entered the back door of the bank, "fixed" the burglar alarm and then blew the door from the safe. The cashier had taken home with him $5,300 in currency and the robbers secured only $250. St. Joe is sixteen miles from Hardy and they drove to that town, where they dynamited the bank and got $1,100. Bloodhounds from this city have been sent to St. Joe, where they will be put on the robbers' trail. The explosion at Hardy was heard at about midnight and the drive must have been a rapid one to St. Joe.

Shellsburg, Sept. 21.—The robbery of the bank here was one of the boldest on record. People were awakened by the first discharge of dynamite at 2:30, but no one made an investigation. A second report a half hour later aroused all and a half hundred citizens were on the scene in time to see four burglars emerge from the bank. Two held the crowd at bay while their companions carried the booty. They marched to the depot, boarded a handcar and escaped without a shot being fired. They abandoned their handcar at Linn Junction and presumably hid in the woods. They secured $2,700 in cash.

WILL SPEND $25,000.

State Fair Association to Pave Streets and Build Walks.

Des Moines, Sept. 20.—It has been decided by the executive committee of the state agricultural department to spend about $25,000 of the $40,000 cash on hand in the state fair treasury on permanent improvements. It is proposed to pave that part of the main road leading from the west entrance to the grand stand, south to the main road from Grand avenue, thence east to the fork which runs southwest and south to the Rock Island; down this paving will be placed past the office of the secretary. Walks will be built from the Rock Island gate and the gate where the street car terminal is to the brick paving at the secretary's office. Walks will be made six feet in width, with cement base. Figures will be secured at once for the cost of this work. It is not known exactly, but will be considerable. It was decided also to erect two additional toilet rooms. One will be for campers and one built down by the stock barns. The committee has bought the manufacturers' building and will open manufacturers' classes for all comers. Buildings east of the secretary's office will be converted into restaurants. Further improvements are in view.

Speaker Henderson Home.

Dubuque, Sept. 23.—Col. Henderson, speaker of the national house of representatives, has arrived home from his trip to Europe, where he had a most enjoyable time. With Senator Allison he attended the funeral of President McKinley. The approaching campaign will keep Col. Henderson busy this fall, as he will be called upon to make several speeches throughout the state, and in addition to this will have a large amount of work to do preparatory to the opening of congress. In speaking about the campaign, Col. Henderson said: "I will make several speeches in the state this fall, and will probably go to Ohio to take part there. I am not positive of this, however."

Battle With a Burglar

Sioux City, Sept. 23.—Mrs. John H. Charles, wife of the president of the Floyd Memorial association, grappled with a burly negro who entered the Charles home. The negro choked her in his efforts to get her not to scream and was dragging her down stairs, when Mr. Charles, who is nearly 80 and very feeble, appeared with a revolver and put the intruder to flight. The negro jumped through a window. Nothing was stolen.

Eye Destroyed By a Bee.

Fort Dodge, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Andrew Alston, living at Dayton, lost an eye as the result of the sting of a honey bee received a few days ago. The insect stung her directly upon the eyeball, and she was brought to the hospital in Fort Dodge for treatment. Every effort was made to save the eye, but it was seen the other was becoming affected by the poison and it was found necessary to remove the injured one.

Cousins of President in Iowa

Ackley, Sept. 23.—Van Vorst Roosevelt and Theodore Roosevelt, two first cousins of President Roosevelt, reside in this city, being the proprietors of the Knickerbocker rolling mills and dealers in coal. Theodore T. looks much like his illustrious relative. When Roosevelt spoke in Waterloo a year ago they attended the meeting and renewed family ties.

Sets a Girl's Hair on Fire.

Sioux City, Sept. 17.—Lottie Murray, aged 15, was the victim of a brutal attack in broad day, made by a thief who entered the house after ascertaining that she was alone. He dragged her about by the hair, then set her tresses on fire, after which he cut them off. He choked her into insensibility, chloroformed her and robbed the house.

One of the streets in Canton, China, is occupied entirely by druggists and dentists. The name of this thoroughfare is quite appropriate—Physic street.

QUEER DEFECT IN STATUTE.

Building and Loan Laws Apply to Corporation Only.

Des Moines, Sept. 20.—A strange oversight in the laws relating to building and loan associations has come to light. It has been discovered that an individual or a partnership can transact a building and loan business in Iowa without being obliged to comply with the building and loan laws. The statutes on this subject apply solely to corporations.

The discovery was made in disposing of the question whether the Home Co-Operative company of Kansas City, Mo., could transact a building and loan business in Iowa. Not long ago, it came to the knowledge of Auditor Merriam that the company was distributing literature and preparing to transact business in Iowa that was to all intents and purposes a building and loan business. As the concern had not complied with the building and loan laws he wrote E. D. Beardsley, the local manager, that this could not be permitted unless there was compliance with the requirements of the code respecting building and loan corporations.

The defense of the local manager and of the company was that the Home Co-operative company was a partnership and not a corporation, and hence did not come under the building and loan statutes. The matter was referred to Attorney General Mullan. He has rendered an opinion that no law exists to prevent the partnership from transacting a building and loan business if it sees fit to do so. Corporations only are referred to in the laws relating to building and loan associations.

The attention of the legislature will be called to this evident oversight, which leaves a wide loophole for the introduction of building and loan methods. Attorney General Mullan said yesterday he hoped when the legislature met to have the law so completely safeguarded that it would be impossible for either an individual or a partnership to transact building and loan business, save under the regulations imposed on incorporated building and loan organizations.

DEDICATE JENNIE WADE MONUMENT

Iowa Women Conducted Program Carried Out at National Cemetery.

Gettysburg, Pa., Sept. 18.—The dedication of the Jenny Wade monument took place yesterday in the National cemetery here. The monument was erected by the women's relief corps of Iowa to the memory of the only woman killed during the battle of Gettysburg.

The shaft is twelve feet in height and is surmounted by a fine statue of Jennie Wade.

The inscription on the face of the monument is "Jennie Wade, killed July 3, 1863, while making bread for union soldiers." On the opposite side appears: "Erected by the Women's Relief Corps of Iowa, A. D. 1901."

The Wade family motto, "Whatsoever God willeth must be, though a nation mourns," is on the third side, and on the remaining side the simple epitaph "She hath done what she could."

Those who took part in the programme are all Iowa ladies, Mrs. Sadie H. James of Centerville, department president; Georgia B. Worke of Davenport, Mrs. Colonel Springer, Mrs. Springer Snyder and Georgia Wade McClellan of Denison, a sister of the dead girl; Mrs. Margaret F. Hinman of Belmond, Mrs. Joan Allen of Davenport and Treasurer Stella Plopper of Iowa Falls.

LIQUOR THE BIG CRIMINAL.

Polk County Judge Instructs Grand Jury to Stop Illegal Traffic.

Des Moines, Sept. 18.—Judge Conrad, in his instructions to the grand jury, declared that fully 90 per cent of all crime is attributable to liquor. He enjoined the jury to spare no efforts in searching out and investigating all illicit sales of liquor in the city. He urged that the slightest violation of the law be taken into account and indictments returned. His condemnation of the alleged practices of some drug stores in the matter of selling liquor was most severe, and he urged that all of these violations of the law be carefully investigated. "Above all, is it my purpose to stop the illegal sales of liquor," said Judge Conrad, "and it is the duty of the court and grand jury to see that all such sales are punished to the fullest extent of the law."

GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER.

Tramp Who Shot "Doc" Daugherty of Perry Is Convicted.

Perry, Sept. 21.—After being out all night, the jury in the case of the state vs. John Slavin, charged with the murder of "Doc" Daugherty, returned a verdict finding the prisoner guilty of manslaughter. The killing of Daugherty took place in May, 1900, as the result of a drunken carousal. Daugherty was a young man of Perry, who with a number of others had been drinking and started out for a walk on the Milwaukee railroad tracks. They encountered two tramps, Slavin and a companion, who had also been drinking. The boys began bartering the tramps, who had several bottles of beer with them. Finally the tramps asked the boys to go to the woods to drink with them and a scuffle ensued when the boys refused. A revolver was exploded and Daugherty fell dead. One of the tramps escaped, but Slavin was arrested. It is not generally believed that he intended to kill Daugherty.

THREE MEN BREAK JAIL.

Washington, Sept. 21.—Three prisoners sawed a bar off of one of the windows in the county jail and made their escape. When Sheriff Teeter went to lock them in their cells at 9 o'clock he found that the birds had flown.

Bow Dickinson, colored, a Mahaska county thief, charged with burglary, who was confined here on account of the unsafe condition of the jail at Oskaloosa, was recaptured at 10:30 p. m. at Veede, a station seven miles southwest of this city.

James Duhe, colored, who was also a Mahaska county prisoner, and Samuel Williams, white, of Kalon, Iowa, went southeast. At Havre they stole a horse and buggy, but were so hotly pursued that they abandoned it after driving three miles and took to the woods. Duhe is charged with burglary and Williams is under indictment for rape. Sheriff Teeter offers $100 reward for their capture or $50 for either of them.

The fellow who has a perpetual skate on doesn't cut much ice.

Charged With Postoffice Robbery.

Rock Rapids, Sept. 18.—Two men have been arrested here on suspicion of being implicated in the postoffice robbery at Alford in this county a short time ago. They had a cigar box full of postage stamps which they attempted to dispose of at one of the saloons here. The bartender took one of the stamps and called in a police officer and their arrest followed. Deputy United States Marshal Tracy was notified and took the prisoners to Sioux City.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Sept. 23, 1901.

One of the most interesting statements of the many that are to be included in the biennial report of the state auditor is that showing the tax collections during the years 1899 and 1900, as compiled from the reports of the county auditors and the auditors of special charter cities. The total collections for 1899 were $19,726,789.80. The collections include all corporate taxes derived from the general and special levies. A portion of the increase of 1900 over the preceding year is due to the additional levy of one-tenth of a mill for the agricultural college.

Captain E. B. Soper of Emmetsburg, head of the Shiloh monument commission, in speaking of the plans of the commission, said: "As matters now stand, we are waiting for the national commission to approve the design selected for the state monument. Colonel Cornelius Cadle of the national commission has the design directly in charge, the approval of it being left to him by the national commission. Some slight changes will have to be made in the inscriptions for the regimental monuments. The design for these has been approved by the national commission. The reason for the changes is that it is found necessary to shorten some of them to make them correspond with the size of the space reserved for the bronze tablets. This matter is in process of adjustment.

"I would like very much to get the approval of the plan for the state monument from the national commission and the secretary of war, so we could go ahead and let the contract for putting up the monuments. I do not expect there will be much further delay. When the plans are approved I think immediate steps for the letting of the contract will be taken."

Asked whether the monuments would be completed next summer, Captain Soper said he hoped so, but much would depend on the time of letting the contracts.

The great volume of business done by the board of control is shown by the report of the expert accountants to the executive council, which was recently filed with Secretary A. H. Davison and which has been made public, though it has not formally been taken up by the council. The report covers the three years beginning July 1, 1898, when the board of control law went into effect, to July 1, 1901. The total receipts for all the institutions in the three years in general support funds were $3,069,697.97 and in special appropriations were $1,206,545.83, making a total of $4,276,243.80. The total disbursements were $3,581,820.09, of which $2,997,072.51 was in general support funds and special appropriations, July 1, 1901, was $694,423.71. The report of the experts, P. H. Skinner and W. H. Hedges, is a splendid tribute to the efficiency of the board.

Four years ago a deal was made by which the city of Des Moines got possession of the old state arsenal building grounds on the river front for a city library site, and the state got a plat of ground facing the state capitol building on East Eleventh street, 100 by 132 feet in size, in return therefor, in addition to about $10,000 in cash. The deal was eminently satisfactory to the military department of the state, which has long been dreaming of a modern arsenal building. Such a structure will be asked from the incoming state legislature. It is suggested that the arsenal building be of a size to accommodate the adjutant general and his force, the stores of the military branch of the state government, the civil war records, the civil war flags, which are now sealed up in cases near the state library, and which the capitol commission will insist on having removed, and the Grand Army of the Republic headquarters, which are now cramped into the state capitol building. A structure that will accommodate all these will easily be built for the $50,000 fixed by the military department as the maximum.

The Sovereign Grand lodge of Odd Fellows, in session at Indianapolis, voted to hold the next encampment at Des Moines. This is good news to the Odd Fellows of the city and state, as they have been working to secure this convention for over a year. To entertain this convention will entail an expense of from $25,000 to $30,000. Part of this will be furnished by the Grand lodge of Iowa, but much of it will have to be raised in Des Moines.

The will of Mrs. Martha C. Callanan leaves $10,000 to the Des Moines Home for the Aged, and $20,000 to the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial School at Tuskegee, Ala. It is possible, however, that these bequests may not be paid in full, for the Iowa law provides that but one-fourth of an estate may be left to corporations. Mrs. Callanan's estate is estimated at $50,000 and these two bequests include more than half of the estate. The legal limit would give about $8,000 to the institute and $4,000 to the Home.

IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Kitchener Continues to Report "Regrettable Incidents."

London, Sept. 21.—Lord Kitchener reports that the Boers have captured a company of mounted infantry and two guns at Vlakfontein. One officer was killed. The Boers in superior force surrounded the British. Lord Kitchener is making a strict investigation and has sent columns of troops in pursuit of the Boers. The Gazette announces that on the disbandment of Lord Strathcona's Canadian corps twenty-nine officers have been granted honorary rank in the British army, corresponding with their present rank. The list commences with the name of Lieut. Col. Steele, the commander Strathcona's horse in South Africa, who becomes an honorary lieutenant colonel in the regular army.

London, Sept. 21.—The succession of "regrettable incidents" which Lord Kitchener has reported has evoked editorial councils to the government to cease to endeavor to wage war by proclamations and to recognize the need of crushing the Boers by force of arms. According to Boer circles in Brussels, Commandant General Botha intends to hold the 150 British prisoners as hostages against the carrying out of the terms of Lord Kitchener's proclamation.

London, Sept. 21.—The Daily Chronicle today finds great satisfaction in an alleged authoritative statement from its Washington correspondent, to which it gives great importance and prominence that President Roosevelt is not pro-Boer in his sentiments and will maintain President McKinley's policy of strict neutrality with regard to South Africa.

Withdrawal of Germans Demanded.

Shanghai, Sept. 20.—The Germans report that the governor of Shang Tung has demanded the withdrawal of all the German troops now outside the colony of Kiao Chow. The Germans are not desirous of offending the governor, but are at the same time unwilling to comply with his demand, so the German governor has gone to Pekiug to consult with the German minister there. German and Japanese companies are being formed for the purpose of trading on Tung Ting lake, the largest lake in China.

The Scourge of Damascus

A Story of the East...

By SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

Copyrighted 1901 by Robert Bonner's Sons.

"I remember," pursued Ulin. "It all comes to me now. I bathed his bruised head, and bound up his wounds, while you brought the cordial which my mother provided."

"So it was, my lady. I have been the slave since—have seen him several times—he has brought messages to your father—and I know that his gratitude is strong. If Osmir has any power to open the prison door, and I can find him, there may be some hope."

"But can you find him?" asked the princess. She spoke eagerly, and no longer sought to conceal the real cause of her anxiety.

"I can try," returned the attendant; "and even here we have a fortunate help. Shubal, who has been so long your servant, is a near friend to Osmir. I will take Shubal with me, and we may find the man we seek. Shall I not leave at once?"

"Yes, Albia. Go at once. Be careful, for all may depend on the secrecy of your movements. I have entered upon this matter, and I will now give all my energies to its consummation. Go—and bring me answer as quickly as you can."

The bondmaiden left the apartment, and when Ulin was once more alone, she started to her feet, and moved to the window. The flush was back upon her cheek, and the sparkle was in her eye. Her pure blood was circulating with new power, as, for the time, she forgot the king in the memory of the youthful chieftain.

In less than an hour Albia returned, and the beam upon her face told very plainly that she had not been entirely disappointed.

"My good mistress," she said, "Shubal has served us well. I found him without difficulty, and he at once went alone in search of Osmir. He found him at the royal palace, and has brought him hither."

"Brought Osmir?"

"Yes."

"And what does he say?"

"I have not spoken to him of Julian. I thought you had better do that. You may have more influence."

"Very well—bring him up at once. I will shrink from nothing now."

"In a little while the tall, dark form glided within the chamber of the princess. He bowed low as he entered, and when he saw the lady Ulin, he sank down upon his knee.

"Noble lady," he said, "Albia informed me that I can be of service to you. Once you served me, and my life has been yours ever since. Command me."

At first Ulin had been startled by the appearance of the powerful black within her chamber; but when she remembered the service she had done him, and when she saw how gently the beams of gratitude fell upon her from his brown eyes, she regained her confidence.

"I will not command you, Osmir; I can only ask you to assist me. You may be able to serve me, and you may not be able. But I will not detain you with useless words. You do not yet know what I seek?"

"I do not, lady."

"You helped to bring the robber chieftain to Damascus."

"Ha—who told you that?" He was not startled with fear; but he rather seemed to wonder how the princess had gained the information.

"Do you know a man named Hobaddan?"

"Yes, lady. He is second in command of the robber band."

"He has been here, Osmir, and he has induced me to use my influence towards gaining freedom for his chieftain. I may not explain to you, but nevertheless I am willing to confess that I do much desire to free this Julian from the power of the king. Can you help me?"

He bowed his head, and pretty soon arose to his feet.

"Lady," he said, "I did help in the capture of the young chieftain; but when I came to know him I would rather have served him had it been in my power. I found him a generous, honorable man and I learned to love him; but I was bound by an oath to the will of Judah, and I could not disobey. I wish I could save him now."

"Can you do it, Osmir? I do not wish that the king should kill him We thought you might have access to his dungeon—that you might, at some time, be set to guard him."

"So it is, lady; but I am not to be on the guard again until daylight."

"And to-morrow may be the last!" uttered the princess, painfully. "If you cannot help us our hope has an end."

"Lady," he said, after much thought, "I have one source of hope. My companion, Selim—he who was with me in the work of capture—stands watch over the chieftain's dungeon at midnight. Selim may help me. If he will, Julian may be saved. I will hasten away at once, and exert this only influence I possess."

"And when can I know the result?" asked Ulin.

"Within two hours past midnight," said Osmir. "That is," he added, "if I have any result to bring. If I do not succeed, I may not return at all."

"At two hours past midnight," pursued Ulin, "Hobaddan is to be in my garden. You can meet him there."

"Yes," returned the guard, after a moment's reflection, "if I succeed, I shall not fear to meet the lieutenant. If I am not in the garden at the time appointed, or very near that time, you may know that I have done all that lay in my power. Have you more to say?"

"No, good Osmir. Go to the work, and do the best you can."

He spoke a simple word of promise, and then turned from the apartment, Albia conducting him down, and guiding him out by a small door in the garden wall.

"Albia," he said, as he stood beneath the low arch—and his tone showed that he did not speak lightly—"your mistress does not dream of the danger I must undergo in this work; but I will be true to my promise, I will do all I can. If Selim will not join me, there is the end; but if he falls in with me, then we both put our lives at stake, and the prize may be won. I hope we shall succeed."

The bondmaiden watched the retreating form until it was lost in the darkness, and then she closed the gate, and turned her steps back towards the house.

CHAPTER X.

In the Dungeon.

The robber chieftain had been placed in one of the most gloomy dungeons beneath the royal palace, his legs and arms loaded with chains, and his feet shackled to a bolt in the floor. How long he had been there he could not tell. Night and day were the same in the living tomb. Food and drink had been brought to him thrice, and a masked mute had been in to remove the tray. He had but one hope of escape, and even that was so feeble that it would not bear the entertainment. He thought if his followers should discover where he was, they might possibly dare to attempt his release; but when he came to weigh all the circumstances, he dared not think they would do it. In short, Julian had made up his mind that death was very near to him.

And what had he to live for? What, but revenge upon the King of Damasmus? He had no parents—no relatives—nothing on earth of his own blood which he could claim. There might be living in the city some human being of his kin; but he did not know of such. He loved his brave fellows; but they could do without him. They were bold, stout men, and could look for themselves. What else was there? There were some poor families in the mountains—some friends upon the plain—and a few dependent ones near the river; but Hobaddan would care for them. What else was there?

The youthful chieftain bowed his head, and pressed his heavily laden hands upon his heart. There was one more—one whom he had hoped to see again in the coming time—one who had left an impression in his soul which had warmed and quickened his whole being. But why think of her? What could the beautiful daughter of Aboul Cassem be to him? In a few short days she would be the wife of his bitterest enemy.

Thus mused the prisoner, standing erect, with his manacled hands folded upon his bosom, when he was aroused from his reflections by the sound of creaking bolts, and in a few moments more the door of his dungeon was opened, and the rays of a lamp penetrated the place. Two men entered, closing the door after them; but the eyes of the chieftain were not yet used enough to the light to distinguish either their forms or features. Presently, however, as they addressed each other, he recognized the two blacks who had so fatally deceived him, and his first impulse was to raise his heavy chains and smite them down; but they were not near enough to be thus reached.

"Osmir—Selim," he said, "are you here?"

"Yes, my master," replied Osmir.

"Have you come to kill me?"

"No."

"To bear me to the king?"

"What, then? You have the watch over me?"

"Yes,"

"And the king fears not to trust you?"

"You see he does trust us."

"Aye—as I trusted you. O, you are two ungrateful villains. When you came to me in the forest, I believed your tale of woe, and took pity upon you; and I meant to be kind to you and make your lot a pleasant one. I looked into your faces, and I thought you were honest. I did not trust you from your speech, but from your honest looks. However, it is past. And now what seek ye?"

"Good master," said Osmir, speaking earnestly, "before I tell you why we are now here, let me say to you that we are not without hearts, and that we have some store of honesty. When we went to your camp, we went in the service of another master, whom we were bound to serve. We had sworn that we would capture you if we could. But, sir, after we had seen you and known you, we would have recanted had the thing been possible. We asked Judah to free us from the task, but he refused."

"Why do you tell me this story now?"

"That you may know the reason of our action."

"You action speaks for itself. Look at these chains; and mark the fate to which I am doomed."

"I meant not the action of the past, good master; I alluded to action that was to come."

"Action to come?"

"Yes. Selim and I are here to speak of your release from this dungeon. Hold—let our words be few, for the time is short. We have promised that we would lead you forth from Horam's power if the thing were possible."

"Promised whom?" asked Julian.

The black hesitated. He knew not that he should use the name of the princess, so he finally answered:

"Hobaddan is in the city, and our promise has been sent to him. But—there is something more. If we lead you from this place, we do so in the face of great danger. We have planned for that, and have freely staked our lives in the work. But, if we succeed, and you are free, we can never more return to Damascus. If we go with you from this dungeon, we must go with you from the city, and remain with you."

Julian believed that the black was speaking truly and honestly.

"Certainly," he said, "if you lead me in safety from the bonds that now encompass me, I will give you such return as you may desire. You may remain with me, if you like, or I will give you safe conduct into the land of the Syrians."

"Your word is enough, my master; and henceforth Selim and I are your servants. We change our allegiance, and the proof of our fidelity shall be manifest in this first act of our service. We have dangers to meet, sir."

"Talk not of dangers," cried the chieftain. "Throw off these chains; give me a sword; and lead me to the upper world; and I ask no more. Once again I trust you, and if you prove true, my gratitude shall be your while I live?"

Without further words Osmir proceeded to the work he had come to perform. Selim held the lantern, while he loosed the irons from Julian's limbs; and very soon the chieftain stepped forth with his limbs free.

"There is no time to waste," said Osmir, as he cast the chains upon the floor. "We have good swords at hand, and for the rest we must trust to our wit and strength. There is danger enough between this dungeon and the open air; but I am ready to meet it."

"By the gods," cried Julian, as he grasped the sword which Osmir had placed in his hand. "I can laugh at danger now. Lead on, and let this present hour be the last of Horam's power!"

HARPOONING BLUE WHALES.

To pursue the blue whale successfully is, according to an interesting article in Pearson's Magazine, a complicated undertaking. For instance, one of the requirements is a boat that can steam twelve knots an hour, and which is furnished with a formidable weapon known as the harpoon-gun. The harpoon-gun is a ponderous piece of apparatus laced on a raised platform on the prow of the whaler, and consists of a short, stout cannon, mounted on a broad pedestal, on which it can rotate horizontally. The gun has also a vertical motion, and can be turned quickly in whatever direction the prow of the ship dominates. On the top of the gun are "sights" for aiming, just as in a rifle. Behind is the stock, which is grasped in the hand when firing the gun, and beneath it the trigger. The breech is a box-like arrangement, situated just where the stock is fastened to the gun proper. The gun is loaded in the ordinary way from the muzzle, and the harpoon is tightly rammed into it. To discharge the gun, a small cartridge, with a wire attached, is first put into the breech. Pressure on the trigger causes a pull on the wire, which ignites the cartridge and discharges the gun simultaneously. The harpoon is about six feet in length and very massive. It consists essentially of three parts, the anterior conical portion, the movable barbs, and the shaft. The anterior conical piece is an explosive shell filled with gunpowder, and screws on to the rest of the harpoon. The explosive shell is fired with a time-fuse after the harpoon is imbedded in the whale. Taken all in all the harpoon-gun is about the most exquisitely cruel instrument of destruction devised by the ingenuity of man! But it is only when one sees and knows the prodigious brute it is meant to destroy, that one realizes that it is nevertheless none too effective. The gun is never discharged at a greater distance than fifty feet, and seldom indeed at more than thirty from the whale. To be able to get so near requires not only very fine seamanship but a very intimate knowledge of the habits of the animal.—Philadelphia Times.

born at the No. 4 hook and ladder house, says the Louisville Courier-Journal. Their mother had spent her whole life in the fire department, having lived at several of the engine houses and having moved from one to another whenever her owner was transferred. She has slept on the top of the hook and ladder truck since she has been at the No. 4 house, and has been carried to fires with the company a number of times. If an alarm came in when she was asleep on the truck she never took the trouble to move, but would remain on the truck until it returned from the fire. Her two kittens seem to have inherited her love for the fire department, and since they have been old enough to run about they have gone to almost every fire. When an alarm comes in the kittens will make a run for the truck and climb to the top of it. As the big truck sways through the streets the kittens hang on, apparently enjoying the exciting ride. At the fire they never venture off the truck, but curl up and go to sleep. Several times the firemen have attempted to make the kittens stay away from fires, but every alarm that comes in finds them at their post on top of the truck.

A Ring-Necked Tribe.

An officer of native troops was on outpost duty at Fort Stedman, in the Shan Highlands, Burmah, and was sent on an expedition to a wild part of the interior, where presumably foot of white man had never trod before. Here he came across a tribe called "Paloungs." He observed the women were decorated with curious coils of brass around neck, arms and legs, and on inquiry found that it was a canon of unwritten law that all the higher-grade ladies be thus adorned. He was horrified to be an eye witness of the operation, the coils being put on a young girl of 12, who lay shrieking and firmly held to the ground while the rods were bent and hammered on. The neck coil has the effect of a gigantic spring, elongating the muscles into a curious deformity. Each well-born ringed lady has a child following her with a pannikin of water, when in hot sun, to sprinkle the coil, as the brass gets intolerably hot, and festers the skin into horrible sores. This is one of the most curious customs ever heard of and in spite of the pain is willingly adhered to, as showing high rank in the wearer.—London Sunday Magazine.

STOKIETTES.

A minister in a Kansas town recently adopted a novel scheme for bolstering up the church collection, which had been diminishing. He informed his congregation, just before the plates were passed around, that the members who were in debt were not expected to contribute. The collection that day was double the usual sum.

On one occasion, when Robert Fechter, the tragedian, appeared in "Monte Cristo," the curtain rose at twelve-thirty for the last act discovering Fechter in an attitude of contemplation. For some moments he did not make a movement, and not a sound broke the silence, until a small but clear voice in the gallery queried, in tones of anxiety: "I hope we are not keeping you up, sir?"

Gladstone once talked with much enthusiasm to James Russell Lowell about the noble conduct of the United States government in providing pensions to the amount of tens of millions of pounds sterling a year for men who had served in the civil war. "I do not wish to disparage the generosity of my countrymen," was Lowell's reply, "but I may just observe that these persons are voters."

In speaking of the terrors of the Slav tongue, Opie Read remarked that a druggist in the heart of the Russian colony in Chicago recently had a telephone instrument installed in his place for the accommodation of his patrons. The minute the first user of the 'phone began to talk Russian into the receiver, the wire kinked into small knots, like a tensely twisted string. They couldn't do a thing to meet the emergency until one of the telephone linemen, who had once attempted to do missionary work in a Russian settlement in Minnesota, replaced the smooth, insulated copper strand with the ordinary barb wire. That jagged medium proved a perfect means of transmission for Russian speech.

HE SLEEPS IN PEACE

Imposing Funeral Ceremonies Precede Interment of McKinley at Canton.

Out under the whispering oak trees of Westlawn cemetery, in a vine-covered vault, almost buried in a sloping hillside, all that is earthly of William McKinley now rests. About the flower-strewn slopes a picket line of soldiers stands silent in the shadows.

Whole Day Given to Grief.

All day Thursday muffled drums beat their requiems, brasses wailed out the strains of marches of the dead, and men of the nation followed a funeral car in grief and tears. Through the banks of bareheaded men and weeping women and children, fringed by a wall of soldiers, marching militia and civilians passed with the mourners of the distinguished dead.

First among those who followed the bier during the journey from the home to the tomb was the man who is now at the head of the government.

Mrs. McKinley Nears Collapse.

Mrs. McKinley was unable to attend the funeral. While the last rites were being said she remained in a room of the family home, dazed, not realizing that death had come to her husband, almost paralyzed mentally. During the morning, at her urgent request, she was left alone for a time beside the coffin as it lay in the south parlor of the house. No one seeks to lift the veil that is drawn over this scene about the bier of the last earthly sleep. The casket was not opened. But she was near the one who ever had cared for and protected her; near the dead for whom grief has burned into the soul of a country the lessons of manliness and beneficence taught by his life.

Final Ceremonies Impressive.

The last ceremonies for the late president were marked with a dignity that struck dumbness to the tens of thousands who watched the funeral column make the journey from the home to the cemetery. From the south parlor of the frame house which had so long been the family home the casket was borne to the First Methodist church at Canton, with statesmen, diplomats, great men of nation, representatives of the world, gathered with the surrounding members of the family. Ministers of five religious denominations said the simple services.

Great Throng Joins in Hymn.

Troops banked the streets about, but the thousands who had gathered near and stood in places for five hours held their ground, catching up the broken strains of "Nearer, My God, to Thee." The silence of calm had come; the silence of supreme excitement had passed. "It was not at him," said the minister of the church, all but hidden from sight by the mountains of blooms and floral pieces that bound in the pulpit and choir loft, "that the fatal shot was fired, but at the heart of our government." Then he added: "In all the coming years men will seek, but will seek in vain, to fathom the enormity and the wickedness of that crime."

New President in Tears.

These words brought home with crushing force the warning that the last scenes were being enacted. Among those who sat with bowed heads was President Roosevelt. The tears welled into his eyes as he heard the petitions that God might guide his hands aright. Then came the last stage of this journey to the city of the dead. Members of the United States senate, those who sit in the house of representatives, officials and citizens from practically every state in the union, soldiers, military organizations—a column of more than 6,000 men followed the funeral car on this last journey.

Path is Carpeted in Flowers.

The skies were hidden by clouds of gray, but not a drop of rain fell. The path of flagging leading to the iron-gated vault was buried beneath a covering of blooms. This carpet of flowers came as an offering from the school children of Nashville, Tenn. But the men of the war days of forty years ago, with whom the martyred president had marched in his youth, passed up this road before the funeral car approached. They caught up the flowers as they passed, pressing them to their lips. Just ahead of the hearse marched the handful of survivors of the late president's own regiment. They, too, gathered up the blooms as they limped by.

Blooms Taken as Mementos.

So it happened that when the men of the army and of the navy carried the black casket within the shadow of the vault the flower carpet had disappeared, its blooms, however, to be guarded for years as mementos of this day of sorrow.

Just without the entrance to this mausoleum stood the new president of the United States. The coffin rested on supports only a hand's reach from him. Then the members of the cabinet formed an open line with him, and members of the family—all save the lone woman who was in the home under the close watch of Dr. Rixey—gathered near. "Earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust," came the benediction from the lips of the venerable Bishop Joyce.

The roar of the cannon echoed from the hilltop just above. It came as a mighty "amen." Again the white-haired minister spoke. Again came the crashing roar of the salute, its reverberations beating on and on over the hills about the city.

"Taps" Sounded by Bugler.

"Taps," the saddest call the bugle language of the army knows, came from eight bugles. The last notes were held until the breath of the wind seemed to rob them of life. Away down the broad street, two miles away, the marching columns were still coming. The music of the bands, muted, it seemed, by some giant hand came floating to the group about the vault—"Nearer, My God, to Thee, Nearer to Thee." Once again came the crash from the guns above.

Door Is Closed Upon Martyr.

Then the casket was carried within the vault. Five infantrymen marched behind it. A moment passed and the outer doors were closed. The last ceremony was over; the third martyred president of the United States had been committed to God and eternity.

Slowly the marching column treaded about the crescent road to the left of the temporary tomb. Then darkness threw its veil over all, the silent guards took their stations, the cemetery gates were closed.

Never Mourning More Sincere.

That is the bare outline of one of the most imposing and impressive funerals ever seen in the United States. To fill in all its details would take pages, while to convey an adequate idea of the feature of it all which was most conspicuous—the depth and silence of the grief displayed—is beyond words. In that respect it was the scenes of Wednesday enacted over again with increased intensity. All along through the great black lane of people that stretched from the McKinley home to the cemetery—quite two miles—were men and women weeping as though their dearest friend was being borne to the grave.

Every Eye Dim With Tears.

About the tomb itself the outburst of grief was still more striking. As the casket was borne into the vault there was not a member of the cabinet who was not visibly affected, while several were in tears, with their handkerchiefs to their eyes. Secretary Root, although controlling himself to some degree of outward calm, was deeply moved, while President Roosevelt repeatedly pressed his handkerchief to his eyes.

Among the bystanders many scarcely made an effort to conceal their emotion. It was a scene under the cheerless gray skies and in the bleak wind, as cold as a November day, that even the radiant glory of all the great mass of flowers could not relieve—the picture of all of sorrow and desolation that death leaves in its wake. As the one on whom this terrible blow falls hardest was not there this agony was spared her.

Will Sleep in Bed of Granite.

Here in this vine-covered vault the remains of President McKinley will lie until they are buried in granite. There remain now only the plans for a monument to his memory. Already these are under way. Thursday morning Speaker Henderson of the house of representatives, accompanied by Congressman S. E. Payne of New York, and Congressman Dalzell of Pennsylvania, were driven to Westlawn cemetery and viewed the location of the McKinley plot.

Congress to Build a Monument.

The newer part of the cemetery was also visited, and although the statement is not definitely made, it is suggested that the coming session of congress will probably appropriate funds for the erection of a monument. The plans and details are as yet embryonic, but will assume definite proportions in a week or two.

Scenes at the Church.

It was 1:50 o'clock when the procession reached the stately stone edifice where the funeral services were to be held. At the church entrance were drawn up deep files of soldiers, with bayonets advanced, keeping a clear area for the advancing casket and the long train of mourners. The hearse halted while President Roosevelt and members of the cabinet alighted. Again they grouped themselves at either side of the entrance, and with uncovered heads awaited the passing of the casket. Then the flower-covered coffin was brought from the hearse and as it passed within the black-draped entrance the president and his cabinet followed within the edifice.

Members of Congress Enter.

At the rear of each of the four aisles stood a soldier at attention, cap in hand, musket held straight in front. The members of the senate entered. At the head walked Senator Allison of Iowa. Then came Penrose and Cockrell, Scott, Burrows of Michigan, Tillman and Mason of Illinois. Next the members of the house filed in. They numbered almost 150. Speaker Henderson at the head. Louder came the mourn of the band, and outside the troops had formed a phalanx of sabers and bayonets. Then, under the black shrouded door, came the casket.

Under Arch of Sabers.

The black coffin had passed under an arch of drawn sabers as it was carried up the steps. Lieutenant General Miles and the men of the army and Rear Admiral Farquhar and the men of the navy held their positions. Covered with a great American flag, bearing only sprays of immortelles and roses tendered by the Legation of honor, the casket was slowly brought to the front, supported on the shoulders of the blue jackets and the soldiers. At the foot of the mountain of flowers marking the altar and the choir loft lay the bier shrouded, too, in the national colors and in black. On this the casket was placed under the quivering folds of the starry banner, with the lights shedding their effulgence from above, the fragrance of the flowers hovering about and the music of Beethoven's grand funeral march pulsing from the organ, the bodybearers gently lowered the flag-draped and flower-adorned coffin to its support.

All Rise as Coffin Passes.

Then the generals took their places in the first seat to the right of the central aisle. The rear admirals crossed and took the first pew to the left. Every one within the church had risen as the casket was brought in. They remained standing. A moment later and President Roosevelt entered through the same doorway of black. His lips quivered slightly as he was escorted to the pew directly behind General Miles. Behind him came Secretaries Hitchcock and Wilson and Postmaster General Smith, who filed into the next pew, and with them

The remaining three divisions were made up of representatives from clubs, societies, civic bodies and the Eighty-second regiment of National Guards, together with other military organizations.

When the funeral at Canton began all the tides of American life stood still. The wheels of industry ceased to revolve. The hammers of toil paused in their beat. The ship stopped her throb in its race against time. The miner dropped his pick. The farmer checked his team in mid-furrow. The crowds in the city streets halted. All activities save the ministrations to the deadly sick and the dying were suspended. The sun in heaven for a space looked down upon a motionless nation, where nearly every head was bent. Special services were held in the churches of the national capital and hundreds of other cities.

went Secretary Cortelyou, the man who had made every effort that a loyal heart could prompt to save the life which had gone out under the bullet.

Members of Family Seated.

Then came the members of the family, all being seated to the left of the central aisle. Abner McKinley, brother of the dead president, and his wife walked slowly at the head of the black-clad line. He was seated in the pew directly behind the men of the navy and just across the aisle from President Roosevelt. After Dr. and Mrs. Boer came the venerable Joseph Saxton, uncle of Mrs. McKinley. The great organ had left the funeral march and now the reeds pealed out the strains of "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

hands to the memory of heroes testify to the virtues of the living as well as to the services of the dead, so the sorrow that has overwhelmed our nation, obliterating the distinctions of party, race and religion, is as complimentary to the patriotism of our people as to our departed magistrate. It would indeed be a disgrace to our nation if the murder of a President concerned only the members of the dominant party. While no recent campaigns have aroused deeper feeling than those through which Mr. McKinley passed, yet in no contests did the minority more cheerfully acquiesce in the will of the majority as expressed at the polls. He was the President of all the people, and their dignity and sovereignty were attacked when he was assaulted."

CLEVELAND'S TRIBUTE TO McKINLEY

All our people loved their dead President. His kindly nature and lovable traits of character and his amiable consideration for all about him will long be in the minds and hearts of his countrymen. He loved them in return with such patriotism and unselfishness that in this hour of their grief and humiliation he would say to them: "It is God's will; I am content. If there is a lesson in my life or death, let it be taught to those who still live and have the destiny of their country in their keeping."

He was obedient and affectionate as a son, patriotic and faithful as a soldier, honest and upright as a citizen, tender and devoted as a husband, and truthful, generous, unselfish, moral, and clean in every relation of life. He never thought any of those things too weak for his manliness.

By the memory of our murdered President, let us resolve to cultivate and preserve the qualities that made him great and useful, and let us determine to meet any call of patriotic duty in any time of our country's danger and need.

The Absence of It.

If there is any truth in the saying that happiness is the absence of all pain, mental and physical, the enjoyment of it can only be found in heaven. But so far as the physical is concerned, it is within easy reach; at least measurably so, as far as cure will go. The sum of human misery in this line is made up of greater or less degrees of physical suffering. The minor aches and pains which afflict mankind are easy to reach and as easily cured. There are none in the whole category, which, if taken in time, cannot be cured. They must in some form afflict the nerves, the bones, the muscles and joints of the human body. They are all more or less hurtful and wasteful to the system. St. Jacob's Oil is made to cure them, to search out hidden pain spots, and to cure promptly in a true remedial and lasting way. Very, very many have not known happiness for years till they used it, and very many are putting off cure and happiness because they don't use it.

The first day the patient was able to accompany her husband for a walk she met Embassador Joseph Choate, an intimate friend, who had shown much solicitude for her recovery. The delighted Mr. Choate greeted the lawyer warmly, but seemed to ignore his wife, who finally said, with a pout: "Why, Mr. Choate, you don't take any notice of me. You haven't spoken a word to me yet. I really believe you have forgotten me." "My dear madam," said Mr. Choate, smiling, "I must confess that I did not recognize you without your appendix."

A DISTINGUISHED MISSIONARY.

Washington, Ind., Sept. 23d.—There is at present, living at 106 East 15th street in this city, a most remarkable man. He is Rev. C. H. Thompson, and he came to Washington from Little York, Ind., a short time ago.

Rev. Mr. Thompson spent many years of his long and useful life as a missionary among the Indians of the west. The great exposure and the drinking of so much bad water brought on Diabetes, and at Wagoner, Indian Territory, he was struck down while preaching.

Physicians, one of them a Chicago specialist, pronounced his case hopeless. Dodd's Kidney Pills were recommended, and as a last resort he tried them. He was completely cured, and restored to good health and his case and its cure has caused a sensation among the physicians.

It is said that when the first Chinese came to California the Indians were very curious about them. A dispute arose among some of them as to what country the strangers might hail from, and whether or not they were Indians. The Indians, wise as the Puritans of old, decided to apply the water test. If the accused swam they were witches, if they drowned they were innocent. One day a party of Indians met a party of Chinamen approaching a little stream. The strangers approached the bridge and started across. The Indians, too, filed across, and meeting the Chinamen in mid-stream, pushed two of them into the angry, spooming current below. The test was conclusive. They could not swim. They were not Indians.

THE CHEAPEST PAINT

The economy in using Devoe ready paint is in results more than price. It covers more and lasts longer than lead and oil, two to one; ten to one of some paint.

Use Devoe; and figure cost by the square yard, or year, not by the gallon; it's the cheapest paint made, figured that way.

Ask the nearest dealer for Devoe; insist on having it. Our pamphlet on painting free if you mention this paper. GOOD-PAINT DEVOE, CHICAGO.

A GREAT COUNTRY

The eyes of all America are turned toward North Dakota's magnificent crops, just harvested. Over 80,000,000 bushels of wheat and 19,000,000 bushels of flax, good corn and abundant grasses. Thousands of farmers raised 14 to 18 bushels of flax per acre on new breaking, now bringing them $1.25 a bushel. Think of your getting free government land and realizing $25 per acre for the first breaking!

There is plenty of good government land left, but it is being taken up fast. Also excellent chances to go into any business in new towns on the "Soo" Line. If you want free land, or are looking for good business locations, write D. W. Casseday, Land Agent, "Soo" Line, Minneapolis, Minn.

To the Ladies:

Don't let your grocer sell you a 12 oz. package of laundry starch for 10 cents when you can get 16 oz. of the very best starch made for the same price. One-third more starch for the same money.

EXACT SIZE OF 10 CENT PACKAGE.
72 PACKAGES IN A CASE.

To the Dealers:

GO SLOW—In placing orders for 12-oz. Laundry Starch. You won't be able to sell 12 ounces for 10 cents while your competitor offers 16 ounces for the same money.

DEFIANCE STARCH IS THE BIGGEST—THE BEST COLD WATER STARCH MADE.

No Chromos, no Premiums, but a better starch, and one-third more of it, than is contained in any other package for the price.

Having adopted every idea in the manufacture of starch which modern invention has made possible, we offer Defiance Starch, with every confidence in giving satisfaction. Consumers are becoming more and more dissatisfied with the prevalent custom of getting 5c. worth of starch and 5c. worth of some useless thing, when they want 10c. worth of starch. We give no premiums with Defiance Starch, relying on "Quality and Quantity" as the more satisfactory method of getting business. You take no chances in pushing this article, we give an absolute guarantee with every package sold, and authorize dealers to take back any starch that a customer claims to be unsatisfactory in any way. We have made arrangements to advertise it thoroughly, and you must have it. ORDER FROM YOUR JOBBER. If you cannot get it from him, write us.

MARRIED—At the M. E. parsonage in Klemme, Thursday Sept. 19th, 1901, at 5:00 P. M., Mr. Charles Allen of Ell Townshipp, to Miss Maggie More of Ell township, Rev. E. A. Phelps officiated. After the ceremony the happy couple departed for the home which the groom had prepared for their occupancy. Thus were united two of Ell township's well known and highly respected young people. The best wishes of their many friends go with them to their new home.

The ball game on last Friday between Meservey and Klemme was another victory for Klemme. The score stood 13 to 5. Bert Crawford was hit on the head by a thrown ball. Ed. Ell was hit in the back. Frank Kluckhohn had the wind knocked out of his breather. Joe Nissen fell onto a bat and bruised his arm into black and blue spots. Charley Ell cracked the web between two fingers on one hand wide open. John Baumgartner got hurt and that's all that comes to mind just now! Nice game.

MARRIED—The marriage of Mr. G. L. Metcalf, of this place, and Miss Myra Fuller of Klemme Iowa, took place in the parlors of the Montana Hotel in this city Saturday evening at five o'clock, Rev. B. C. Black performing the ceremony in the presence of a few witnesses, the immediate friends of the groom.

The announcement was a complete surprise to the people of people of Hamilton, who had received no intimation that any such step was contemplated. The bride is a relative of John Sears, of Woodside and a niece of Joshua C. Gilman, of Victor, and four years ago visited at Bitter Root. Mr. Metcalf is also a native of Iowa, but the relatives of Miss Fuller were kept in the dark of her intention to make her home in the valley. Friday evening she arrived from her eastern home and the following day the marriage took place. Sunday they called at the John Sears place and drove down to the Gilman home, taking them all completly by surprise. The happy pair have the congratulations and good wishes of every one. For the present they will make their home at the Moutana hotel, but expect to commence housekeeping in the near future. —Hamilton (Mon.) Democrat.

ELL CENTER NEWS.

Special Correspondent.

Maud Braund is visiting in Garner this week.

The Mr. Kusphers, of Dows, are busily engaged plowing on the T. Gauley farm.

Mr. Groves has rented one of A. Kelley's farms, the one occupied by J. Ptacek.

The heavy frosts last week put an end to corn cutting but outside of this little damage was done.

The ball players had a party at T. Gauley's Wednesday evening of this week and a merry time was had.

Rev. Phelps will preach his farewell sermon at Pleasant Mound Sunday preparatory to go to Conference.

The ball game last Saturday was warmly contested but finally ended in a victory of Ell Center, the scores standing 27 to 30 in our favor. Quite a number of spectators witnessed the game.

The Hanson family seems to be having more than it's share of the trouble. Hans is now down with the fever and grave fears are entertained for his recovery. Mrs. Hanson is also thought to be coming down with the disease.

A very quiet wedding took place in the M. E. parsonage of Klemme last Thursday. In fact it was so quiet that none but a few of the near friends knew anything about it. The contracting parties were C. W. Allen of German Township and Miss Maggie More of Ell Center. Rev. E. A. Phelps pronounced the all important words that enabled the young couple to go on their way rejoicing.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the aflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. "Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made as is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflamation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to "Consumption—Snuffles will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure." THE HOME GOLD CURE.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors requires antidotes capable of neutratizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober, industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is perfectly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drundards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy and as many more have been made temporate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent or misleading 'improvement.' Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The Home Gold Cure is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 or $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. Address department A 295 EDWIN B. GILES & Co., 2330 to 2332 Market St., Philadelphia, Pa.

GREAT OPPURTUNITIES

The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern Railway Company is nearing the completion of it's 140 miles of new extensions in the very richest portion of Southwestern Minnesota. The six new towns, Reading, Wilmont, Lismore, Kenneth, Waters and Conger are rapidly becoming commercial centers for the rich and allready thickly settled country surrounding. There has been no "Auction sale of lots" or any attempt to "Boom" these towns; their growth being the result of a demand for convenient markets.

It is the purpose of the railway company to encourage the continuous substantial growth of the towns on their lines. In order that each town may receive the attention of "ownership," it has been decided to sell each town entire, including all unplatted land to private parties. For terms of such purchases, address the undersigned. For business openings or purchase of lots address the Town Lot Agent of the respective town.

A Certain Cure For Dysentery and Diarrhoea

"some years ago I was one of a party that intended making a long bicycle trip" say F. L. Taylor of New Albany, Bradford Co., Pa. "I was taken suddenly with diarrhoea, and was about to give up the trip, when editor Ward of the Laceyville Messenger, suggested that I take a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I purchased a bottle and took two doses, one before starting and one on the route. I made the trip successfully and never felt any ill effect. Again last summer I was almost completely run down with an attack of dysentery. I bought a bottle of this same remedy and this time one dose cured me." Sold by J. L. Harr.

A Night Of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she wou d die from Pneumonia before morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Troubles. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Harr's drug store.

Josh Westhafer, of Loogootee, Ind., is a poor man, but he says he would not be without Chamberlain's Pain Balm if it cost five dollars a bottle, for it saved him from being a cripple. No external application is equal to this liniment for stiff and swollen joints, contracted muscles, stiff neck, sprains and rheumatic and muscular pains. It has also cured numerous cases of partial paralisis. It is for sale by J. L. Harr, Druggist.

Our Adieu.

Owing to a re-consideration of past events and extenuating circumstances for the present with an alluring and tempting prospect for a future livlihood it behooves the present editor of this newspaper to make a noble and manly departure from the noblest and grandest professions this prosperous country affords, namely, the art of successful journalism. His career in Klemme has been one of marked success, in that he has accumulated of earthly substance enought to eleviate a number of delinquencies, has made many fast and courteous friends and but very few men and women are left behind who hold animosities within their bosom. The present editor is really sorry that anyone in this vicinity holds such feelings against him but owing—perhaps to greediness and covetousness, or perhaps malice aforethought with a determination to win regardless of opposition he humbly begs pardon for his misdemeanors. He has many things to be thankful for, he is thankful to God for good health, thankful to those of the Klemme people who gave their entire patronage for the maintenance of the leading enterprise of the town (if anybody doubts the statement "leading enterprise" let him consult a standard dictionary, or standard encyclopedia.) He is thankful to all his friends for their friendship for frendship's sake. With this week's publication he departs from the newspaper avocation with the idea uppermost in mind to be exempt from journalistic duties for all time to come and as he walks again out into the open world of hustle, bustle, toil and strife he ushers into his place and introduces to the patrons of the office and public in general Mr. A. C. Flint, a man of goodly experience in the work, who will undoubtedly serve the peoples' need better than we have done. Hoping you will all treat the new editor as kindly as you have the present one, and that every business man will support the home institution to the best of his ability, we humbly beg to be excused. Most Respectfully,

CHAS. P. ELL.

COAL AND WOOD.

Relative Heating Power of the Two Kinds of Fuel.

The proportionate heating power of coal and wood, says the Rural New Yorker, in answer to an inquirer, has been settled by experiment. It has been found that one pound of charcoal heats 73 pounds of water from 32 degrees (which is the freezing point) to 212 degrees, which is the boiling point of water. One pound of anthracite coal heats 70 pounds of water in the same way, and one pound of dry wood heats 35 pounds of water the same, so that coal has just twice the heating power that dry wood has, and a little less than charcoal has. Of course, wood that is not dry loses a proportionate heating value corresponding to the quantity of water remaining in it, and air dry wood has on an average 12 per cent. of water in it. So that we reasonably estimate the value of one ton of anthracite coal to be equal to two cords of wood, and this, of course, is to be based on the fact that the coal is nearly a solid mass, while a cord of wood is very nearly if not quite one-half empty spaces and some of it is dark, which has much less heating value than wood. It might be interesting to note that the loss of heat of fuel burned in an open fireplace is three-fourths of it, this escaping up the chimney, and only one-fourth radiating in the room, while burned in a stove provided with proper dampers to control the current of air through the fire, the loss is not quite one-fourth.

A PLATE GLASS FACTORY.

Machinery Is Simple, But Ponderous and Expensive.

A plate glass factory is a large affair, covering perhaps 20 acres. Everything about the plant is designed and arranged with a view to facilitating the manufacture of plate glass without regard to any other branch of the business. The process is extremely simple, and the machinery ponderous and expensive; so much so that at least half a million dollars appears to be absolutely necessary to operate a plate glass factory successfully.

White sand, soda ash, charcoal and arsenic compose the ingredients, though the exact proportions is a guarded secret, varying somewhat in each factory. When weighed and mixed, a certain amount—about five bushels—is placed in a pot, the pot lowered into a furnace, where it remains for ten or twelve hours before it is melted and sufficiently homogeneous. It is then carried to an iron table, upon which it is poured and rolled out flat, the thickness being determined by strips of iron at the sides of the table. It is then wheeled into an annealing oven, where it is allowed to remain for a day or two, the heat being gradually lowered. When cool, it is trimmed, ground and polished, after which it is cut to size and carried to the stock room.

IT PAYS TO TELL THE TRUTH.

At Least in Switzerland—A Doctor and the Income-Tax Laws.

The income-tax laws are very stringent in the canton of Zurich. This often causes amusing complications. A short time ago a physician sold his practice to another for a certain sum of money. The buyer sued the doctor a few months later for exaggerating the value of the practice. In court the former practitioner showed by his books that he had had an income of $4,000 a year, which was all he had claimed. He won the suit, and great was his happiness. A few days later he received a summons to appear in court to answer a charge entered against him by a tax collector for defrauding the government by giving his income as $600 when it was lately proved to have been $4,000. He not only was obliged to pay a larger income tax for the future, but he also had to pay the difference between his stated and his real income for eight years back as well as the fines, which are very large in these cases, so that altogether his bill amounted to $5,850, which somewhat diminished his joy over winning the other suit.—Chicago Record.

To Preserve the Elk.

M. V. Gilthet, of Jackson's Hole, Wyo., seeing that elk were becoming scarce and having in mind the fate of the buffalo, has established a preserve of 20 acres, inclosed by a fence, in which he has a herd of 19 elk. He started four years ago with half a dozen, and, as these animals in their wild state are rapidly exterminated, he hopes that in a few years handsome return will come for his foresight

HOUSES WITH HISTORIES.

Two Old Buildings Famous in Revolutionary Days.

One of the most artistic and best preserved of those ancient inns—of which, alas! too few remain in their primitive, simple beauty of colonial dress—is the King of Prussia hotel at the post office of that name. It is located about three miles southwest of the Schuylkill on the Swede's Ford road, says the Philadelphia Record.

Its old sign board, bearing a picture of a gentleman mounted on a horse with an excessively graceful and impossible neck, and who is said to have been the king of Prussia, is what gave the house its name, and this was eventually communicated to the peaceful little village which has very slowly grown up around it. The sign has the date "1769" painted on it, although that is not the earliest record of a public house there.

The place is so pretty that it is no wonder it has been an inviting mark for romancers who have made use of the revolutionary period. Anne Robeson Brown has a charming description of it in her story of "Sir Mark" and in George Morgan's spirited narrative of the adventures of "John Littlejohn, of J.," it is mentioned frequently.

The King of Prussa inn has interest to local free masons as the occasional meeting place of lodge No. 8, a historic organization warranted by the provincial grand lodge June 24, 1766. Many, if not a majority, of the members whose names appear on its roster are known to have been with the continental army at Valley Forge.

While very little is now known of the old Mehl family famous in revolutionary days (the Mehls are now extinct except an Edward Mehl, who lives in Virginia), their old house at Germantown has remained much the same for over a hundred years.

When the British held possession of this region in 1777, one of the most exciting skirmishes between the opposing forces was viewed by the boys of the neighborhood from the cellars of this old house, and that of its next-door neighbor, afterward known as Lorain's.

Although cannon balls and bullets kept up a lively whistling about this old house during the battle, very little is told of its history immediately following, with the exception of the fact that the remains of certan soldiers were "buried at Mehl's gateway." This gateway, at one end and leading in to the back of the old house to a mill which stands in the rear, is now a scene of daily activity. And as heavily loaded wagons rumble back and forth from the mill, there is little time for thought of the dead soldiers who were buried in this immediate neighborhood, or the exciting scenes of long ago witnessed from these old but well-preserved buildings.

JOKE ON THE INTERVIEWERS

Had Heralded Coming of Famous Poet. But Met Obscure Relative.

An amusing story is told concerning a connection of the famous poet, Algernon Charles Swinburne. This young man owns the same initials as his illustrious relative, and some time ago he went out to Melbourne, giving his name, of course, in the passengers' list of the vessel by which he traveled as A. C. Swinburne. When the Melbourne and Sydney newspapers received this list they immediately jumped to the conclusion that the great man himself was about to visit Australia. They thereupon printed columns of eulogy and delighted anticipation, and went the length of declaring that the pulse of all Australians would throb faster, and their hearts would be gladdened at the very thought of a visit from such a famous bard. When the vessel arrived it was promptly boarded by eager interviewers and paragraphists. Then the young man came forward, politely explained himself, and was allowed to leave the ship in the utter privacy and oblivion that he desired.—London Tit-Bits.

A Remarkable Biblical Feat.

A local preacher in the Midlands has three times written out the whole contents of the New Testament. He has done this with the object of familiarizing himself with the various books, which he claims to have in this way completely mastered. He always preaches from the New Testament, and is rather fond of boasting of his knowledge of this portion of the Bible. Many a time he has been heard to say that nobody could quote any words from it for which he could not instantly give book, chapter and verse.—London Tit-Bits.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

TRANSPORTING OF PUPILS.

System Is Growing in Favor in Many Parts of the State.

Des Moines, Sept. 30.—Seventy-five pages of the forthcoming report of Superintendent R. C. Barrett of the department of public instruction will be given over to the consideration of questions of consolidation of rural independent districts and the transportation of pupils.

Superintendent Barrett intends to make the treatise on these subjects in his report a valuable one that will be replete with information on these important questions of school policy. He will present letters from county superintendents in many parts of the state and from teachers and others interested in educational matters in Iowa, showing their views on consolidation and transportation. He believes the testimony an dopinions of these persons will be of much more value and interest than a discussion of these matters by himself only would be.

The report will make an interesting showing as to the growth of the movement for consolidation and transportation in Iowa. Two years ago pupils were being transported in twenty-five counties of the state and to forty-eight schools. Since that time the plan has been tried in a number of additional counties and districts. It is not yet ascertained just what the increase is, but Mr. Barrett says it will be considerable.

One of the most interesting phases of the extension of the system of transportation of pupils is that of its being taken up in some of the city districts. Mr. Barrett has a letter from Supt. Clifford of the Council Bluffs city schools, in which the latter tells how transportation was successfully utilized there. Lying at the outskirts of the independent district of Council Bluffs was the Woodbury school. The attendance was not large and the progress of the pupils was not satisfactory, inasmuch as the teacher had the time to give but a few minutes to each of her classes. The cost of the school to the district was $80 per month. It was decided to abandon the Woodbury school and transport the pupils to the most convenient ward schools. The district has been able to do this satisfactory at a cost of $30 per month, thus effecting a saving of $50 per month by the change and giving the pupils much better educational advantages.

MANY IOWANS ARE INJURED.

Bad Wreck on the Wabash Near Council Bluffs.

Council Bluffs, Sept. 28.—Passenger train No. 3, on the Wabash, a through train from St. Louis to Omaha, was wrecked yesterday seven miles southeast of Council Bluffs. The entire train, consisting of mail and baggage cars, two day coaches, a chair car and one Pullman sleeper, rolled down an eighteen-foot embankment and turned bottom side up, the engine alone remaining on the track. The engine stopped with a forward truck on the edge of the bridge over Ardin creek. The train carried nearly a hundred passengers. Three were perhaps fatally injured, sixteen hurt and a score of others received bruises.

A wrecking and relief train with physicians was sent to the scene of the wreck. Most of the injured were taken to a farm house until relief could arrive.

The wrecked train was in charge of Engineer William Rodgerson, and the passengers say it was running about thirty miles an hour when the accident occurred. The engineer says that just after the train left Mineola, and as they were nearing Madman's crossing, the engine left the track but again gained the rails, although the tender went down the bank with the remainder of the train. All the cars were badly damaged and there were several narrow escapes.

The cause of the wreck is thought to be due to the spreading of the rails on the curve where it occurred. The track is badly blocked and it becomes neeessary for the road to run its trains over the Burlington road between Malvern, Iowa, and Omaha.

AUDITOR MERRIAM FREE.

Granted Decree of Divorce By the District Court of Polk County.

Des Moines, Sept. 27.—Judge Holmes yesterday granted Auditor of State Frank Merriam a decree of divorce in his case against his wife. The divorce was granted on the grounds of desertion. Mrs. Merriam was represented in court by her attorney, J. B. Johnson. There was no opposition on her part to the granting of the decree.

While Merriam secures the decree of divorce, the balance of the decree is absolutely against him. By its terms Mrs. Merriam is given all the household furniture and personal effects in their home; is granted the custody of their child, Frank Howard Merriam, and receives $100 cash alimony. In addition to this it is provided that Merriam shall pay her for her support $50 on the first day of each month and that he shall pay her $25 a month in addition to be used in for the support and education of the child until he is 18 years old. There are no reservations in the decree giving Merriam the right to see the child. Merriam the right to see the child. Merriam is also required to pay the costs of the suit.

Potatoes Pay for Land.

Traer, Sept. 30.—There have been many instances up west where farmers marketed enough wheat or flax from $15 to $30 land in one year to pay for the land, but a North Tama farmer raised enough potatoes to pay for the land at the present high prices of this vicinity. Arthur Wood of Buckingham had eighteen acres of potatoes this year. Although the crop here is very light, he gets 800 bushels to the eighteen acre field. The price here at present is $1.25 to $1.50, which gives Mr. Wood a return of $1,200 this year, or $66.66 per acre.

Bank Robbed.

Guthrie Center, Sept. 28.—The banks and business houses were closed for a few hours yesterday afternoon on account of the county fair and some parties broke into the Citizens' Exchange bank from the rear and pried off and carried off the change drawer. There was not over $10 or $15 in the cash box. No arrests or suspects.

For a Beet Sugar Factory.

Sioux City, Sept. 27.—W. C. Peterson, of the Omaha Beet Syrup company, and William Gordon, of Sioux City, are negotiating with eastern capitalists who propose to erect here a beet sugar plant costing $500,000, if local stock to the amount of $150,000 can be disposed of. The matter will be taken up at once.

Fatal Tank Explosion.

Estherville, Sept. 25.—While the tank used in connection with the soda fountain in F. A. Doane's drug store was being charged about 5 o'clock, it exploded with terrific force, killing the 10-year-old son of Peter Benson and inflicting injuries to young Eddie Rose from which he is expected to die at any moment. Others in the store were badly shocked but not severely injured. No blame seems to attach to any one for the accident.

THE SYSTEM IS INEFFICIENT.

Methods of County Care of Poor in Iowa Are Arraigned.

Des Moines, Sept. 26.—According to Dr. W. R. Patterson of Iowa City, professor of economics at the state university, who read a paper before the conference of superintendents of state institutions yesterday, the system of county care of the poor in Iowa is remarkable chiefly for its utter inefficiency. Three quarters of a million dollars are expended annually by the counties for the care of the paupers and in spite of this large outlay the conditions of the county asylums are intolerable, if the statements of Dr. Patterson are correct.

Statistics given by Dr. Patterson show that it costs the counties in round numbers $50,000 more yearly for the care of the paupers than the total amount expended annually by the board of control of state institutions for the direct support of the institutions under the board's management.

Another notable statement made was that in twenty-nine counties in the state persons are held as insane that have never been legally declared so. In these counties there are seventy persons held as insane never lawfully judged so.

Dr. Patterson's paper was on the subject "County Care of Dependents in Iowa." It produced little short of a sensation at the conference. It opens up a field of thought and study that has been given little attention in Iowa. It is likely to have an important bearing on future legislation on this subject. Judge Kinne, chairman of the board of control, pronounced it one of the most valuable contributions that had ever been presented at a board of control conference.

At the close of the paper, Dr. Patterson discussed the remedies available for the relief of the prevailing conditions. He urged that a state board of charities be established, or a state superintendent be provided for, to have power to inspect or have inspected the institutions in the counties where the dependent are kept. He believed the superintendents or overseers of these asylums should be accountable to the board or superintendent. The law now gives the board of control supervisory power over the county institutions where insane are kept, but this board has no jurisdiction over the paupers and dependents other than the insane.

HALF A MILLION DUE IOWA.

Enormous Sum Due State From Fedaral Government.

Des Moines, Sept. 28.—Ex-Senator Lothrop of Sioux City, who for several days past has been digging into the reports of the state treasurer and state auditor of the days of the civil war, to ascertain the amount due the state from the federal government on account of interest never paid on war bonds and war warrants, has completed his work. His statement was submitted to the governor today.

It is found by Senator Lothrop that the sum due the state mounts up to nearly $500,000. The exact sum is $455,472.61. This is inclusive of a number of items, such as the cost of engraving plates, printing, transporting, expenses of sales, commission on sales, discounts, exchange and interest on war bonds and war warrants. The item of interest is of course, the principal one. Although the federal government has had the use of the proceeds of the war bonds and war warrants and repaid the principal, the state was never allowed interest, and the accumulations of interest in the course of a third of a century have run up to a large sum. Senator Lothrop believes the state is entitled to compensation for other expenditures on account of the federal government as well as for interest.

In seeking to recover this amount from the federal government Senator Lothrop is acting by request of the governor in conjunction with Attorney General Mullan. The statement will be set before the United States treasury department, and following this it is expected arrangements will be made for a presentation of the case to the treasury officials and a hearing.

ASSASSINATION NOT GOD'S WILL.

Argo's Memorial Address on McKinley Creates a Sensation.

Sioux City, Sept. 26.—George W. Argo, a prominent member of the Sioux City bar, made somewhat of a sensation at the McKinley memorial services at the hall of Columbia lodge of the Knights of Pythias by taking exception to the last words of President William McKinley, "It is God's way. His will be done."

"In his last conscious moments," said Mr. Argo, "Brother McKinley said, 'It is God's way. His will be done.' Those words will ever be remembered. They are written in the indelible blood of the martyr. They have echoed from every pulpit, and have been repeated by every preacher in this broad land. I beg leave to differ with the preachers and McKinley himself in respect to that foul crime being 'God's way' or 'his will.'

"It is both inconsistent and illogical to say it was 'God's will' and in the same breath to condemn the act of the assassin. I deny that Czolgosz was the agent of God. I deny the statement of the minister who says it was 'God's way and his will' that our beloved brother should be removed from us by the assassin's bullet. Man is supposed to be a free moral agent, responsible for his own acts. I deny that good results come from such foul crimes."

GIRL ACCUSED EMPLOYER.

Adelaide Davis of Iowa City Sues M. F. Price for Alleged Assault.

Iowa City, Sept. 30.—A scandal which has set everybody agog in Iowa City has been caused by the filing of a suit for $10,000 damages by Miss Adelaide Davis for two assaults alleged to have been committed upon her by her employer, M. F. Price. Miss Davis, who is the stenographer of M. F. Price, manager of the W. F. Main Jewelry company and allied concerns doing business in every state in the union, alleges that on or about April 12, 1901, Price assaulted her in his office, and that after a fierce struggle she broke away from the lounge where he held her and fled from the building. On the occasion of the second assault, Miss Davis alleges that Price locked the door of his office before committing it. Price is a prominent church worker, a Sunday school superintendent, vice-president of the Republican Printing company and associate editor of the Iowa City Daily Republican.

Crushed to Death By Landslide.

Sioux City, Sept. 27.—Geo. Bushar was crushed to death under several tons of earth and sand. The landslide occurred in plain view of his three sons and other workmen who, with teams were engaged near North Riverside in hauling sand. Bushar's team and wagon were also buried. Bushar, when his body was dug from the mass of earth and sand, was crushed into a shapeless mass and death had probably been instantaneous. He was ten feet underground.

NEWS IN GENERAL

SCHLEY COURT OF INQUIRY

Washington, Sept. 24.—The part played by the battleship Texas in the naval battle off Santiago July 3, 1898, in which the Spanish fleet under Admiral Cervera was sunk, was the basis of the greater part of yesterday's proceedings in the Schley naval court in inquiry. Of the four witnesses examined during the day, three had been officers on board the Texas during the battle, and two of of them were new witnesses. They were Commander George C. Heilner, who was navigator on the Texas, and Commander Alex B. Bates, who was the chief engineer on that battleship. Commander Harber, executive officer and the chief surviving officer of the ship since the death of Captain Philip, was recalled. The fourth witness was Commander Seaton Schroeder, executive officer on the Massachusetts and now governor of the Island of Guam.

The testimony several times during the day was somewhat exciting, and it was especially so when Commander Heilner described the battle and the part the Texas had in it. He said that when the Brooklyn made its loop at the beginning of the battle it had passed across the Texas's bow at a distance not to exceed 100 or 150 yards, and that at the Command of Captain Philip the Texas had been brought to a dead stop. Engineer Bates testified that the starboard engines had been stopped and said he thought this also had happened to the port engines. Commander Heilner expressed the opinion that three miles had been lost by the maneuver and the fact that part of the machinery was deranged. He said that he considered that the Texas was in greater danger when the Brooklyn crossed her bow than at any other time during the battle.

On cross examination Commander Heilner admitted having taken part in the preparation of the official navy department chart showing the positions at different times of the ships which participated in the battle. He said that, according to this chart, the two ships never were nearer than 600 yards of each other. But, he contended, the chart was inaccurate, and he said he only consented to it as a compromise.

Washington, Sept. 25.—The Schley court of inquiry was brought to a sudden termination for the day eighteen minutes after convening yesterday morning by the announcement of the sudden death of Judge Jeremiah Wilson, senior counsel for Admiral Schley.

Washington, Sept. 26.—Two new witnesses were introduced in the Schley court of inquiry yesterday. They were Admiral Cotton, who, as captain commanded the auxiliary cruiser Harvard, and Captain Wise, who commanded the auxiliary cruiser Yale during the Spanish war. Both these vessels were used as scouts and both came up with the flying squadron off Santiago on the 27th of May, before the retrograde movement to Key West was begun.

Admiral Cotton testified that he had gone aboard Admiral Schley's flagship, the Brooklyn, on that date to take orders to him, and said at first that he gave him four or five dispatches addressed to the commander of the squadron. He afterwards modified this statement, saying that probably all but two of the dispatches were addressed to himself (Admiral Cotton) but they contained information which he supposed should be in Admiral Schley's possession. One of these was a copy of a dispatch from Admiral Sampson, which had not been printed in the official records, stating that the Spanish fleet was at Santiago. He said also that coal could have been taken from the Merrimac on the 27th of May, the day on which the retrograde movement to Key West was begun for the purpose of coaling. Captain Wise testified that on the 27th of May he had signaled Captain Philip of the Texas his opinion that Cervera was inside the harbor at Santiago, but the testimony was ruled out.

Washington, Sept. 27.—The Schley court of inquiry was only in session for an hour and three-quarters yesterday, adjourning at 1:45 in order to permit its members and others engaged there to attend the funeral of Judge Wilson, late chief counsel for Admiral Schley. Captain Wise concluded his testimony, Admiral Cotton made a brief statement on recall, and Lieutenant Spencer S. Wood, who commanded the dispatch boat Dupont during the Spanish war, began his testimony. Machinist Gray, who was in charge of the starboard engines of the Texas on the day of the battle of Santiago, also testified briefly. He said that on the day of the battle the starboard engines were stopped and the machinery reversed. Captain Wise was questioned at considerable length as to what he had done before the arrival of the flying squadron off Santiago toward locating Cervera's fleet in the harbor. He said that while he had satisfied himself of the presence of the Spanish fleet, he had been content to communicate his knowledge to Admiral Schley, through Captain Sigsbee, not considering it necessary to make direct communication with the commander-in-chief.

Washington, Sept. 28.—In the Schley court of inquiry yesterday a letter was presented from Rear Admiral Sampson asking to be allowed to be presented in the court by counsel, but the court refused to grant the request on the ground that "the court does not at this time regard you as a party to the case."

The principal witnesses of the day were Lieutenant John Hood, who commanded the dispatch boat Hawk during the Spanish war, and Captain Bowman H. McCalla, who was in command of the Marblehead. The testimony of both these officers dealt with the delivery of dispatches from Admiral Sampson to Commodore Schley and both related conversations with the latter. Captain McCalla gave in detail his part in arranging a code of signals with the Cuban insurgents, and said his communications with them near Cienfuegos on May 24, 1898, when it was learned definitely that Cervera's fleet was not in the harbor there. He said that Captain Chadwick, who was Admiral Sampson's chief of staff, was the only person at Key West to whom he had communicated the signal code.

Captain McCalla expressed the opinion that the coaling was feasible off Santiago at the time Schley began his retrogade movement.

Ten Boer Leaders Banished.

Pretoria, Sept. 27.—Ten Boer leaders, who have been captured since September 15, have been permanently banished from South Africa.

Paris' Latest Sensation.

Paris, Sept. 27.—The Patrie prints a sensational story to the effect that a conflict has broken out between Great Britain and Turkey, saying that three British war vessels have been ordered to the Prussian gulf to suppress revolts at Touete, in the British province of Bagdad, and that the Turkish government has dispatched a strong detachment of troops with instructions to oppose the landing of the British forces. Russia, Germany and France, the paper also says, have agreed to support Turkey.

KITCHENER TURNED DOWN.

Refused to Give Him More Troops to Complete Subjugation of Transvaal.

New York, Sept. 30.—Discussing the South African situation the London correspondent of the Tribune says that the war office has lost no time in denying the mischievous canard about Lord Kitchener's resignation in consequence of disagreements with Mr. Broderick. The war office cannot dispute with equal force the contention that appeals for re-engagement to the returned yeomanry force have failed, notwithstanding Lord Chesham's example in agreeing to go back to the seat of war. There is a tendency to believe the reports that the government has refused Lord Kitchener's application for additions to his fighting strength, but, as the Standard points out, if there were the slightest reason to suppose that the government had overruled any decisions which Lord Kitchener had come to as to collateral measures for stamping out resistance as early as possible, they would very soon discover that they had not merely hampered the commander-in-chief, but had outraged public opinion.

FRESH TROUBLE IMPENDS

An Anglo-Turkish Conflict Seems Quite Probable.

Bombay, Sept. 30.—A British naval force is concentrating in the Persian gulf. Three warships are already on the spot, and they will be augmented by the gunboat Assaye, which has already left Kurrachee, and the flagship, the second class cruiser Highflyer. The third class cruiser Pomone will also sail for the Persian gulf so soon as she has coaled. It is believed that fresh trouble is impending at Koweyt. According to a report, Turkey has 30,000 troops at Busra, on Shat-el-Arab, seventy miles from its mouth, in the Persian gulf, commanded by Edhem Pasha, with the object of seizing Koweyt, though the Turks assert that the troops are intended to traverse Arabia with the object of suppressing disaffection in Yemen.

London, Sept. 30.—A dispatch from Bombay gives the following additional details regarding an alleged Anglo-Turkish crisis in southern Asia. According to the latest dispatches, the Turks again attempted to land troops at Koweyt. The British cruiser Perseus, noticing the movement of a Turkish vessel, steamed up and demanded the object of the visit. The reply was that the vessel had been instructed to land 500 men. The commander of the Perseus advised the Turkish commander to return to Busra.

The Turkish vessel, instead of doing this, entered the harbor and prepared to land the troops. The Perseus cleared decks for action and played her searchlight on the Turk all night.

In the morning the Turkish commander visited the Perseus and intimated his intention of returning to Fao and telegraphing to Constantinople for instructions. The vessel went to Fao and is still there.

Meantime, the Turkish troops are massing at Busra and reported to be under command of Edhem Pasha.

The Sheikh Mabourakh reports that the Vali of Busra has asked him to discharge the calls of British warships and mail steamers. He has refused to do so.

A British protectorate has not yet been established.

CZOLGOSZ IS SENTENCED

Must Die By Electrocution During Week of October 28.

Buffalo, Sept. 27.—Czolgosz was yesterday sentenced to be electrocuted the week beginning October 28, 1901.

According to the law of this state October 28th is the earliest date that could be fixed for the execution of Czolgosz.

After a few preliminary questions by the judge, Czolgosz was asked:

"Have you any legal excuse why sentence should not be pronounced against you?"

Czolgosz could not, or pretended he could not hear the question put by the clerk. It was repeated to him twice and then he said something in an inaudible tone. The judge intervened and explained what was meant by the question.

"First, you may claim you are insane. The next is, have you good cause to offer against sentence being pronounced against you?"

The judge also stated legal reasons the prisoner might have against sentence being pronounced.

"I have nothing to say about that," was the reply.

Justice Titus asked that the prisoner be allowed to say something in exculpation of his crime.

The prisoner began to speak. His voice was so low he could scarcely be heard. Judge Titus was obliged to repeat it, sentence by sentence, so that the court might hear.

Judge Titus—"I think he ought to be permitted to make a statement in exculpation of his family."

Turning to the prisoner again, Judge Titus held a brief conference. Turning to the court, counsel for the defendant said: "He says no other person had anything to do with it; that no other person knew of his commission but himself. His father or mother or no one else knew anything about it."

The prisoner closed his lips, stared straight ahead of him and waited the court's pronouncement of his doom.

The sentence was brief.

"Czolgosz," said the court, "you have committed a grave crime against the state and our union in the assassination of our beloved president. After learning all the facts and circumstances in the case, twelve good men have pronounced you guilty of murder in the first degree. You say that no other person abetted you in the commission of this terrible act. The penalty is fixed by statute, and it becomes my duty to impose sentence upon you. The sentence of this court is that in the week beginning October 28, at the place designated and in the manner prescribed by law, you suffer the punishment of death."

Czolgosz stood erect, looking straight at the judge. He did not tremble, not a muscle quivered. As soon as the death sentence was finished he took his seat in the same indifferent manner that has characterized him throughout the trial. He was brought to his feet quickly by the officer. They shackled him and led him away to the jail, while the crowd surged after them and the officers.

CZOLGOSZ BREAKS DOWN.

Guards Have to Carry Him Into Auburn Penitentiary.

Auburn, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Czolgosz, President McKinley's murderer, in the custody of Sheriff Caldwell of Erie county, and twenty-one deputies, arrived in Auburn at 3:15 a. m. The prison is only about fifty yards from the depot. Awaiting the arrival of the train there was a crowd of about 200 people. Either for fear of the crowd, which was not very demonstrative, or from sight of the prison Czolgosz's legs gave out and two deputies were compelled to carry the man into the prison. Inside the gate his condition became worse, and he was dragged up the stairs and into the main hall. He was placed in a sitting posture on the bench while the hand cuffs were being removed, but he fell over and moaned and groaned, evidencing the most abject terror. As soon as the handcuffs were unlocked the man was dragged into the principal keeper's office. As in the case of all prisoners the officers immediately proceeded to strip him and put on a new suit of clothes. During this operation Czolgosz cried and yelled, making the prison corridor echo with evidence of his terror. The prison physician, Dr. John Gerin, examined the man and ordered his removal to a cell in the condemned row, which he will occupy until he is taken to the electric chair. The doctor declared that the man was suffering from fright and terror, but said that he was shamming to some extent.

The collapse of the murderer was a surprise to every one. En route to Buffalo he showed no indication of breaking down. He ate heartily of sandwiches and smoked cigars when not eating. He talked some and expressed regret for his crime. He said:

"I am especially sorry for Mrs. McKinley." He reiterated his former statement that he had no accomplices and declared that he never heard of the man under arrest in St. Louis who claimed to have tied the handkerchief over his hand, concealing the pistol with which he shot the president.

He says the handkerchief was not tied. He went behind the Temple of Music, arranged the handkerchief so as to hide the weapon and then took his place in the crowd. By Jailor Mitchell he sent this message to his father:

"Tell him I'm sorry I left such a bad name."

COLUMBIA WON FIRST.

American Boat Defeated British by Small Margin.

New York, Sept. 30.—In the closest and most soul-stirring race ever sailed for the old America's cup, the white flyer Columbia on Saturday beat the British challenger over a windward and leeward course of thirty nautical miles by the narrow, heart-breaking margin of 39 seconds. As Lipton's latest aspirant for cup honors must allow the defender forty-three seconds on account of the extra 833 square feet of canvas in her sail area, the official record, under the rules, gives the Columbia the victory by one minute and twenty two seconds.

As a spectacle the contest was suburb. From the time the two sky-scraping racers crossed the starting line until they fled across the goal four and one half hours later, the result was in doubt and the excitement aboard the excursion fleet increased until men became frenzied and women almost hysterical. So evenly matched were the two scientific racing machines that never after the start were the rival skippers out of each other's hail, and more than three-quarters of the time they were so close that Charlie Barr, who had the tiller aboard the American, could have tossed a biscuit to Captain Sycamore on the Shamrock. For miles, as they beat their way to the outer mark, the black shadow of the Shamrock's huge club topsail was painted on the big mainsail of the Columbia, and for an hour on the home run, with the yachts flying like scared deer before the following wind, they ran almost beam to beam as if they had been harnessed together.

As a result of the race, though faith in the Columbia still remains in the hearts of the patriots, all the experts admit that the British boat is the ablest sloop ever sent to these waters to lift the 100 guinea cup which the old schooner America brought across the Atlantic fifty years ago, and that the superiority of American seamanship and American naval architecture as presented by the defender, remains to be established. The quality of a sailing ship is measured by the ability to carve her way into an adverse wind, and in the fifteen mile thresh to windward the golden challenger gained 39 seconds, while on the home run her lead was eaten up and the Columbia crossed the finish line exactly 37 seconds before the Shamrock.

It must be remembered, however, that the challenger had the weather gauge in the heat to windward, no mean advantage, and the nautical experts said after the race that during the outward journey she had been sailed to absolute perfection, while before the wind the American yacht not only showed a fleeter pair of heels, but, in the opinion of the sharps, was better handled.

SCHLEY COURT OF INQUIRY.

Washington, Sept. 29.—In the Schley court of inquiry yesterday Captain McCalla, of the Marblehead, concluded his testimony which was begun yesterday, and the court heard the testimony of Lieut. Commander W. H. H. Sutherland, who commanded the Eagle during the Spanish war, and also that of Lieut. Cassus B. Barnes.

The latter is a cipher expert in the navy department, and his evidence was devoted to showing that the dispatch from Commodore Schley to the navy department of May 28, 1898, saying that he could not, much to his regret, obey the orders of the department, as printed in the official reports, was a correct translation of the message as forwarded from the Harvard at Kingston.

Commander Sutherland explained the condition of the Eagle during the campaign and told of the part that vessel played. He said the slow progress made in the cruise to Santiago was due to the fact that the vessel was one-third full of water. He also told of signalling the Scorpion to inform Commander Schley that the Spanish squadron was not in the harbor at Cienfuegos.

Captain McCalla said that he had suggested to Schley after the battle off Santiago that there was glory enough in the victory for all.

Assassin's Bullet Not Poisoned.

Buffalo, Sept. 24.—The most important development in the Czolgosz case yesterday was the announcement that no poison had been found on the bullets of the revolver with which the anarchist assassinated President McKinley. Chemical and bacteriological examinations were made and both revealed the fact that no poison was used by the murderer.

One of the streets in Canton, China, is occupied entirely by druggists and dentists. The name of this thoroughfare is quite appropriate—Physic street.

Des Moines, Sept. 30, 1901.

Governor Shaw has offered a reward of $300 for the arrest and conviction of the murderer or murderers of Dr. B. M. Failor of Newton. Dr. Failor responded to a night call and was sandbagged and robbed. His dead body was found in a lumber yard the next morning. The crime was committed September 11.

The biennial report of the land department has been filed with Governor haw by Secretary of State Martin. The report is for the period ending June 30, 1901. During the biennial period a few patents and certificates for swamp and railroad lands were received from the general government. The state has also received from the government swamp land cash indemnity to the amount of $32,388.38 which in turn was turned over to the treasurer of state to the counties to which it belonged. The table giving the quantity of lands the state has received under the several congressional grants shows a total of 8,937,841.21 acres.

In view of the recent unseasonable weather during which time frost was reported generally all over the state Director Sage has issued a special weather and crop bulletin for the week ending September 23. This bulletin is mainly for the purpose of giving an idea of damage done to corn and to other growing vegitation. It is found that all vegitation suffered very little from the effects of the slight freeze. It says:

The past week was unusually cold, the daily mean temperature ranging from 8 to 12 degrees below normal. Frosts occurred in all districts, reported as "heavy" or "killing" in the western counties, and "light" in the balance of the state. The damage resulting from the frosts in the state as a whole appears to be relatively light. The percentage of unmatured corn was small and the damage to that portion of the crop has been mainly in killing a portion of the leaves, thereby impairing the value of the fodder. The general effect upon the quality of the grain will not be appreciable, as the bulk of the crop had been cut up, or was beyond danger of harm from frost. The recent heavy rains have been very beneficial to pastures and meadows, and in some sections late potatoes are giving promise of a better yield than has been expected. The soil is in fine condition for plowing and fall seeding.

The probabilities are that the Des Moines, Iowa Falls & Northern road will not commence operating trains into Des Moines before spring, though there is a possibility that operations will be commenced this fall. This is because of trouble in securing right-of-way and aid through the town of Nevada and in securing an independent route into Des Moines. The grading has been completed to McCallsburg, on the Iowa Central, and trains will be operated to that point in a few weeks. The track has been laid to Buckeye and will be pushed south as rapidly as possible. The company has asked for a right-of-way through Nevada and a tax of 2½ per cent. Business men of the city have arranged to donate the right-of-way, and the tax proposition is to be submitted at an early date. If the result is favorable, it is barely possible the road will be completed to Berwick this season. If not, the work will be stopped until next year and the line will be built to Berwick over a survey made to the east of Nevada. It is not the intention of the company to build its own line into Des Moines for a year or two. An arrangement has been effected, however, by which trains will be brought into Des Moines from Berwick over the Chicago Great Western tracks and the Des Moines Union terminals will be used here.

Governor Shaw, having been notified by the United States naval department that the protected cruiser Des Moines will be ready for launching about the end of November, has selected Miss Frances West of this city to christen the vessel. Miss West is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry West, old residents of Des Moines. The christening will take place at the Quincy, Mass., shipyards. Governor Shaw, Mayor Hartenbower and a number of state officials and Des Moines citizens will witness the event. The only similar ceremony in which Iowa people participated was the christening of the battleship Iowa. Miss Mary Drake of Centerville, daughter of General F. M. Drake, christened that vessel. The Des Moines has a displacement of 3,200 tons, a speed of 16.5 knots per hour and has an armament consisting of ten 5-inch guns, eight 6-pounders, two 1-pounders and two Colt machine guns. It is of the same class as the Cleveland, Denver, Galveston, Tacoma and Chattanooga.

Lewis Miles of Corydon, United States district attorney, in a recent interview said that Judge McPherson has decided on a radical change of policy toward offenders against the liquor laws. Heretofore it has been the custom in the district court to suspend sentences in cases of first offenders during good behavior. It has been found that this not only incurs a great deal of work in looking after the paroled prisoners, but that it has not tended to discourage violations. As a result Judge McPherson has decided a deal severely with all offenders and see if in this way he cannot discourage violation.

COLUMBIA IN THE LEAD.

New York, Sept. 27.—One of the biggest crowds that ever put to sea went down to Sandy Hook lightship yesterday to witness Sir Thomas Lipton's second challenger, Shamrock II., and the white flyer Columbia, which successfully defended the old America cup against the first trophy hunter two years ago, struggle for the yachting supremacy of the world in the first of the cup races of 1901. But the fleet returned disappointed. The great single stickers went out fresh for battle, but the sea refused them a field for conflict. The wind, never more than nine and sometimes as low as three knots, was too light and shifty to carry the contestants over the thirty-mile course in the time allotted by the rules. At the end of five and a half hours, the time prescribed, the race was officially declared off, and the yachts were towed back to their berths inside Sandy Hook. When the gun aboard the committee boat was fired to call attention to the signal declaring the race off the American yacht was still several miles from the finish line. The Englishman was hull down astern of her, the experts estimating the distance behind the Columbia at over three-quarters of a mile.

Not Anxious to Go to War.

London, Sept. 25.—The result of the government invitation to the imperial yeomanry to re-enlist has proved a great disappointment. It was expected that a majority of the men would rejoin. Instead of this, the first week witnessed only thirty applications. New measures will have to be taken to secure recruits. The trouble is largely due to the fact that the men had to wait for months before getting their arrears of pay settled.

CHAPTER XI.

Horam is Caged.

Carefully the three men emerged from the dungeon; and when Osmir had closed and bolted the door behind them, Selim went on ahead with the lantern. They were armed with good stout swords, and the blacks wore daggers in their sashes.

"In what direction must we pass out?" asked Julian, as they came to the end of the first valuted passage.

"We must pass up where a guard is always kept," answered Osmir; "and our only hope is that we may be able to fall upon the sentinels, and overcome them, without creating disturbance enough for a general alarm."

"Whatever can be accomplished by strength of arm, we will accomplish," said the robber; "and I think we can be shrewd enough not to strike until we see that the blow shall fall sure-ly."

"You can depend upon us," added Osmir, stopping while Selim opened a door. "We have already placed our lives in jeopardy, and only a successful exit from the palace can now save us. But, as I told you before, there is danger in the way."

"You have counted the chances?"

"Yes."

"And are you ready to bide the result?"

"Yes."

"Then let us meet the worst. If you, to set me free, are ready for the risk, I should be much more so."

At this juncture Selim, who had opened a door, and gone on a few steps in advance, came hurriedly back, with a look of alarm in his face.

"I hear footsteps in the passage overhead," he said, in a whisper.

"Are you sure?"

"Yes. I heard them very plainly."

"What is the passage of which you speak?" asked Julian.

"It is one through which we must pass," replied Osmir, "and one in which we had expected to find no obstacle."

"It may be," suggested Selim, "that a new guard has been set there."

"That cannot be," asserted Osmir. "I came through there only a short time since, and the place was empty. Hark—I hear the steps from here—and I think they are coming this way. Hold, a moment. Remain where you are, and I will find what this means."

Thus speaking, Osmir glided away into the darkness, towards the point where the stairs led down from the upper passage. After an absence of a few minutes he returned, and his first exclamation told that he was excited.

"The king is coming!"

"Yes—and two of his guards are with him. Some one else came as far as the head of the stairs with them, but I think only the king and the guards are descending."

"He must be coming to see me," said Julian.

"It must be so," answered Osmir; "for there is nothing else here for him to see, save bare damp walls and toads."

"Hark! Here they come. I hear their voices, and can see where the rays of their lantern breaks in the gloom." It was Selim who said this, and as he spoke he drew back, and hid his own lantern beneath the skirt of his tunic.

Our adventurers, from where they stood, could see the foot of the steps at the far end of the passage; and presently they saw two men descend, the foremost one bearing a lantern, and wearing the robes of the king, while the other seemed to be an officer of the household.

"I see now," said Osmir, as he gained a view of the approaching men. "I was mistaken. The guards have been left behind, and this is Benoni, one of the captains of the guard, who comes with the king."

The robber chieftain was for a moment undecided as to the course he should pursue. Once his sword was half drawn from its scabbard; but Osmir, who heard the movement, seemed to have a better idea.

"My master," he whispered, touching Julian upon the arm, "let us draw back out of sight, and allow them to pass. They will certainly keep on to the dungeon we have left, and we will follow them thither."

"You are right," replied the chieftain. "They will be completely in our power when they have passed us."

Just back of where our trio stood was the door by which they had last passed, and upon one side was a deep niche in the wall, which had evidently been constructed for the reception of rubbish. Into this they quickly glided, Selim so effectually cloaking his lantern that not a ray of light escaped. In a little while the king came near, to the hiding place, with his lantern held carefully before him, and his head bowed, as though he was fearful that he might make a misstep. He walked slowly, and his frame shook with a perceptible tremor. When he reached the door he stopped, and turned towards his companions.

"Benoni," he said, "I think you may remain here. This is the last passage, and I will go the rest of the way alone."

"I had better accompany you to the end, sire."

"No—I prefer to go alone."

"But," urged the captain, "the way is rough and dubious, and you may miss your step."

"Out upon thee for an ass!" cried the king, indignantly. "Do you think my step is growing feeble? I tell thee it was never stronger. I will go the rest of the way as I have said. I shall find Selim at the door of the dungeon, and he will render me such assistance as I may need there. I must see this prisoner alone. He possesses a secret which I must fathom before he loses his head."

"I beg thee, sire, be careful."

"Peace, good Benoni. Don't fret on my account. I know what I do. I'll find out the story of this robber's life, and then his head shall come off right quickly. Stay you here, and await my return."

Thus speaking, the king moved on, and when the sound of his uncertain, stumbling footfall could be no longer heard, Julian reached forth until his hand touched one of his companions.

"Who is this?" he asked, in a hushed whisper. It was Selim.

"There is no time to lose. The captain must be disposed of quickly. Uncover your lantern, and I will throttle him."

Selim did as directed, and as soon as the rays of light fell upon the captain, the latter started to gaze about him. But his free-will movements were quickly terminated by a blow from the first of the robber chieftain, which felled him to the floor, and before he could move or cry out, he was securely bound, and Osmir's sash passed over his mouth.

"Now," cried Julian, "for the king. He will be an easy subject to dispose of."

"And how will you dispose of him?" asked Osmir.

For an instant a dark thought struggled through Julian's mind. Here was an opportunity to put his worst enemy out of the way, and, at the same time, free the world from a ruler who had ceased to do justly. But the thought was not long entertained. The soul of the chieftain was above the doing of such a deed. Osmir noticed the hesitation, and tremblingly asked:

"Will you kill him?"

"No, no," was the quick reply. "That would be too cowardly. He is a poor foolish old man, whose continued life must be the greatest curse. We will put him where he put me, and let his slaves find him after we are gone. Come—I will lead to this event, and then you shall lead to the next."

Without further remark the robber moved on towards the dungeon where he had been confined, Selim going by his side with the lantern. Pretty soon they saw the king ahead of them, whereupon Selim was suffered to go on in advance. Horam had reached the door of the dungeon just as Selim came up.

"Ha, Selim, is this you?"

"Yes, sire."

"I did not see you when I came. Where have you been hiding?"

"I have not been hiding, sire; but have been doing my duty."

"And the prisoner?"

"He is safe."

"Open the door. I would speak with him. He is securely chained?"

"No mortal man can break the chains wherewith he was bound, sire."

"Then open—quick. His arms are bound?"

"Like iron, sire."

"And he cannot move from his place?"

"The chains all center upon the bolt in the floor."

"Then you may remain without, Selim. I wish to speak with the prisoner alone."

Selim had no particular understanding with his companions touching this movement; but he understood that Julian would act when he saw fit, so he proceeded to unbolt the door and throw it open.

"We can shut him in and leave him," whispered Osmir, when he saw the king about to pass into the dungeon.

"No, no," quickly returned Julian. "I have another thought. I may find use for those royal robes which he wears."

"By the gods!" cried Osmir, "the prize is worth ten thousand times more than I had thought. If you don those regal robes, Selim and I can lead you in safety from this place. By the blessed star, it is a lucky thought. Ha! He goes in. Shall I accompany you?"

"You may remain close at hand."

CHAPTER XII.

A Royal Disguise.

Until the present time Julian had thought of overcoming the king without a word—of felling him to the pavement and binding him, and leaving him in ignorance of who had done it; but a different fancy seized him as he saw the monarch enter the dungeon. The temptation to face his deadly enemy, and let him know to what he owed his disgrace, was too strong to be resisted. The thought that he could now place his foot upon the neck of the king of Damascus, and grant the poor life which he had the power to take, was not to be passed by. And then the robber chieftain had another reason for wishing to speak with the king, since the opportunity had thus unexpectedly offered itself. Horam had come on purpose to see him, to learn some secret. Our hero had a curiosity to know what this meant.

"Stay a moment where you are," he said, addressing the blacks; and thus speaking he passed into the dungeon just as the king had discovered that no prisoner was there.

"Ho! Selim!" shouted the monarch, turning his face to the door. "What is the matter here? Is not this the—"

He stopped, for the light of his lantern, falling upon the face of the man who had followed him in, revealed another face than that of Selim.

"Horam," spoke the chieftain, "you find the Scourge of Damascus not quite as powerless as you had expected."

"What ho! Selim! Selim!"

"Easy, old man. Selim will not come at your bidding. Let me inform you that I am master, for the present, of this lower region, and Selim is my slave."

"Mercy!" gasped the terrified king. "What ho! Benoni! Benoni!"

"Benoni is in my power," said Julian. "He is bound hand and foot, and cannot help you. And, thou base, false man—thou, too, art in my power. Down in this deep dungeon, where the light of day cannot come, and where the noise of the upper world cannot penetrate, here I have, thee as thou did'st hope to have me. Horam, I am thy master!"

The king's knees smote together, and the lantern dropped from his hand.

"Mercy!" he cried. And then, as though remembering that he was king of Damascus, he clenched his hands, and tried to speak with the voice of authority.

"Vile miscreant," he said, "let me pass! If you dare to oppose me, you shall be torn limb from limb!"

"Easy, old man. I am your master now, and if you give me occasion, I may do you harm."

There was that in the look, tone and bearing of the stalwart chieftain which caused Horam to quail. The lantern had fallen in an upright position, and its light revealed quite plainly the features of the two men.

"You will not kill me?" whispered the king.

"No," replied Julian. "I should scorn the deed; and I should despise myself if I did it. I wish simply to do this. I must leave this palace tonight, and you must remain here in my place. Some of your slaves will find you in the morning. You must strip off that purple robe, and that golden chain; and I must have the jeweled crown from your head. Come—I have no time to waste."

"Ye gods of heaven!" ejaculated Horam, "how can this thing be! Who ever heard of such a thing! Who dares to disrobe the king?"

"I dare to do it!" replied the robber, sternly and quickly, at the same time taking a step forward. "Remove the garments instantly, or I shall tear them from you."

"No, no; you dare not rob your king."

"Peace, poor fool! Hesitate another minute, and I will smite you to the floor! Off with the robe!"

The trembling monarch cast one look into the face of the man before him, and then shrank back against the wall. He was as a mere child, and for the time, while unable to do evil, he seemed an object of pity.

"If I give you these things will you spare my life?"

"I told you once—yes. And once more I beg you to remember that my time is short. You will save yourself some trouble if you obey me."

This was spoken very slowly, each word dropping from the robber's lips with the weight of a death sentence; and the lowering of the brow, the swelling of the broad bosom, and the nervous working of the hands, told too plainly that the edict must be obeyed.

Name Given to a Rifle by Early Western Settlers.

At Lecompton, Kan., the other day, says the Kansas City Journal, a lad paddling around in the shallow waters of the Kaw found a Sharp's rifle of the ancient pattern of fifty years ago. Some one has suggested that it is one of "Beecher's Bibles," the name given by the early settlers to this weapon, and the suggestion recalls a curious bit of early day history. When the first emigrants sent out by the New England aid and other societies of the north found their settlements beset by bands of pro-slavery men from Missouri they called upon their eastern friends for arms with which to defend themselves, and many shipments of Sharp's rifles were made to them from both Boston and New York. But all goods shipped to Kansas had to come up the Missouri river and through "the enemy's country," and the Missourians had a fashion of confiscating such weapons as they found. So the rifles were shipped as something else in packages shaped to deceive. For example, in 1855, Amos Lawrence wrote from Boston to his agent at Hartford, Conn.: "Request Mr. Palmer to have ten Sharp's rifles packed in casks like hardware and to retain them subject to my order. Also to send the bill to me. I will pay it eithr with my note at 7 per cent interest or in cash." And these rifles were shipped to Lawrence and got safely through, as did others packed in a way to deceive. It was charged that Henry Ward Beecher had sent a box of the rifles marked "Bibles," and when approached by a New York Post reporter he admitted it to be a fact. "I believe," he said, "that the Sharp rifle is truly a moral agency, and there is more moral power in one of these instruments, so far as the slaveholders of Kansas are concerned, than in 100 Bibles. You might just as well read the Bible to buffaloes as to those fellows who follow Atchison and Stringfellow." So the weapons took the name of "Beecher's Bibles," and by this they were commonly known.

ITALY GIVES US A HINT.

What Her Five Fast Battleships Could Do to This Country.

We are not accustomed to consider Italy very much of a naval power; yet the five battleships of 20 knots and better that she has built or building might make us endless trouble if we were so unfortunate as to have them against us. They could range our whole coast, destroying everything afloat except our battleships and our fastest cruisers, and remaining themselves in absolute obscurity. They could cut off all trade between the United States, Cuba and Porto Rico. They could wreck the entrance of the Nicaragua canal, if that were finished. They could go through the Suez canal, harry our naval force at Manila and rekindle the insurrection in the Philippines. They could loot our coaling station at Tutuila, carry off our governor from Guam, as the Charleston did to the Spaniards, and wreck our trade with Hawaii. They could devastate our Pacific coast, ruin the shore mines at Nome and capture the gold fleet from Alaska. No battleships that we could send in pursuit of them could catch them. The only things with which we could hope to bring them to an engagement would be our new armored cruisers, and it might be that these commerce destroyers, without a gun heavier than eight-inch, and with only six inches of armor, but with the all-important quality of speed, would save us from a danger before which our ponderous battleships would lie helpless.—New York Journal.

Pavement of Glass.

The glass pavement which is making its way in Paris is exciting the interest of the curious. Its inventor is a Mr. Garcher, who manufactures his product from finely crushed glass, which is subjected to great heat and heavy pressure. The result is a substance which is said to be less affected by wear than the best and hardest granite and to support a pressure of over 10,000 pounds to the square inch. To break a slab of the material a weight of nearly five tons falling from the height of three feet is necessary. This glass pavement is being laid down at the expense of its inventor in several test places where the traffic is exceptionally heavy. If at the end of five years the pavement has worn well the municipality has undertaken to adopt it on a large scale. If not, Mr. Garcher, who evidently has confidence in his material, is under contract to replace the old pavement at his own cost. The new pavement is said to be noisy.

Jersey Has a New Peril.

Information from the Oranges has come to the newspapers of a tendency in mosquitoes to fill themselves with kerosene from oil-covered puddles and then hie themselves to the houses and buzz about the gas lights, says Harper's Weekly. If they catch fire it is a serious matter, dangerous to summer curtains, and fires are gravely reported to have been started in this way. Of course, if a mosquito with a cargo of oil in her once takes fire, that is the end of her, but she dies famous, like the unscrupulous lad who fired the Ephesian dome. Nevertheless, the oil cure for mosquitoes is being seriously tried.

THE ASSASSIN HEARS DOOM

Leon Czolgosz Is Sentenced to Die in Electric Chair.

SAYS HE HAD NO ACCOMPLICES.

Murderer of McKinley Tells Judge No One Else Was in Plot—Dramatic Scene in Court—Falters While Making His Statements to Judge.

History of the Trial.

Monday, Sept. 16.—Czolgosz arraigned in court before Judge White, charged with the murder of President McKinley on Sept. 7. He refused to answer the indictment.

Monday, Sept. 23.—Czolgosz placed on trial. Pleaded guilty to charge. Plea not accepted and trial proceeds.

Tuesday, Sept. 24.—Czolgosz is found guilty as charged.

Thursday, Sept. 26.—Judge White, who presided at trial, sentences prisoner to be put to death in the electric chair at Auburn prison, sometime during the week beginning October 28.

Czolgosz Receives Sentence.

Czolgosz was sentenced to death by Justice Truman C. White in the Supreme court at Buffalo Thursday afternoon. The assassin took advantage of the opportunity to speak, but he confined himself to taking upon his own shoulders the blame for the great crime of having murdered the president of the United States. He advanced no reason in justification of his monstrous deed. Not a word did he utter of anarchy, of his enmity to government or of the motives which prompted him to the commission of his crime.

Hall Cleared By Police.

Greater crowds gathered for the sentencing of the assassin than came for any one session of the trial itself. Before 12:30 p. m. a crowd had gathered in the corridor in front of Justice White's court room. By 1 p. m. the corridor was jammed. Capt. Regan then appeared on the stairs with a squad of 100 uniformed officers and cleared the hall. It was a case of first come first served after a line was formed, and the tickets of admission issued for the trial were worthless. It took less than ten minutes for the single file to fill the court room and then the doors were closed to be opened only upon the arrival of officials, counsel and others connected with the day's proceedings.

Dramatic Scene in Court.

In a hush that was like the silence of death Justice White pronounced the prisoner's doom. Physically tottering under the ordeal, but sustaining himself by sheer force of nerve, the murderer heard the words of death pronounced, was shackled and quietly submitted to be led away.

In no brazen fashion did the prisoner face the court. Swaying from side to side, boyish looking, trembling with nervousness, but held up by nerve, he stood leaning on the chair in front of him.

Falters in His Words.

Falteringly, hesitatingly, he spoke, after having been asked each question several times. He acted almost as if the words were being wrung out of him, it took him so long to find utterance, and he spoke so rapidly when the first word left his lips in response to a question.

His voice was hardly heard ten feet away, although every ear in the great court room was strained to catch the slightest sound from his lips.

His face paled at no time during the proceedings. It was flushed with the emotion it was costing him so much strength to master. As the preliminary to the pronouncing of sentence many questions were asked by the district attorney. Czolgosz evinced the utmost willingness to answer all these questions, but his utterance seemed to smother in his throat.

Lawyer Offers Aid.

It was only after an effort that each reply was blurted out. As he stood his breast heaved, his eyes blinked rapidly and once he almost reeled, so that Ex-Judge Titus, his counsel, held up a hand to support him.

He did not need the proffered aid, but straightened himself up of his own effort. It was with a feeling of relief that the assassin heard the words, "Remove the prisoner," pronounced by Judge White. He heaved a great sigh as he was manacled and was led away.

Tells of His Life.

"Stand up, Czolgosz, please," said Mr. Penny, turning to the prisoner. Nudged by bailiffs, the prisoner stood up, the center of all attention in the crowded room.

In answer to questions put by Mr. Penny, Czolgosz said under oath that he was born in Detroit, that he was educated in the common and church schools, that he had been a Catholic, that he was a laborer, and that he had lived in Cleveland and in Buffalo.

The court clerk then asked the question for which all had been awaiting. Judge Titus asked that the prisoner be permitted to make a statement in exculpation of his act.

Czolgosz leaned heavily on a chair. He then spoke, saying he alone committed the crime. No one had anything to do with his crime but himself, he said.

Judge White—"Before the passing of sentence you may speak on two subjects. First, you can claim that you are insane; second, that you have good cause to offer that judgment should not be pronounced against you; third, that you wish a new trial.

Given Liberty to Speak.

"These are the grounds specified by statute. You are now at liberty to speak."

Czolgosz—"I have nothing to say on those things."

Judge Titus then consulted the prisoner.

Judge Titus—"I think he ought to be permitted to make a statement in exculpation of his family, your honor."

Judge White—"The defendant may speak in exculpation of his father and brothers and sisters. If that is what he means to do it is proper."

Says He Did it Alone.

Czolgosz—"No other person had anything to do with it. No other person knew of this but myself; my father or mother or no one else knew nothing about it. I never thought of the crime until two days before I committed it and never told nobody about it."

Judge Lewis—"He says he did not make up his mind to do it until a few days before its commission.

Judge Passes Sentence.

Justice White—"Czolgosz, in taking the life of our beloved president you committed a crime that shocked and outraged all the civilized world. After learning all the facts and circumstances in the case, twelve good men have pronounced you guilty of murder in the first degree. You say that no other person abetted you in the commission of this terrible act. The penalty is fixed by statute, and it becomes my duty to impose sentence upon you. The sentence of this court is that on October 28, at the place designated and in the manner prescribed by law, you suffer the punishment of death."

"Remove the prisoner."

Considerable surprise was expressed that Justice White did not pronounce the customary appeal to the Almighty

DISTRICT ATTORNEY PENNEY.
(From a sketch made at Buffalo.)

in concluding his sentence, "and may God have mercy on your soul."

Manacled and Led Away.

The hush as the solemn words were pronounced was like the silence of the tomb. For several moments the silence was unbroken. The click of handcuffs put a startling termination on the strain. Like a great sob the emotion of the court room welled up and were lost in the shuffling of feet. The final scene of the historic trial was concluded.

Manacled to detectives who had brought him into the court, the assassin was conducted away. Between the wall of bailiffs, policemen and spectators the murderer passed. He looked not into a single eye. Justified by himself or not, his deed lay heavy on his head. A groan of execration followed him down the broad court house stairs to the jail tunnel below.

POWERS OF HERDITY.

Some Remarkable Stories Told of Its Mysterious Influences.

Doctors disagree as to the influence of heredity. Some hold that a great deal hinges upon it; others believe the contrary. Some of the authentic stories told to exemplify this mysterious bond between ancestors and descendants are very curious. There was a loan collection of old portraits exhibited in London lately and a young girl was among the visitors. She was an orphan and wealthy, but without near relatives, and was often heard to complain of the loneliness of her position. As she passed through the gallery one particular portrait attracted her attention and she went back to it more than once. Her companion saw in it nothing but the commonplace painting of a middle-aged man in the costume of the latter part of the last century. "It is such a nice, kind face," said the girl, rather wistfully. "I imagine my father might have looked like that had he lived." As most of the pictures were ticketed the visitors had purchased no catalogue, but, before going away, Miss B. bought one at the entrance and made a last visit to the portrait for which she had felt so strong an attraction. To her astonishment she found her own name opposite to its number and learned on inquiry that the original was one of her direct ancestors. Another occult coincidence or psychological phenomenon happened a few years ago to a southern statesman and financier whose family has always been of rank in his native state. This gentleman was overhauling old documents and letters which had been stored in a musty chest for years and intended to publish whatever might be of historic value and interest. To his surprise he unfolded a letter yellow and time-stained which was written in his own peculiar handwriting, or seemed to have been written by him, although the date was two generations before his birth. The signature of the surname, which was the same as his own, was so markedly characteristic that he could scarcely believe his own hand did not pen the letters.—Montreal Herald and Star.

Fewer Strikes in France.

The statistics of the strikes in France for June have just been published. In all the month gave birth to 57, while the total for the first six months of the year was 306. The same period in 1900 yielded 475, which shows an agreeable falling off in the discontent of the working classes.

ANARCHISTS ARE INDICTED.

Charged With Sending an Objectionable Paper Through Mails.

Tacoma telegram: Charles Govan, James W. Adams, and James E. Larkin, members of the Home Anarchist colony in this county, have been arrested under an indictment found by the federal grand jury at Spokane charging them with depositing in the mails a lewd, obscene and lascivious newspaper. The prisoners were brought to Tacoma and committed to jail pending examination. An indictment was also returned against G. Morong, who, it is claimed, was the author of the objectionable article. Morong is now in Massachusetts, but will be arrested and brought here for trial. The newspaper in question is the official organ at the "Home," and is called "Discontent," and advocates anarchy and free love.

STORIETTES.

When Oliver Goldsmith was one day asked, "Who is this Scotch cur at Johnson's heels?" the author of "The Good Natured Man" characteristically responded: "You are too severe. He is not a cur, he is only a bur. Tom Davies flung him at Johnson in sport, and he has the faculty of sticking."

During General Sherman's famous "march to the sea," both north and south were completely mystified as to what point the general was striking for, and one day an old Georgia planter, who had called at his headquarters and enjoyed his good cheer, asked him boldly if he had any objection to telling where his army was bound. "Not the least," said Sherman. Then, leaning over, he whispered in his guest's ear, but so loudly that everybody else in the tent overheard it: "We are going pretty much where we —— please!"

Once, two gentlemen attended a temperance meeting, and, on returning home by a dark and narrow lane, were thrown out of their conveyance. The incident was reported in the local paper, and the account closed with the words: "Fortunately, both men were sober." The editor received an angry letter from one of the gentlemen concerned, with a request for an apology. He was equal to the occasion. "In our account of the unfortunate accident to Messrs. ——," wrote the editor, "we stated that fortunately both men were sober. It appears this statement has given great offense. We therefore beg to withdraw it."

A well known English inspector of schools spent a good quarter of an hour in impressing upon the little girls of a school near Birmingham the beauties of nature, the wonderful nature of flowers, of trees, and of running streams. At the end of his discourse he thought fit to put a few questions. "Now, who is it," he asked, "who made these wonderful things? Who is it who made each blade of grass?" "Joseph Chamberlain!" was the prompt answer of the little girl who was top. "Surely," said the inspector, rather taken aback, "surely Mr. Chamberlain could not make a blade of grass?" "Oh!" said the little girl, "you must be a pro-Boer!"

At an annual dinner of the St. Nicholas society, Embassador Joseph H. Choate was down for the toast "The Navy," while Senator Depew was to respond to "The Army." Depew began by saying: "It's well to have a specialist; that's why Choate is here to speak about the navy. We met at the wharf once, and I never saw him again till we reached Liverpool. When I asked how he felt, he said he thought he would have enjoyed the trip over if he had had any ocean air. Yes, you want to hear Choate on the navy." Choate responded: "I've heard Depew hailed as the great after-dinner speaker. If after-dinner speaking, as I have heard it described and as I believe it to be, is the art of saying nothing at all, then Dr. Depew is the most marvelous speaker in the universe."

A FEARLESS PHYSICIAN.

Benton, Ill., Sept. 30th.—Much comment has been caused by the action of Dr. R. H. Dunaway, a physician here, who for over a year past has been recommending Dodd's Kidney Pills to those of his patients who suffered from Rheumatism, Bright's Disease, Diabetes or other Kidney Troubles.

Dr. Dunaway also published an open letter last May stating positively that he himself had been cured of Diabetes by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and that, after he had concluded he was going to die.

He is a well man today and says he feels it his duty to do as he has done and is doing because Dodd's Kidney Pills saved his life.

The Real Cause of Dandruff and Baldness.

At one time dandruff was attributed to be the result of a feverish condition of the scalp, which threw off the dried cuticle in scales.

Professor Unna, Hamburg, Germany, noted authority on skin diseases, explodes this theory and says that dandruff is a germ disease.

This germ is really responsible for the dandruff and for so many bald heads. It can be cured if it is gone about in the right way. The right way, of course, and the only way, is to kill the germ.

Newbro's Herpicide does this, and causes the hair to grow luxuriantly, just as nature intended it should.

When you buy starch just buy starch alone—not starch and premiums. Premiums are cheap things that may help to sell a starch but they don't make it any cheaper. "Defiance" brand of starch is the cheapest because the package is the largest sold for 10 cents—16 ounces for 10c—and it is the best starch made.

Those who wished to spent the time playing games, while others perferred to listen to some nice music. At 12 o'clock an oyster supper with its trimmings was served. Soon after. the guests departed for their homes, and we are inclined to think some of the little boys got lost as they didn't return until the peep of day.

SCIENTIFIC JOTTINGS.

It is said that successful trials of a telephonic apparatus without wire have been had in Italy. The instruments were installed on moving trains The details of the experiments and apparatus are meager.

One hospital in New York has adopted a camera to record minutely the action of patients, and many moving pictures have been taken, showing the movements in walking of persons afflicted with locomotor ataxia. They are produced slowly on the screen, so that physicians are enabled to study the symptoms carefully. Moving pictures have been taken in Vienna showing operations being performed by great surgeons.

Barometric readings reduced to true atmospheric pressure are now required by the weather bureau, the approximate corrections for gravity being applied to all barometric readings. This correction applies to all mercurial barometers and is nearly constant at any one station. The corrected reading is a standard measure of atmospheric pressure and can be compared to similar corrected readings made at any place in the world.

Several of the largest abandoned copper mines in eastern Maine will again be operated. The Maine copper mines were in successful operation in 1879 and showed good profits while copper was quoted at 14 cents. The mines could also be operated on a paying basis with copper at 12 cents, but the crash came when the Wisconsin mines put down the price of copper to eight cents. Now that copper is so aigh, it will be very profitable to mine it.

A central station for the production of acetylene gas is being tested at Tata-Tovaros, Hungary, a city of 12,000 inhabitants. Five miles of pipe covers the city and furnishes gas to 158 street lights and 250 burners in houses. The generating station is located over 600 feet from the nearest house. The gas is produced in four generators by the fall of the carbide into the water. The gas for each group, on leaving the generators, passes into a cooler and then into a purifier,and finally into two gasmeters of 106 cubic feet capacity. The generating plant requires the services of only two men, and the total cost of the installation was $30,000, of which $19,000 went for the pipe system.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed, The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes thal their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. "Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made as is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflamation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to "Consumption—Snuffles will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure," Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Doller. THE HOME GOLD CURE.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors requires antidotes capable of neutratizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is perfectly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drundards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy and as many more have been made temporate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent or misleading 'improvement.' Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The Home Gold Cure is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 or $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. GREAT OPPURTUNITIES.

The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Norther Railway Company is nearing the completion of it's 140 miles of new extensions in the very richest portion of Southwestern Minnesota. The six new towns. Reading, Wilmont, Lismore, Kenneth, Waters and Conger are rapidly becoming commercial centers for the rich and allready thickly settled country surrounding. There has been no "Auction sale of lots" or any attempt to "Boom" these towns; their growth being the result of a demand for convenient markets.

It is the purpose of the railway company to encourage the continuous substantial growth of the towns on their lines. In order that each town may receive the attention of "ownership." it has been decided to sell each town entire, including all unplatted land to private parties. For terms of such purchases, address the undersigned. For busine s openings or purchase of lots address the Town Lot Agent of the respective town.

A Communication.

MR. EDITOR—Allow me to speak a few words in favor of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I suffered for three years with the bronchitis and could not sleep at nights. I tried several doctors and various patent medicines, but could get nothing to give me any relief until my wife got a bottle of this valuable medicine, which has completely relieved me.—W. S. Brockman, Bagnell, Mo. This remedy is for sale by J. L. Harr, Druggist.

Stood Death Off.

E. B. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a grave digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malaria, kills dislase germs and purifies the blood; aid digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation. dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Only 50c at Harr's Drug Store.

A Certain Cure For Dysentery and Diarrhoea

"some years ago I was one of a party that intended making a long bicycle trip" say F. L. Taylor of New Albany, Bradford Co., Pa. "I was taken suddenly with diarrhoea, and was about to give up the trip, when editor Ward of the Laceyville Messenger, suggested that I take a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I purchased a bottle and took two doses, one before starting and one on the route. I made the trip successfully and never felt any ill effect. Again last summer I was almost completely run down with an attack of dysentery. I bought a bottle of this same remedy and this time one dose cured me." Sold by J. L. Harr.

A Night Of Terr r.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from Pneumonia before morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Troubles. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Harr's drug store.

Josh Westhafer, of Loogootee, Ind., is a poor man, but he says he would not be without Chamberlain's Pain Balm if it cost five dollars a bottle, for it saved him from being a cripple. No external application is equal to this liniment for stiff and swollen joints, contracted muscles, stiff neck, sprains and rheumatic and muscular pains. It has also cured numerous cases of partial paralisis. It is for sale by J. L. Harr, Druggist.

INTRODUCTORY.

It is the custom, has always been and probably always will be, in writing salutatories, to begin by making promises as to the course the paper will take as regards politics and things generally, and the writers oftentimes promising more than it is possible for a common man to execute.

In taking charge of the KLEMME TIMES we do not wish to make any rash promises. Our aim will ever be to get out as good a newspaper as circumstances and our ability will permit, always aiming to print all the news that is fit to print, without partiality, and ready to do anything at any time that will result in the upbuilding of the little city of Klemme.

To this end, we ask the liberal patronage of all the business men of Klemme, and we will always strive to be deserving of that patronage. Being practically a stranger in this place we ask the co-operation of everyone in the matter of gathering news items, until we are better acquainted at least, and any favors shown us in this direction will be heartily appreciated.

Our job department is well equipped for all kinds of commercial printing and we will try to do all work in this line promptly and in a workmanlike manner. Call and get acquainted. Hoping our efforts will meet with the approval of our friends and patrons and that our business relations may be mutually agreeable and profitable, we beg to remain

Very Truly Yours,
A. C. FLINT.

The New Ten Commandments

I. Thou shalt not go away from home to do thy trading, nor thy son, nor thy daughter.

II. Thou shalt patronize thy home merchant, also the printer, and they shall patronize thee. Make haste, therefore for that which will cause the countenance to shine with intelligence and bring prosperity to both.

III. Thou shalt employ thine own mechanics that they may not be driven from their homes to find bread for their little ones. Thou shalt also consider him as thy neighbor, above all him that dwelleth in a strange town.

IV. Thou shalt not ask credit, as thy goods cost much money and the merchant's brain is burdened with bills. His children clamor daily for bread, and his wife abideth at home for lack of such raiment as adorneth her sister. "Blessed, yes, thrice blessed is the man that pays cash."

V. Thou shalt not ask for reduced prices for thine influence for behold the guile is in thine heart and the merchant readeth it like an open book. He laugheth thee scorn and shouteth to his clerks, "ha, ha!"

VI. Thou shalt do whatever lieth in thy power to encourage and promote the welfare of thine own town and thine own people.

VII. Thou shalt not suffer the voice of pride to overcome thee and if other towns entice thee, consent thou not, for thou mayest be deceived.

VIII. Thou shalt spend thine earnings at home that they return whence they came and give nourishment to such as may come after thee.

IX. Thou shalt not bear false witness against the town wherein thou dwelleth, but speak well of it to all men.

X. Thou shalt keep these commandments and teach them to thy children to the third and fourth generations that they may be made to flourish and grow in plenty when thou art laid to rest with thy fathers.—Unknown.

There are more newspapers published in Iowa, in proportion to its population, than in any other state of the Union.

There is a terrible coercion in our deeds which may first turn the honest man into a deceiver, and then reconcile him to the change.

Show me the man you honor. I know by that symptom better than any other what kind of a man you yourself are; for you show me there what your ideal of manhood is, what kind of a man you long inexpressibly to be.—Ben Johnson.

Mrs. Catherine Babcock of Washington, D. C., widow of Colonel Babcock, who was a member of General Grant's staff, was committed to the Government insane Asylum recently, to await an investigation by the court as to her sanity. Mrs. Babcock has the idea that some one is going to steal the body of her daughter, buried in Baltimore, Md., and hold it for ransom.

Some Austrians living in Geneva conceived the project of placing a memorial tablet in the Quai du Leman, where the Empress Elizabeth was assassinated. The authorities, however, refused their permission on the ground that it would be improper to commemorate the deed of a madman and help to preserve his name. In place of the tablet, it is now proposed to erect a chapel in honor of the Empress.

Seventy-six vacancies exist in the Medical Department of the United States Army, for which there are comparatively few candidates. Young doctors on entering have the rank and pay of a first lieutenant, and generally promotion is more rapid than in the line of the service. It is surprising that more applications should not be received, considering the salary and rank attaching to the places. The same trouble is experienced with vacancies in the medical corps of the navy.

It is a familiar example of irony in the degradation of words that "what a man is worth" has come to mean how much money he possesses; but there seems a deeper and more melancholy irony in the shrunken meaning that popular or polite speech assigns to "morality" and "morals." The poor part these words are made to play recalls the fates of those pagan divinities who, after being understood to rule the powers of the air and the destinies of men, came down to the level of insignificant demons, or were even made the farcical show for amusement of the multitude.

Although without knowledge of surgery, Theodore Austin, aged sixteen, probably saved his own life the other day by the application of a little practical knowledge. The boy was working at home in Philadelphia, when he ran his hand through a pane of glass and severed an artery in his wrist. He started for the hospital, but had not gone far before he realized that it would not do to wait to have the flow of blood stopped. He bound his handkerchief tightly around his wrist, above the cut, and by sticking a pencil through the knot, improvised a tourniquet by which he succeeded in twisting the handkerchief until the end of the severed artery was closed.

Dr. E. W. Allen, assistant superintendent of experiment stations, conducted by the Agricultural Department, has returned to Washington, after a ten weeks' tour of inspection of the stations in Alaska. Dr. Allen reports that all the hardy vegetables are being grown there and he predicts that the time will come when Alaska will grow a sufficient supply of them. He also says that wheat, oats, barley and rye have been matured at the stations, and he thinks it practicable to raise beef for the home market. He says there is considerable inquiry for land along the coast from people living in Northern Europe, and thinks the time wil' come when many of them will find more comfortable homes there than they now have.

According to Dr. Rijnhart, the medical attentions lavished on invalids in Thibet are of a very primitive character. For headache, large sticking plasters are applied to the patient's head and forehead; for rheumatism, a needle is often buried in the arm or shoulder; a tooth is extracted by tying a string to it and jerking it out, sometimes bringing out a part of the jaw at the same time; a sufferer with stomach ache may be subjected to a good pounding, or to the application of a piece of wick soaked in burning butter grease, or, if medicine is to be taken internally, it will consist probably of a piece of paper on which a prayer is written, rolled in the form of a pellet; and, if this fails to produce the desired effect, another pellet is administered composed of the bones of some pious priest.

At a demonstration held on Lambourne Common a resolution was passed calling upon Colonel Lockwood and others to remove the obstructions to the public right of way on about 100 acres of forest land. A procession numbering about 500 persons was afterwards formed and the fences on Colonel Lockwood's land were forcibly removed. About thirty of the Essex police, under Supt. Womack, were present, but showed great forbearance, and the object of the demonstration was accomplished. Proceedings will be taken for damages and trespass.

Lieutenant E. P. Bertholf, of the United States revenue cutter service, has purchased 450 doe and 50 buck reindeer in Siberia for the Department of the Interior. Lieutenant Bertholf expresses some doubt as to the experiment. The total cost of the animals landed in Alaska is about $30 each.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

NATION'S GRAIN DEALERS.

The Convention at Des Moines Was a Very Profitable One.

Des Moines, Oct. 4.—The sixth annual convention of the National Grain Dealers' association came to an end yesterday. The convention was the best in the history of the organization. Members of the Cereal club, upon whom devolved the care of the visiting delegates, were repeatedly congratulating by the visitors, who expressed themselves as agreeably surprised at the manner in which the convention had been entertained.

The convention did much for Des Moines and Iowa. B. A. Lockwood, a Des Moines man, was re-elected president in recognition of his services in behalf of the organization. The state has been benefited, in that all of the southern delegates were here for the purpose of perfecting arrangements with Iowa grain men for the shipment of oats and hay to the south, which produced little hay or corn this year. It is expected that these two commodities will reach a high price because of the great demand for them in the south. Iowa is also honored in the selection of G. A. Stebbins of Red Oak as secretary of the association. C. S. Clark of Chicago was re-elected to the secretaryship, but declined, owing to private interests.

The convention has resulted in a better understanding as to the grading of grain and has shown Iowa grain men how their samples compare with the best from other sections of the country. Another outcome was the organization of a national association of grain inspectors.

Memphis won the convention of 1902 mainly on the proposition that hundreds of grain men from the south would become affiliated with the association if they could be induced to attend one of the conventions. Officers were elected as follows: President, B. A. Lockwood; first vice president, T. P. Baxter; second vice president, H. S. Grimes; secretary, G. A. Stibbins.

HE STUCK TO THE OLD HOME.

James Fallon's Threat Never to Leave Old Home Alive Is Made Good.

Ft. Dodge, Oct. 7.—Smarting under supposed wrongs, James Fallon, a prominent pioneer resident of Webster county, blew out his brains in a room of his home near here, while a sheriff was waiting in front with a warrant for his arrest. The warrant was issued for his arrest for alleged murderous assault of a threshing crew whom he had driven from his place at the point of a revolver. The affair is the culmination of a series of events which originated in the sale of Fallon's old homestead to Charles Donahue in 1897. Immediately after giving the contract Fallon repented his bargain, saying he desired to spend his rmaining years on the farm. Suit was then commenced to dispossess him, but he fought the action with great earnestness, engaging the best legal talent in Iowa to save his home for him. Among the attorneys engaged were John F. Duncombe, Iowa attorney for the Illinois Central; M. D. O'Connell, solicitor of the United States treasury; Judge Kenyon, Judge Hyatt and W. W. Irwin, a noted criminal attorney of St. Paul. Despite his efforts the state supreme court affirmed the lower court's decison and ordered Fallon dispossessed. He refused and annouced he would never leave the place alive.

GIRL BURNED TO DEATH.

Des Moines, Oct. 3.—Miss Elsa Price, a paroled inmate of the girls' reformatory institution at Mitchellville, and a present employe of that institution was burned to death in a horrible manner. The shocking accident in which Miss Price lost her life occurred at 10 o'clock p. m. She had just returned from a walk down town with one of the other institution employes and had retired to her room, which was situated in a remote part of the building. Ae few moments later a piercing scream was heard, and the woman on watch in the corridors ran to Miss Price's room to find her standing in her nightclothes in the middle of the room, enveloped in flames. She was so overcome by the fumes she had inhaled that she could give no account of the accident, and although everything was done to save her life, Miss Price expired at 4 o'clock a. m. in terrible agony. Superintendent Fitzgerald at once notified the board of control and the girl's parents, who live at Corydon.

The supposition is that the girl had undressed for bed without lighting the lamp, as it was moonlight, and that before retiring she struck a match for some purpose and ignited her clothes by accident.

Ward Indicted on Seven Counts.

Sioux City, Oct. 4.—Thomas F. Ward, who absconded while vice president of the LeMars National bank and brought on its failure, has been indicted by the federal grand jury on seven different counts. The first charges him with the embezzlement of $13,000; the other six charge him with as many different instances of fraudulent entry in the bank books. To all seven counts Ward, through his attorneys, entered a plea of not guilty for the present. His bond was fixed at $7,500, which was promptly furnished.

Later on it is probable that Ward may plead guilty. There is a prospect that his trouble will be adjusted, whereby he will be shown leniency in a light sentence.

Dropped Dead on the Street.

Dubuque, Oct. 7.—J. D. Mills, traveling solicitor for the Rankin Mills Co., of New York, dropped dead on the street opposite St. Joseph's college. Mr. Mills and a companion named W. Heins were canvassing the city, distributing samples of the breakfast food made by their firm. The two were standing on the corner looking over a map they had and preparing from it the route they would take. Mr. Mills gave a sudden gasp and collapsed, falling on the siddewalk and dying almost instantly. Mr. Mills was about 40 years of age. His home is in Oak Park, Chicago.

Collision at Marshalltown.

Marshalltown, Oct. 4.—A Northwestern passenger train and an Iowa Central freight train collided at the Third street crossing in this city. One engine was demolished and half a dozen cars completely wrecked. The coaches of the passenger train were badly damaged. No one was seriously hurt. The property loss is heavy.

Found Guilty of Murder.

Boone, Oct. 5.—Gibson, on trial in the district court for shooting Henry Walker, has been found guilty of murder in the second degree.

Girl Attempts Suicide.

Newton, Oct. 5.—Pearl Hiatt, 18 years old, and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Hiatt, of West Main street, atempted suicide by drinking the contents of a bottle of aconite. The cause of the attempt to take her life was her mother's refusal to let her go nutting in company with another girl. It is said that the girls had arranged to go to the woods to spend the day, and Mss Hiatt's chum had placed some men's clothing in a sack which she proposed they put on in the woods. To this the mother objected. The girl will probably recover.

RENEW THEIR SUBSCRIPTION

Charles City Electric Railway Revived and Work Will Soon

Charles City, Oct. 4.—The Charles City electric railway project is having the usual experience of a town in getting started. Ninety thousand dollars was subscribed in stock, $50,000 of it on condition that $100,000 be taken, but through various causes the remaining $10,000 has not been secured. This releases the subscribers. The survey profile has been completed and the right of way between Charles City and Poyner practically secured. The franchise expired under the first ordinance, and was renewed by the city council August 6, extending the time to July 1, 1902, but with the proviso that work be commenced within ninety days. A few nights ago the stock subscribers met and voted to renew the subscriptions unconditionally, and that the amount of money needed to commence the work before the ninety day limit had expired, and secure the franchise. The work will be begun before October 12, and in the early part of 1902 will be completed to Nashville, and thence to some point on the Shell Rock, probably Clarksville.

Young Farmer Killed.

State Center, Oct. 5.—Fred Heileman, a prosperous young farmer who resides five miles north of here was killed while attempting to start a gasoline engine. After supper left the house for the purpose of getting enough feed to last the following day, as he expected to be away from home, and after running a little time the family was aroused by a sudden stopping of the machinery. The engine had been giving no less trouble, and the supposition is that it balked again, and in his efforts to start it going Hilleman had his arm caught in the belt and was instantly killed.

Ferry Boat Captain Shot

Keokuk, October 7.—Wm. Addy, of Nauvoo, Ill., captain of the ferry boat plying between Nauvoo and Montrose, was shot and killed here by Calvin C. Baird, a printer of this city.

Dundy had been drinking, attempted to enter a lunch car was ejected by the proprietor, Baird was an innocent bystander was struck in the face by Dundy, whereupon he pulled a revolver and shot Dundy below the heart.

Cattle Bring Big Prices.

Newton, Oct. 5.—At the public sale of E. S. Donahey's Scotch cattle the first fifteen animals sold brought the handsome price of $17,245. The sale included some of the best animals ever seen. The first animal sold brought $1,500 and the sixty-two sold brought an average price of $696, making the sale amount in all to nearly $60,000. These were Short-horn Scotch cattle and imported Canadian.

Fatal Hunting Accident.

Eldora, Oct. 3.—Chas. Fannon, about 19 years of age, living in this city, met an almost instant death here. He and another young man were going for a hunt and were waiting for a team by the roadside. Young Fannon accidentally turned the barrel of the gun toward him and it instantly went off, the shot having effect in the head. He was a barber by trade.

Both Legs Cut Off.

Lamoni, Oct. 3.—A serious accident happened to Willie Mayhew at Goodburn. The day before he and a few boys went there to work the railroad and while in the discharge of his duties he fell under the wheels of a moving train and lost the lower part of both legs, one just below the knee and the other just above the ankle. The boy is 17 years old.

Woman Shot By Boys.

Tama, Oct. 3.—Two boys named Mrs. Wm. Chappel were trying to extract the loads from an old 22-caliber revolver, when it was accidentally discharged, the ball striking Mrs. Chappel in the abdomen and inflicting perhaps a fatal wound. Mrs. Chappel is the wife of Mr. Wm. Chappel, express messenger between Tama and Sioux City.

Hossack Case Goes Over.

Des Moines, Oct. 7.—The Hossack case will go over until the January term of the supreme court. An application of the state it was allowed to be continued until that time. Senator Berry was in court for his client, Mrs. Hossack, but made no resistance to the continuance. He is sanguine of success in the higher court.

Senator Dolliver Twice Blest.

Fort Dodge, Oct. 7.—A baby girl has arrived at the home of United States Senator J. P. Dolliver. This is the second child born to Senator Dolliver. The first, also a girl, Miss Margaret, is now nearly two years old, and is famous as the baby whose advent into the world cause both houses of congress to adjourn for one day.

Clam Fisher's Good Luck

Dubuque, Oct. 5.—John Liddle, clam fisher, took from the river just below the high bridge one of the finest pearls yet found. It is nearly half an inch in diameter and very clear. He has been offered $600 for it, but asks $1,000.

Arrest Burglary Suspects.

Charles City, Oct. 1.—Three men, Frank Riley, Carl Van Gorden and Thos. Williams, charged with complicity in the Powersville buglary, were arrested near Cartersville west of Marble Rock by Officers Rex and Atherton, and on trial before Justice Merriam in this city each was held to the grand jury in $500 bail. Two others of the gang were arrested at Mason City and will be brought here for trial.

NEWS IN GENERAL

SCHLEY COURT OF INQUIRY

Washington, Oct. 2.—The Schley court of inquiry made good headway again yesterday, concluding with Admiral Evans and hearing three new witnesses, although the testimony of one of them was not concluded when the court adjourned for the day. Admiral Evans' testimony was along the same general lines as was his statement of Monday, but some points were presented in greater detail in response to questions by Mr. Rayner. The new witnesses were Captain Sigsbee, who commanded the scout St. Paul during the Santiago campaign, Mr. Thomas M. Dienaide, a newspaper correspondent who was on the Texas during the battle of July 3, and Chief Yeoman Gustave E. Becker, who was a clerk to Admiral Sampson during the war.

Captain Sigsbee's testimony covered his communications to Commodore Schley upon the latter's arrival off Santiago, May 26, 1898, and at subsequent dates, and dealt with the state of the weather at that period. He was asked a great number of questions by the court.

Mr. Dienaide described the loop of the Brooklyn, as seen from the Texas. Mr. Becker testified as to dispatches sent by Admiral Sampson to Commodore Schley.

Washington, Oct. 3.—An interesting turn was given in the Schley court of inquiry yesterday by the introduction of the first witness in Admiral Schley's behalf. This was Lieut. James J. Boyle, who was a watch officer on board the flagship Brooklyn during the war with Spain. The fact that Lieutenant Doyle was put on the stand does not mean that the navy department has concluded the presentation of its side of the case. Mr. Doyle was called by the department, but as it also has been the purpose of Admiral Schley to summon him, advantage was taken of his presence on the stand to question him as an original witness for "the applicant." He was under examination by Mr. Rayner in the interest of the admiral when the court adjourned for the day.

Before undergoing examination at Mr. Rayner's hands, Lieutenant Doyle at Captain Lemly's request explained his part in the battle of July 3 and his original entry in the ship's log concerning the famous loop and his alteration of that entry because he subsequently discovered that his first entry had been erroneous.

Lieutenant Commander Sharp, who commanded the Vixen during the Spanish war, also gave his testimony during the day, giving especial attention to notes of the battle of July 3, made by Lieutenant Harlow of his ship. Admiral Evans, Captain Sigsbee and Correspondent Dienaide were all recalled for the purpose of correcting their testimony as given the day before and all made additional statements. Just before the adjournment for the day the court announced its decisions not to allow any questions concerning the blockade of Santiago after July 1, when Commander-in-Chief Admiral Sampson arrived there.

Washington, Oct. 4.—After Lieutenant Doyle, formerly of Commodore Schley's flagship, the Brooklyn, had completed his testimony before the Schley court of inquiry yesterday, Capt. Wm. C. Dawson of the marine corps was called, and was followed by Lieut. Chas. W. Dryson of the bureau of steam engineering of the navy department.

Capt. Dawson was signal officer on board the battleship Indiana during the naval engagement off Santiago, and he gave an account from recollection of the behavior of the various ships of the American fleet during that battle. He said that the Brooklyn had gone about 2,000 yards to the southward before joining the pursuit of Cervera's ships.

Lieut. Dryson was introduced to testify concerning the coal supply of the flying squadron, but the court adjourned the day before he could be heard to any extent.

Washington, Oct. 5.—The witnesses for yesterday were Lieut. C. W. Dryson of the bureau of steam engineering, concerning the coal supply of the flying squadron; Commander Raymond P. Rodgers, who was second in command of the battleship Iowa during the Spanish war and carried Admiral Sampson's dispatches of May 20 to Commodore Schley, and Commander Albon C. Hodgson, who was the navigator of the flagship Brooklyn.

While Commander Rodgers was on the stand Mr. Rayner submitted a computation of shells from the American fleet, which had struck the wrecked vessels of Cervera's squadron, showing that at least 34 per cent of them were fired by the Brooklyn. This computation, Mr. Rayner said, has been prepared by Admiral Schley upon the basis of a report made by the board of survey, of which the witness was the senior member. Commander Hodgson gave a graphic description of the battle off Santiago, describing the part taken in it by the Brooklyn and explaining the change in the entry of that vessel's log.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Only one session of the Schley court of inquiry was held yesterday. An adjournment was taken at 1 o'clock n order to allow court and counsel to recuperate after an arduous week's labor. Practically the only witness of the day was Lieutenant Commander Albon C. Hodgson, who was navigator of the flagship Brooklyn during the campaign of 1898, and almost his entire time was taken up with the reading of correspondence between himself and Admiral Schley concerning an alleged colloquy between them during the battle of Santiago, which the witness was reported to have detailed to a newspaper correspondent. The correspondence has been published, and this fact rendered the proceedings of comparatively little popular interest.

R. E. BURKE INDICTED.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—The grand jury has voted to indictments against Robert E. Burke, city oil inspector. The charge is embezzlement of the funds of his office, and in one instance a shortage of $14,000 is alleged, and in the other $9,000 is said to be missing.

Several days ago representatives of the Standard Oil company told the grand jury that they had paid as fees to Burke in his capacty as city oil inspector certain sums of money, which the grand jury cannot find in the inspector's account with the city. The matter was taken up again and after a long investigation it was found that there was in one case a shortage of $14,000 between the amount paid by the Standard Oil company and that reported in the receipts of the office by Burke. The item of $9,000 was found in the same manner.

BOERS PUT UP HARD FIGHT.

Durban, Natal, Oct. 1.—A force of fifteen hundred Boers, commanded by General Botha, made an attack, which lasted all day long, September 26th, on Portitala, on the border of Zululand. The burghers were finally repulsed but at a heavy cost to the garrison, whose losses were an officer and eleven men killed and five officers and thirty-eight men wounded. In addition sixty-three men are missing, of which number many are believed to have been killed or wounded. The Boer commandant, Opperman, and nineteen burghers are known to have been killed.

BRITISH FISCAL DEFICIT.

Hicks-Beach Denies That Parliament Will Meet to Consider It.

London, Oct. 7.—Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, chancellor of the exchequer, denies that parliament will meet this autumn to provide for the prosecution of the war in South Africa. Nevertheless, at the present rate of expenditure the deficit for the fiscal year will be £69,724,000, which the 60,000,000 of new consols, with which it was expected to meet the deficit, realized at 94½, £56,700,000, leaving a net deficit, which must be provided for by fresh appropriations of £13,000,000. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach doubtless considers that prompt action by parliament in January will take care of the deficit.

The archbishop of York's pastoral proposing a day of national humiliation because of the slow success of Britsh arms and of patience for national sins has been received with astonishment, especially as he openly suggests therein imitation of the Boers who proclaim August 9, as a day of humiliation. The archbishop quotes the Boer proclamation in full for the edification of the British clergy.

"It is easy," he says, "and not uncommon to denounce these people as hypocrites and to teach to scorn open bibles and meetings for prayer. If, without hypocrisy, we had long ago taken a similar course, it might have fared better with us here than it has done."

RALLYING FOR AN EFFORT

Venezuelans and Colombian Liberals Are Desperate.

Willemstad, Curacao, Oct. 5.—The correspondent here of the Associated Press has received the following message from a correspondent in the field:

On the road between Sinamacia, Venezuela, and La Hacha, Colombia, Guajira, peninsula, Sept. 29, by messenger to Maracaibo, then by steamer to Curacao—With General Davilas' column of 1,500 men, with five field guns advancing toward La Hacha, this road is still fairly filled with fugitives and wounded Venezuelans from the fighting of September 14 and 15, returning as best they may to Maracaibo. Davilas' column left Sinamaica yesterday morning.

Counting the Colombian liberals at Treinta, thirty miles from La Hacha, the Sanchez expedition and the 800 reinforcements due to leave Maracaibo, October 1, the Venezuelans and Colombian liberals number about 5,000 men in Guajira.

Venezuela seems determined if possible to retrieve her fallen fortunes at Guajira. If she fails in this present endeavor, it is believed even among army officers, that the Colombian forces, allied Guajira Indians and Venezuelan revolutionists opposed to President Castro will unite and march on Maracaibo with good chances of capturing the place. Such action would probably also mean the capture of San Carlos forts and the liberation of the Venezuelan political prisoners there, including General Herandez, or "el Mocho."

The most serious feature of the Guajira campaign today is the attitude of the Guajira Indians. When the Venezuelans first entered the peninsula they robbed the Indians of their cattle and generally maltreated them. The Indians are now retaliating, cruelly mutilating and murdering many of the numerous fugitives, who have been straggling since the defeat over the waterless, burning, flat peninsula in an effort to reach their lines or the coast.

General Davilas' first fight at Curoga was an absolute rout. Five Venezuelan battalions of 400 men each were engaged and the Colombians are estimated at the same number. It is now known that General Echeverria was killed on the battlefield and not shot by the Colombians. The battalion called the "sacred battalion," composed of gentlemen volunteers, mounted, was the first to break retreat before the Colombians. After General Echeverria was killed General Davilas, Clodomiro Castillo and Ermilio Castro, brother of President Castro, fled from the field. Another battalion then broke. The three remaining battalions kept up the fighting after the flight of he head officers until routed. About 600 were killed on the Venezuelan side, including thirty minor officers. All the flags of the Venezuelans were lost, as well as General Davilas' cannon, variously reported at from five to fifteen. Such as were not captured by the Colombians were thrown into the river by the retreating Venezuelans.

MEANS WAR ON BEET SUGAR.

Reduction of Price an Effort to Crush Out Newer Competition.

San Francisco, Oct. 7.—Commenting on the reduction of the price of sugar in the Missouri market by the sugar trust, Harry T. Oxnard, president of the American Beet Sugar Association, defined it as a move to crush out beet sugar production in order that the trust might have no opposition.

"If they can succeed in the Missouri valley," said he, "they will then turn their attention to the beet sugar factories in Michigan and other sections and by the power of concentrated capital crush out successively and individually the beet sugar producers.

"The trust attempts to justify its action by insinuating that the beet factories have gone out of their rightful sphere in making refined sugar instead of raw sugar to be refined by the trust. Independent beet sugar producers have always made and sold beet sugar. It would be putting one's head in the lion's mouth with a vengeance for the beet factories to equip themselves only for the making of raw sugars at the prices to be fixed by the trust.

"The movement on the part of the sugar trust in selling its refined sugar far below the cost to it of the raw material and in the special market which is now reached to some extent by the beet sugar producers, cannot but call down on the head of the trust the condemnation of all fair minded people, and havng done this they have placed themselves in an exceedingly poor positon to go before congress and ask for the perpetuation of their power as refiners; although they have recently arranged to increase their capital stock to the extent of $15,000,000 to rivet their control of the raw cane product.

Alarming Rumor Revived.

Copenhagen, Oct. 4.—The newspapers here today revive the rumors that King Edward is in a serious condition from cancer of the tongue, without adducing any evidence to that effect.

South Russian Bank Failures.

London, Oct. 1.—The Odessa correspondent of the Times says that the recent bank failures in South Russia were caused by the general feeling of insecurity among commercial circles in the south. The collapse of the Kharkoff Land bank, with liabilities of 7,000,000 roubles ($3,570,000) and almost no assets had a specially injurious effect. Kharkoff business concerns have lost their reputation to such an extent that Odessa traders have told them openly that if they want goods they must pay cash down.

COLUMBIA WINS THE CUP

Third and Last Race Won By the American Yacht.

New York, Oct. 4.—In a glorious whole sail breeze, which heeled the big cup contestants down until their lee rails were awash in the foaming seas, Herreshoff's white wonder, the Columbia, yesterday beat Watson's British creation over a triangular course of thirty miles by two minutes and 52 seconds, actual time. With the 43 seconds which the Irish sloop must allow the American boat on account of the larger sail plan the Columbia won the second race of the series by 3 minutes and 35 seconds. The fastest race ever sailed in a cup contest, it was not only a royal struggle from a spectacular point of view, but it was absolutely decisive as to the merits of the two racing machines. There is not a yachting sharp who witnessed the race yesterday who is not firmly convinced that the defender is the abler boat, blow high or blow low, beating, reaching or running, and that Sir Thomas Lipton and his merry Britishers are doomed to return home empty handed.

Again the ancient piece of silverware brought across the western ocean fifty years ago is safe. Again American supremacy in marine architecture has been vindicated. Sir Thomas has been wishing for a breeze that would bury the Shamrock's lee rail, and yesterday he had it, just as he had a similar breeze in the concluding race two years ago, when the Columbia, in a driving finish, beat the Shamrock over six minutes.

New York, Oct. 5.—With victory flag flowing from her towering mastheads and the ends of her spreaders, in honor of her concluding triumph in the cup races of 1901, the gallant sloop Columbia returned to her anchorage last night under the escort of the entire excursion fleet. She yesterday completed her defense of the honored trophy in another stirring race with the Shamrock II. over a leeward and windward race of thirty miles, crossing the finish line two seconds behind her antagonist, but winning on the time allowance conceded by Lipton's boat by 41 seconds.

For the second time she has now successfully foiled the attempt of the Irish knight to wrest from our possession the cup which means the yachting supremacy of the world. And plucky Sir Thomas Lipton, standing on the bridge of the Erin, led his guests in three hearty huzzahs for the successful defender.

"She is the better boat," he said, "and she deserves to be cheered."

The series of races just closed will always be memorable as the closest ever sailed for the cup, and Sir Thomas, although defeated, will go home with the satisfaction of knowing that his golden yacht is the ablest foreign boat that ever crossed the western ocean.

During both series of races no untoward incident has occurred, and Sir Thomas will return to England by far the most popular of all the foreigners who have ever challenged for the America's trophy.

DETAILS OF MASSACRE.

Ill-Fated Company of Americans Were Completely Surprised.

Washington, Oct. 5.—The war department last night received the following dispatch from General Chaffee, dated at Manila, giving further particulars of the disastrous attack upon the Ninth regiment:

"Manila, Oct. 4.—Adjutant General, Washington, D. C.: From those who escaped following: 'September 29, while at breakfast, 6:45 morning, company was attacked at signal ringing convent bells by about 450 bolomen; 200 from rear of quarters, 200 front, simultaneously attacked officers' quarters. Company completely surprised. Force attacking front gained possession arms. Fight ensued for them, in which most men met death in mess room in rear. Enemy beaten off temporarily by about twenty-five men who gained their arms. Sergeant Betron assumed command; endeavored collect men, leave in boats; reattacked by enemy. Strength command, three officers, seventy-two men. Killed, three officers, forty enlisted men; missing, 6; wounded, 13; present, 13. Party attacking officers in convent entered through church, large number led by presidente. Probably 101 rifles with company, twenty-six saved; fifteen of lost (rifles) bolts drawn; 25,000 ammunition lost. Ninety-five prisoners outside Cuartel joined in attack at signal. Boat of missing men capsized. Captan Bookmiller may pick up men.

CANCER RUMOR BOBS UP AGAIN.

London, Oct. 5.—The coincidence of the announcement of King Edward's indisposition with the publication of revived rumors regarding cancer in the newspapers of Copenhagen, from which city his majesty has just returned, and where secrets of the British court are more likely to leak out than elsewhere, is causing some commotion here, and the fact that the customary court circular does not appear in yesterday morning's papers, adds to the uneasy feeling, which is not allayed by the explanation of the king's indisposition given by Sir Francis Laking, his majesty's physician. Sir Francis is in no way a specialist and is paying merely a social visit at Balmoral.

A story is in circulation among the clubs, purporting to come from a titled member of the late Queen Victoria's household, giving color to the cancer story and saying that court circles are discussing the possibility of no coronation taking place next year. It is impossible, however, to obtain tangible corroborative evidence of this report.

Schley to Summon Sampson.

Washington, Oct. 5.—In the Schley court yesterday the question as to whether the word in the "Dear Schley" letter should be Santiago or Cienfuegos again came up on a statement by Capt. Lemly, who said he would continue to hold to the Santiago version. Mr. Rayner then said if this was the case he would be compelled to summon Admiral Sampson, the author of the dispatch, as a witness.

Sampson Retires.

Washington, Oct. 3.—Admiral Sampson has surrendered command of the Boston navy yard. His successor, Rear Admiral Mortimer L. Johnson, who is on his way north from Port Royal to take command, called upon Secretary Long to pay his respects.

Bad Year for British Farmers.

New York, Oct. 1.—This will rank as a bad year for the farmers throughout Great Britain, says the Tribune's London correspondent. Alike in England and in Scotland the acreage sown to wheat and barley are smaller than they were last year, and there is a decline in the number of cattle, sheep and pigs in England. Nor is the decline an unimportant one. In many respects it leaves British agriculture in a more restricted plight than for years. In Scotland the position is not so bad as in England.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Oct. 7, 1901.

The friends of Secretary of Agriculture Wilson living in Iowa and Des Moines have discovered that the movement to induce President Roosevelt to name F. D. Coburn, secretary of the Kansas board of agriculture, for Mr. Wilson's place in the cabinet is becoming aggressive. They are not disposed to regard the movement as likely to result seriously, but think that some attention should be paid to it and steps taken to show that in the majority of the agricultural states a change is not wanted. It has developed that influential politicians of Nebraska have joined forces with those of Kansas in an effort to secure the change, and that overtures are being made to the South Dakota and Oklahoma politicians to lend their support to the movement. The attack so far seems to consist of criticisms of some of the reports of the department and of a recent interview given out by Mr. Wilson. This interview reported him as saying that Kansas and Nebraska cannot be counted as corn producing states; that after getting out a distance from the river there is no assurance of moisture sufficient to raise a crop. Statistics have been prepared to counteract this claim and to make it appear that it shows lack of information on the part of Wilson. It has been learned that these were prepared personally by Coburn. Correspondence that has passed between the Kansas and Nebraska people and those whom they have been seeking to enlist in their cause construes this criticism to be a criticism of the entire trans-Missouri river country and one calculated to work to its injury and prevent its development. Mr. Wilson's friends feel that this will not have much effect and that it will be quickly disposed of, but propose, if it becomes necessary, to make a showing that will corroborate the claims of the secretary or that will at least be an answer to his critics.

The supreme court has reversed the case of State vs. Thomas King, a prisoner in the Anamosa penitentiary who made his escape from the guards by secreting himself in a natural crevice in a stone quarry where he was employed. He was rearrested and sentenced to serve a year in adition to his original imprisonment. He appealed and Judge Ladd holds that his offense was not an escape from the penitentiary and consequently King was not amenable to the statute under which he was rearrested.

Mrs. J. W. Butler, representing the syndicate of capitalists in Cleveland, Ohio, that has been building interurban electric lines all over the middle states, has called upon members of the city council with a view to securing a franchise in Des Moines. She explained that right-of-way and a tax had been secured at Colfax and that most of the right-of-way had been secured from here to Newton. The line has been surveyed from Des Moines to Newton and north to Marshalltown. Mrs. Butler exhibited unmistakable credentials to show that she has authority to act and almost unlimited backing. She demonstrated that the Cleveland company means business by showing that it is rapidly constructing lines in a number of places in Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and other states, and that the expense it has already gone to here would not have been incurred except with a view to carrying out the project. It is stated the line will be completed next summer.

More papers have been filed with the supreme court in the Hossack case from Warren county. The attorneys, Henderson & Berry, for Mrs. Hossack, filed a denial of the amendment to the evidence as filed by the state. This relates to the question of identity of the protographs which are with the paper as an exhibit, and also to the question of the time of the marriage of the Hossacks. To set at rest all doubts about the testimony on the marriage question the transcript of the evidence on that point is given in full.

Bert Johnson, alias Nelson, has been indicted by the grand jury for obtaining money under false pretenses. Eight counts on that charge are included. Al lcomplainants are servant girls from whom Johnson secured from $2 to $10 each as first payment for sewing machines. It is said Johnson secured about $150 in the scheme, and that he carried out like deals in Boone, Carroll and several other towns.

The State Historical society of Iowa, with headquarters at the State university, has filed its twenty-third biennial report with the governor. It contains a request for a permanent appropriation of $2,500 from the state for the continuation of the publication of the "Iowa Historical Record," which the society has published for the past seventeen years. It also asks $1,000 from the state for cataloguing the library, which has never been catalogued. The society has been in existence since 1857, its aim being to promote the study of history by lectures, and to publish and diffuse information regarding the history of Iowa. Recently the regents of the university granted the society rooms in the new fire-proof building of the university, where its valuable records and library may be safe. Peter A. Dey is president of the board, and M. W. Davis secretary.

VIGOROUS MEASURES PROPOSED.

Campaign to Suppress Insurrection in the Philippines.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Last advices from the Philippines indicate that the military authorities intend to take prompt and vigorous measures for the suppression of the insurrection in the island Samar, and that attention will be directed first to the summary punishment of the treacherous natives who took part in the massacre of Company C of Ninth Infantry, at Palangiga. There is, therefore, every prospect that the island of Samar will be the theater of active hostilities for some time to come, as it is the purpose of General Chaffee to teach the rebellious inhabitants a lesson and force them to respect the power and sovereignty of the United States.

By the direction of Adjutant General Corbin a representative has been prepared at the war department briefly describing the island and its inhabitants, the military operations that have already taken place there for the pacification of the people and government. This report is of timely interest in view of the aggressive military policy to be oberved toward such of the natives as are disposed still to resist the authority of the United States.

The Scourge of Damascus

A Story of the East...

By SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

Copyrighted 1891 by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER XII.—(Continued.)

Trembling at every joint the king proceeded to the work. He pulled off the robe of purple silk, and cast it down; then he took off the crown; and then the golden chain. Julian picked them up, and turning once more to the king, said:

"I will grant you one favor before I go. You came hither to see me. If you have any question to ask, I will answer it."

The king started up as though he had received promise of some great blessing.

"Once I asked you who your parents were," he said. "You would not answer me. Will you answer me now?"

"No, sir," replied Julian. "I will not speak their names in your presence; nor will I give to you the name of the friend whom I love."

"Be not too headstrong, sir robber," urged the king.

"Is that all for which you sought me?" asked the chieftain, taking a step backward.

"I sought thee to find out who you are. I have a reason for asking."

"What reason?"

"There is something in your face which interests me."

"Perhaps it looks like my father's," said Julian, bitterly. "O, if you were not a poor, decrepit old man, I should smite thee; and I will take myself away as speedily as possible, lest my resolution fail me. Stand back—I will have no more to say unto thee. Thy slaves will find thee here in the morning."

The king would have followed Julian to the door, but the robber put him forcibly back, and then, having picked up the lantern from the floor, he hastened out from the dungeon, after which Selim closed the door and bolted it.

"His cries for help cannot be heard?" suggested Julian.

"No," answered Osmir. "These solid walls will drink up the sound of his voice before it reaches the end of this first passage."

"Then we have nothing more to wait for. One lantern will suffice, so I will leave this one behind."

Julian extinguished the light, and then proceeded to array himself in the royal apparel; and when he had donned it and stood with his form bent and trembling, his companions assured him that he would pass for the monarch well enough. His face alone could betray him, and that could be easily concealed.

And now for the upper world. They stopped when they reached the place where the captain lay, and when they had assured themselves that he could not move until he had received help, they passed on. Up they went, Selim going ahead with the lantern, while Osmir followed close behind the disguised robber. Thus they passed on to the upper chambers, where sentinels were posted; but no one molested them. The seeming king walked with his head bent, and his arms folded upon his bosom, and none dared to approach him. Osmir and Selim were known to be two of the most favored of the monarch's slaves, so their presence seemed all proper. On they went, as freely as though moving over a desert plain, until they stood without the gate of the garden wall, at which point Julian stopped and threw off the royal robe.

"This chain of gold I shall keep," he said; "not for its value as a trinket, but that I may have a memento of this night's adventure with the king of Damascus. And now, good Osmir, let us hasten to the place where my faithful Hobaddan waits for me."

In the darkness of the night, by well known ways, the blacks led the robber chieftain towards the dwelling of the prime minister, being still ready to serve him in the face of any danger.

CHAPTER XIII.

From One Danger Into Another.

Ulin would not retire until she had heard from Osmir, who had gone out in behalf of the robber chieftain. She sat in her chamber, with a single lamp dimly burning, and her faithful bondmaiden kept her company.

"I feel," said Albia, breaking in upon a long silence, "that we have done no more than our duty in lending our aid to the cause of the imprisoned chieftain."

"We have done our duty to the city," returned Ulin, hesitatingly. "If Julian is set free it will save much trouble to our king."

"Or" cried the bondmaiden, impulsively, "I don't care for the king. When he is your husband, then I may respect him, but I do not care for him now. I care more for the noble, generous, handsome Julian. I cannot forget how kindly he treated us, and how like a brother he bore himself. And, one thing more, I cannot forget how sad he looked when he left us in the Palace of the Valley. As true as I live, I think I almost love him. He is the best looking man I ever saw."

"Albia, you must not talk in that manner before me."

"Pardon, my lady. I meant no harm."

"I do not chide you—I do not blame you. But—the name of the daring robber is not one that should be used in my presence."

"Dear lady," plead Albia, "had I regarded Julian as a real criminal, I should not have used his name as I did. But I looked upon him as a man more honorable and true than—"

"Enough, Albia. Let us drop that subject now. What is the hour?"

"It is past midnight—I should think an hour past."

"Then go down into the garden and see if Osmir has returned."

Albia departed without speaking further, and when the princess was left alone she arose from her seat and walked across the floor.

"I do not think I have done wrong," she said to herself, "in lending my aid to this robber. I shall never see him again. I do not wish to see him any more. And I do not suppose he would care to see me. I hope he will escape—I hope he will prosper in the years to come."

She ceased speaking aloud, and pressed her hand upon her heart as though the other feelings must not come forth.

In half an hour Albia came back. Her step was light and quick, and a look of satisfaction beamed on her handsome face.

"O, my dear mistress," she cried, as soon as she had closed the door behind her, "Julian is saved!"

"Thank heaven!" ejaculated the princess, devoutly.

"He is saved, and has now started to leave the city."

"How was it done?"

"Osmir and Selim came with him; and I only know that they led him forth from his prison. Hobaddan was in our garden, and when he saw his noble young master he fell upon his neck and kissed him, and wept for joy. They did not stop long, for they had not the time to spare. Hobaddan came to me and blessed me, and bade me assure my gentle mistress that he would pray for her while he had life and reason. I saw them depart, and then I turned back."

"I hope they will meet with no more danger," said Ulin half to herself.

"They will not be long in finding a place of safety," returned Albia. "And now, my mistress, what of ourselves?"

The princess started, and clasped her hands.

"It is now almost two hours past midnight, and in three more hours the light of day will be upon us."

"O, Albia, I must flee from Damascus. I dare not remain here."

"Of course we are to flee," said the bondmaiden. "We had promised that before Hobaddan came. You told me you would flee this very night."

"And I will keep my word if I can," responded Ulin, resolutely. "You were to plan for our departure."

"It is all arranged, my mistress. Shubal will accompany us. I have talked with him, and he is ready. He says he can procure horses just without the gates of the city; and he knows the way to the cave of Ben Hadad. Once with the kind old hermit, and you are safe."

Ulin had no need for further thought upon the subject, for she had firmly resolved that she would flee. The more she thought of union with the king the more terrible appeared the fate. At times she blamed herself for having admitted the idea of marriage with Horam; but she did not feel that she had willingly done wrong. When she gave herself to the royal acceptance she knew nothing of the world—knew nothing of the trials she would have to endure—and knew little of the character of the man who wore the crown. Since that time she had gained knowledge, and her eyes had been opened. The case dwelt in her mind now as one of life or death, and she felt that she must save herself.

"I must write a few words to my father," she said.

"But you will not tell him where you have gone?"

"No. I will only tell him why I have gone. I must do that. Get me the writing materials, Albia; and while I am writing you may go and find Shubal. We will get away as soon as possible."

The bondmaiden brought a piece of parchment, a sharpened reed, and a small pot of ink; and when she had arranged them upon the table she left the apartment. Ulin sat down to the work without further hesitation, and wrote to her father the reason of her flight. When she had written all that she deemed necessary, she placed the parchment where he would be likely to find it, and then proceeded to gather up the few articles she meant to take with her. She moved steadily about the work, and if she trembled, it was more from anxiety than from fear of what she was doing. She took her jewels, of which she possessed a rich store, and also packed up a few articles of clothing. She had just accomplished this when Albia returned.

Shubal was a stout, kind-hearted slave, who had been many years in the family, and his attachment for his young mistress was strong and true. When she called upon him to serve her, he had no questions to ask, save how he should please her best.

"Shubal," said the princess, "do you know what you have to do?"

"Yes, my lady, I have to serve you."

"But do you know why I have called for you now?"

"Yes. I am to go with you from the city."

"And you are willing?"

"Yes, lady—I am willing and I am glad."

"Then we have nothing more to detain us. Albia, are you ready"

"Yes, my mistress."

Ulin stepped back to her dressing-table and picked up her jewels, and for a moment she bowed her head upon her folded hands. When she looked up her fair brow was serene, and the tremulousness had gone from her lip. Shubal took the bundle of clothing, and then the party moved out from the chamber. They gained the garden, and passed out by the small gate; and when they had reached the street they led off with a quick step. There was a sentinel at the city gate, but he did not trouble those who passed out. As Shubal had promised, he found horses at a small stable beyond the wall, and in less than an hour from the time of leaving her chamber the princess was safely in the saddle, with her face turned toward the northern mountains.

At the distance of two leagues from the city they came to a small strip of wood, through which their path lay, where they stopped to let their horses drink from a living spring. Shubal had dismounted to hand some water up to the females, and was just in the act of dipping the cup, when he was startled by the sound of a step close at hand, and upon lifting his head he found a man standing directly before him. It was too dark to distinguish features, but Shubal could see that the stranger was tall and stout, and that his garb was not of Damascus.

"Ha! Who is this" demanded Shubal moving back a pace.

"I am a man, and have sought the spring for fresh water," was the answer. "And now, who are you?"

Shubal recognized the voice of an Arab; and as he gazed more sharply on the fellow, he was able to see that the garb was wild and filthy.

"I have sought this spring as you have, Sir Arab."

"Ah, you recognize my tongue and nation, do you?"

"Yes, and it would seem that you are even with me."

"I know you are a slave, but that does not tell me whence you come."

"I come from Damascus."

"Ah—from Damascus! And you have ladies with you. Perhaps they have money with them. Perhaps they have jewels. Damascus is a wealthy city, and her people seldom travel with empty purses."

Shubal started up, and laid his hand upon the hilt of his sword.

"Your words give token of a curious disposition, Sir Arab."

"Words are nothing. With a simple contracting of the lips I can produce a sound that has power to call up spirits from the earth. Hark!"

PERILS IN SALT WATER.

Bathers May be Choked to Death by the Salt.

"I have never seen the Atlantic or the Pacific ocean or the gulf of Mexico, but have had some experience with salt water nevertheless," said George Y. Russell, of Park City, Utah. He is an official of the great silver mine near Park City, which extends deeper than any other in the world. "Salt lake is a remarkable sheet of water in many ways, and bathing in it possesses features which are unique. It is very invigorating and refreshing, to be sure, but it takes some time to become accustomed to the extraordinary buoyancy in the water. It is quite impossible to sink or drown in the lake, but many people have been killed by the water. When there is a breeze and spray is dashed upon bathers the water is so densely impregnated with salt that the liquid portion evaporates very quickly and leaves a deposit of salt on the skin. On several occasions people have drifted out while bathing or been wrecked and thrown overboard, and afterward found dead on top of the water, choked to death by the accumulation of salt in their mouths and nostrils. Ordinary salt water bathing, as I discovered today, is very different from that in the Salt lake. I learned that I could enjoy salt water bathing at Chesapeake beach, and took a trip there. It is certainly very pleasant to bathe in water that is salt, but not so salt as in Utah. But the accommodations for the bathers at Salt Lake far surpass, so I am told, anything in America."—Washington Post.

WHEN THE MOON SHINES.

Valuable Lesson in Economy Given by a Michigan Father.

"My boy," said the old man kindly, as he poked his head through the back-parlor doorway about 11 p. m., where his prospective son-in-law, Charles, sat courting Eliza, with the gas turned on full force, "are you aware that the moon is shining brightly this evening? Just see," and the old man turned the gas out. "Just observe, my boy, how the moon's yellow rays light up this room. Truly, it is a glorious spectacle. But come with me a moment; I have something in the cellar which I want to show you." Then the old man took his bull's-eye lantern and led the way down the cellar stairs, closely followed by Charles. "My boy," said he softly, as they reached the cellar, "I know you love Eliza with all the strength of your noble heart, and you love to meet her often, and let me say that I have no objection whatever to your doing so; I simply request your presence in this cellar that I might give you a much-needed and useful lesson in economy. Observe, young man, the little box over in that corner." Here he turned the light of his bull's-eye upon it. "Well, that's a gas meter, and every time that little pointer whirls round the space of that dial it means $1 nearer the workhouse for me. That's all, Charles. Now we will ascend, and hereafter when the moon is shining you will not forget my lesson in economy, will you? Remember, my boy, to meet her by moonlight costs nothing, but to meter by gaslight is quite another affair. Good night, Charles. The moon is still shining brightly, I see," Then the old man skipped blithely up the back stairs to bed.—Grand Rapids (Mich.) Herald.

PURE WATER.

Boiling or Cooking in Any Form Destroys Germ Life.

A pure water supply is rightly looked upon as one of the greatest essentials to the healthfulness of a community. Many foods, salads, for example, cannot be cooked, or subjected to the effect of a high temperature, while, on the other hand, washing them in infected water may render them the means of conveying disease. Among the chief ways of preventing typhoid fever must be mentioned the care of the stomach itself. It seems highly probable that the natural juices of the healthy stomach are able to destroy many germs of disease; but the number which any stomach may be able to digest must always be uncertain, and it is not desirable to test its capacity in this direction. The fact that only certain persons out of a number who have partaken of food or drink infected with disease germs may suffer is explainable on the ground of their different general physical condition, or of the varying stages of their digestive organs. Boiling or cooking in any form destroys all germ life; and food or drink about which there is a question of typhoid infection should be subjected to one of these processes before it is taken into the stomach.—Health.

Tending to the Girls.

Employers who keep children from school in Germany will be fined not less than 150 marks. Parents and guardians are obliged to provide material for needlework and other means of instruction for girls. Otherwise the school board has the right to obtain these things by compulsion. According to the district physicians' act of April 1 all public and private schools are, in hygienic matters, under the control of an official physician, who must, at certain intervals, winter and summer, visit every school in his district and examine the buildings as well as inquire concerning the health of the pupils and the schoolmaster.

Odd Game of Chance.

The traveler over the Kansas prairies finds many towns that once had water works system, now containing only a dozen people. The fire plugs are sticking out in the buffalo grass and they are the playgrounds of prairie dogs and the roosting places of the prairie owls. The tendency to clean up the deserted buildings is taking away many of these features. The courthouse of what was Garfield county has recently become the property of H. Herman, and he lives in the sumptuous building which did not cost him a cent, as he homesteaded the quarter section after the county organization was abandoned.

Starches Crack Clothes.
There is nothing so annoying to women as the breaking of ironed goods after coming from the laundry. The blame is often laid to the ironer, whereas the fault is in the starch. The use of Defiance starch is an alternative. It gives a soft glossy finish and looks like new. Sells for less, goes farther, 16 ounces for 10 cents. Ask your grocer for it. President Roosevelt was once traveling in Idaho, and passed a book store, in the window of which was a copy of his "Winning of the West." Going into the book store, he inquired: "Who is this author, Roosevelt?" "Oh," said the book seller, "he's a ranch driver." "And what do you think of his book?" asked the president. "Well," said the dealer, slowly and deliberately, "I've always thought I'd like to meet the author and tell him that if he had stuck to running a ranch, and given up writing books, he'd have made a powerful more of a success at his trade."

A FINE DISTINCTION.

Drug Clerk Has Not Got It Quite Clear Yet.

A young downtown drug clerk who had heard the story of the colored woman who had asked for flesh-colored court plaster and was given black by the observant dealer, stored the incident away in his mental dust box, and decided to use it at the first opportunity. He had not long to wait, for a few nights ago a comely colored girl stepped into the store where he was employed. "Ah wants some co't plaster," she said.

"Flesh cullah, sah."

Trembling in his shoes, and keeping within easy reach of a heavy pestle, the clerk handed the woman a box of black court plaster, and he was surprised at the time that the situation afforded so little humor. The woman opened the box with a deliberation that was ominous, but she was unruffled when she noted the color of the contents.

"Ah guess you mus' 'a' misunderstood mah ordah. Ah asked foh flesh cullah, an' yo' done give me skin cullah."

The drug clerk is still a little dazed from the encounter, and he has firmly resolved to subject every joke to rigid laboratory test hereafter before using.—Pittsburgh Daily News.

A Gold and Silver Battery.

The gackwar of Baroda, an Indian prince, has a battery of artillery consisting of gold and silver guns. There are four guns, two of gold and two of silver. The gold guns were made in 1874 by an artisan of Lakha, who worked on them for five years. They weigh 400 pounds each, and, except for the steel lining, are of solid gold. They are mounted on gun carriages of carved wood overlaid with silver.

Toes of Animals.

No living representative of the animal kingdom has more than five toes, digits or claws to each foot, hand or limb. The horse is the type of the one-toed creation, the camel of the two-toed, the rhinoceros of the three-toed and the hippopotamus of the four-toed animal life. The elephant and hundreds of other animals of different orders belong to the great five-toed tribe.

HOW THEY DISAPPEAR.

Many Immigrants Annually Escape Vigilance of Uncle Sam.

The story of the disappearance of Isidoro Termini, an aged Italian immigrant, at the barge office, which came to light a few days ago, calls attention to a curious phase of immigrant affairs, says the New York Evening Post. Every year from one too two dozen steerage passengers in the custody of the United States authorities disappear some time between the date of their arrival at the steamship docks and what should be the date of their departure. A considerable number also drop out of sight at the docks while still in the charge of the steamship company. When this occurs the transportation company must locate the missing passenger or pay a fine of $1,000. The case of Termini is peculiar only in the fact that there is some mystery attached to it. In the majority of instances the immigrant merely takes French leave in order to escape the tedium of waiting for his vouchers or the uncertainty of an appearance before the board of inquiry.

A great many have every reason for dodging out of sight as soon as the steamer touches land, and it is curious that so few attempt to escape. America opens up a vast field of promise to the average immigrant. When he finds himself exposed to the rigors of a strict medical examination, a search into his past records and his pecuniary affairs, terror seizes him. He finds himself a quasi-prisoner under about as strict guard as may be maintained without military or police discipline. His mind travels fast to the conclusion that there is danger of his being turned back. Fear quickens his wits, and he sets to work to devise means for getting away; and getting away is ridiculously easy, partly on account of inadequate accommodations, and partly because he cannot be kept a very strict prisoner.

Curiously enough, it is not the healthy young men and boys who elude the officers, but more often old people, men, women and children. The young and robust immigrants usually pass inspection, and, consequently there is no reason for them to escape.

The hospital is on Ellis island, and offers good opportunities for making off, because the discipline has to be more lax there. When a soldier deserts, he does so at the risk of his life; but when an immigrant once gets away, he can snap his fingers at authority. Attempts are always made to locate them and to bulldoze them into coming back for examination, but there is actually no penalty which can be enforced for smuggling one's self into the country. Not in one case in a hundred is any report or inquiry made by relatives or friends of an immigrant who slips through the barge office. Detectives from the barge office who try to locate the runaways are usually told that they have not been seen, and that their relatives are in mourning. Italians show most skill, perhaps, in smuggling themselves ashore.

"The colonel and I sat talking under a shade tree in front of the town post office when a dog fight started down the street," said a traveling man, relating an incident of a recent trip to Kentucky.

"'Come on!' I said, as I sprang up.

"'Come this way!' replied the colonel, as he seized my arm and drew me into a doorway.

"'But I want to see the dog fight,' I protested.

"'Yes, reckon you do, but you also want to keep clear of the shootin'.'

"'Why should there be any shooting?'

"'Bekase one dog has got to lick t'other, and the owner of the licked dog ain't goin' to let it rest that way. There they go!'

"Ten minutes later we stepped out to find one man lying on the ground with two bullet holes in him, and some people carrying away a second with half a dozen.

"'Dog fights are bewtiful affairs,' said the colonel, as we walked away together, 'but the safest way to see one in Kentucky is to wait till it's over and the dead carried off.'"—Washington Post.

There is one thing that strikes a foreigner as being particularly strange in the uniform of a Japanese soldier. This is that the numerals upon his shoulder straps to denote the number of his regiment are European numbers, not Chinese or Japanese ideograph.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes thal their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the aflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. "Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made as is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflamation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to "Consumption—Snuffles will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advive from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure," Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canaba on receipt of One Doller. THE HOME GOLD CURE.

No Noxies Doses. No Weakening Nerves. A Pleasant and Posi-Cure for the Liquor Man.

It is now generally known and unstood that drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors requires antidotes capable of neutratizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is perfectly solu le and pleasant to the taste, so it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drundards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy and as many more have been made temporate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent or misleading 'improvement.' Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The Home Gold Cure is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar' thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 or $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. GREAT OPPURTUNITIES.

The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Norther Railway Company is nearing the completion of it's 140 miles of new extensions in the very richest portion of Southwestern Minnesota. The six new towns, Reading, Wilmont, Lismore, Kenneth, Waters and Conger are rapidly becoming commercial centers for the rich and already thickly settled country surrounding. There has been no "Auction sale of lots" or any attempt to "Boom" these towns; their growth being the result of a demand for convenient markets.

It is the purpose of the railway company to encourage the continuous substantial growth of the towns on their lines. In order that each town may receive the attention of "ownership." it has been decided to sell each town entire, including all unplatted land to private parties. For terms of such purchases, address the undersigned. For business openings or purchase of lots address the Town Lot Agent of the respective town.

GARNER
From Special Correspondent.

Fred Katter was a Mason City visitor Monday.

Garner is talking of putting in electric lights. When?

Charley O'Neil spent Sunday with ——?? in Iowa Falls.

Fred Parsons was a passenger to Britt Monday on business.

Manda Olson has been sojourning in Mason City a few days.

Miss Robins, our up-to-date milliner, spent Sunday with relatives in Belmond.

Garner is talking of organizing a band. The town needs one but in some way they can't get the proper support to hold it up.

Our popular sheriff Herb Gartin, escorted the train thieves whe held up Mr. Cummins, of Woden, to the Forest City jail Saturday.

Rev. Frank Wellemeyer and family started Tuesday for Dubuque where Mr. W. has charge of one of the suburban German M. E. churches. We all wish them success.

Mr and Mrs. C. W. Zieger returned here Monday to take charge of the Garner Bakery. C. W. is an old hand at the business and is ready to serve the people of Garner and vicinity with "buns."

The new creamery just east of the Burlington tracks is being rushed forward rapidly, the frame is up and inclosed, the roof is on and shingled and in a short time the building will be ready to receive the machinery.

The Garner public schools under Prof. Jerome, is fast forging ahead into the front rank of city schools in Northern Iowa. At no time in Garner's history have the pupils seemed to progress so rapidly and in such perfect harmony as now.

The new opera house block now looms up like a ship in a fog, Phoenix-like on the site formerly occupied by the First National Bank and other buildings. It is nearly ready for occupancy, and is one of the finest structures of its kind in Northern Iowa.

The plank sidewalks in our town are fast disappearing and new cement walks are being placed in front of the business places and also numerous residences. These improvements speak well for the "New Departure Spirit" of our progressive citizens.

The old reliable B. C. R. & N. railroad is again on deck with improvements to its depot facilities in Garner by the erection to its station building of an addition to be used as a waiting room. The traveling public will all greatly appreciate this improvement.

The marriage of Miss Goldie Schmalle to a gentleman named Ellis of Forest City took place at the home of the brides parents in this city Wednesday. The groom is a druggist in Forest City and the bride is one of Garner's popular young ladies. May prosperity be theirs

W. E. Sage started Monday to enter Toland's Business College at Mason City, but met with a serious accident to his eyes. He was extracting the cork from a vial containing a mixture of amonia and ether, with which to sponge his clothing when the vial exploded, the terrible fluid flying directly into his eyes and face. Doctors say it was a very narrow escape from the total loss of his eyes. It will be some time now before he can return to college.

ELL CENTER NEWS.
Special Correspondent.

The roads are rough this week.

F. Gauley has a new top buggy of the latest style.

Miss Olive Braund is visiting her Ellington friends this week.

Alan Jones is employing his spare moments painting his house.

C. W. Allen and wife are visiting friends in Franklin county this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardner of Ellington township, visited their sister, Mrs. Holmes, Sunday.

Ralph Gauley was busy last week supplying the people of Garner with saur kraut timber (cabbage.)

Ray Burman returned from the vicinity of Forest City last Friday where he had been on a hunting trip.

The elder Mr. Kuskie has his plowing done on the Gauley place and will return to his home near Dows this week.

The defeated ball players gave a party at Frank Patterson's Saturday night. An oyster supper was served with the usual trimmings and a real nice time was the verdict of those who were present.

All Over the County.

The new stock yards at Goodell have just been completed.

H. N. Albeck has sold his blacksmith business at Crystal Lake.

Chas. Farrell and May Baker were married at Kanawha last week.

J. Nortz has sold his residence property in Corwith to Jacob Kuntz.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Elder of Goodell are the parents of a baby girl, born Oct. 8.

The new Lutheran church, north of Kanawha, was dedicated Sunday of last week.

C. D. Fenton, the market gardener of Goodell, has traded his farm for the butcher shop at that place.

Thieves broke into the store of Mrs. G. A. Thompson at Belmond one night last week and stole a few tools.

Frank Kennedy, of Belmond, has bought an improved farm in Jasper county and will move thereon about the first of January.

The Kanawha Record reports that Jos. Plummer's corn field will yield from 50 to 65 bushels to the acre. That's not so bad.

Wm. Oxley, of Corwith, reports that his potatoes will yield 250 bushels to the acre, and the potatoes are fine, large fellows. Pretty good for this year.

The Hustler says that games of chance are very prevalent in Corwith at present, the games ranging from poker down to shooting craps. Some of the offenders were given the pleasure of a visit before the mayor of that burg one morning last week.

R. McCormick, of Pickerel, Neb., has purchased the nw¼ of sec. 15, Boone twp., and will move onto it in the spring. He desires to get in on the country of never-failing crops. He has 180 acres of corn in Nebraska that will average about 25 bu per acre.—Corwith Hustler.

Bert Snyder, the little four-year-old nephew of Frank Snyder, had a narrow escape from death the other day. He was playing in the hay loft while some hay was being unloaded and taking hold of the rope was carried to the roof of the barn and his hand badly crushed in the pulley before help arrived.—Belmond Herald

What might be termed a lucky accident happened at Newman's hardware store Wednesday evening. A prospective customer was examining some shot guns and in handling one it was discharged, having been left there loaded and cocked by a party who had been out hunting that afternoon. The shot tore through some shelving, fortunately doing no other damage.—Kanawha Record.

Little Miss Millie Zimmerman met with a very painful accident at her home southeast of town last Thursday evening, when while gathering eggs, she fell from a manger in the barn and broke her arm above the elbow. . . At present the little girl is resting as well as could be expected under the circumstances.—Meservey Messenger.

Geo. Birkett received a telegram, Tuesday, stating that his brother, Wm. Birkett, was killed by his own train on the Grand Trunk line in Canada, Monday. Mr. Birkett was conductor on a freight train and had been in the railroad business for a number of years. He will be remembered by many of the old residents as he grew to manhood in this vicinity.—Goodell Globe.

The Corwith Hustler says: Ray Armstrong, an old printer of this paper, was married to Miss Minnie Johnson of Collins, Iowa, Sunday, Sept. 29. The Clipper of that place says: "The happy couple left on the morning passenger train Monday for Maxwell, where the groom's parents reside. Next week the groom and his father expect to go to Minnesota where Mr. Armstrong, Sr., has a railroad contract. Ray and his wife expect to locate in Austin for the winter where he expects to work at the printer's trade."

A Female Swindler at Clarion.

Clarion Monitor: A smooth and persuasive lady agent was in town a couple of weeks ago taking subscriptions for the Ladies' Home Journal at seventy-five cents per year. She took the pay in advance and had such good success that she cleared up something like $100 including small amounts for books and other articles. The magazine has failed to arrive and a comparison of notes by the would-be subscribers leads them to believe it never will. After supplying herself with a fine array of clothes she took her departure for greener fields.

She Didn't Taste It.

It is told that a charming Garner miss not a long time since went into a drug store and asked how to take a dose of castor oil without tasting it. The clerk asked her if she would have a glass of soda and she said she would with thanks. After she drank it she was asked if she tasted the castor oil. "Heavens, no! Did you put it in the soda?" "Yes," was the reply. "Oh, Lord! I wanted it for my mother!" she remarked as she took a "hot-foot" for home.

Don't Go Crazy on Wheat.

Wallace Farmer: The large yield of wheat west of the Missouri river this year and the correspondingly small yield of corn is very likely to turn farmers' heads somewhat. We learn that the acreage of wheat will be immensely increased in that section this year and that corn is likely to be somewhat neglected next year. In our judgment this will be a mistake. The Hessian fly may be looked for from the wheat country from the east and the wheat louse is likely to move up from the south and both of them camp on the immense fields that will be sown to wheat this fall. The Hessian fly, if unfortunately it should come or if it is there now, is hard at work these days sowing its seed, which will mature on the first warm days in the spring in the shape of a second crop, which will lose no time in getting in its work. When the wheat begins to head out, or before, the lice will get in their work. If the season be dry and hot, the chinch bugs will probably be there to help the "rascals" out, and it is among the possibilities that the wheat crop may not be a paying one next year, while there may be millions in corn. Farmers in the wheat sections of the Dakotas are liable to make the same mistake.

Why do we say these things and thus appear as an unwelcome prophet of evil? For the simple reason that when farmers put all their eggs into one basket something is likely to put its foot into it. Something may happen to the hen under which they have put all the eggs. Profitable farming is diversified farming, notwithstanding all that can be said by way of pointing out the advantages of specializing.

What a farmer should do is to determine what crops are adapted to his taste, his soil, his temperature and average rainfall, and then rotate these, not deviating greatly because one is apparently profitable this year and another unprofitable. Determine what suits yourself and the farm; then keep right along, whether prices are good or bad. There is great folly in chasing prices, or trying to slip under when things are going up, to get carried up with them, or get out altogether because some crop is likely to drop on you. It is the same with live stock. The farmer is not built for a price chaser. He cannot afford to speculate on the ups and downs. Let the Chicago and New York fellows do that.

Corn is a very safe thing to stick to in the United States for the next ten years. The reason why we think so we have often given before and need not repeat now.

A Night Of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from Pneumonia before morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Troubles. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Harr's drug store.

A Shocking Calamity

"Lately befell a railroad laborer" writes Dr. A. Kellett, of Williford, Ark. "His foot was badly crushed, but Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly cured him. Its simply wonderful for Burns, Boils Piles, and all skin eruptions. Its the world's champion healer. Cure guaranteed. 25c. Sold by Harr.

Milwaukee Engineer Killed

Following is a special from Monticello to the Cedar Rapids Republican under date of Oct. 14:

A head-end collision one mile east of Monticello between the Ceear Rapids and Farley passenger going east and a freight running west, the fourth section of No. 69, this evening, resulted in the killing of the engineer of the freight, Matt Calderwood, of Marion. Tom Hefner the passenger conductor was badly hurt about the head. The little child of Mrs. J. Mersch, of Dubuque sustained a dislocation of its shoulder. Postal Clerk John H. Wilson had an arm slightly hurt. The blame for the accident is not yet located. The passenger train left here on regular time. It is supposed that the freight tried to run into Monticello instead of stopping at the junction switch three miles east.

Some Plain Truth.

The fellow who stops his home paper because he thinks he is hurting the editor is nine tenths foolish. And why? Because—

First—It brings him the news each week that he might not otherwise get.

Second—It tells him where to get bargains, and by buying as its items direct he would save many times the price of the paper each year.

Third—It records the births in his family and rejoices with him.

Fourth—It tells of his visits and his pleasures

Fifth—It tells when he has company, who they are and where they are from.

Sixth—It publishes the death of any member of his family and sympathizes with him in sickness and bereavement.

Seventh—It writes up in good shape his silver or golden wedding or any other anniversary.

Eighth—It makes favorable mention of all his improvements or enterprises.

Ninth—It publishes a nice obituary and says good things about him after he is dead.

It does all this provided he takes the paper and pays the small sum of 2 cents a week.

Tenth—If he does not take it there is one less to count on the list of friends of the editor and supporters of the home paper. And that isn't all.—Dorchester (Neb) Star.

A Certain Cure For Dysentery and Diarrhoea

"some years ago I was one of a party that intended making a long bicycle trip" say F. L. Taylor of New Albany, Bradford Co., Pa. "I was taken suddenly with diarrhoea, and was about to give up the trip, when editor Ward of the Laceyville Messenger, suggested that I take a dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I purchased a bottle and took two doses, one before starting and one on the route. I made the trip successfully and never felt any ill effect. Again last summer I was almost completely run down with an attack of dysentery. I bought a bottle of this same remedy and this time one dose cured me." Sold by J. L. Harr.

Stood Death Off.

E. B. Munday, a lawyer of Henrietta, Tex., once fooled a grave digger. He says: "My brother was very low with malarial fever and jaundice. I persuaded him to try Electric Bitters and he was soon much better, but continued their use until he was wholly cured. I am sure Electric Bitters saved his life." This remedy expels malaria, kills disiase germs and purifies the blood; aid digestion, regulates liver, kidneys and bowels, cures constipation, dyspepsia, nervous diseases, kidney troubles, female complaints; gives perfect health. Only 50c at Harr's Drug Store.

Josh Westhafer, of Logootee, Ind., is a poor man, but he says he would not be without Chamberlain's Pain Balm if it cost five dollars a bottle, for it saved him from being a cripple. No external application is equal to this liniment for stiff and swollen joints, contracted muscles, stiff neck, sprains and rheumatic and muscular pains. It has also cured numerous cases of partial paralisis. It is for sale by J. L. Harr, Druggist.

A Communication.

MR. EDITOR—Allow me to speak a few words in favor of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I suffered for three years with the bronchitis and could not sleep at nights. I tried several doctors and various patent medicines, but could get nothing to give me any relief until my wife got a bottle of this valuable medicine, which has completely relieved me.—W. S. Brockman, Bagnell, Mo. This remedy is for sale by J. L. Harr, Druggist.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

PLAYS HAVOC WITH CITY LAWS.

Supreme Court Says They Must Not Conflict With State Laws.

Des Moines, Oct. 12.—The supreme court in a sweeping opinion declares that city ordinances enacted by municipalities for the prevention of, and punishment of crime, are in conflict with the statutes of the state if the latter contain laws corrective of the same character of offenses. The opinion in question, however, is one declaring the ordinance of Iowa City regulating the operation of saloons to be invalid, for the reason that the prosecution of its provisions "would impair the administration of criminal justice" and for the further reason that the state laws have already provided for the punishment of violators of the mulct law.

The opinion is in the case of Iowa City vs. Frank McInnerney, a saloonkeeper. The latter was arrested, charged with keeping his place of business open on election day. He was convicted in justice court and also by the district court upon appeal, both of the lower courts upholding the city ordinance.

It is stated by the supreme court, in reversing the case, that the city ordinance in question simply reiterated the conditions of the mulct law. This fine was less than that imposed by the statutes of the state and the enforcement of the ordinance would no doubt have a tendency to impair the administration of criminal justice. The supreme court says:

"An attempt at making a breach of the conditions of the mulct an offense against the municipality is in conflict with the provisions of the chapter of the statutes known as the mulct law. It is enough to say that municipalities, as a general rule, gain their power and authority from the legislature and in passing their ordinances are in effect enacting special laws which to a great degree supercede the general laws within the territorial limits of the corporation. Surely then, an ordinance covering a subject already fully covered in an act of the legislature is in conflict therewith."

LEG WORTH ONLY $8,000.

Supreme Court Fixes the Limit of Damages for Loss.

Des Moines, Oct. 11.—The supreme court has placed a limit on the amount of damages that may be recovered from a railroad company by an employe losing a limb in the discharge of his duty. Eight thousand dollars is the amount fixed, which is to be in full settlement of the pain and suffering caused by the accident and for the decreased ability to earn a sustenance after the accident.

The decision in question is in the case of J. R. Wimber vs. Iowa Central Railway company. Wimber was employed as a brakeman and lost a limb through an accident at Iowa Falls. The suit for damages resulted in a verdict for $14,500. The case was appealed by the railroad company on the grounds that the verdict was excessive and for further reasons set forth in the assignment of errors.

In partially reversing the case the supreme court reviews the finding in a parallel case in which a jury rendered a verdict in favor of one Kroener for $12,000. An appeal was taken and the supreme court held that all of the judgment over $8,000 was excessive. The finding is exactly the same in the opinion just rendered.

When the fact is taken into consideration that the supreme court has made a final ruling of the character there is no alternative for the plaintiff but to elect to accept the verdict of $8,000 or carry the case to the United States court.

BONE GRANTED A NEW TRIAL.

Supreme Court Reverses Judge Sherwin in a Murder Case

Des Moines, Oct. 11.—Loren R. Bone, sentenced to sixty years in the penitentiary by the Cerro Gordo district court, for the alleged crime of murder in the second degree, has been given a new trial by the supreme court. The defendant appealed from judgment imposed by Judge Sherwin, now on the supreme bench. The justice took no part in the opinion, which was written by Judge Deemer and specially concurred in by Judge Waterman. Bone was found guilty of the murder of James Allison. They had been friends, but on the day of the homicide met in a livery barn at Mason City. They quarreled and when they separated Allison said he would whip the defendant. Bone bought a butcher knife and came across Allison when the latter was on his way out of the city toward his home, riding in his wagon with a companion. Words ensued and Allison got out of the wagon. The two men met and struggled and Allison was stabbed repeatedly, dying in an hour. The defendant pleaded self-defense alleging Allison was a quarrelsome and dangerous man, and also set up that Allison had shortly before made an assault on Bone's wife. Indignation over this, it was alleged, also prompted his attack on Allison. The decision of the trial court is reversed on errors in instructions to the jury, and a new trial ordered.

DOUBLE CRIME AT PRINCETON

Mr. and Mrs. McKinnie Found Dead in Their House.

Clinton, Oct. 10.—The dead bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McKinnie of Princeton, a few miles south of here, were found in the house. The wife was seated at the dinner table, death having been caused by a bullet in the stomach. The husband was found dead in bed, but without visible wounds, and a rifle lay on the floor. It is supposed that McKinnie killed his wife with the rifle and then took poison. McKinnie had been despondent recently and had threatened suicide. Both were eighty years of age, and had resided at Princeton for twenty years.

Farmer Waylaid and Shot.

Belle Plaine, Oct. 10.—At 9:15 o'clock p. m. as Dolph Vanace, a farmer, was returning home from Belle Plaine on horseback, while crossing the long river bridge one and a half miles south of the city, two men held him up and upon a show of resistance one of the men shot him through the right breast. The sheriff organized a posse and searched the woods all night, but did not round up the footpads. Vanace's condition is very critical. The doctor says he cannot recover.

Wreck on the Wabash.

Ottumwa, Oct. 12.—At midnight a freight crashed into a Wabash passenger train at Moulton and three coaches and a freight engine were burned. There is a heavy loss to freight cars and the new freight depot was burned to the ground. None of the passengers were seriously injured.

Sues for Breach of Promise.

Waterloo, Oct. 14.—Miss Bertha Beckens of Tama county has sued John B. Stoehr for $5,000 damages for breach of promise. Her attorneys are Courtwright and Arbuckle of this city. Three times was the wedding postponed and no preacher or groom appeared. She was formerly a student of the business college here and later a school teacher in Tama county. The defendant is a young business man of Tama. An attachment for $2,400 has been placed on his goods.

Charity should begin at home—whether it is a rented home or not.

SUSTAINS TAX FERRET LAW.

Supreme Court Upholds Law for Collection of Taxes on Unassessed Property.

Des Moines, Oct. 13.—The supreme court has sustained the constitutionality of the tax ferret law. It was declared to be retroactive, but penalties may not be collected for any time prior to 1897, when the law took effect, though the enforcement of the collection of the taxes themselves may be made. The court holds that the law does not impair contract obligations or vested rights if it be applied retroactively. The court holds that the mere fact that the taxes were not assessed on the omitted property does not defeat the law, for the obligation to the county is not a new one. The subsequent listing of the omitted property is merely the correction of an error. The right of the property owner to be heard is not defeated by the subsequent listing because his rights will be protected eventually by the court in any event. The law is held to be uniform in its application. It is a part of the generally established and enforced system of taxation which does have uniform application. "It is uniformity of burden," says the court, and not identity of method of enforcement which is required by constitutional principles." While the penalty may not be applied for time prior to 1897, it can be for time since then, rules the court. Interest is in the nature of a penalty and must be governed by this rule. A new trial is granted the administrators of the estate in question because the lower court should have given the defense a jury trial instead of treating the case as one of equitable cognizance. The court decides that the burden of proof must rest on the county. It says: "We think it is not open to the court to impose taxes for previous years on the mere assumption that moneys and credits were omitted from taxation without any evidence that the action of the taxing officers for those years was erroneous as to specific classes of property." Such a situation would add to the horrors of dissolution says the court.

LIBERAL APPROPRIATION FAVORED

Louisiana Purchase Commissioners Think $250,000 Would Be About Right.

Des Moines, Oct. 10.—The Iowa Louisiana Purchase commission, at the close of a session at the Savery yesterday afternoon, adopted a resolution in favor of a liberal appropriation for the St. Louis exposition. While the amount of the desired appropriation was not specified in the resolution, the prevailing opinion among the commissioners was that a quarter of a million should be set apart for the purpose. It is probable this amount will be asked of the legislature.

A committee was appointed on publicity and publication consisting of Lafeyette Young of Des Moines, David Brant of Clinton, A. B. Funk of Spirit Lake, W. H. Berry of Indianola, and W. O. Payne of Nevada. The function of this committee will be educational. It will prepare an address to the people of Iowa, setting forth the reasons why the state should be creditably represented at St. Louis in 1903, and containing information as to the magnitude of the plans evolved for the exposition, a matter not generally understood.

Another committee, on plans and scope, was named. This consists of Mayor J. J. Hartenbower, S. M. Leach of Adel, C. J. A. Ericsson of Boone, S. B. Evans of Ottumwa, Judge William Logan of Keokuk, W. T. Heywood of Des Moines, and Lieutenant Governor Milliman of Logan. This committee will investigate the cost of putting up a suitable state building and of making exhibits in those lines in which Iowa excels. It will prepare an estimate of the appropriation needed, for submission to the legislature. It is the intention of this committee to make a trip to St. Louis to ascertain what is being done by other states and in this way form a better idea as to the expenditures needed.

SEVERE STORM.

Much Damage Was Done Between Hamburg and Red Oak.

Shenandoah, Oct. 11.—The worst wind and rain storm that ever visited this place struck at 4:30 yesterday afternoon. A dozen business houses were more or less damaged and several small buildings were blown to pieces.

The Burlington roundhouse was wrecked and the roof was blown from the electric light plant, leaving the city in total darkness. No one was seriously injured. The water transformed several streets into small rivers and a large poultry packing house was blown to pieces and washed away. In the country the roads have been made impassable and considerable stock was drowned. Railroad traffic is at a standstill. The bridge crossing Four Mile creek, on the Keokuk & Western railroad, a quarter of a mile from the depot, was washed out, and trains on that road cannot cross. All trains are being transferred to the Wabash and from that road to the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy at Hamburg, and go thence by way of Red Oak. Between Shenandoah and Riverton the Burlington tracks are badly washed out and no trains from Hamburg have reached this place since the storm began.

SUSPECTED OF MURDER.

Chester Tyler, Colored, of Des Moines, Taken to Newton.

Newton, Oct. 14.—Detective Hardin arrested a colored man in Des Moines who has been suspected of the murder of Dr. B. M. Failor since September 11, the evening the deed was committed in this city. Sheriff Hook and E. E. Lyday, a nephew of Dr. Failor immediately went to Des Moines and returned to Newton with the negro. He is chocolate colored, about 32 years old and gives his name as Chester Tyler, residence Des Moines. A crowd of about 300 was at the depot to get a look at the negro, as it had been reported on the streets that he had made a confession. Such reports are untrue. However, the detectives who have been working on the case think they have conclusive evidence of his guilt. No particular demonstration was made by the crowd at the depot and on the way to the jail, except an occasional mention of a rope. During the week of the Jasper county fair, on Wednesday evening about 11 o'clock, as Dr. Failor was returning home from a professional call near the C., R. I. & P. depot at Newton, he was struck down at the northwest corner of Jasper's lumber yard, robbed of his watch and money and died from his injuries about six hours afterwards.

Dr. Presley M. Rixey, Mrs. McKinley's physician, has been in the navy twenty-seven years. He holds the rank of medical inspector.

O'Brien County Land Case.

Sioux City, Oct. 14.—Twelve more of the famous O'Brien county land cases have been transferred to the United States court from the state courts. This makes forty of these cases pending in the federal court of the northern district of Iowa, and six are still pending in O'Brien county. The plaintiffs in the twelve suits just transferred live in Ramsey county, Minnesota, and claim title to thousands of acres under purchase from the Sioux City & St. Paul railroad. The defendants are in possession and claim to be homesteaders.

NEWS IN GENERAL

SCHLEY COURT OF INQUIRY

Washington, Oct. 9.—There were two new witnesses before the Schley court of inquiry yesterday. They were Commander Richard Wainwright, who commanded the Gloucester during the war with Spain, and Lieutenant M. L. Bristol, who, as ensign, was a watch and division officer on the battleship Texas during the period. Lieutenant Bristol had not concluded his testimony when court adjourned for the day. He did not see the loop made by the Brooklyn, the greater part of his testimony turning upon a chart he had made showing, largely, according to his memory, the positions of the various ships of the American fleet at different times during the engagement of July 3. There were several spirited controversies between counsel over questions asked the witness by Mr. Rayner concerning this chart. Commander Wainwright's testimony dealt largely with chart making. He was for a time senior member of the board of navigators which prepared the official charts showing the position of the American ships during the battle of Santiago, and he gave details of the methods of its preparation. He said he did not consider the positions assigned in that drawing accurate, but that they were given as the result of a compromise of the views of the members of the board. Lieutenant Commander Hodgson, Captain Folger and Lieutenant Dryson made additions to their previous testimony.

Washington, Oct. 10.—In the Schley naval court of inquiry yesterday Lieut. Mark L. Bristol completed his testimony begun Tuesday and three new witnesses were introduced. They were Rear Admiral Henry C. Taylor, who as captain commanded the battleship Indiana during the war with Spain, Lieut. Commander Templin M. Potts, who was navigator of the battleship Massachusetts during that period and Lieut. Edward F. Leiper, who was on the New Orleans during the war, the last named being still on the stand when the court adjourned for the day.

Admiral Taylor related incidents of the battle off Santiago on July 3, including the Brooklyn's famous turn. He said that none of the Spanish ships had made any effort to ram the American vessels when they came out of the harbor at Santiago. Commander Potts' testimony dealt especially with the bombardment of the Colon. Answering a question from Judge Advocate Lemly as to the conduct of Commodore Schley during the engagement, he said it was that of a man laboring under great mental excitement and of a man who was anxious to discharge as soon as possible a disagreeable duty. Lieutenant Leiper expressed the opinion that the Spanish shore batteries at Santiago had not been at any time formidable.

During Commander Potts' examination Mr. Rayner secured permission from the court to introduce as evidence the order of Secretary Long to Admiral Sampson, dated April 6, in which he was admonished against the exposure of the American vessels to the fire of strongly fortified ports.

Washington, Oct. 11.—Just before the Schley court of inquiry adjourned yesterday Judge Advocate Lemly introduced Lieutenant J. H. Holden, formerly watch officer on the Scorpion, as a witness. Lieutenant Holden signed the entry in the Scorpion's log, giving the particulars of the receipt of a message for Commodore Schley from the Eagle, which that vessel had brought from Captain McCalla on May 19, 1898, when the flying squadron, then bound for Cienfuegos, fell in with Captain McCalla's subsquadron, which had just left that port. The government had sought to show that by this message Commodore Schley had been notified that the Spanish fleet was not in the harbor at Cienfuegos, and Lieutenant Commander Southerland of the Eagle had testified that he had megaphoned to the Scorpion that there were only a torpedo boat and several cannoneros in that harbor. Captain Lemly told the court that the log of the Scorpion did not show the receipt of the message in this form and that he was prepared to admit that that message did not carry the evidence to Commodore Schley.

Other witnesses of the day were Lieutenant Commander W. H. Schuetze, who served on the Iowa, and Lieutenant A. W. Grant, who was on the Massachusetts, who testified concerning the general campaign of the flying squadron. Lieutenant Edward F. Leiper concluded his testimony begun Wednesday.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Capt. F. E. Chadwick, who was in command of Admiral Sampson's flagship, the New York, and who also was chief of the admiral's staff during the war with Spain, testified before the Schley naval court for a short time yesterday afternoon. He was the last witness called, and when the court adjourned was still under cross-examination by Mr. Rayner, who stated that he had only a few more questions to ask him. There was considerable interest in Captain Chadwick's testimony because of his close relationship of the commander-in-chief of the North Atlantic squadron.

Captain Chadwick's testimony related very largely to dispatches sent by Admiral Sampson to Commodore Schley while the latter lay off Cienfuegos, in May, 1898, and to the code of signals agreed upon by Captain McCalla of the Marblehead and the Cuban forces operating near Cienfuegos. He said this code had not been sent to Commodore Schley by dispatch because Captain McCalla had expected to join the commodore immediately and communicate the code to him. He also told of being present at an interview between Admiral Sampson and Commodore Schley, in which the latter had expressed his intention to be loyal to the commander-in-chief.

He related in detail the change of opinion concerning the whereabouts of Cervera's fleet by Admiral Sampson on May 21, between the sending of the two dispatches of that date by Admiral Sampson to Commodore Schley, one of which was dated at Key West and the other at Havana. Captain Chadwick said he had not approved Admiral Sampson's dispatch of May 28, congratulating Commodore Schley on his accomplishments to that date.

Schley Goes on Retired List.

Washington, Oct. 9.—Rear Admiral Schley ended his active career in the navy yesterday. Today he goes on the retired list by operation of law on account of age. His retirement will have no effect whatever upon the court of inquiry.

If every girl was rich there would be no old maids.

Hay Thinks Gage Misquoted.

Washington, Oct. 8.—The secretary of state is expected to return next week from his much interrupted vacation, greatly improved in health and ready for the winter's work. He is to receive the degree of docor of laws on the occasion of the Yale bicentenary. When asked the other day if there was any truth in the statementy attributed to Secretar Gage that Mr. Hay was soon to retire from office he replied that he was sure Mr. Gage had said nothing of the sort.

BOERS HARSHLY DEALT WITH.

Eighteen Boer Officers Banished From the Country.

Middlesburg, Cape Colony, Oct. 14.—Commandant Lotter, the Cape rebel whose commando, consisting almost wholly of rebels, was captured south of Petersburg in September and who was sentenced to death, has been executed.

Commandant Lotter had been tried and found guilty of eight counts, including sedition, the murder of colored, unarmed scouts, the murder of troopers in action, the blowing up of railroads and the cowhiding of British subjects and Europeans. Lotter pleaded that he was a citizen of the Orange Free State, but this was disproved.

Pretoria, Oct. 14.—Eighteen more Boer officers, captured since September 15, have been permanently banished from the country.

Middlesburg, Cape Colony, Oct. 14.—Two young farmers who had twice joined the Boers have been hanged at Vryburg. The death sentence of a number of other condemned men have been commuted to penal servitude.

London, Oct. 14.—Lord Kitchener reports to the war office from Pretoria that General French's columns have captured Commandant Scheeper. Lord Kitchener does not state whether Scheeper's commando which has been active in Cape Colony, was captured or not. The British have been in pursuit for a couple of weeks. Scheeper himself was so ill that he was obliged to travel in a buggy.

HE IS TIRED OF HIDING

Pat Crowe Offers to Surrender to the Law.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 14.—Chief of Police Donahue has received from Patrick Crowe, through a friend of the latter, an offer to surrender himself and stand trial in the courts if the reward of $50,000 hanging over his head for the alleged kidnaping of Edward A. Cudahy, Jr., is withdrawn.

Chief Donahue did not accept the proposition but made a counter offer to waive the reward himself, saying nobody else could secure it. The chief says Crowe is tired of being hunted and is willing to take chances of a trial if the reward is withdrawn, but expresses the fear of manufactured testimony that would convict him, if the reward were allowed to stand. He says Crowe is less than 500 miles from Omaha and is not with his relatives.

Edward A. Cudahy, Sr., was seen by a representative of the Associated Press and asked if the reward for Crowe would be withdrawn. In reply he said: "Yes, we will do anything to secure Crowe. This is the first I have heard of Crowe's proposition, but I presume it is bona fide. I still believe Crowe was one of the abductors of my son, but if he surrenders he shall have a fair trial, and if he gives himself up under the circumstances named the reward will be withdrawn at once. I have not heard from Crowe directly or indirectly myself, but Chief Donahue has the matter in hand and I will have him act in any manner that will secure the presence of Crowe."

There was another legal light Saturday over the case of James Callahan, held for perjury in the Cudahy kidnaping trial. The plea in bar was not argued, but Callahan's attorneys filed a motion to quash, on the ground that a grand jury has been called and that indictments rather than information is the proper procedure. The court said he would call the motion up next Thursday and indicated that he would overrule it. Callahan's attorneys are said to be expecting Pat Crowe to figure in the case soon and are fighting for time.

SCHLEY COURT OF INQUIRY.

Washington, Oct. 13.—The Schley court of inquiry held but one session yesterday, adjourning at 1 o'clock until Monday, in order to give those engaged in connection with the inquiry an opportunity for recuperation. Captain Chadwick concluded his testimony and Lieutenant Commander Sidney A. Staunton, who served on the New York as an assistant to Captain Chadwick as chief of staff for Admiral Sampson, and Lieutenant Nathan C. Twining, formerly of the Iowa, were introduced as new witnesses.

Commander Staunton's testimony dealt largely with dispatches forwarded by Admiral Sampson to Commodore Schley, and while he was under examination Mr. Rayner outlined a contention in behalf of Admiral Schley to the effect that the dispatch written on May 27 was the first positive notice that the commander-in-chief had given Commodore Schley of the presence of the Spanish fleet in the harbor of Santiago.

Lieutenant Twining said in his testimony that while the flying squadron occupied a position five miles out from Cienfuegos during the daytime, the distance was increased to from seven to nine miles at night. He was in charge of the eight-inch guns during the bombardment of the Christobal Colon on May 31, and said that all the shots from the American fleet fell short of the mark.

HARSH WORDS FOR BULLER.

Advice About Ladysmith Stirs Up Bitterness in England.

London, Oct. 12.—The storm raised by General Buller's remarkable outburst continues to grow. The speech is the one topic of discussion, and there is general anticipation that disciplinary measures will follow unless General Buller himself takes the advice of such a conservative supporter of the government as the Standard and resigns. The tone of the press is generally one of surprised amazement at his indiscretions. The people of England have generally stuck to him throughout, and his and his wife's social influence has been powerful and has even reached the court. It had been decided that he would be elevated to the peerage on the next honor list, but it is now doubtful if, after yesterday's confession, that he advised the surrender of Ladysmith, "a humiliation compared with which," as the Standard says, "all other reverses of the war would have been trivial," either the king or the people will continue to favor him.

Presidential Appointments.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Five members of the cabinet, Secretary Long, Secretary Hitchcock, Secretary Wilson, Attorney General Knox and Postmaster General Smith were present at today's meeting, which was devoted largely to the consideration of appointments under the various departments. The question of southern appointments generally came up, and the president reiterated his policy of appointing republicans, if suitable applicants could be found, and, if not, of appointing gold democrats. His policy in this respect meets the approval of the cabinet.

HARSH WORDS FOR BULLER.

Advice About Ladysmith Stirs Up Bitterness in England.

London, Oct. 12.—The storm raised by General Buller's remarkable outburst continues to grow. The speech is the one topic of discussion, and there is general anticipation that disciplinary measures will follow unless General Buller himself takes the advice of such a conservative supporter of the government as the Standard and resigns. The tone of the press is generally one of surprised amazement at his indiscretions. The people of England have generally stuck to him throughout, and his and his wife's social influence has been powerful and has even reached the court. It had been decided that he would be elevated to the peerage on the next honor list, but it is now doubtful if, after yesterday's confession, that he advised the surrender of Ladysmith, "a humiliation compared with which," as the Standard says, "all other reverses of the war would have been trivial," either the king or the people will continue to favor him.

Says Czar Broke Faith.

Stockholm, Oct. 9.—A great address to the czar, which has been prepared by the Finns, was got up secretly and without the knowledge of hostile officials.

All former talk about the good will of the czar gives place to an emphatic declaration regarding his broken oath to the Finnish people. This address was decided upon by members of the last diet who after the session had adjourned met secretly on an island not far from Helsingfors.

BOTHA ESCAPES CORDON

Wiley Boer General Eludes the British Army.

London, Oct. 11.—The wholly unsatisfactory situation in South Africa continues to call out the most severe criticism. Lord Kitchener wires that General Botha has crossed the Pivaau river, twenty miles north of Vryheid, which means that he has again escaped the British cordon.

General Buller, in a speech, complained of the general criticism, especially in the newspapers, of himself. He admitted he had advised General Sir George White that it would possibly be necessary to surrender Ladysmith, but, bearing in mind all the circumstances of the case, he was quite prepared to let the public judge of the justifiability of the newspaper attacks.

Heilbron, Orange River Colony, Oct. 11.—Thirteen of Kitchener's scouts have been captured in a Boer ambush.

MISS STONE ON A MOUNTAIN TOP.

Said to Have Been Located By Bulgarian Troops.

Constantinople, Oct. 10.—A trustworthy report locates Miss Stone's abductors on the summit of a mountain at Gultepe, on the Turko-Bulgarian frontier, near Dubnitsca. It is said that the kidnapping band numbers eighteen. Arrangements have been made to surround the mountain with Turkish and Bulgarian troops. It has been suggested that the abductors of Miss Stone are members of the old Macadonian committee actuated by motives of jealousy and that they are endeavoring to accomplish the downfall of the present government. The Bulgarian governor has promised to act vigorously.

London, Oct. 10—Prince Ferdinand, who is believed to be mixed up in the abduction of Miss Stone, enjoys the unevitable distinction of having been stigmatized publicly as a thoroughly dishonorable man by two sovereigns. To the late czar of Russia he solemnly pledged his word under no circumstances to accept the throne of Bulgaria, in spite of which he took possession thereof a few days afterward. A few years ago the present czar afforded him an opportunity of becoming reconciled to the court of Russia, at the cost of repudiating certain solemn obligations which he had accepted with regard to Austria and to its emporor, who had until then been almost alone among European monarchs to befriend him. Without a moment's hesitation or a vestige of gratitude, he threw over Francis Joseph, and when finally, to please Russia, he caused his little 3-year-old boy to be converted from Roman Catholicism to the orthodox Russian faith, Austria's emperor refused to have anything more to do with him, declaring that he could have no dealings either official or otherwise with a man so "thoroughly dishonorable."

Ferdinand's reign has been one long and interrupted succession of broken pledges, dishonesty, scandal, and, above all, of administrative violence and murder that are without parallel in any European country save Turkey.

London, Oct. 11.—With reference to the announcement that the Turkish and Bulgarian troops are surrounding the abductors of Miss Stone, the Globe says that it considers that unless the movement is suspended until she is safe out of the hands of the brigands there will infallibly be a repetition of the tragedy in Greece, during the year 1870, when Lord Muncaster and a party were captured. Lord Muncaster was released in order to negotiate for a ransom of £25,000. Then, as now, an attempt was made to surround the brigands, with the result that four gentlemen of the party were murdered.

EMPRESS URGES REFORM.

Chinese Government Issues an Extraordinary Edict.

Peking, Oct. 14.—The dowager empress has issued two edicts, one of which establishes three new boards and abolishes many minor offices. The other admonishes officials to enforce the reforms decreed in recent edicts and says:

"Myself and the emperor for the past year have slept on wormwood and eaten gall"—a Chinese metaphor for nourishing vengeance. The edict goes on to say that the board of national administration, Young Lu, controller general of the revenue board, and others urge the court to inform the whole empire that it is determined to execute reforms. It enjoins officials to study and adopt the western methods recommended by Viceroys Liu Kun Yi and Chang Tung.

"No trifling measures," says the edict, "will restore prosperity. The destiny of the government, whether for happiness or destruction, is involved in these reforms, which will make China independent."

The foreign ministers at a meeting Saturday determined to evict foreign merchants occupying houses without the consent of the owners. The Chinese do not desire to disturb those who were established before the siege. It was decided also that the question of opening Peking to foreign trade shall be taken up when commercial treaties are negotiated, and that meanwhile the Chinese shall collect an octroi, equivalent to the transit dues of 21 per cent on goods not paying the latter.

SULTAN TO BE HELD RESPONSIBLE

London Story Has It That America Will Make a Naval Demonstration.

London, Oct. 12.—After detailing the history of the abduction of Miss Stone, the Spectator remarks:

"President Roosevelt and the Washington cabinet maintain justly that the sultan is responsible, as it is his misgovernment which provokes and protects brigandage, and they intend to demand reparation from the porte. It will not be limited, we imagine, to £25,000. The porte will be required to punish the authors of the outrage, and as Turkey is sure to shuffle and as America is tired of being played with, a naval demonstration is on the cards. The sultan will of course yield to the first show of force."

Constantinople, Oct. 12.—In compliance with a request from Washington, the search by the Ottoman troops for the abductors of Miss Stone, the American missionary, has been abandoned, it being feared that the brigands would kill her should they be closely pursued. Arrangements are now being made to pay the ransom demanded.

Offer of Lipton Rejected.

New York, Oct. 10.—The New York yacht club has formally declined Sir Thomas Lipton's proposal to race the Shamrock II again next summer for the America's cup.

The contrary man is always on the fence ready to jump either way.

William May Race for It.

New York, Oct. 8.—Sir Thomas Lipton has given the first intimation that he will challenge again for the Americas cup, says the Herald.

"You may say for me," he said, that if the cup is to leave this country I am determined to have it."

If Sir Thomas does not issue a challenge for a race next year it is not unlikely that there will be a race. It is reported that the emperor of Germany is considering the matter of challenging for the American cup.

In the human race the butcher holds the stakes.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Oct. 14, 1901.

An opinion in a case of considerable interest to railroads has been handed down by the supreme court. It affirms a judgment against the Iowa Central Railway company in a case from Monroe county, in which action was brought to recover double damages for stock killed by defendant's train after said stock had gone upon the right-of-way through a defective gate at a private crossing. There was some evidence that the gate had been broken down by plaintiff's horse within two days before the stock in question passed through upon the right-of-way. The defendant road contended that the court erred in refusing to submit special interrogatories and give instructions asked on the theory that if the stock got upon the right-of-way by reason of the willful act of the owner, there can be no recovery under section 2055 of the code. The higher court sustains the lower court in finding no evidence tending to show a willful act. The breaking of the gate by the horse did not constitute willful act and contributory negligence alone will not defeat recovery under the section in question.

The board of control has sent out requests for bids on 17,500 bushels of potatoes for the use of the state institutions. Joun Cownie of the board says the state farms will furnish about 15,000 bushels or 50 per cent of a crop. This will be approximately half the amount needed at the institutions. The board expects to get potatoes at a price of from 60 to 75 cents a bushel at the highest

The Independent Order of Red Men at their grand council in this city elected officers as follows: Grand prophet, J. A. T. Smith of Burlington; great sachem, F. A. Day of Des Moines; great senior sagamore, W. F. Menton of Boone; great junior sagamore, Dr. Will L. Allen of Pella; keeper of records, W. H. Knott of Farmington; keeper of wampum, Fred Lumpkin of Ft. Dodge. Next place of meeting, Pella.

State Labor Commissioner C. F. Wennerstrum, in his biennial report, just made public, points out many opportunities for bettering the condition of working people in Iowa, and shows how the industries of the state are gaining in importance. Of the 2,231,850 population of the state, 975,641, or 43.75 per cent, live in towns. In the 64 towns of more than 2,000 population, and the cities with more than 25,000 population, various manufacturing institutions to the number of 14,819 have been reported, and these employ 58,553 persons, according to the census of 1900. The number has greatly increased since this enumeration was made. The total amount of capital represented was $102,733,103. The wages paid in 1900 amounted to $29,931,680, and the value of the products was $134,617,877. Important phases of the report relate to inspection of factories as to child labor and the investigation of the strikes in Iowa from July, 1894, up to and including 1900. Mr. Wennerstrum personally investigated 276 factories and his deputy, A. E. Holder, fifty-two. Deplorable conditions respecting the welfare of employes were found.

The eighth biennial report of the pharmacy commission has been submitted to Governor Shaw. It is for the official biennial period ending April 23, 1899. It shows receipts amounting to $18,159 for the past year, including $1,800 cash on hand in 1899. The disbursements left $2,000 as the amount of license fund on hand April 23, 1900. The receipts to April 24, 1901, brought this amount up to $21,607.50. The license fund on hand April 24, 1901, was $2,209. The total of warrants drawn for prosecutions under section 2386 for the biennial period was $1,432.27. The fines collected for violations of the pharmacy law and paid to the county school funds amounted to $8,273.50. The total number of pharmacists registered since the passage of the pharmacy law was 6,418.

The Polk county board of supervisors has voted a pass to Ireland to Pat Kane, formerly of Elkhart township, now an inmate of the county house. Kane will go to his old home in the interior of Ireland. Seven years ago Kane made his first application for the pass. His request was looked upon as a joke. The following year he made another application. This was refused and the same thing happened another year. His requests were repeatedly ignored until recently, when the board began to figure. It will cost $5 per month to keep Kane at the farm. That is equivalent to $60 per year. He will live at least five years longer, which would mean an expenditure of $300. A ticket to Ireland will cost the county less than $150. The idea of transportation is looked upon with favor by the board and dependents who desire to return to their native land to die may be accommodated with a free pass by the county.

AMERICAN FORCE REPULSED.

Insurgents Prove Too Strong for a Detachment of Macabebes.

Manila, Oct. 11.—A detachment of the Twenty-first company of the Macabebees encountered a large force of insurgents near Lipa, province of Batangas. Le Bau of the Macabebees was killed and one of the force was wounded. The enemy was strongly entrenched. After two hours' fighting the Americans retreated to await reinforcements.

The insurgents numbered over 300, were armed with Remington and Mauser rifles and apparently had plenty of ammunition.

Martin, a teacher at Maubin, was captured by the insurgents while visiting a neighboring town under an escort of native police. The next day his captors relenting, tied him in a hammock and carried him to a point within a mile of the town and released him, saying he was a noncombatant.

The entire police force of Catanag, province of Tayabas, numbering eleven, have been carried off by insurgents, armed only with bolos. Presumably the police made no resistance, though they were all armed with carbines and revolvers.

Students Demand Allowance.

Constantinople, Oct. 14.—The Ottoman students in Paris, who are generally secret agents of the Turkish government, have telegraphed to the sultan demanding the immediate payment of their allowances. Otherwise they threaten to launch an agitation which will endanger the throne.

ENORMOUS CROPS

North Dakota has just harvested a wonderful crop of wheat and flax. Reports from the various railway points along the "Soo" Line show yields of 25 to 38 bushels to the acre of wheat, and from 15 to 20 bushels of flax per acre. Flax is now bringing $1.25 per bushel. Most of the crop was raised on newly broken land, so that the first crop pays for the farm and all the labor, and leaves a handsome profit. There is still plenty of good free government land open for entry; also good openings to go into business in the new towns along the "Soo" Line. The Scourge of Damascus

A Story of the East...

By SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

Copyrighted 1891 by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER XIV.

As he spoke the Arab gave a loud, shrill whistle, at the same time leaping across the spring and striking the slave in the face. But Shubal was not to be overcome so easily by one man. The whistle had alarmed him, and when he saw the fellow leap, he was not wholly unprepared. The blow in the face blinded him for a moment, but as soon as his eyes served him, he caught his assailant by the throat and hurled him to the ground.

"What sort of a man are you?" the slave cried, as he held the rascal down.

"I am a juggler," replied the Arab, holding fast upon Shubal's tunic.

"Let go my clothing, or I'll kill you."

The slave might have carried out his threat, but before he could make any decided movement to that end he found himself surrounded by a body of armed men. Quick as thought he leaped to his feet, leaving a piece of his tunic behind him, and made a movement toward his horse; but he was too late to reach the saddle. Half a dozen strong hands were laid upon him, while as many more were busy with the horses of the females. The princess cried aloud for help, and would have leaped from her saddle had she not been held back.

"Fair lady," spoke a rough voice, in a harsh, strange dialect, "you must keep still, and give us as little trouble as possible."

"But you will not harm me, good sirs."

"You have no occasion for fear, lady. But tell me—who are you?"

"I am the daughter of Aboul Cassem, the prime minister of Damascus."

Could Albia have moved quickly enough, she would have prevented her mistress from answering this question, but the story had been told. Ulin innocently thought that the name of her father would strike the marauders with awe, and that they would fear to molest her further, but in this she was somewhat mistaken, as subsequent events proved.

"By my life, comrades," cried he, who seemed to be the leader of the party, "we have found a rich prize. Hold still, noble lady. We will not harm you. Let us look to this unruly slave of yours, and then you shall be properly cared for. You might have fallen into worse hands than ours."

When Ulin had collected her senses, so that she could observe and comprehend things about her, she looked to see her real situation. She counted eight of the Arabs, and she had no doubt that they were robbers. Four of them were securing the slave, while the other four were watching the horses. Shubal was very soon pinioned, and restored to his feet, after which she and Albia were lifted from their saddles.

"Don't be alarmed," said the leader, as the princess cried out for mercy. "You shall be restored to your horses very soon. We have horses close at hand, and when they are brought, you shall be on your way again."

"You will set Shubal free?"

"He shall be free soon enough. Rest easy a few moments, lady. One of my men has gone after our animals. We left them upon the other side of the wood."

"But why have you taken us from our horses?" asked our heroine.

"You will see that anon, fair lady. Ah—here comes my man. Now, my fair damsels, you shall understand the whole matter. These horses of yours are not such ones as I would have you ride. I have some here much better."

"What does he mean?" asked Ulin, speaking in a low tone to her bondmaiden.

"Wait," replied Albia, trying to conceal her real suspicions, "They may inform us."

Before Ulin could ask another question the Arab leader came forward with two horses, upon which he directed his companion to fix the ladies' saddles; and when this had been done he turned to the princess, and informed her that she might take her seat again. She would have opposed the movement, but a strong hand was laid upon her, and, almost before she knew it, she was once more upon her saddle.

"You will excuse me," the fellow said, "but as this horse will not carry you quite so easily as your own, I will secure you in your place."

As he spoke he passed a strong cord about Ulin's body, and fastened it to the girth upon either side. The same thing was done for Albia, and then attention was directed to Shubal, who was seated upon another strange horse, and likewise bound in his place.

"What can they mean?" asked the princess, gaining another opportunity to speak to her attendant.

"I dare not guess," said Albia.

"Do not speak in that way," urged Ulin. "Tell me what you think—I command you."

"My dear mistress," replied the bondmaiden, reluctantly, "their meaning is evident enough. These horses will follow their masters!"

"Ha!—and are we prisoners?"

"I fear so. But let us hope for the best. We may not be harmed."

At this juncture the Arabs had mounted their horses, three of them taking the animals which belonged to their prisoners, and at a word from the leader they were on the move. Ulin instinctively clung to the rein to hold herself steady, but her horse noticed not the guiding of her hand. The leader of the party rode in advance; then followed two more of the gang; then came two females; and behind them followed the others, with the slaves under charge. Through the wood they rode at an easy pace, and when they had gained the open plain beyond they struck into a swift gallop. Ulin had discovered to her satisfaction that the strange horse paid no attention to the rein, so she only sought to keep an easy seat. She was weak with fear and alarm, and all sorts of dreadful pictures arose to her imagination as she sped on. She could not speak with Albia, for the clattering of hoofs drowned her voice. What did it mean? Where would it end?

On they sped, straight over the plain—on, on, on—without halting or turning—on through the darkness of the night—on, league after league—until the gray streaks of morning appeared in the eastern horizon. Another wood was before them, and when it was reached, the party stopped. Not far distant, where a clump of noble palms reared aloft their plaited foliage, a crystal spring burst forth from the green earth, and the Arabs held their panting horses back from the tempting beverage.

"Now, lady, you may find repose," said the leader, as he came and lifted Ulin from her seat. "We shall remain here a few hours. I will be with you again presently."

He turned and handed Albia to the ground, and then went to where his followers were taking care of Shubal.

"Albia, what will they do with us?" cried the princess, clasping her hands in terror.

But the bondmaiden could not answer. If she held suspicions, she dared not speak them.

"O, I wish I had not taken this false step! It is a punishment for my sin!"

"Hush, dear mistress. It is our fate. It is no punishment. Wait until we know what this Arab means to do with us."

"What can he mean?" It must be something dreadful. Why has he taken us away so far? O, Albia, I am frightened."

"No, no, sweet lady. Have a hope. They will not kill us."

"Ah," murmured the princess, with folded hands, "there may be a fate from which death would be a happy escape!"

The bondmaiden shuddered, and from her thoughts at that moment she could frame no reply which she dared to speak aloud.

CHAPTER XV.

The Arab's Purpose.

As Ulin sat upon the greensward, with her back against a palm tree, and one hand resting upon Albia's arm, she could take a clear view of her captors. The sun was just tinging the distant mountain tops with its golden light, and the last shadow of the night had gone. The Arabs had watered the horses and left them where they could crop the green grass, and were now gathered together, listening to the words of their chief.

They were rough, dark looking men, these Arabs. Their clothing was sparse and poor, and their skin swart and dirty; but their weapons were bright and keen and their horses in most perfect condition, both as to health and cleanliness. A little while they conversed together, and then one of them brought forth the bundle which had been taken from Shubal. It was opened by the leader, and the articles of clothing which it contained were spread out upon the ground. Folded up in a silken scarf was found a purse, from which fell a score or more of broad gold pieces; whereupon the marauders gave utterance to various exclamations of satisfaction.

"They are robbers," said Ulin, as she saw them dividing the gold.

"Certainly," responded Albia. "I have suspected that from the first."

"Can they belong to Julian's band?"

"Why should you ask such a question, my mistress? You know that Julian would never have such men about him."

As she spoke, the Arab leader came towards them, and after gazing upon them for a few moments, he said, addressing the princess:

"I hope you find yourself none the worse for this little deviation from your original course; for, let me assure you, the meeting has afforded me much pleasure. Does the princess Ulin know who is speaking to her?"

"No, sir," replied Ulin.

"Then she shall know into whose protecting hand she has had the fortune of falling. I am Al Abbas. Does the name sound familiar?"

"No, sir."

"It is familiar enough to me," said Albia.

"Ah, pretty one—and what know you of it?"

"I have heard the name, sir, when speech has been made touching a certain Arab robber, whose deeds had caused him to be feared by honest travelers."

The rascal seemed pleased with this remark, and smilingly returned:

"You have hit the truth, my fair damsel. I am the robber, Al Abbas; and I am a terror to those who fear to lose their money. But, my dear lady," he continued, turning to the princess, "you cannot have any such fears. We have found some little money belonging to you, and I take the liberty of asking you if you have any jewels about you."

He approached nearer as he spoke, and held out his hand. Ulin knew not how to refuse, and she furthermore saw that refusal would be useless; so she drew forth from her bosom a casket of chamois skin, bound with bands of gold, and handed it over. The robber took it, and opened it; and as his eyes rested upon the sparkling jewels—pearl, diamond, emerald, topaz and opal—he gave utterance to an exclamation of delight.

"By my life, lady, you came well provided. I will take care of these gems for you. They will be much safer in my custody."

"I understand you," said the princess, as she saw the fellow close the casket and place it in his own bosom. "You mean to keep those jewels, as you do the gold which you have found."

"You are shrewd at guessing, lady."

"I think I have good grounds for my opinion, sir. Take them if you want them; and in return I only ask that you let us go free. You are welcome to all that you have if you will give us our liberty."

"You will rest before you go."

"I do not wish to rest long."

"Nor would I have you. But for the present you had better lie down upon this soft grass, and find some slight repose. I will call you when we move." And as he thus spoke, he turned away and joined his companions.

"Will they let us go?" murmured Ulin, letting her head fall upon her companion's shoulder.

"I hope so, my mistress. But come—we cannot learn their intent until they please to tell us; and in the meantime you had better seek some rest. You are tired and worn. Lay your head upon my lap—so. And we will hope for the best."

Albia drew the head of her mistress gently down, and in a little while the weary princess was asleep. And the bondmaiden did not long remain upon the watch. Her own lids were heavy, and very soon her senses were locked in slumber.

Al Abbas moved noiselessly to the spot where the worn maidens slept, and presently others of his band joined him.

"By the blood of Cush," muttered the robber chief, "they are beautiful enough! The lady Ulin is the fairest maiden I ever saw."

"They are both of them far too beautiful to be roaming at large," said another of the gang.

"They are worth more than jewels," added a third.

"You are right," responded the leader. "This princess would sell for a diadem, beyond the Syrian desert. But let them sleep, and when they are rested we will call them. If we would turn the prize into gold, we must not suffer it to fade from neglect."

After this the robbers sat down to their morning's meal; and when they had done eating some of them went to sleep upon the grass.

At the expiration of two hours Ulin awoke with a sharp cry, and caught her companion convulsively by the arm, and cried:

"O!—and it was only a dream. How frightful it was."

"Only a dream, dear mistress. We are safe and well."

"Thank heaven!"

Al Abbas, as soon as he saw that the girls were awake, gave a shrill whistle, such as he had sounded on a previous occasion, and in an instant his men were upon their feet. The horses, also, noticed the signal, for they lifted their heads and moved up together, as though ready to serve their masters.

Adult Males Are Very Cranky About Their Headgear.

Men are probably more cranky about their hats than they are about anything else they wear. No man will let another person put his hat on his head for him. He must put his own hat on or it will not feel right. A friend may lift one's hat from one's head and put it back on again without the deviation of a fraction of an inch, and yet the hat will not feel as it did before and the owner will have to adjust it before he will again be comfortable. Dealers in clothing can fit the article that they are selling to the customer. They can put it on the shoulders, pull down the sleeves and jerk it about until the back is smooth, but the hatter has to allow the customer to do his own trying on. The buyer moves it around until he finds that it settles in a comfortable place and then he steps to the mirror to see how it becomes him when worn in the comfortable position. If he likes its looks he will take it, but the hatter has nothing to do with the sale except to take the hat out of the box and explain he price at which it is sold. This hat peculiarity is common with all men. It may be because a strange hand ruffles the hair and in this manner gives the head an uncomfortable feeling. At any rate the uncomfortable feeling is there and one is conscious of the fact.—Chicago News.

Emerson as a Model.

Mr. D. C. French, the sculptor, tells with much relish, the story of his experiences when he was commissioned to make the bust of Ralph Waldo Emerson, which is now in Memorial hall of Harvard university. At one of the sittings, says Mr. French, Mr. Emerson rose suddenly and walked over to where the artist was working. He looked long and earnestly at the bust, and then, with an inimitably droll expression, he said: "The trouble is the more it resembles me the worse it looks." After the sculptor had finished the bust he asked Mr. Emerson to inspect it. The philosopher's opinion was characteristically terse.

"Well," he said at last, "that is the face I shave." Mr. Emerson, Mr. French relates, made one of his quaint observations about another bust, the work of another artist. It was a characterless kind of thing, and showed not the slightest hint of the Emerson character. After looking it over, Emerson said:

"It looks as harmless as a parsnip, doesn't it?"

The Nigeria Region.

Nigeria is an important region in Africa and comprises the whole of the British sphere (with the exception of the colony and the Protectorate of Lagos), within the lines of demarcation arranged by the Anglo-German agreements of 1885, 1886 and 1893, and the Anglo-French agreements of 1889, 1890, and 1898. The region covers between 400,000 and 500,000 square miles, and its population is variously estimated at from 25,000,000 to 40,000,000, but in the absence of any census, no reliance can be placed on such estimates. It is certain, however, that a great number of towns in Nigeria contain considerable population. For administrative purposes Nigeria is temporarily divided into two governments, Northern Nigeria and Southern Nigeria, but in the absence of any data it is impossible to say which section has the largest population. Brigadier-General Sir F. J. D. Lugard, K. C. M. G., C. B., D. S. O. is the high commissioner for Northern Nigeria—Montreal Herald and Star.

Slatin Pasha.

A most exciting career has been that of Sir Rudolph Slatin, better known as Slatin Pasha. He left Vienna, his birthplace, when a lad of 17, to become a clerk in a commercial house in Cairo, and six years later came under the notice of Gordon, who appointed him governor of Darfur. In this position he became known as "The Hammer of the Arabs," owing to his many victories over the turbulent tribes, but in 1883 he had to surrender to the Mahdi. Then began an imprisonment that lasted till 1895, when, by secret aid from the authorities at Cairo, Slatin managed to escape. The late queen had Sir Rudolf at Windsor several times to hear him relate his adventures.

How Ruskin Learned Obedience.

John Ruskin, who wrote so many famous books, said the first lesson he learned was to be obedient. "One evening," he says, "when I was yet in my nurse's arms, I wanted to touch the tea-urn, which was boiling merrily. It was an early taste for bronzes, I suppose, but I was resolute about it. My mother bade me keep my fingers back. I insisted on putting them forward. My nurse would have taken me away from the urn, but my mother said: 'Let him touch it, nurse.' So I touched it, and that was my first lesson in the meaning of the word liberty I got, and the last that for some time I asked."

The Lincoln farm, near Hodgenville, Ky., where Abraham Lincoln was born, is wanted by Dr. R. C. Miller, president of the St. Luke society of Chicago, who wishes to buy it for the society. The farm is owned by Daniel Grear of New York city.

President Roosevelt is 23 years younger than Secretary Hitchcock, the senior member of the cabinet, and 13 years younger than Secretary Root, its junior member. Five cabinet members are at least 20 years the senior of the president, Secretary Hitchcock is one month older than Secretary Wilson, both of whom were born in 1835, and are, therefore, 66 years old. Secretary Gage is 65. Secretary Long and Secretary Hay were born within 20 days of each other, the latter on October 8, 1838, and the former on October 28, 1838. Postmaster General Smith is 59, and Secretary Root is 56 years old. President Roosevelt will not be 43 until October 27.

FALLING HAIR STOPPED.

Baldness Cured by Destroying the Parasite Germ That Causes It.

Baldness follows falling hair, falling hair follows dandruff, and dandruff is the result of a germ digging its way into the scalp to the root of the hair where it saps the vitality of the hair. To destroy that germ is to prevent as well as cure dandruff, falling hair, and, lastly, baldness. There is only one preparation known to do that. Newbro's Herpicide, an entirely new, scientific discovery. Wherever it has been tried it has proven wonderfully successful. It can't be otherwise, because it utterly destroys the dandruff germ. "You destroy the cause, you remove the effect."

IRONING A SHIRT WAIST.

Not infrequently a young woman finds it necessary to launder a shirt waist at home for some emergency when the laundryman or the home servant cannot do it. Hence these directions for ironing the waist: To iron summer shirt waists so that they will look like new it is needful to have them starched evenly with Defiance starch, then made perfectly smooth and rolled tight in a damp cloth, to be laid away two or three hours. When ironing have a bowl of water and a clean piece of muslin beside the ironing board. Have your iron hot, but not sufficiently so to scorch, and absolutely clean. Begin by ironing the back, then the front, sides and the sleeves, followed by the neckband and the cuffs. When wrinkles appear apply the damp cloth and remove them. Always iron from the top of the waist to the bottom. If there are plaits in the front iron them downward, after first raising each one with a blunt knife, and with the edge of the iron follow every line of stitching to give it distinctness. After the shirt waist is ironed it should be well aired by the fire or in the sun before it is folded and put away, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

IN THE CAUSE OF SCIENCE.

Heroic Self-Sacrifice of Two Surgeons of the Navy.

A remarkable example of nerve and self-sacrifice has been exhibited in the experiments that are being conducted with mosquito inoculation by the army surgeons in Cuba. There has been no doubt in the medical profession for several years that yellow fever, typhoid fever and other contagious diseases could be communicated by flies, mosquitoes and other insects, and it has recently been discovered that inoculation can be used to protect people from yellow fever, just as smallpox can be prevented by vaccination. The matter is still in an experimental stage, and has not yet reached that development under which medical men generally can safely use it. In order to accomplish practical ends and ascertain how the discovery could best be utilized for the human welfare in countries subject to yellow fever epidemics, Dr. Jesse W. Lazear and Dr. James A. Carroll, assistant surgeons of the United States army, offered their lives. It was quite as heroic as the act of Hobson in sinking the Merrimac to obstruct the channel of Santiago harbor, but comparatively few people will ever hear of their heroism. They fed mosquitoes upon the bodies of yellow fever patients in the hospital at Havana, and then deliberately allowed those mosquitoes to attack their arms. The infecton of both was promptly discovered, and they were treated with all the skill and care that their associates could devise, while the study of their symptome and the course of the disease was carefully observed. Dr. Lazear died, but Dr. Carroll survived, and his report is one of the most important contributions to the vast literature concerning contagious diseases.—W. E. Curtis, in Chicago Record.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes thal their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. "Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made as is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflamation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to "Consumption—Snuffles will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advive from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure," Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canaba on receipt of One Doller. THE HOME GOLD CURE.

It is now generally known and unstood that drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors requires antidotes capable of neutratizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is perfectly solu le and pleasant to the taste, so it can be give in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drundards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy and as many more have been made temporate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent or misleading 'improvement.' Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The Home Gold Cure is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar' thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 or $50. GREAT OPPURTUNITIES.

The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Norther Railway Company is nearing the completion of it's 140 miles of new extensions in the very richest portion of Southwestern Minnesota. The six new towns, Reading, Wilmont, Lismore, Kenneth, Waters and Conger are rapidly becoming commercial centers for the rich and allready thickly settled country surrounding. There has been no "Auction sale of lots" or any attempt to "Boom" these towns; their growth being the result of a demand for convenient markets.

It is the purpose of the railway company to encourage the continuous substantial growth of the towns on their lines. In order that each town may receive the attention of "ownership." It has been decided to sell each town entire, including all unplatted land to private parties. For terms of such purchases, address the undersigned. For business openings or purchase of lots address the Town Lot Agent of the respective town.

George Bailey visited in Clear Lake over Sunday.

E. C. Abbey started Sunday evening for Chicago to be absent on business several days.

A. L. Goodyear has purchased land near Payette, Idaho, and his wife and sons will follow him there in the spring.

Miss Sylvia Sage went up to Crystal Lake, Thursday to assist her sister Mrs. Wellemeyer at her grand opening of millinery goods in that place. She returned home Saturday.

Mr. Moore and son on Monday commenced loading their car of household goods and other things, preparatory to shipment and removal to Idaho, where they will settle permanently.

The Hancock County Poultry Association are fast perfecting plans for their Annual Exhibit, which gives promise of being better this year than ever before in the history of the Association. Strong pushers are behind the effort, and they will succeed if success can be attained. It begins November 27th.

Mrs. Richard Terwilliger her daughter Pearl accompanied by her son in-law, Mr. Benson and wife, started Saturday overland by team for their new home in Kansas. Mr. and Mrs. Alf Schneider will for a few months conduct the household affairs here for Mr. Terwilliger until he can get his business matters closed up, when he and they will all proceed to follow those gone before to their new location.

Harry Byres and painting mate, working on A. L. Goodyear's residence at painting, managed to break one of their scaffold hooks while they were up from the ground ten or twelve feet, and came down heels over head on the run, all mixed up with pots, paints, brushes and other etceteras. While the fall jarred them considerably, fortunatly they escaped broken bones. But Oh! What a mess to clean up!

Messrs Kelly and Tellier, our well known painters and decorating artists have put a whole lot of fine feathers into their hats by their splendid work painting the scenery in our new opera house. For genuine beauty and excellence the flies and curtain fixtures in Garner's new play house are fully up to the standard adopted by cities ten times her size. Garner is proud at having such skilled men among her young citizens—and also proud of her opera house.

A narrow escape from a fatal accident occurred here Saturday while moving the old State Street Hotel, to another location. Joe German was under the structure at work, when some of the timbers under the building crushed and allowed the rollers to slip away from supporting it, and only by the narrowest miracle was it that Mr. German escaped being flattened to jelly. As it was he was painfully hurt but not fatally.

A magnificent installment of macninery has been put into the new creamery, mentioned last week in this correspondence, and from an inspection of the interior of the establishment it is plain to be seen that when i opens for business Garner wil have a butter factory second to none in the state. The painters have embellished the with artistic tinting, and only a short time will elapse now before all will be in readiness to accomodate the patrons with first class service.

The accident at Mason City to the eyes of W. E. Sage, mentioned last week, proves to be most serious indeed for that young man. Experts who have examined his eyes now state it as their opinion that the eyeballs are stigmatized, and that their cure if ever attained must be at the expense of avoiding their use in close study, and the immediate employment of glasses to relieve any strain upon them, all of which is a hard blow to him, as he had just registered as a student at Toland's University, and in consequence was fully prepared to finish his education and fit himself for the active duties of rapidly approaching young manhood. He feels the dissapointment most keenly as also do his parents and friends but the utmost that can be done for him will be done, and a permanent cure effected if possible. But it will likely be several months before he can again attempt to resume his University work.

Last Wednesday, Conners and Williams, the holdup artists who robbed Mr. Cummings at the Milwaukee depot in this city, were found guilty by the jury in the district court, to long terms each in the penitentary at Anamosa. Detective Riley of the Milwaukee road was here to assist the local authorities to fix crime upon them, and the sheriff of Cook county, (Chicago) Ill. also appeared on the ground, and positively identified the men as badly wanted in the Windy City for the holding up and murder of a street car conductor. Other advices relative to this precious pair developed the fact that both of the men have been at Beaumont, Texas, operating as pickpockets and thugs generally in that favored locality where suckers are thick as blackberries in June, and justice as slow as molasses in January. The Cook county sheriff was anxious to take the criminals back to Chicago with him, but Sheriff Garten and Detective Riley claimed a prior lien on them and hung to their quarters like bull pups tugging at a root, and as soon as possible started for Anamosa with the men, and landed them safely in the Warden's care where for a term of years they will play checkers with their noses, and then to cap the climax, when they emerge from prison, they will again be at the mercy of the Cook county officials to rearrest them for the murder of the street car conductor. By the time they are all through fooling with the gay and festive buzzsaw, they will likely know more than now.

The most ancient weapon was the club, and one blow with it in the hand of a vigorous wielder was usually enough to cause a knock-out. A New York policeman is the most expert modern handler of the weapon. Several stone-studded clubs, used by the lake dwellers of Switzerland, have recently been found in their ancient habitations.

In a recent plea that Protestants and Catholics might join hands in Christian unity against the saloon, Archbishop Keane merely urges a principle of modern warfare. Just as in going into battle all the regimental flags are sent to the rear and only the Stars and Stripes stay at the front, so should the denominations put their differences in the rear, and present a solid front in the battle for temperance.

The historic bell in St. John's Protestant Episcopal church, on North Beaver street, York, Pa., cracked from top to bottom when Sexton Householder started to toll it in memory of President McKinley. The bell was sent to the United States by a sister of George III in 1774 and for seventy years hung in the old courthouse in Center square, where the Continental Congress assembled after it had been driven from Philadelphia.

The Talmud says there are four kinds of pupils: the sponge and the funnel, the strainer and the sieve. The sponge is he who taketh up everything, and the funnel is he who taketh in at this ear and letteth out at that; the strainer is he that letteth go the wine and retaineth the dross, and the sieve is he that letteth go the bran and retaineth the fine flour. The student who begins at least to wish to belong to the last-named class will not have been sent to college in vain.

Lord Stanley of Alderly, England, has been giving some unique presents to his Anglesey tenants. To a number of bachelors not yet confirmed in their celibacy he has presented a piece of silk, with the injunction to hand it over to those whom they intend to marry. Bachelors who are considered hopeless have received consolation gifts, while one lady tenant has been presented with a handsome piece of silk because "she managed to catch one of the old bachelors."

A naturalist desirous of studying the way of the viper could not do better than make a visit to the environs of Bar-le-Duc, Ligny-en-Barrois, Saint-Mihiel, France. The Figaro says that a countryman named Muller, of Ligny, brought to the Mairie sixty-five vipers, and a companion of his, twenty-two. Since the commencement of the year these two men have destroyed 940 of these dangerous little reptiles. A goodly number has been accounted for by a M. Jules Andre, of Saint-Mihiel, who "bagged" in the neighboring woods some ninety-three of these venomous little pests in one day.

A school-teacher's education does not count for much unless she is strong enough to use it, so in Chicago candidates for teachers' places are very properly required to pass a physical examination. There was a fluttering in the normal schools when the rule was adopted, a year ago, it being feared that it would bar out some of the best students, but the first result was that it stimulated them to take proper care of their health. "They have had soup for luncheon, instead of cookies," says a well-known professional woman, "and they have not dieted, as they used to, on slate-pencils and pickles."

The German Press announces the death of the last survivor of Waterloo, at the age of 108 years. The veteran was a peasant living at Worthenburg, and he had been for years a favorite with the late Queen Victoria. He fought in the ranks of the British Grenadiers at Waterloo, and he used to tell how at the critical moment he had conveyed a message from the Duke of Wellington to Blucher, and that he had earned the "Iron Duke's" approval on that occasion. He bore a thoroughly English name, Chas. Richards, and until he was 90 years of age he was a member of the church choir of his native place. He has left no fewer than 182 descendants.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

TOOK BED FROM UNDER SICK CHILD

And Jury Says He Must Pay $5,000 for Loss of Life.

Des Moines, Oct. 19.—The celebrated Bradshaw-Frazier case, which has been in the district and supreme courts for the past six years, has been terminated by a verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $5,000. Six years ago last September little Georgia Frazier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frazier, residing near Polk City, died from the effects of measles augmented by exposure to a cold September wind and rain. At the time of her death it was charged by the parents that J. W. Frazier, grandfather of the child, had forcibly ejected her from the premises, removed the stove and other furniture from the house and thrown her bed into the yard. The little girl grew rapidly worse from exposure to rain, dying nine days after the ejectment. Suit was brought in the Polk county district court by Charles Bradshaw, administrator of the estate, who demanded of J. W. Frazier the sum of $10,000 damages, the plaintiff charging the grandfather with the indirect responsibility for her death. The case went to the supreme court and after six years, during which time several decisions were rendered on different phases of the case, it was procenendoed back to the district court for a new trial on the grounds of an error in the judgment of the lower court. The case was tried before Judge Bishop, the plaintiff introducing witnesses to prove that Frazier, accompanied by an officer, came to the sick chamber and removed every article of furniture, including the bed on which the sick girl lay. This is said to have been against the entreaties of the child's parents, who testified that they called attention to the condition of the little girl and begged that she be not disturbed. The verdict just rendered, it is thought, will determine the matter, the defendant having expressed himself as opposed to anotner appeal.

WORK ON A NEW RAILROAD.

Survey of Des Moines, Iowa City & Muscatine Has Begun.

Des Moines, Oct. 18.—A surveying party of twelve men in the employ of the Des Moines, Iowa City & Muscatine Railroad company, under the direction of James Wilson, formerly of the Burlington, is running a survey from Montezuma and Prairie City. They have completed the survey for the line from Iowa City to Williamsburg, where the Milwaukee & St. Paul crosses the Rock Island, and it is expected to begin grading next spring as soon as the condition of the weather will permit. From Williamsburg to Montezuma the right of way has been donated by the farmers, and negotiations are now in progress with Boston capitalists for financing the road. Secretary Clarence Starr is in receipt of letters from a number of business men at Montezuma and Prairie City assuring him that when the proposed line of road is completed to those towns the merchants will give it the refusal of a large part of the shipping business at both places. Mr. Starr states that his company is receiving great encouragement from stock shippers and merchants at Montezuma, Williamsburg, Prairie City, Iowa City and all points adjacent to the Rock Island.

Lucas County Murder Mystery.

Chariton, Oct. 18.—The friends of Joseph Buchanan, the man who was found Saturday morning near Columbia with his head cut open and a bloody ax lying by his side, are taking steps to ferret out the mystery of his death. Columbia friends have already raised $600 to apply on a reward for the conviction of the murderer. They expect the county board of Marion county to offer an additional reward, and G. R. Dawson, of Columbia, a close friend of the murdered man, is in Des Moines endeavoring to get the governor to offer an additional reward. They expect to have a reward of $1,200 offered for the conviction of the guilty party. The man Buchanan is now known to have had $600 in his cabin at the time of his murder.

Cuts Down Prosecutions.

Des Moines, Oct. 18.—Advices received from officials of the federal court now in session at Keokuk show that Judge Smith McPherson is continuing his strict crusade against the bootleggers in this district, and that he intends putting an end both to the wholesale prosecutions of petty bootleggers and other offenders as well. Judge McPherson sprung a good sized sensation on convening the federal court at Keokuk this week by his instructions to the grand jury and his outlining of the new policy to cut down the number of preliminary hearings and of indictments, and then deal summarily with the offenders who have been adjudged guilty in all the branches of the court and are taken before the judge for sentence.

Hold-up at Fort Dodge.

Fort Dodge, Oct. 19.—Two masked robbers entered the saloon of Dave Fitzgerald five minutes before closing time. Both held large revolvers, and compelled seven patrons to line up with their faces toward the wall, while one man leaped over the bar and secured the contents of the secured the contents of the money drawer, amounting to $70. The tall man then leaped from behind the counter and both men backed out the front door. The whole affair was over in two minutes, and no clue left.

COURT HITS TAX-DODGING.

Juggling of Books Cannot Prevent Assessments.

Des Moines, Oct. 21.—The supreme court has rendered a decision in a case involving the assessment and taxation of a branch bank, which will be of interest to every banker of the state and to the assessors. The court set its foot down on the juggling of the books so as to shift the assessable value of property from one place to another. The case decided was that of the Farmers' Loan and Trust company of Sioux City, which has fifteen or twenty branch banks in Iowa and Nebraska, and the appeal came from Pocahontas county on account of trouble over the assessment in Fonda. The assessor did not get a satisfactory statement from the officers of the branch bank, but finally assessed the property at $40,000. He included about $50,000 of notes which had been taken in at the bank in the ordinary course of business. A short time before the assessor came around these notes were taken to Sioux City and afterward transferred to Pemsen to the credit of the branch bank there. The bankers claimed the bank at Fonda should not be taxed on this $50,000. The supreme court decided the assessor did right in including this property which had been sent to Pemsen, as the only effect of the transfer was to leave the Fonda branch bank with a smaller amount of notes on hand and a larger credit at the parent bank. "The state," says the court, "evidently contemplates the assessment of a branch bank with reference to the capital which the parent institution invests and uses in running such bank and such other moneys and credits as the branch may have accumulated in its business. Whatever may be the form of the assets of the branch bank they are to be subject to taxation as the property of a private banker would be." The lower court added a penalty of 100 per cent to the assessable value of the bank property for the refusal of the bank to make proper return of its assets, and this penalty will stand. But the lower court went further and raised the assessment, which the supreme court decides is all wrong, and with the assessment as fixed by the assessor the case is affirmed. The original assessment was for $40,000.

MARRIAGE IS A CONSIDERATION.

Agreement of Third Party as Inducement to Marriage Can Be Enforced.

Des Moines, Oct. 21.—The supreme court, by affirming the case, Amy L. Wright vs. E. H. Wright, appealed from Ottumwa, declares that the agreement of a third person, not a party to a marriage, made as an inducement to said marriage, can be enforced in law.

Defendant, a wealthy farmer, agreed in advance of the wedding that his son should marry her and support her child; that in event of his son failing to provide for them property he would guarantee a comfortable home for them for five years. The marriage accordingly took place and the son of E. H. Bright lived with plaintiff and child for two years, at which time he deserted her. The plaintiff then asked the defendant to support herself and child, as agreed. He refused to comply with the request, setting up as a defense that any contract is invalid as against public policy and that in this case there was a lack of consideration.

The lower court gave a verdict of $450, which was at the rate of $5 per week. The plaintiff had asked for $7 per week.

In affirming the lower court, the supreme court says the promise of a third party, as an inducement to two others to marry, is not contrary to public policy and that the marriage itself constituted a valuable consideration.

POLK COUNTY COURT HOUSE.

Controversy Finally Settled by the Supreme Court.

Des Moines, Oct. 18.—The supreme court, on second appeal, has decreed in effect that the $500,000 court house that is to be erected by Polk county shall be erected on the site of the old structure. The court affirmed the decision of Judge Bishop in the case of J. H. Windsor vs. Polk county, the board of supervisors and Treasurer McKay. This is an action brought in the lower court to compel the board of supervisors to canvass a petition rescinding the action of the county in voting $400,000 bonds for the erection of a new court house, to restrain the sale of unsold bonds, the use of proceeds accruing from the sale of those already marketed, in the construction of a court house and the levying of a tax for the payment of bonds issued for this purpose.

Whether or not the McGrew or rescission petition had properly come before the board was the vital question, and the supreme court, in affirming Judge Bishop in this matter, left no grounds for an injunction.

The decision removes all barriers from the construction of a court house on the old site and eliminates every obstacle in the way of beginning the erection of the new building. Work on the latter will begin at once. Every ruling of the lower court was upheld, leaving no possible grounds for the river fronters to continue the controversy.

Woman Burned to Death.

Cedar Falls, Oct. 18.—Fire, started by a gasoline stove, burned Mrs. Broder Anderson to death and destroyed the residence. An effort was made to rescue the woman, but she was hemmed in by flames and could not be reached.

NEWS IN GENERAL

SCHLEY COURT OF INQUIRY

Washington, Oct. 16.—Only one new witness was heard in detail by the Schley court of inquiry yesterday. This was Lieutenant Commander James H. Sears, who was Admiral Schley's flag lieutenant during the Spanish war. He gave a detailed account of the entire Cuban campaigu, including the brief siege of Cienfuegos, the retrograde movement of the flying squadron in search of coal, the blockade of Santiago, the reconnaissand the bombardment of the Cristobol Colon May 31, and the battle off Santiago July 3, when Cervera's fleet was destroyed. He expressed the opinion that in the battle of July 3 it had been the Viscaya's intention to ram the Brooklyn.

Mr. Rayner sought to secure the introduction of the brief report of the battle of July 3, which Commodore Schley prepared for transmission to the secretary of the navy. It was stated that Commodore Sears had taken this dispatch ashore to be cabled to the secretary but that it never had reached that official.

The dispatch was ruled out on the ground that as it was not received it was not an official communication.

Washington, Oct. 17.—The officers of Admiral Schley's flagship, the Brooklyn, occupied the attention of the Schley court of inquiry for the entire day yesterday. The proceedings began with the recall of Captain Cook and Lieutenant Commander Sears, both of whom made material additions to their former testimony, and they were followed in succession by Commander N. F. Mason, who was executive officer of the Brooklyn; Lieutenant Edward McCauley Jr., who was signal officer, and Lieutenant Charles Webster, who had charge of the forward gun battery of the Brooklyn during the battle off Santiago and was a watch officer on board that ship.

Captain Cook's new testimony related to the uncoupling of the Brooklyn's engines and to the voyage of the flying squadron from Cienfuegos to Santiago, explaining in some detail the cause of the slow progress made on that occasion.

Commander Sears spoke again of the conversation as having taken place between himself and the officers of the Massachusetts in the wardroom of that vessel on May 31, in which he was alleged to have said that it had been difficult to get Commodore Schley up to the point of undertaking the bombardment of the Colon, and he again denied that he had said anything reflecting upon his superior officer.

Commander Mason and Lieutenants McCauley and Webster all gave accounts of the engagement of July 3. Mr. McCauley related in detail the signals made in connection with that historical engagement at the instance of Commodore Schley. When asked if Commodore Schley had said anything during the battle for the encouragment of the men, this witness replied: "Give 'em hell, bullies." All these witnesses testified that the conduct of the commodore when under fire was cool and courageous.

Washington, Oct. 18.—The presentation of Admiral Schley's side of the controversy was continued before the Schley court of inquiry yesterday, eight witnesses being examined. Of these five were ensigns, and the entire eight had served on board the Brooklyn with Admiral (then commodore) Schley.

The first of the day's witnesses was Lieutenant Charles Webster who had begun his testimony Wednesday. He was followed by Lieutenant Commander T. D. Griffin, who had charge of the powder division on the Brooklyn during the fight off Santiago, and was succeeded by Ensigns C. A. Abele, John Haligan, Jr., Ulysses S. Macy, James M. Hand and Ralph N. Marble. The last witness of the day was Medical Director Paul Fitzsimmons, who was chief surgeon of the flying squadron.

While Ensign Haligan was on the stand, Mr. Rayner sought to bring out information as to the position of the American ships in sight at the beginning of the battle of July 3, but Judge Advocate Lemly objected on the ground that the question was intended to show the absence of the New York, and the interrogatory was withdrawn. Ensign Marble stated that he had heard Captain Sigsbee tell Commodore Schley, when he came aboard the Brooklyn on May 26, that the Spaniards were not at Santiago.

Concerning Miss Stone's Case.

New York, Oct. 21.—Concerning the case of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the missing missionary, Rev. George D. Marsh cables the Journal and Advertiser from Samokov: "After twenty-nine years of experience in Bulgaria, during which I won the sobriquet of 'Bulgarian atrocity,' my knowledge leads me to believe they are widely dispersed and Miss Stone is quietly sequestered in some mountain village, of which the villagers, partly in sympathy, partly in fear, would scorn to tell the authorities. Modern brigands are sorry successes. They are chivalrous cut-throats who believed if they touched a damsel they would die in a Turkish prison. A Turkish minister is credited with the flippant, though, expressive, saying, 'The kidnaping of another American woman would bankrupt the Ottoman empire.'"

It takes a girl to understand her father! it takes a father not to understand his boy.

BOERS REACH THE SEA.

Commando of Five Hundred Men Penetrates a Rich Country.

Capetown, Oct. 18.—The invaders have reached the sea, a commando of 500 men having penetrated through the rich great Berg river valley to Hopefield and Saldanha bay, northwest of Capetown. The republicans have secured a number of recruits and considerable quantities of supplies. General French is directing operations against them.

Capetown, Oct. 18.—In a brief fight at Twenty-four Streams, near Piquetberg, yesterday, Captain Bellew and four other British were killed and several others wounded. The British having surprised several camps, the Boers are now in the habit of shifting camps by night. Lately the British columns, after long night marches, have arrived at their objectives only to find the Boers gone. British columns penetrating into the Orange Rivery colony miles from railways find fields of maize and freshly plowed lands, the Boers making off at their approach and returning when the columns pass on. The herds on the high veldt still seem to be numerous. The Boers are living on cattle and mealies stored in out-of-the-way places.

DUMONT MAKES THE TRIP

He Rounds the Eiffel Tour With His Airship.

Paris, Oct. 21.—M. Santos-Dumont, who has made several unsuccessful attempts with his airship to win the 100,000 francs offered by Mr. Deutsch for a successful aerial machine, tried again Saturday at St. Cloud.

He started at 2:42 p. m., rose 250 yards and then pointed for the Eiffel tower, the balloon going in a straight line. It was seen through field glasses to arrive at the tower and round it. The time up to that point, with the wind in the balloon's favor, was eight minutes and forty-five seconds. It returned against the wind and made slower headway but still kept in the true direction for St. Cloud, which it reached in the total of twenty-nine minutes and fifteen seconds. But instead of descending immediately, Santos-Dumont made a broad sweep over the Aero club grounds, with the result that another minute and twenty-five seconds were consumed before the workmen seized the guide rope. Thus, technically, Santos-Dumont exceeded the time limit by forty seconds.

Santos-Dumont claims he won the prize because he reached the park within the time and that the original rules governing the contest made no mention of having touched the ground within the thirty minutes.

The dispute is due to the action of the committee, which, some time ago, modified the terms of the contest by inserting the latter stipulation. Santos-Dumont at the time protested and declared today that he considered that he had won the prize and would not try again.

GENERAL DEWET REPORTED DEAD

Story Contracted by Cornet DeVilliers, Who Says He Left Dewet Well.

Durban, Natal, Oct. 21.—General De Wet's recent inactivity has produced the impression among military men that he is either dead or incapacitated through illness or wounds. According to a letter from Pretoria a prominent Boer recently wrote to a friend there relating the hardships suffered by the Boers in the field, especially from a lack of surgeons.

"De Wet, for example," wrote this Boer, "suffered the most terrible agony before he died. He was wounded in the shoulder by a splinter from a shell and the wound gangrened in consequence of it being dressed with dirty rags."

Five Boers captured at different places recently said De Wet was dead, but gave different versions of his death. Against these reports is a statement of Piet de Villiers, the field cornet recently taken prisoner in the northeastern part of the Orange river colony, who said that on the morning of his capture he took breakfast with De Wet.

The Scourge of Damascus

A Story of the East...

By SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

Copyrighted 1891 by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER XV.—(Continued.)

"I hope you have rested well," said the chief, approaching the princess.

"I have slept, sir," she replied, trembling as she looked into his dark face.

"Then you are ready to resume your saddle. We will ride before the heat of the noonday sun is upon us."

"You will not claim us for companions further, I trust."

"Only while our roads lay together, lady. Surely you cannot object to that."

"But I wish to go to the bank of the Pharaphar."

"Just as I expected; so I shall not be disappointed. Your horses are ready. I will have them brought this way."

The guard had already been placed upon a horse and Ulin saw them binding him to a saddle. What did this mean?

Hardly knowing what she did, Ulin suffered herself to be lifted into the saddle; and in a few moments more Albia was by her side.

"Why have you bound Shubal to his seat?" she asked.

"That he may ride safely. He is a bungling fellow, and might tumble off if he were not secured. But don't let that worry you."

CHAPTER XVI.

The Strange Horseman.

At this moment the guard came near to the place where his mistress sat, his horse having moved of his own accord, and as she turned towards him he spoke to her:

"My dear good lady, they lie to you when they tell you that they mean you no harm. I have heard them talk and I know their plans. We are all to be sold into slavery in the kingdom beyond the Syrian desert!"

"Mercy!" cried Ulin, turning pale as death and clasping her hands in agony. "O, my dream! my dream!"

"Easy, fair lady," said Al Abbas. "This black rascal knows not what he says. I allowed him to speak so that I might see how his mind ran."

"It is false," exclaimed Shubal. "I heard them lay the plan. You, my mistress, are to be sold for a—"

The guard's speech was stopped by two of the robbers, who threw him back upon his horse, and stopped his mouth with their hands.

"Sir robber," cried Ulin, stretching her hands out towards him, "deceive me no more. I think my poor slave has told me the truth."

"A pest upon the slave, lady! His tongue shall come out by the roots if he speaks again without my leave. Stick to your saddle, and keep up your courage."

As the Arab spoke he leaped upon the back of his horse, and ere the princess could ask another question, the party was upon the move, the order of arrangements being the same as before.

"We are not going towards the Pharphar," said Ulin.

"No," replied Albia. "We are going the other way."

"Then Shubal told us the truth."

"Alas, dear mistress, I dare not say."

"But you think so?"

"I cannot deny it."

"And you thought so before you heard Shubal speak?"

"I feared something of the kind."

Al Abbas overheard the girls as they thus conversed, and he was presently by their side.

"Lady Ulin," he said, and he spoke sternly and sharply; "you are now on the move, and when you stop again it will be far away from Damascus. I owe something to the officers of that city, and I will repay a part of the debt by taking you away from them. You are to go just as far as I please to take you; and the more quietly you go the better it will be for you; so you had better begin to accommodate yourself to the circumstances."

He rode back to his place and Ulin grasped the bow of her saddle for support.

"Courage," said Albia, riding as near as she could. "There may be some way to escape. The good spirits will not desert us."

The princess heard the words, and they had a marked effect upon her. She had naturally a strong resolution, and when she was once resolved to bear up, her strength was not long in coming to her assistance. On the present occasion she knew that she had heard the worst. In fact, she had reason to believe that her captor meant for her the most dreadful fate to which one in her station could be subject. For a while she was completely stunned by the fearful blow; but as she came to reason with herself, she saw that her only hope was in escape. The Arabs were low, brutal and sordid, and would sell her for gold. She could read in their evil faces that they were not to be touched by sympathy. What then could she do? She must get away from them. And if this was to be done she must summon all her energies to the work.

But, alas! the case looked hopeless enough; what could two weak girls do against such odds? Only some interposition beyond their own efforts could save them. So, after all, if help was to come, it must come from some unknown source. And could such help be found? If fervent prayers could be answered, and if the most holy need could be met, it might be hoped for.

At the end of some two or three hours the party came to a thick grove of palms; near which was a spring, and here they stopped just long enough to water the horses. They had started on again, and were at some little distance from the grove, when one of the Arabs who rode in the rear, came forward and informed his leader that a horseman was following them. Al Abbas looked back and saw that the stranger was a black, and that he rode a swift and powerful horse.

"He wishes to overtake us," said the fellow who had come from the rear.

"Then he must ride for it," returned the chief. "I cannot stop. I wonder where he came from."

"When I first saw him, he seemed to have just emerged from the grove."

In a short time the strange horseman had come so near that the light of his eyes could be seen, and Al Abbas saw that he must soon overtake them; so he concluded to drop behind and find out what was wanted, evidently desiring that the men should not see what manner of prizes he had in charge, at least until his character was known. The robbers were directed to slacken their speed a little, but to keep on their course, and having given this order, the chief turned his horse's head and rode back; and ere long he was within speaking distance of the stranger, who proved to be a stout, well-made man, with a face as black as night.

"Hallo!" cried Al Abbas, reining in his horse. "Who are you?"

"I am king of this plain," replied the African, at the same time reining in his own horse; "and I have come out to see who thus trespasses upon my domain. Who are you "

The Arab hesitated in his answer, as he supposed the black must be crazy.

"Who are you, and what sort of company do you lead?" cried the African.

"I lead my own company; and if you want anything, come and get it," answered the Arab.

"I want nothing but to know who you are; and the next time you come this way, be sure and stop again at the grove of the date-palms. I will have a banquet prepared for you."

Thus speaking, the stranger wheeled his horse in a broad circle, and started back towards the place whence he had come.

Al Abbas rode back to his party, and when they asked him what manner of man he had met, he replied that it was only a poor crazy fool, who imagined that he owned the broad plain upon which they were traveling.

"He is worth capturing," suggested one of the robbers.

"We could not capture him if we would," said the chief. "He rides a better horse than we own."

While the Arabs were gazing back after the retiring horseman Albia drew close to the side of her mistress and spoke, quickly and excitedly:

"Did you recognize him?"

"Whom?"

"The crazy man who followed us."

"No."

"It was Osmir!"

"Osmir!"

"Hush! Not a word. As sure as I live it was Osmir; and be assured we have help at hand."

"But he has gone."

"Aye, for he only came out to see who we were. Be sure he has recognized us."

Ulin felt her heart bound up with springing hope; and her next prayer was uttered with returning faith in heaven's protecting power.

CHAPTER XVII.

By the Banks of the Pharphar.

Half an hour after Al Abbas had resumed his place at the head of his troop, the same robber who had before come from the rear, again rode to the front, this time bringing intelligence that a number of horsemen were pursuing them. The chief drew his horse aside and looked back, and saw four men coming. They were well mounted, and seemed to be in hot pursuit.

"There is something more than accident in this," said Al Abbas. "The fellow is with them who followed us before."

"Two of those men are white," remarked the robber who had ridden up from the rear. "What can they want of us?"

"Never mind," returned the chief. "If they want us, let them catch us. And if, beyond that, they want more, let them make their wants known."

Thus speaking, the Arab leader resumed his place, and urged his horses forward with increasing speed. Ever and anon he cast his eyes behind him, and it was ere long evident that the strangers were rapidly gaining upon him.

"We may as well stop now as at any time," said Al Abbas, addressing the man who rode by his side. "I will halt and ascertain what these fellows want. It is about time our horses had a breathing spell."

At a simple order from their chief, the Arabs wheeled their horses in a circle, bringing up in line, facing their pursuers, with their prisoners in the rear.

"Who are you that thus pursues and stops me?" demanded Al Abbas.

"I am Julian, the Scourge of Damascus!" replied the foremost of the opposite party.

At the sound of that name the Arab trembled, for he knew that no king's officer had been more persistent in driving petty robbers from the plains of Damascus than had Julian. But presently he recovered himself, seeming to think that, were the man's assertion true, the opposing force was not strong enough to be feared.

"If you be Julian," he cried, "you have come forth with a small retinue. But what seek you?"

"I have come to take from you those prisoners that you hold. Deliver them up to me, and I will trouble you no more."

"And suppose that I should refuse to do any such thing?"

"Then I should be forced to take them from you. As I address you, I recognize who you are. If I am not greatly mistaken, you are Al Abbas, the Arab—a villain who lives by robbing women and old men."

"Now, by the blood of Cush!" exclaimed Al Abbas, drawing his sword and urging his horse forward, "I'll make you feel another thing the Arab robber can do! What, ho, my men! Down with these rascals!"

In a moment the Arabs were ready for action, and hurried forward to strike with their leader.

As soon as Shubal found his guard gone, he called to Albia to come and set him free.

"Cut these cords," he cried, "and I may be of some help in this affair. Merciful heaven, is not this the work of a good spirit!"

The bondmaiden was not long in setting him free from his saddle, and as soon as he was clear he sprang forward to where the ring of clashing steel had already broke upon the air.

With something like a smile of disdain upon his handsome features did Julian behold the approach of the Arabs, while Hobaddan, who sat close by his side, looked grim and stern Osmir and Selim drew to the front as the token of battle was given, and their cool, determined bearing, plainly showed that they were foemen not to be despised. Al Abbas rode directly for the youthful chieftain, with his sword ready for the stroke; but he had mistaken his man, if he thought to touch any vulnerable point. Julian knocked his weapon up, and quickly drove him from his horse; and then, seeking to make quick work of it, and feeling no great sympathy for woman-stealers, he simply rode the Arab leader down, cleaving open his head as he fell.

Shubal was close at hand when Al Abbas dropped, and quickly as possible he possessed himself of the fallen man's sword, and was just in season to join in the conflict as three of the Arabs had attacked Julian. The young chieftain struck down one of them by a winding blow across the bare neck, but he might have had severe work with the other two had not help arrived; for the rascals were strong, and the death of their leader had given them new impulse to conquer. It was not the impulse of revenge. No, no. The death of Al Abbas left more gold for those who survived. But the unexpected arrival of the freed slave upon the scene gave a new turn to the tide. One of the Arabs he struck down from behind, and the other one alone proved no match for the stalwart chieftain.

In the meantime Hobaddan, with Osmir and Selim, had disposed of the others. Two they had slain, and two had taken to flight.

"I have played a desperate game and I have lost," remarked the stage villain just before his final disappearance. "But you are a darn sight better off than we are," murmured a tired looking man in the front row; "we paid money to get in."

Des Moines, Oct. 21, 1901.

In the biennial period, 1899-1900 there were 646 cases of smallpox in Iowa, according to the report of Secretary J. F. Kennedy, of the state board of health just filed with Governor Shaw and 4,148 cases in the biennial period 1900-1901. In the first period there were deaths in twelve cases and thirteen deaths in the last period. Altogether there were 4,794 cases and 25 deaths. Secretary Kennedy is of the opinion that the smallpox of this winter will not be more extensive or more deadly than that of the last two years. But six counties in the state escaped epidemics of the disease in the last four years. They were Delaware, Grundy, Jackson, Mills, Louisa and Warren. Hamilton county suffered the worst during the quadrennium, having 433 cases; Appanoose had 395; Guthrie, 228; Webster, 204; Boone, 216; Monona, 181; Wapello, 137; Humboldt, 156; Marshall, 116; Benton, 135; Cass, 107; while none of the other counties had to exceed 100 cases. Deaths occurred as follows: Lyon county, 4; Cass, Jefferson, Poweshiek, 2 each; Appanoose, Benton, Buena Vista, Cerro Gordo, Davis, Fremont, Henry, Lucas, Marshall, Monona, Plymouth, Scott, Story, Wright, 1 each.

The Des Moines, Iowa Falls and Northern Railroad company has filed a trust deed to the Colonial Trust company of New York, conveying its property to secure a bond issue. This is the company that is now engaged in the construction of a railroad between Des Moines and Iowa Falls. The deed matures in thirty years and provides for an issue of bonds at the rate of $16,000,000 per mile, the bonds to be delivered by and the money turned over to the railroad company as fast as the road is completed. It is understood that arrangements have been made for financing the entire road, together with extensions that may be made beyond Iowa Falls in conformity with the plan of the company to build eventually to Osage. The company has now completed and has in operation a line ten miles out o. Iowa Falls and will be operating trains to a junction with the Milwaukee road this fall. Next spring it is intended to complete the road to Berwick, from which point trains will be operated into Des Moines over the Chicago Great Western tracks until such a time as the company can secure an adjustment of differences encountered in securing right of way into Des Moines.

The annual report of the civil engineer, Charles Francis, to the state board of health has been filed with Governor Shaw. It says that St. Louis can have no complaint against Chicago on account of the sewage that passes by St. Louis via the canal, the Illinois river and the Mississippi, for St. Louis is emptying her sewage into the Mississippi to be carried on down by other cities. He asserts, however, that such a method of disposing of sewage is "wholly wrong, and, as it is entirely unnecessary in that section, it is very nearly criminal." Engineer Francis predicts that eventually cities will be compelled by federal statutes to keep their sewage out of rivers. His solution of the problem would be the establishment of filtration plants. For Davenport, a typical city of 40,000, which disposes of its sewage by sewers entering the Mississippi and her garbage by dumping it by boat into the current of the river, he would buy 120 acres accessible and at a reasonable price. In sixty acres he would establish eight filter beds of seven and one-half acres each. This would enable each bed to work one day and rest seven. The plant would filter and dispose of the sewage of a city of 60,000 people indefinitely. The effluent from the beds would be almost pure water. The other sixty acres of the farm he would irrigate with the rich sewage and use for truck gardening, the revenues from which would support the sewage disposal plant.

Auditor of State Merriam has completed the first accurate footings of the assessment of property in Iowa for this year. The total is $558,508,269. The total assessment is divided as follows and compared with 1900:

Realty	$405,590,185	$393,250,888
Personalty ...	104,030,797	98,856,185
Railroads and sleeping cars	47,325,452	46,191,693
Telegraphs and telephones	1,300,248	1,206,982
Express	261,587	244,976

Last year the total assessment was $539,753,759. In 1899 the total was $520,653,905.

The state law required the executive council to fix such a tax levy in mills this year as would raise $1,500,000 next year on the assessment of this year. The council recently fixed the levy at 2.7 mills. This will raise $1,507,972.

The State Epworth League convention will be held at Hampton November 21 to 24.

Taunting Boy Is Punished.

Dubuque, Oct. 21.—Because of a dare which made him the target for an air gun, Willie Robinson, a ten-year-old boy, has lost the sight of an eye. He was taunting Glen Boyd about his shooting abilities, finally offering himself as a target. Boyd took deliberate aim and shot out an eye.

STORIETTES.

Bishop Philpotts of Exeter once went to stay with a friend in Devonshire. "It's a beautiful place, is it not?" remarked somebody upon his return. "Yes," said the bishop, "it is a beautiful place; if it were mine, I would pull down the house and fill up the pond with it. That would remove two objections."

Attorney Isidor Rayner, one of Rear Admiral Schley's counsel in the court of inquiry, was once interrupted by Thomas B. Reed while making a speech in favor of a reduction of the tariff, with the remark: "Did not the gentleman hear my speech Saturday?" "No," replied Rayner, "I was at home preparing a speech of my own."

When Mark Twain lived in Buffalo he made the acquaintance of some neighbors under peculiar circumstances. Emerging from his house one morning, he saw something which made him run across the street, and remark to the people who were gathered on the veranda: "My name is Clemens; my wife and I have been intending to call on you and make your acquaintanre. We owe you an apology for not doing it before now. I beg your pardon for intruding on you in this informal manner, and at this time of day, but your house is on fire!"

Mrs. Dyer's Heart.

McCarron, Mich., Oct. 21.—In April last the sensational case of Mrs. Samuel G. Dyer of this place was reported in these columns. Mrs. Dyer has suffered for years with a very bad case of Heart Trouble and was cured in a few weeks by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Since then Mrs. Dyer has received hundreds of inquiries as to her condition and many may be interested to hear that she is at present enjoying the best of health and has not had the slightest return of the Heart Trouble.

Formerly she had to sit up in bed for hours to get relief; now she goes about as smartly as any lady of 62 years in the State. Dodd's Kidney Pills have made many friends in Chippewa County through their cure of Mrs. Dyer's case, and have proven beyond doubt that their cures are not only very complete, but absolute and permanent.

True Republicanism.

One of the most inspiring incidents connected with the present campaign in Iowa is, the unswerving loyalty and patriotic devotion accorded to Hon. A. B. Cummins throughout the state, by all and singular the rank and file of the Grand Old Party. From Lansing to Council Bluffs, and from Burlington to Sioux City, enthusiastic hozannas daily float out upon the air "Hurrah! For A. B. Cummins!" And this is all the more remarkable from the fact, that up to the very hour of his nomination at Cedar Rapids. not only were our "friends the enemy" joyously felicitating themselves at the prospect of permanent disruption of the Republican organization, but our party brethren all over this broad Union were fearful that the disensions within our ranks would ultimately prove fatal to our future solidarity. But, with a spontaneity most stunning to all observors, the units of our lately distraught party have co e together absolutely, and are now teaching the astonished world that Iowa republicans are "all wool and yard wide," and from outer skin to inner marrow are not only truly loyal to the party's dearest principles and cherished traditions, but are equally true and loyal to the party's nominees, come from whatever wing or faction they may, and that instead of for one moment endangering our grand state's proud potentiality in the affairs of the nation and of the world, the moment the die was cast in that magnificent conclave in Cedar Rapids, all the fragments of our party unified instantly and became a "One and inseperable phalanx" faced about to meet the common opposition with not a kicker, not a backbiter seen or heard anywhere among them, from the loved and trusted Captains of the "Old Guard" down to the rearmost private in the most obscure ranks.

Since the misfortune occurred that swept out of existence the late Garner Herald, this writer has frequently been asked if we would support Mr. Cummins, the querists no doubt having in mind the fact that the Herald had strongly opposed his nomination. To all such questions we have always replied affirmatively. and sincerely so. Such is now and has always been the exemplification of our idea of party fealty and loyalty. Whatever opposition we felt to the nomination of A. B. Cummins ceased and determined the moment the assembled cohorts of our party leaders decided in state convention that he should be our standard bearer. The fiat of that convention at once became our political code. And the purpose of this writer is to here and now take advantage of the first opportunity that has presented itself since that convention to say to our hundreds of former readers of the Garner Herald in Hancock county, that no odds what personal pique or opinions obtain within you, arising from the ante-convention campaign, it is now your duty, and let us hope your pleasure, the same as it is ours, to give to Mr. Cummins and the entire state and county republican ticket your undivided and unselfish support. It is along such lines and in such manner that the Grand Old Party of our revered sires attained its dominating eminence and prestige in both state and nation. And, taking our glorious past as a criterion of the roseate future, none should be so bigoted, none so thoughtless and none so selfish as to detract one jot or tittle from the magnificence of a victory for the head of our ticket at the polls, that is so indisputably proper to award to the banner bearer selected for us by our state convention. It is incumbent upon us as a party to rall to the support of A. B. Cummins in November with the same vim, vigor and enthusiasm as ever we did to the support of Hon. Jno. H. Gear, when he aspired to vault himself into the proud niche which he occupied in the zenith of his noble career. When that has been done, the republican party of Iowa in 1904 and for a generation thereafter will have become if possible more than ever the grand and invincible arbiter of our State's peerless future, the same as it has been the proud architect of her peerless past.

Britt Tribune. We are in receipt of an advertising contract rom a catalogue house offering us an arm chair in exchange for advertising and $3 75 cash. It is very liberal (?) but on figuring up the space asked for the chair comes to $48 15 and as we can buy the same chair of Treganza or Johnson for $11, have been obliged to refuse the offer. Can it be possible that any paper will take such an ad. at such a price? And yet it must be, or they would not be sending out such contracts. Suckers must bite somewhere. We shall watch our exchanges and see if we can locate them. If we do we shall comment farther.

The TIMES received the same proposition and likewise turned it down. As to the sucker business, we think that's easy. The chair is a reclining chair and a picture of the same is sent with the proposition to catch the lazy "prints" found in some places and the chair looks so "comfortable like" that the party aforesaid bites at once, if he has the required $3.75, which sum is probably about the actual cost of manufacturing the chair.

THE KIMBALL

is the most desirable Piano to purchase from every point of view.

The world's greatest musicians praise it's tone and action.

Experts say its mechanical construction is perfect.

It is manufactured in factories more than double the size and out put of any like institution in the world.

It is sold direct to the people at one fair factory margin, without the added profits of middlemen and eastern branch houses.

It is the best piano value in the world.

School Notes.

Music is the new study which is being taken up by the whole school. It seems odd at first but we hope the oddness will soon wear off. The organ has been taken to Prof. Suckow's room to benefit the pupils in that room.

The first school bell is now rung fifteen minutes before nine also fifteen minutes before one so as to cause no mix or forgetting among the pupils.

The A class in Prof. Suckow's room has taken up Physical Geography and they find it a nice and interesting study.

Of the 19 scholars enrolled at the end of last, only 8 are enrolled this fall.

Bertha Willard a former pupil of this school, has enrolled in the grammar room.

We have four pupils who are taking the graduating course, and they expect to receive their diplomas at the end of the school year.

"Continual Stick-to-itiveness" is our motto.

The class in economics are wrestling with the capital E labor question,

ROOM II.

Room 2 had two new pupils Monday, making a total enrollment of thirty one.

Henry Lewis is absent from school this week.

Helen Dulitz and Hugo Neef entered school Monday.

Glen Phelps is again in school after his few weeks visit in Algona.

PRIMARY.

The new pupils in the Primary room are Martha Mata and Emrald Murhlmeir, Claude and Clara Waters, making a total enrollment of 48. Still there is more to follow.

There are fourteen pupils in the class of beginners.

Several new seats have been placed in the primary room.

Mrs. George Ferris of Harrisburg Hollow, near Bath, N. Y., strained her vocal cords about a year ago while calling her farm hands to dinner, and entirely lost her voice. From that time she became mute, and so continued until a short time ago, when her dentist extracted two of her teeth. The pain was so intense that, as the second tooth came out, she yelled, "Oh, you mean man!" then she wept with joy when she realized that her voice had been so strangely restored."

Dr. J. J. Lafferty of Richmond, Va., possesses a remarkable cane. At the time of the burial of General Stonewall Jackson some one planted a twig upon the grave. It grew to be a sapling several inches in diameter. Friends of the Jackson family had it removed. They found that the root of the sapling had entwined itself about the skeleton. It was taken up and a cane was made of a part of it. This cane was artistically carved and given to Dr. Lafferty.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S QUEUE.

It Hid a Luxuriant Suit of Straight and Very Dark Hair.

The Father of his Country concealed a luxuriant suit of hair beneath his queue wig. Many now wish the old fashion were in vogue, to conceal thinned hair or baldness. Yet no one need have thin hair or be bald, if he cure the dandruff that causes both. Dandruff cannot be cured by scouring the scalp, because it is a germ disease, and the germ has to be killed. Newbro's Herpicide kills the dandruff germ—no other hair preparation will. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." There's no cure for dandruff but to kill the germ.

"Not Dangerous" or the Trials of a Poet—Old Si on Anarchists—How He Got Credit for a Dime—Found His Match—Tricked.

NOT DANGEROUS.

"I think I have discovered an anarchist," said an excited woman as she stopped a policeman on Cumberland street.

"What makes you think so?" was asked.

"Well, he's got long hair and wears old clothes."

"That's no sign, ma'am."

"And he drinks beer."

"So do I."

"And he gets out in his back yard and talks to himself and flings his arms about, and it makes shivers go over me to watch him."

"What does he say?" asked the officer with a little more interest.

"Why, sir, it's all about the cold, cold winter, and the white, white snow, and somebody who was laid in a grave."

"Ah! I see. He's no anarchist, ma'am—he's a poet. They always act that way."

"And he isn't dangerous?"

"Not a bit of it."

"And I needn't lock the doors and shiver when I hear him going on?"

"Not at all."

"Thank heaven that I met you! You don't know how you have relieved my mind. I shall go right back home now, and if he's out in his back yard talking about cold weather I'll even dare to ask him if he's eaten something to give him a pain!"—Brooklyn Citizen.

HOW HE GOT CREDIT FOR A DIME.

A suburban grocer was outwitted the other day by an old darky whom no one would ever suspect of being so shrewd. The negro went to his grocery and called for a dime's worth of molasses. The order was promptly filled by the proprietor of the store, who is seldom caught napping. Handing the old darky the jug the grocer asked for his dime.

"Hit's in de bottom of de jug," was the bland response.

"Well, how am I to get my money?" asked the astonished merchant.

"Yer gits yer money when us eats de 'lasec up."

It was credit the darkey was after, and he got it.—Memphis Scimitar.

FOUND HIS MATCH.

"Mr. Waffles," said the landlady, "I have a word to say to you." "Make it a dozen, Mrs. Fry," remarked the young man. "Mr. Waffles," said the landlady, "you have been smoking in the parlor." "Yes, Mrs. Fry." "You have smoked in the parlor many times, Mr. Waffles. And you have smoked in your room, and in the library and even in the dining room—and you owe me three weeks' board, Mr. Waffles." "Yes, Mrs. Fry." "Where there is so much smoke, Mr. Waffles, there must be some fire." So she fired him.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

REASON WHY.

"Dis heah measley man whut shot de president is wun er dem annykists, dey tells me?" said Old Si.

"That's what he says."

"Well, hit's high time dis nashun put up de bars 'ginst dem kin' ob beastes."

"How are you going to tell who is an anarchist and who isn't?"

"By dere names, boss, by dere berry names. Look at dish yer Chozzlegoshy man. Ef hit cums purty nigh puttin' yer jaw outer jint jest ter pronounce hiz name, whut yer reckon 'ud happen ef yer shud fall ober hit in de dark? TRICKED.

He—You owe me ten kisses! Pay up!

She—Explain, sir.

He—I won 'em! You know very well I wagered a dozen gloves against ten kisses and won! I—

She—Oh! but kisses, you know—

He (firmly)—Kisses should be paid just as religiously as any other debt.

She (thoughtfully)—Just the same as a note?

"Yes."

"Or a check?"

"Yes."

"Or—or a draft?'

"Certainly!"

"Then, you dear fellow, I'll give you a draft on mamma!"

(He never smiled again.)

Beyond Any Man.

"Are you the man who used to write articles about 'How to Live on Ten Dollars a Week'?" asked the caller of the pale gentleman with the bulging brow.

"I am he," responded the pale gentleman.

"Well, say, won't you give us one on 'How to Build a Thousand Dollar Cottage for Five Thousand Dollars'?"—Baltimore American.

NEW SET BACK IN SAMAR

Ten Members of the Ninth Regiment Are Killed.

Manila, Oct. 19.—Five hundred bolomen attacked a detachment of forty-six men of the Ninth infantry at Bangajon, on the Gandara river, island of Samar, yesterday, killing ten and wounding six. The remainder of the company arrived on the scene in time to prevent further slaughter, and routed the enemy, killing over a hundred of them.

It is believed that the enemy only retired for reinforcements. As soon as the news was received at Cathalogan two gunboats were dispatched, General Smith going in person to the scene.

Washington, Oct. 18.—The following brief cablegram was received from General Chaffee reporting the fight of the Ninth infantry in Samar Wednesday was received at the war department this afternoon:

"Manila, Oct. 18.—Corbin, Adjutant General, Washington: Forty-six men, Company E, Ninth regiment, Ninth United States infantry, under First Lieutenant George W. Wallace in field, lower Candara, Camar, were attacked by 400 bolomen October 16. Our loss: Ten killed, six wounded; names not received. Eighty-one of the enemy left dead on the field. Enemy beaten off. (Signed) Chaffee."

Inspection of the disposition made of the troops on the island of Samar shows that before the Balangiga fight there were no less than thirty-eight separate posts. These were so disposed that supplies could be conveyed to the troops by water. General Hughes has left Samar and gone to the island of Cebu to recuperate, which accounts for the assumption of command on Samar by General Smith. General Hughes was worn out and suffered from the effects of a severe fall received while chasing insurrectionists in the mountains of Samar.

SCHLEY COURT OF INQUIRY.

Washington, Oct. 19.—The list of witnesses examined yesterday included eight names, but the interrogation of the last witness called had not been concluded when the day came to a close. The last witness was Lieutenant B. W. Wells, Jr., who served during the war with Spain as Admiral Schley's flag lieutenant, or private secretary.

The other seven persons heard during the day were in the order in which they were called, Lieutenant Commander Reginald P. Nicholson, who was navigator of the Oregon; Medical Director Charles M. De Valnin, a surgeon; Capt. J. L. Hannum, retired, engineer; Lieutenant Thomas F. Carter, Ensign W. P. Cronin, Carpenter J. H. Warford, all having served on the Brooklyn, and J. L. Hanley, who was chief machinist on board the Texas.

Lieutenant Commander Nicholson told the story of the battle of July 3, as he saw it from the Oregon. He said the movements of the Oregon had not been controlled by signals from the Brooklyn, and he expressed the opinion that the Oregon was nearer the Colon than the Brooklyn was. Mr. Hanley said that the port engines of the Texas had not been stopped during thebattle of July 3.

From the line of the examination relating to the fight of July 3, already pursued, it is evident that it is the intention of Mr. Rayner to have Lieutenant Wells give a complete history of Admiral Schley's actions during the Spanish war. When the court adjourned he had reached the period of the battle of July 3, having gone quite minutely into other incidents of the campaign up to that time, including the receipts of dispatches from Admiral Sampson.

CASTRO LOSES TREASURE SHIP.

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, Oct. 20.—A fishing schooner just arrived from Aruba Island, northwest of Curacao, brings the story that the Arends, a Venezuelan schooner, bound from La Guayra for Maracaibo, carrying a sum of money from the government destined to pay the troops on the frontier—the amount being variously estimated at from two,000 to $100,000—encountered heavy weather last Sunday night off Aruba Island and foundered in deep water, the entire sum being lost. The crew, according to the story, reached the island in a boat.

The money is supposed to have been part of the sum raised in Caracas a fortnight ago from the Bank of Venezuela by President Castro. If it is, the government has sustained a heavy blow.

The sinking of the schooner was attended with certain suspicious circumstances. The weather Sunday night was calm and the captain of the Arends resided on Aruba Island. There are other minor details pointing to the possibility of collusion with outsiders to secure possession of the money.

Arrested for Alleged Murder.

Chariton, Oct. 21.—The officers have arrested Lee Whitloch for the murder of Joseph Buchanan, the hermit who was found in his cabin with his head cut open and a bloody ax lying by his side. Whitloch formerly worked for Buchanan and was familiar with his habits. He talked a great deal after his arrest, which led to the suspicion of another party as implicated and they went out last evening to arrest him.

1902.

A Kansas liquor seller, who was driven out of business by last winter's crusade, has started again at Lawton the Oklahoma boom town, and the motto for his new saloon is: "All nations welcome but Carrie."

There are always a few people in every small town who like to crack pale and emaciated jokes about their local paper. They like to ridicule it and laugh at it and hold it up for factious comparison with the metropolitan newspapers. They expect their home paper to lie for hem, and the only time when it is ridiculous is whe it does this. If these same people lived in a city the only way they could get their name in one of the big papers would be to go out and lie down in front of a street car or jump off a high building. They could become a fa her a dozen and one times or they could preside as chief mourner until they had enough crepe tied around their hats to lasso a horse, and they wouldn't get any co - solation out of their boasted city papers but a few misspelled names among the vital statistics.—Hubbard Monitor.

Ticket Forgery Must Stop.

Chicago Tribune, September 29, 1901:

The state authorities recorded yesterday what is said to be the first conviction for ticket forgery ever obtained in Cook county. Frank L. Rice and Jacob Wolf were the defendants found guilty, the penalty being imprisonmdnt in the penitentiary under the indeterminate law from one to fourteen years.

Rice is said to be a member of the ticket brokerage firm of Allardt & Co. 186 Clark Street, and suspicion was directed towards him in a peculiar way. Wolf was employed as an engraver in Detroit, Mich Rice hired Wolf to make plates of certain western roads which would be copies of tickets in use. Wolf's Detroit employer discovered what was being done and the Western Passenger Association was informed and investigated the matter, securing the evidence which led to his conviction.

About this time forged tickets of several western roads were being placed on the market. They were traced to Rice, and on July 26 the authorities searched the office of the brokers at 186 Clark Street and arrested Rice.

Henry J. Allardt, alleged partner of Rice and witness in his behalf, was instructed by the court to bring in a record book of the company. He failed to do so, and yesterday Judge Kavanaugh informed attorneys for the defense that they must have the man in court tomorrow morning to show why he should not be fined for contempt.

GREAT OPPURTUNITIES.

The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Norther Railway Company is nearing the completion of it's 140 miles of new extensions in the very richest portion of Southwestern Minnesota. The six new towns, Reading, Wilmont, Lismore, Kenneth, Waters and Conger are rapidly becoming commercial centers for the rich and already thickly settled country surrounding. There has been no "Auction sale of lots" or any attempt to "Boom" these towns; their growth being the result of a demand for convenient markets.

It is the purpose of the railway company to encourage the continuous substantial growth of the towns on their lines. In order that each town may receive the attention of "ownership," it has been decided to sell each town entire, including all unplatted land to private parties. For terms of such purchases, address the undersigned. For busine s openings or purchase of lots address the Town Lot Agent of the respective town.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have armed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actualy reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. "Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made as is now recognized as the only safe and posftive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease It cures all inflamation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to "Consumption—Snuffles will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure," Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Dollar. THE HOME GOLD CURE.

No Noxies Doses. No Weakening Nerves. A Pleasant and Posi- Cure for the Liquor Man.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors requires antidotes capable of neutratizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only and is so skillfull devised and prepared that it is perfectly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy and as many more have been made temporate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent or misleading 'improvement.' Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The Home Gold Cure is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar' thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 or $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. ARE YOU DEAF? ANY HEAD NOISES?

ALL CASES OF

by our new invention. Only those born deaf are incurable.

HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

BALTIMORE, Md., March 10, 1901.

Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of the city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever

I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain Very truly yours.

F. A. WERMAN, 730 S. Broadway, Baltimore, Md.

Much excitement prevails among pearl hunters at Taylor's Falls, Minn. John Emery found a shell in the river which contained a large pearl perfectly round and of that peculiar luster which makes it very valuable. Those who claim to know say it is the finest ever found in the west and is worth at least $2,000.

Outbreaks of typhoid and diphtheria of a most serious character have occurred at Belfast. In ten days 98 cases of typhoid, all of a severe type, were admitted to the hospital, the total under treatment being 254; while 19 cases of diphtheria had been admitted in two days. One nurse has died of typhoid and several others are ailing. The number of doctors and nurses is to be increased.

The singing of the favorite hymns of the late president was perhaps the most remarkable feature of the services held in memory of him, across the Atlantic as well as in his own land, in synagogue as well as in church. The circumstance shows that "Nearer, my God, to Thee' 'and "Lead, Kindly Light' express emotions that are felt in every religious heart, be the body that encloses it Jew or Gentile.

There was quite a sensation in Rutland square, Dublin, recently, when a Boer flag was found floating from the roof of the Orange Hall. How it got there is somewhat a mystery. It is surmised that some of the members, remembering that their patron of "glorious, pious and immortal" memory came of the same stock as the Boers, took this method of showing their sympathy with the burghers who are still in the field.

Owing to the incessant rains the river Judrio, which flows along the borders of Italy, Austria, and the district of the Friuli, overflowed its banks one night recently, inundating all the land, the surrounding towns of Romans, Medea and Varsa. Alarm bells were kept ringing, and the country people fled in haste to the towns, but eleven persons are reported to have been drowned, and much damage has been done to property and crops.

Sven Hedin has discovered a second Dead Sea in the Highlands of Thibet—a vast lake so impregnated with salt that indigenous life is out of the question. It was impossible for him to get his boat close to the shore, so that he and his companions had to wade out two boat lengths before she would float and this was sufficient to coat their legs and clothes thickly with salt. The entire bed of the lake appeared to consist of salt, and the density of the lifeless water was, of course, very high.

Jorevin de Rochefort, who published in Paris in 1671 an account of his travels in England, tells the following: "While we were walking about the town (Worcester) he asked me if it was the custom in France as in England that when the children went to school they carried in their satchel with their books a pipe of tobacco, which their mother took care to fill early in the morning, it serving them instead of breakfast, and that at the accustomed hour every one laid aside his book to light his pipe, the master smoking with them and teaching them how to hold their pipes and draw in the tobacco."

Lud Madison, who was to have been hanged at Parkersburg, W. Va., for murder recently, has been respited by Gov. White for sixty days. Madison claims that he has already been legally executed, and that it is not lawful to hang a man twice for the same offense. Two years ago he was sentenced to be hanged, but a stay of execution was granted, and the state supreme court granted him an appeal. Through an error, the records of the court in which he was convicted showed that he was executed instead of respited. Madison's lawyers claim that, according to the records, Madison is dead and cannot be lawfully hanged again. They will appeal the case to the Supreme Court of the United States.

At a regular meeting of Magnolia Lodge, Knights of Pythias of Sharpsburg, Md., resolutions were adopted denouncing United States Senator Wellington of Maryland, a member of the order, for the remarks he is alleged to have made in regard to the assassination of President McKinley, who was also a member of the Knights of Pythias. The resolutions declare that the remarks made by Senator Wellington were most disgraceful, unpatriotic and unbrotherly; that he violated the principles of the order, and that he is no longer fit to be a member. They conclude by demanding the senator's expulsion from the organization. Mountain City lodge, Knights of Pythias of Frederick, Md., passed similar resolutions.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

TAMA INDIANS IN SERIOUS DANGER

Smallpox Threatens to Work Havoc with the Tribe.

Des Moines, Oct. 28.—The state board of health has taken action respecting the outbreak of smallpox among the Tama Indians. Dr. A. M. Linn of this city, a member of the board, visited the tribe last week for the purpose of ascertaining the extent to which smallpox had taken hold among its members. The boards of health from Tama and Toledo had already examined into the facts. Dr. Linn found, as did the boards of health at those places, that smallpox existed in a malignant form. Five deaths have already taken place from the disease. It is supposed the entire tribe of about 500 Indians has been exposed. A part of the Indians have been vaccinated, but many of them are opposed to it. The state board of health is concerned over the spread of the disease to the white people living about Tama and Toledo, as the Indians object to quarantine. The state board of health is anxious to have rigid quarantine regulations enforced, and has recommended that a cordon of police be established by the local authorities about the reservation. For the purpose of avoiding any legal complications, in view of the fact the state has no jurisdiction over the reservation, it has been advised by the state board of health that the police be stationed on the land adjacent to the reservation and not on the reservation proper. The white people in the vicinity are much alarmed at the prospective spread of the disease.

MANY IOWANS ARE HURT.

Wreck on Burlington & Kansas City Near Exline.

Ottumwa, Oct. 25.—While rounding a curve at the terminus of a deep cut on the Chicago, Burlington & Kansas City railroad two miles east of Exline, a flag station between Moulton and Cincinnati, a rail lowered and ditched the combination baggage, express and mail car, the combination smoker and passenger coach and chair car. Considering the manner in which the cars piled up and the frightful leap they took down the forty-foot embankment it is miraculous that all the passengers were not instantly killed. Three or four were fatally injured and a dozen or fifteen more or less hurt.

Following is a list of Iowans injured so far as known:

Miss Sophie Peterson, Cedar Rapids, limbs broken, otherwise badly and probably fatally injured; H. C. Moore, Bloomfield, mail clerk, injured about the face and head; Mrs. Houly, wife of station agent at Bloomfield, arm and leg broken; Mary Corydon, J. F. Huffman and George Headly, Moulton; J. W. Hayes, Drakeville, and R. B. Browning, Keokuk. Owing to the fact that the injured are being cared for in farm houses near the scene of the wreck, the exact nature of their injuries cannot be learned.

GREAT BARN DESTROYED.

State College Experiment Station at Ames Suffers Loss.

Ames, Oct. 26.—The large experiment barn at the Iowa State college experiment station burned yesterday morning. The fire was discovered in the old building just north of the experiment barn at 12 o'clock. It quickly spread to the newer and larger structure, which burned rapidly, and at 2 o'clock the large barn had burned to the ground. The college hose company had some trouble in getting water on the fire on account of the distance of the barn from hydrants and the scarcity of hose. The Ames fire company went out on a special motor at 12:30 with a supply of hose and helped save the new judging pavilion and the large stock barns on the west. The building contained a hundred tons of hay, valued at $1,800, and about 1,000 bushels of grain, which was a total loss. A large amount of farm machinery was also ourned. The barn was built in 1894 and cost, with its equipment, about $5,000. In accordance with the policy of the state there was no insurance. The loss will probably reach $7,500.

MANY CHECKS ARE BOGUS.

Swindles Perpetrated in Numerous Iowa Towns.

Cedar Rapids, Oct. 25.—Secretary Dinwiddie of the State Bankers' association says that there is an epidemic of swindling by means of bogus checks at the present time and that many endorsers are being victimized. A party issuing checks signed J. C. Nichols, on the First National bank at Sioux City is the latest. He has secured money on these checks at Sheldon, Rock Valley, Spencer, Sanborn, Clear Lake and Waverly. All the checks thus far are signed by himself and have been made payable to Charles Gibbing. The checks are worthless. Other operators have secured money an worthless checks at Des Moines, Cedar Rapids, Oskaloosa, Corning and Omaha. Their method is to stay in a town a short time and induce some new found friend to endorse a bogus check.

Rock Island Cutoff.

Omaha, Oct. 28.—The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific road will let contracts next week for three million dollars worth of construction work on the cutoff from Eldon, Iowa, to Trenton, Mo. The new line will be thirty-five miles long and will be a reduction of thirty-five miles in distance from Chicago to the southwest. It will do away with numerous curves and grades.

BANKS TO PAY INTEREST

State Treasurer Gilbertson Makes a Recommendation.

Des Moines, Oct. 24.—In a letter to Governor Shaw, transmitting the financial report of the state treasurer for the biennial period ending June 30, 1901, State Treasurer G. S. Gilbertson recommends that a law be enacted authorizing the treasurer to deposit the funds of the state in such depository banks as will pay a reasonable rate of interest on the average daily or monthly balances. The recommendation is a decided departure from the position taken by any treasurer in former years, and if adopted means that the state would derive an annual income of from $10,000 to $12,000 from a source that at present yields no revenue.

During the period covered by the report the treasury has carried a monthly average balance of about $700,000 in the several depository banks of Des Moines permitted to receive such deposits. Mr. Gilbertson states that it is safe to assume that the balances in the future, or at least for many years to come, will average nearly as much if not more than they have for the last biennial period. He says that the state should derive some benefits from the balances and he accordingly makes the recommendation stated.

The letter of transmittal of the report does not enter into details as to what the system of charging interest should be, but Mr. Gilbertson stated in an interview that he believed a minimum rate of interest should be fixed by law, about one and a half per cent. This would bring in ten or twelve thousand dollars in interest annually. There is another expense to be taken in consideration, however, that would be incurred in the event the banks were required to pay interest on state deposits. That is the cost of the state treasurer's bond. The cost of a bond such as is required of the treasurer is greater, twice over than the salary paid to that official, which is $2,200.

The bond of State Treasurer Gilbertson is $800,000, and that of Deputy J. S. McQuiston is $150,000. The cost of guarantee bonds aggregating $950,000 is between $4,000 and $5,000. Under the present arrangement of allowing depository banks the use of state funds without the payment of interest, it has been the custom of the favored banks to provide the bond of the treasurer without cost to that official or to the state.

If a law is enacted requiring the banks to pay for the use of state funds it cannot be expected that they will provide the bond of the treasury officials. Neither can it be expected that the officials themselves will supply the bond unless one of a personal character is accepted. The plan that suggests itself is that the state by the bond.

The financial report of the treasurer covering general revenue shows that no interest-bearing indebtedness has existed at any time during the period, and the state's floating indebtedness has been reduced. Revenues have been increased, although that derived from direct taxation has been reduced. The following table shows the relative receipts of general revenue from the varous sources during the two last biennial periods:

	Period end. June 30, 1899.	Period end. June 30, 1901
From counties	$4,655,767.75	$3,939,323.12
Corporation tax	375,596.57	435,139.76
Fees for state officers	223,554.59	281,875.36
Collateral inheritance	52,799.52	196,464.54
State institutions	124,828.95	181,547.04
Miscellaneous receipts	246,855.91	95,709.72
Total	$5,079,403.29	$5,120,095.54

BAD FIRE AT DAVENPORT.

Chris Mueller Saw Mill Destroyed at a Loss of $100,000.

Davenport, Oct. 26.—The second big sawmill fire this season occured yesterday morning when the Chris Mueller planing and sawmill burned to the ground. The loss will reach $100,000, covered one-third by insurance. The flames threatened adjoining property and the city was endangered for a time, but valiant fire-fighting confined the fire to the Mueller mills.

The fire started in the planing mill and spread rapidly till all the sawmill was destroyed, but the office and the books were saved. The mill is a total wreck. Whether it will be rebuilt is not determined.

Murder in Second Degree

Iowa Falls, Oct. 28.—"Murder in the second degree" is the verdict in the case of the state of Iowa against M. O. Clemons on trial here for the murder of Will Burghduff, of Union. Clemons and Burghduff had trouble and Clemons had made threats against Burghduff's life, accusing Burghduff of insulting his wife and threatening to kill him before the week had passed.

Murder to Protect Wife's Honor.

Eldora, Oct. 26.—The state in the Clemon's murder trial rested and the witnesses for the defense are on the stand. Clemons, who was on the stand, testified that the quarrel with Burghduff resulted because the latter insulted the defendant's wife and he killed him to protect her honor. The wife of the defendant corroborated the prisoner's evidence.

Awarded the Highest Prize.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct.—The New Domestic Sewing Machine Co. has today been awarded, at the Pan-American Exposition, the highest prize, the coveted gold medal, for the best family sewing machine.

NEWS IN GENERAL

SCHLEY COURT OF INQUIRY

Washington, Oct. 23.—The Schley court of inquiry opened yesterday with Lieutenant B. W. Wells, Jr., who was Commodore Schley's flag lieutenant during the Spanish war, still on the stand, but he was soon displaced to allow Yeoman Albert V. Mason, who had written the Brooklyn's log for the period covering the Santiago campaign, to testify. Mr. Mason explained the erasures in the log entry referring to the Brooklyn's turn on the day of the battle off Santiago. He was followed by Mr. George E. Graham, who, as an Associated Press correspondent, was with Commodore Schley during the entire campaign.

Mr. Graham's testimony covered all the principal events of the campaign, and discussed especially the bombardment of the Spanish ship Colon on May 31 and the battle off Santiago on July 3. Mr. Graham testified to hearing a conversation between Commodore Schley and Captain Sigsbee, when the latter came aboard the flagship Brooklyn off Santiago, May 26. He said he had distinctly heard Captain Sigsbee tell the commodore that the Spanish fleet was not inside the harbor at Santiago. Mr. Graham also stated that Admiral Schley had told him that the object of the bombardment of May 21 was to develop the Spanish land batteries and he said that the range was fixed at 7,000 or 7,500 yards in order to draw their fire.

Washington, Oct. 24.—The first of yesterday's new witnesses, James Hare, photographer on the press boat, stated that Captain Sigsbee of the St. Paul had told the correspondent aboard the Smith on May 25 or 27 that Cervera's fleet was not inside the harbor at Santiago. Other witnesses in addition to Mr. Hare who testified were Chief Boatswain William L. Hill, Gunner F. T. Applegate and Major Paul St. C. Murphy of the marines, all of whom were aboard the Brooklyn during the Cuban campaign; Lieutenant Commander Harlow, who, as executive officer of the Vixen, made notes of the battle of July 3, and the three officers of the Oregon, Lieutenant A. A. Ackerman, Lieutenant E. W. Berle and Lieutenant R. G. Johnstone. Lieutenant Ackerman had charge of the after 13-inch turret and Lieutenant Eberle of the forward 13-inch turret of the Oregon on July 3, and Lieutenant Johnstone was signal officer on the Oregon at that time. Mr. Johnstone testified that he did not receive any signal from the Brooklyn to fire her 13-inch guns at the Spanish ship Christobal Colon, and all the Oregon officers who testified yesterday expressed the opinion that the Oregon and Brooklyn were practically equidistant from the Colon when that vessel went ashore. Some of them, however, were inclined to think that the Brooklyn was a shade nearer the Spanish ship. While Boatswain Hill was giving his testimony, which was very complimentary to Admiral Schley, there were two outbursts of applause. These were promptly suppressed by Admiral Dewey.

Washington, Oct. 25.—Admiral Schley yesterday took the stand in his own behalf at the court of inquiry which is investigating his conduct as commander-in-chief of the flying squadron during the Santiago campaign. He was summoned a few minutes after the court convened at 2 o'clock for the afternoon session, and when the court adjourned at 4 o'clock he apparently had only gotten well under way in his testimony. Captain Charles E. Clark of the Oregon had just concluded his statement when Mr. Rayner, rising from his seat, said:

"I should like to have Rear Admiral Schley called."

The admiral accordingly was asked to take the stand. He then in answer to a question from his counsel proceeded to give a careful and detailed narrative of all the events of the campaign up to the battle of Santiago.

Washington, Oct. 26.—When the Schley court of inquiry adjourned yesterday Admiral Schley had not completed his testimony in chief. He took the stand about 11:30 o'clock, and continued his statement until the court adjourned at 3:40 p. m. The chief event of the day was the admiral's relation of the events of July 3, when the American fleet sent Cervera's squadron to the bottom of the sea or to the beach. He told his story of this historical occurrence in plain words and in unaffected style, but the narrative was straightforward and to the point, indicating close familiarity with all the phases of that event. He said that the Brooklyn had for a time sustained the fire of all four of the Spanish ships and also the fire of the Spanish land batteries. Explaining the historical turn of his own flagship, the Brooklyn, he said that she had not approached to within less than six hundred yards of the Texas and that he never had considered that vessel in the least danger. He also stated, in response to an interrogation from Mr. Rayner, that he had never during the battle engaged in any colloquy with Lieutenant Hodgson and that he had not used the expression attributed to him by Hodgson. This refers to the alleged colloquy in which the admiral is charged with having said: "Damn the Texas!" Admiral Schley also gave the details of the reconnoissance of May 31 when the Spanish ship Christobal Colon was bombarded. In this connection he denied the statements attributed to him by Commander Potts of the battleship Massachusetts.

SHOT IN LINE OF DUTY.

Official Report on the Death of President McKinley.

Washington, Oct. 28.—"In the line of duty, while receiving the people, was shot by Leon F. Czolgosz," is the official statement filed by surgeon general of the navy, by Dr. Presley M. Rixey, medical inspector, U. S. N., as the introduction for his report upon the wounding, illness and death of the late President McKinley. The cause of death, "Gangrene of both walls of the stomach and pancreas, following gunshot wound."

The report itself is remarkable for its exhibition of the exact state of the patient during his illness, showing at intervals sometimes of a single minute, rarely more than an hour, the patient's progress toward the end, with the accurate registering of the medication—not a single morsel of food nor a dose of medicine is omitted.

CALEB POWERS CONVICTED

Sentenced a Second Time to Life Imprisonment.

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 28.—Ex-Secretary of State Caleb Powers has been again convicted as accessory before the fact to the murder of Governor Wm. E. Goebel in January, 1900, and the second time sentenced to imprisonment for life.

The second trial began October 8 and has continued with three sessions daily. The case went to the jury at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon and a verdict of guilty soon followed.

Powers sat pale and motionless when the verdict was announced by the foreman, B. S. Calvert, his old schoolmate. Opposite Powers, on the other side of the court room with the attorneys, sat Arthur Goebel, brother of the late senator and governor, with his eyes fixed on the prisoner. The attorneys for Powers shook his hand, expressing aloud their belief in his innocence. Women crowded around Powers, embracing and kissing him, and tears were shed. The defense filed a motion for a new trial, but it was overruled and the case will be appealed. The sentence was read and judgment suspended pending the decision of the higher tribunal. Powers was taken to Frankfort and committed to bail without trial.

NINETEEN KNOWN DEAD.

Fire at Philadelphia Causes Great Loss of Life and Property.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 26.—Nineteen known dead and property loss amounting to upwards of $500,000 is the result of a fire which occurred yesterday in the business section of this city. The number of injured is not known definitely, but fully a score of victims were treated at the various hospitals. Police and various firemen are delving in the ruins in search of bodies supposed to have been buried beneath the debris, as it is feared that others besides the known dead may have lost their lives in the flames. The buildings destroyed were the eight story structure at 1219 and 1221 Market street, occupied by Hunt, Wilkinson & Co., upholsterers and furniture dealers, and three three-story buildings occupied by small merchantmen.

TO CALL VOLUNTEERS.

England May Call Out All the Volunteers in the Country.

London, Oct. 26.—An error committed by some of the provincial police has led to the premature leaking out of the fact that the war office contemplates the possibility of having to call out every volunteer in the country. The war office has distributed to the police officers throughout the kingdom bills ordering all reservists, militia, yeomen and volunteers to report themselves without delay to headquarters, with the view of active service. These bills are accompanied by letters ordering that the bills be kept in a safe place until telegraphic orders to post them up are received. The police of Lancaster overlooked the letter and posted the bills, causing widespread perturbation.

CONCENTRATION ORDERED.

Manila, Oct. 26.—The people of the island of Samar have been notified to concentrate in the towns on pain of being considered public enemies and outlaws and treated accordingly. Intense feeling exists among the troops in Samar. If they can meet the enemy in the open there will be great retaliation. Many of them have seen and the others have heard of the barbarous treatment to which the dead American soldiers were subjected by the Filipinos recently. Francisco de Jesus, Lukban's chief commissary, was recently captured and taken to Cebu. Papers which he had in his possession have resulted in the arrest of many of the best known presidentes and other civil officials of the island of Leyte.

Highest Award on Cocoa and Chocolate.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 10, 1901.—The judges at the Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo, have awarded three gold medals to Walter Baker & Co. (Limited), Dorchester, Mass., for the superiority of their breakfast cocoa and all of their cocoa and chocolate preparations and the excellence of their exhibit. This is the 37th highest award received by them from the great expositions in Europe and America.

Railway and Lumber Office Safes Looted.

Underwood, Oct. 28.—At 1:15 yesterday morning burglars blew open the safe of the Rock Island ticket office and secured a considerable sum of money. They then looted the safe of the Rees-Gabriel Lumber company of a large amount of money and jewelry. There is no clew.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

RIGHTEOUSNESS OF RELIGION LAST SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

From Job XXXVIII as Follows: "Canst Thou Bind the Most Influences of the Pleiades"—The Meaning of the Passage Clearly Defined.

[Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

Washington, Oct. 27.—In this discourse Dr. Talmage demonstrates that we are affected by forces that we seldom recognize and enlarges upon human accountability; the text is Job xxxviii, 31, "Canst thou bind the sweet influences of Pleiades?"

What is the meaning of that question that God put to Job? Have we all our lives been reading it and are most of us ignorant of its beauty and power and practical suggestiveness? A meaningless passage of Scripture many thought it to be. But the telescopes were busy age after age and astronomical observations kept on questioning the skies until the meaning of my text comes out lustrously. The Pleiades is a constellation of seven stars appearing to the naked eye, but scientific instruments reveal more than 400 properly belonging to the group. Alcyone is the name of the brightest star of that group called the Pleiades. A Russian astronomer observed that Alcyone is the center of gravitation of our solar system. Hugh Macmillan says that the sun and its planets wheel around that center at the rate of 422,000 miles a day in an orbit which it will take 19,000,000 years to complete. The Pleiades appear in the springtime and are associated with flowers and genial warmth and good weather. The navigation of the Mediterranean was from May to November—the rising and the setting of the Pleiades. The priests of Belus noticed that rising and setting 2,000 years before Christ.

Now, the glorious meaning of my text is plain as well as radiant. To give Job the beautiful grace of humility God asked him, "Canst thou bind the sweet influences of the Pleiades?" Have you any power over the laws of gravitation? Can you modify or change an influence wielded by a star more than 400,000 miles away? Can you control the winds of the springtime? Can you call out the flowers? How little you know compared with omniscience! How little you can do compared with omnipotence!

Armed with Interrogations.

Called upon, as we all are at times, to defend our holy religion, instead of argument that can always be answered by argument let us try the power of interrogation. We ought to be loaded with at least half a dozen questions, and always ready, and when Christianity is assailed and we are told there is nothing in it, and there is no God, and there never was a miracle, and that the Scriptures are unreasonable and cruel, and that there never will be a judgment day, take out of your portable armory of interrogation something like this: What makes the condition of woman in Christian lands better than in heathen lands? Do you think it would be kind in God to turn the human race into a world without any written revelation to explain and encourage and elevate and save? And if a revelation was made which do you prefer, the Zenda-Vesta of the Persian or the Confucian writings of the Chinese or the Koran of Mohammed or our Bible? If Christ is not a divine being what did he mean when he said, "Before Abram was I am?" If the Bible is a bad book, where are the evil results of reading it? Did you see any degrading influence of the book in your father or mother or sister, who used to read it? Do you not think that a judgment day is necessary in order to explain and fix up things that were never explained or fixed up? If our religion is illogical and an imposition upon human credulity, why were Herschel and Washington and Gladstone and William McKinley its advocates? How did it happen that our religion furnished the theme for the greatest poem ever written, "Paradise Lost," and to the painters their greatest themes in the "Adoration of the Magi," "The Transfiguration," "The Last Supper," "The Crucifixion," "The Entombment," "The Last Supper," and that all the schools of painting put forth their utmost genius in presenting "The Madonna?"

Sweet Influence from Afar.

Astronomers can easily locate the Pleiades. They will take you into their observatories on a clear night and aim their revealing instruments toward the part in the heavens where those seven stars have their habitude, and they will point to the constellation Taurus, and you can see for yourself. But it is impossible to point to influences far back that have affected our character and will affect our destiny. We know the influences near by—paternal, maternal, conjugal—but by the time we have gone back two generations or at most three our investigations falter and fail. Through the modern interesting habit of searching back to find the ancestral tree we may find a long list of names, but they are only names. The consecration or abandonment of some one 200 years ago was not recorded. It would not be so important if you and I by our good or bad behavior blessed or blasted only those immediately around us but our goodness or our badness will reach as far as the strongest ray of Alcyone—yea, across the eternities. Under this consideration what do you think of those who give themselves up to frivolity or idleness and throw away fifty years of their existence as though they were shells or pebbles or pods instead of embryo eternities?

Surprises of the Next World.

I suppose one of the greatest surprises of the next world will be to see what wide, far-reaching influence for good or evil we have all exerted. I am speaking of ourselves, who are only ordinary people. But who can fully appreciate the far-reaching good done by men of wealth in Great Britain for the working classes—Mr. Lister of Bradford, Edward Akroyd of Halifax, Thomas Sikes of Huddersfield, Joseph Wentworth and Josiah Mason and Sir Titus Salt? This last great soul, with his vast wealth, provided 756 houses at cheap rent for 6,000 working people and chapel and cricket ground and croquet lawn and concert hall and savings bank where they might deposit some of their earnings and life insurance for those who looked further ahead and bathing houses and parks and museums and lecture halls with philosophical apparatus, the generous example of those men of a previous generation being copied in many places in Canada and the United States, making life, which would otherwise be prolonged drudgery, an inspiration and a joy.

At Dunfermline, Scotland, is a stone house, the room on the second floor twelve feet by fourteen in size. The annual rent of this room years ago was $7.50. That was the one room in which the father and mother of Andrew Carnegie lived with the whole family. Influences were started there which made Andrew Carnegie the most distinguished philanthropist of all time, and what his gifts of great libraries on both sides the sea will do for the coming generations I do not think any angel of God would have enough capacity to calculate. Who could bind the sweet influences of that Pleiades?

Influence of Other Worlds.

Notice also in my text the influence of other worlds upon this world. We all regard the effect which our continent has upon other continents or one hemisphere upon the other hemisphere. Great harvest or drought on one side of our world affects the other side of our world. A panic in Wall street, New York, has its echo in Lombard street and the bourse. The nations of the earth cablegrammed together all feel the same thrill of delight or shock of woe. But we do not appreciate the influence of other worlds upon our world. The author of my text rouses us to the consideration. It takes all the worlds of known and unknown astronomy to keep our world in its orbit, every world dependent on other worlds. The stellar existence is felt all through the heavens. Every constellation is a sisterhood. Our planet feels the benediction of Alcyone and all the other stars of the Pleiades. Yea, there are two other worlds that decide the fate of our world, its redemption or its demolition. These two worlds are the headquarters of angelology and demonology. From the one world came Christ, come ministering spirits, come all gracious influences. From the other world rise all satanic and diabolic influence. From that world of moral night rose the power that wrecked our poor world 6,000 years ago, and all the good work done since then has not been able to get our world out of the breakers. But the signals of distress have been hoisted and the life lines are out, and our world's release is certain. The good influences of the consecrated people in our world will be centupled by the help from the heavenly world, and the divine power will overcome the demoniac. O man, O woman, expand your idea and know the magnitude of a contest in which three worlds are specially interested. From all the seven worlds which my text calls the Pleiades there come no such powerful influences as from the two worlds that I am now mentioning. My only hope for this world is in the reenforcement that is to come from another world. But that is promised, and so I feel as sure of the ratification of all evil as though looking out of my window today I saw the parks and the gardens flowering into another paradise and the apocalyptic angel flying through the mist of heaven with the news that the kingdoms of this world have become the kingdoms of our Lord.

The Wife's Influence.

Not sufficiently do we recognize the sweet influence of the wife. We men are of rougher mold, and our voice is loud, and our manners need to be tamed, and gentleness is not as much of a characteristic as it ought to be, and we often say things we ought to take back. It is to change this that the good wife comes in. The interests of the twain are identical. That which from outsiders would be considered criticism and to be resented becomes kindly suggestion, sweet influences that make us better men than we otherwise would have been or could have been.

The last chapter of Proverbs recognizes the good wife's influence when it says, "Her husband is known in the gates when he sitteth among the elders of the land"—that is, his apparel indicates that he has some one to look after his wardrobe, and his manners show that he is under refining influences at home. But no one fully appreciates the sweet influences of the wife until the dark day comes and the slight symptoms become serious and the serious phases of the disorder pass into the fatal and the temperature is 106 and mental ingenuity is exhausted and you are told for your consolation that "while there is life there is hope," which means there is no hope at all, and the precious life flutters and is gone and you must put out of sight the one who from the day she took the vow amid the orange blossoms under the marriage bell had been to you more than all the world besides. Then you realize as never before what had been the sweet influences.

The World of Reunion.

The sweet influences of the heavenly world, which many wise men thought for a long while was Alcyone, the center of the constellation of the Pleiades, world of our future residence, as we hope; world of chorus and illumination, world of reunion, world where we shall be everlastingly complete, world where our old faculties will be intensified and quickened and new faculties implanted, world of high association with Christ, through whose grace we got there at all, and apostles and poets—Habakkuk and St. John of Patmos and Edward Young, his "Night Thoughts" turned into eternal day, and Horatius Bonar of modern hymnology and Hannah More and Mrs. Hemans and Mrs. Sigourney, who struck their harps till nations listened, and David, the victor over Goliath with what seemed insufficient weapons, and Joshua of the prolonged day in Gibeon, and Havelock, the evangelist hero, and those thousands of men of the sword who fought on the right side. What company to move in! What guests to entertain! What personages to visit! What choirs to chant! What banquets with lifted chalices filled with "the new wine of the kingdom!" What victories to celebrate!

The stories of that world and its holy hilarities come in upon our soul sometimes in song, sometimes in sermon, sometimes in hours of solitary reflection, and they are, to use the words of my text, sweet influences. But there is one star that affects us more with its sweet influence than the center star, the Alcyone of the Pleiades, and that is what one Bible author calls the Star of Jacob and another Bible author calls the Morning Star. Of all the sweet influences that have ever touched our earth those that radiate from Christ are the sweetest. Born an Asiatic villager in a mechanic's home, living more among hammers and saws and planes than among books, yet at twelve years of age confounding robed ecclesiastics and starting out on a mission under which those born without optic nerve took in the clear daylight, and those afflicted with unresponsive tympanum were made to hear, and those almost doubled up with deformities were straightened into graceful poise, and the leprous became rubicund, and the widow's only son exchanged the bier on which he lay lifeless for the arms of his overjoyed mother, and pronouncing nine benedictions on the Mount of Beatitudes and doing deeds and speaking words which are filling the centuries with sweet influences. Christ started every ambulance, kindled every electric ray, spread every soft hospital pillow and introduced all the alleviations and pacifications and rescues and mercies of all time. He was the loveliest being who ever trod our earth, more beauty in his eye, more tenderness in his manner, more gentleness in his footstep, more music in his voice, more dignity in his brow, more gracefulness in the locks that rolled upon his shoulders, more compassion in his soul.

Official Mourning Paper.

All departments of the government are now using mourning stationery, and will continue to use it until the thirty days of mourning for the late president shall have expired. At first only the executive mansion, the state and the treasury departments adopted mourning stationery, but President Roosevelt ordered that all departments at the capital should use the same paper. So great were the demands of the white house, the state and treasury departments for this paper that the supply in Washington was quickly exhausted and telegraphic orders were sent to other cities. Black bordered paper is used for all communications to the world outside of the national capital. Such paper costs a goodly price, and the total expense of this government mark of respect to the late chief will be $20,000.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Oct. 27, 1901.

The supreme court has administered a severe rebuke to the state fish and game warden, George E. Delevan, by holding that he transcended his authority when he gave a permit to Fred Sears of Sac county to seine pickerel from Wall lake, Iowa. The court holds that section 2546 of the code, which gives the warden authority to take from any public waters of the state any fish for the purpose of propagating or restocking other waters, or exchanging with other fish comissioners of the United States, never contemplated giving him authority to take fish from public water for private ponds, and if he had not the authority himself he certainly could not transmit it to others. The court goes further and intimates that the practice of taking young fry from the hatcheries of the state for private purposes, which has been indulged in to some extent in the state, entirely exceeds any code provision in the game laws of Iowa. Sears, the defendant in the case, will have to pay the fine imposed by the district court for taking pickerel from Wall lake for his private pond under authority of the game warden's permit.

It was decided by the state election contest board that the name of Robert Hufschmidt of Waukon cannot be placed on the official ballot as the democratic nominee for the legislature in Allamakee county. The board decided that his certificate of nomination, which was filed with the secretary of state on the last filing day, was invalid because made, and apparently sworn to, in blank, prior to the day of the democratic county convention, the nominee's name being inserted three days later. The board declined to consider the question of the right of Hufschmidt to file an amendment correcting the defects in the original certificate. It is claimed by the democrats that the action of the board merely creates a vacancy on the ticket, which may be filled in the manner prescribed by law. He intimated that an attempt would be made to place Mr. Hufschmidt's name on the ticket in this manner.

Auditor of State Merriam, in a letter addressed to a prominent insurance man of Marshalltown, and just made public, denounces the Western Consolidated Underwriters Fire and Marine Insurance company of Chicago as a "wildcat" organization, with no authority to do business in this state, and liable to prosecution through its agents for attempting to solicit business without a certificate from the insurance department of the state. Mr. Merriam in giving out this letter is pursuing a policy, adopted recently, of making public whenever possible, the fact that such illegal companies are operating throughout the state.

The inspectors who have been in the city for several days looking at the army post grounds, and viewing proposed sites for the rifle range have returned to Omaha. They did not accept a range, though they visited at least a dozen farms, and the local committee are given further time to secure a suitable tract. The board has accepted plans for the buildings as submitted by Captain Turner.

Otis Green, who shot and killed his former wife, Minnie Wilson, at the corner of West Fourteenth and Locust streets on the morning of September 9, has been indicted for murder in the first degree.

A distinguished party of railroad men passed through Des Moines over the Rock Island on the 25th. Cornelius Vanderbilt was the guest of Ogden Mills on the journey, which consists of a daylight tour of the Rock Island system. The party consisted mainly of Rock Island officials, among whom were Chairman R. R. Cable of the board of directors; Warren G. Purdy, president; A. J. Hitt, general manager, and W. M. Hobbs, general superintendent, whose private cars made up the train. It stopped at Brooklyn all night, stopped at Grinnell, spent three minutes at Des Moines and thirty minutes at Valley Junction, thence going without stop to Omaha. At Des Moines Mr. Vanderbilt inspected the Rock Island depot carefully. Mr. Vanderbilt rode in the cab and handled the machine for a time out of Brooklyn.

State Dairy Commissioner Norton, after threatening repeatedly to take measures to compel the delinquent milk dealers in Des Moines to pay the annual license fee of $1 required by the code, has resorted to more vigorous measures. R. H. Butlin, a grocer, was one of the dealers who did not pay his license as required by and it is alleged refused to pay it. The state dairy commissioner filed information against Butlin in Justice Duncan's court, charging him with violation of the law requiring the payment of the license fee. Saturday Butlin appeared at the office of the dairy commissioner at the state house and paid the fee of $1, after expressing in vigorous terms his feelings on the subject. The dairy commissioner would listen to no terms but payment of the fee, and when it was paid requested Duncan to dismiss the proceedings on payment by Butlin of the cost of the prosecution. The action against Butlin has resulted in several delinquents paying up according to law. Other prosecutions are likely to be brought.

CZOLGOSZ TO DIE OCTOBER 29.

Assassin of President McKinley Must Die That Day.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 25.—Leon F. Czolgosz, the murderer of President McKinley, will be electrocuted at 7 a. m. on Tuesday, October 29, at Auburn prison. Warden Mead has selected Tuesday so that final arrangements may be made on Monday. In doing this he is following the general custom of the state prisons relative to electrocutions. It does away with the necessity of making final arrangements on Sunday. The sentence of the court was that the execution of Czolgosz should take place during the week commencing October 28, leaving to the warden of the prison full power to select the day of the week in which to carry out the mandates of the law. This latitude is given the warden to secure secrecy as to the time of execution, and to guard against delay from accident, such as in 1893, which caused a delay of an hour in an execution after the condemned man had been taken into the death house at Auburn penitentiary. Witnesses will assemble at the prison at 6:30 on Tuesday morning. There have been twenty-six invitations issued, and they are non-transferrable. Each witness must present his invitation to the warden of the prison, and if he is not identified to the satisfaction of the warden as being the man to whom it was issued, he will not be admitted.

CZOLGOSZ READY TO DIE.

Meets His Brother and Appears Glad to See Him.

Auburn, N. Y., Oct. 28.—Leon F. Czolgosz, who is to be put to death in the electrical chair on Tuesday morning for the murder of President McKinley, had an hour's interview with his brother Waldek, Saturday. At the conclusion the latter stated that the assassin had shown no emotion, had inquired as to the other members of the family and had declared that he did not care to see a priest again.

Waldek Czolgosz and his brother-in-law, Waldek Thomas Bondowski, arrived from Cleveland Friday night and secured lodging with a Polish family here. They did not visit the prison until Saturday morning. Warden Meade satisfied himself of Waldek Czolgosz's relationship and admitted him to the prison. Bondowski was permitted inside the prison gates. The interview between the brothers took place in the office of the prison. They conversed in English for more than an hour. After the interview Waldek said his brother was never demonstrative, but appeared to be glad to see him. The assassin expected to die Tuesday and will make no effort to appeal.

ROBBERS' RICH BOOTY.

Bold Safe Robbers at Berea, Ohio, Secure Loot Valued at $100,000.

Berea, Ohio, Oct. 28.—One of the boldest safe robberies ever perpetrated in this vicinity occurred at an early hour Saturday in almost the heart of the village. The hardware store of Lawrence & Brightman was entered, the large safe was wrecked, and the robbers made good their escape, carrying with them booty aggregating more than $100,000.

Baldwin university bears the heaviest loss. C. C. Brightman, the junior member of the firm, is also the treasurer and trustee of the Baldwin university, and all of the valuable papers of the institution which were left in Brightman's custody were kept in the safe. Bonds, deeds, notes and mortgages of the university, aggregating $100,000 in value, were secured by the robbers. Many of the notes held by Baldwin university were of long standing and bore numerous endorsements, making it impossible to produce their duplicate. A diligent search for the thieves has been instituted, but as yet no clue to their whereabouts or identity has been established.

The Dietetic and Hygienic Gazette says: "Walter Baker & Co., of Dorchester, Mass., U. S. A., have given years of study to the skilful preparation of cocoa and chocolate, and have devised machinery and systems peculiar to their methods of treatment, whereby the purity, palatability, and highest nutrient characteristics are retained. Their preparations are known the world over and have received the highest indorsements from the medical practitioner, the nurse, and the intelligent housekeeper and caterer."

Troops for the Philippines.

Washington, Oct. 26.—Three regiments of infantry and two battalions of a regiment of cavalry have been practically selected for service in the Philippines.

These are the Twenty-seventh infantry, eight companies of which are at Plattsburg barracks, N. Y., and four companies at Fort McPherson, Ga.; the Twenty-eighth infantry, eight companies of which are at Vancouver barracks, Wash.; two at Boise barracks, Idaho, and two at Fort Wright, Wash., and the Twenty-ninth infantry, eight companies of which are at Fort Sheridan, Ill., and four at Columbus barracks, Ohio.

The cavalry selected are eight companies distributed between the Presidio at San Francisco, at Benecia barracks, Cal., and at San Francisco. These troops have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness for orders to Manila.

They will take the place of those regiments which will be withdrawn on account of the expiration of the terms of enlistment of their enlisted men, and will consequently not increase the force in the archipelago beyond its present strength of 42,000 men.

The Cedar Rapids Republican is out in an editorial suggesting Hon. J. A. T. Hull, of the Seventh district for governor about the next heat, with Hon. A. B. Cummins for codgressman in place of Hull from the Seventh, and Hon. J. E. Blythe, of Mason City, for congressman from the Fourth district. Commenting, in this connection, upon Mr. Cummins' well known ambition to enter the U. S. Senate, the Republican recites that through the lower house has been the road for Allison, Gear and Dolliver to attain that end, and it is suggested that the same rule still obtains. This arrangement would indicate that eventually Dolliver and Cummins will collide, as in the supposedly natural evolution of events Col. Henderson will succeed Senator Allison, or at least his friends so declare. There is much food for thought in the Republican's article.

Not a friend of Wm. B. Allison and Jno. P. Dolliver can afford to ignore their pressing claims upon your time and franchise next Tuesday, by neglecting to get out and vote yourself and likewise seeing to it that every other republican in your precinct is at the polls and votes. Make sure that the republican legislative ticket is fully supported. A supreme effort is being made by the combined opposition to cut into the coming legislature and thus make possible a fight against Allison and Dolliver, hence it is incumbent on their friends everywhere to see to the legislative ticket and lose not a single seat in that body.

A mighty good rule to follow is to sign nothing unless it is presented by a man you know to be reliable, but a lot of farmers are being swindled in Iowa this fall by grafters of various kinds. One favorite way is for a man to appear and offer you about $2 per acre more for your farm than you ask for it You make a sale and get about $50 down, all right so far. Then along comes a man who offers an advance of $5 to $10 per acre above the price. You meet the first buyer and buy him off as cheap as you can and never hear any more of the last offer. A man in Hardin county lost $1500 last week in this way. —Britt Tribune.

The Buffalo News tells a story of a 4-year-old girl who was spending a night away from home. At bedtime she knelt at her hostess' knees to say her prayers, expecting the usual prompting. Finding Mrs. B. unable to help her out, she concluded thus: "Please, God, 'scuse me; I can't remember my prayers, and I'm staying with a lady that don't know any."

It is said that it was Booker T. Washington's cordial praise of ex-Governor Jones of Alabama, in a conversation with the president, which led President Roosevelt to appoint Jones to the office of United States district judge, though Mr. Washington was unconscious that the president was ascertaining his views on the question of Mr. Jones' qualifications.

A memorial church has lately been erected and dedicated on the site of Jefferson Davis' birthplace, in Fairview, Ky. A slab of Tennessee marble set in the wall bears this inscription: "Jefferson Davis of Mississippi was born June 3, 1808, on the site of this church. He made a gift of the lot March 10, 1886, to Bethel Baptist church as a thank offering to God."

There are in Naples a number of cats that live in the churches. They are kept and fed by the authorities on purpose to catch the mice which infest most of the old buildings there. The little animals may often be seen walking about among the congregation or sitting gravely before the altar during the time of mass, and it is considered a sacrilege to harm them.

An amazing discovery was made in the Mount Hope cemetery at Baker City, Oregon. In April of last year Aurilla Sullivan, aged twenty-two, died of paralysis. Lately it was decided to remove her body to another cemetery. The casket seemed very heavy, and it was opened. The body had turned to white stone, and weighed 350 pounds. In life the girl weighed only 130 pounds.

Henry G. Walkins of Appleton, Wis., declares that his system is overcharged with electricity. With his eyes shut, and his ears stuffed with cotton, he can tell when he comes within a hundred feet of electrical machinery; and during a thunderstorm he is in a state of constant agitation. He attributes his peculiarity to the fact that his mother, two months before his birth, was struck by lightning.

A selfish young man in Kansas City married a lame girl, who has to hobble along with a crutch. As it would be inconvenient to have a cripple for a companion on a honeymoon trip, he started to enjoy it alone, and immediately after the ceremony he took the train for Buffalo to see the sights at the Pan-American exposition. He writes loving letters to his bride, telling how he is enjoying himself.

James Farrell of Barboursville, W. Va., has just celebrated the 106th anniversary of his birth. He is now probably the oldest man in the United States. Mr. Farrell served in the war of 1812 and later was in Mexico, under Jefferson Davis. When the war between the states broke out he enlisted, although no longer a young man, and saw four years of service. He was probably the oldest veteran to offer his services to the government when the Spanish war broke

The shirt waist proved a great invention. Nearly every woman wears one. The only inconvenience about the shirt waist is the trouble in ironing caused by starches that produce that hard, nerve racking effect. Defiance starch contains a chemical ingredient that does away with the trouble. Ask your grocer for it. Sixteen-oz package for 10 cents. Made by Magnetic Starch Co., Omaha, Neb.

Last year there were 1,902 strikes in France.

Ask your grocer for DEFIANCE STARCH, the only 16 oz. package for 10 cents. All other 10-cent starch contains only 12 oz. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

If there were no politics the devil's grip on some men would be more feeble.

A WOMAN TO BE PRETTY

Must Have Luxuriant and Glossy Hair, No Matter What Color.

The finest contour of a female face, the sweetest smile of a female mouth, loses something if the head is crowned with scant hair. Scant and falling hair, it is now known, is caused by a parasite that burrows into the scalp to the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality. The little white scales the germ throws up in burrowing are called dandruff. To cure dandruff permanently, then, and to stop falling hair, that germ must be killed. Newbro's Herpicide, an entirely new result of the chemical laboratory, destroys the dandruff germ, and, of course, stops the falling hair, and cures baldness.

INSIST ON GETTING IT.

Some grocers say they don't keep Defiance Starch because they have a stock in hand of 12 oz. brands, which they know cannot be sold to a customer who has once used the 16 oz. pkg. Defiance Starch for same money.

A remote period is the one due at the end of a woman's remarks.

The Scourge of Damascus

A Story of the East...

CHAPTER XVII.—(Continued.)

And thus was the work accomplished; and with a result not to be wondered at. The Arabs had been brave enough over their rich prizes, but they had lacked the sinew and force of the attacking party. In fact, upon foot, hand to hand, and front to front, either Julian or his lieutenant might have been a match for half of them.

"Those two rascals are not worth pursuing," said our hero, as he noticed that Hobaddan was looking after the fleeing Arabs. "Let them go. We have gained all we sought."

After this Julian turned towards the females. Ulin saw him coming, and, with no thought save that of tenderest gratitude, she moved forward to meet him.

"Heaven bless you, kind sir!" she said, as she extended to him her hand.

"Sweet lady," returned the chieftain, fervently, "talk not of blessings to me. Let me be the one to call down blessings. I know to whom I owe my life and my liberty. Hobaddan has told me all. Oh, let me bear ever with me the blessed privilege of remembering thee in my prayers to God!"

Tears gathered in the eyes of the maiden, and her lips trembled; and when she spoke her voice betrayed the deep emotion that stirred her soul.

"Indeed, fair sir," she said, with her hand still resting in his, "you should not deny to me the privilege which you claim for yourself. If you can feel pleasure in cherishing a holy gratitude, I can feel the same. When I remember the dreadful fate to which the Arabs had doomed me, I cannot forget the blessings which are due to the kind power that delivered me."

"As you please, lady," replied Julian, letting go her hand. "The thought that thou art blessing me will be a blessing indeed. And here is our fair Albia," he continued, turning to the bondmaiden—and a close observer might have seen that he thus turned in order to subdue emotions that were rising to trouble him. "I do not forget that some blessing belongs to you."

"I have served my mistress," said Albia, modestly. And then, perceiving that a change of subject would be a relief to both parties, she added, "We owe you so much, sir, that you will be forced to accept my grateful blessings with those of my lady. And now, if I may dare to interrupt you, will you tell us how you chanced to discover us?"

"It was very simple, lady," replied Julian, directing his answer to the princess; "and though seemingly an accident, still I cannot help thinking that some kind spirit must have superintended the work. When we left Damascus we took a course slightly different from this; but on the way we met a poor traveler who informed us that he had been robbed. He did not tell us that the robbers were Arabs, and I fancied that they might be some of my own people. Fearing this, I determined to follow them. Their course was a crooked one, and when I finally reached the grove of date-palms, I had made up my mind to search no more. We were asleep in the grove, and Osmir awoke just as a party of horsemen were leaving the spring. He ran out and discovered that the strangers were Arabs, and that they had two females with them."

* * * * * *

The chieftain directed the slaves to drag the bodies of the dead Arabs together, and take from them the gold and jewels which had been taken from the princess, and then to cover them up in the sand; after which he requested Hobaddan to examine his wound. It seemed to be but a slight puncture, just below the collar bone, upon the left side, and as it was bleeding but slightly, Julian concluded not to have it probed. A simple compress staunched the blood, and it was thought that there could be no danger.

When the slaves had done their work, the chieftain approached our heroine, and asked her whither she wished to go.

"I will see you safe to your journey's end," he said, "even though it be to the gates of Damascus."

"I go not that way, sir," she replied. "I wish to find the cave of an old hermit named Ben Hadad."

Julian started as he heard this; but he quickly recovered himself.

"Do you know that old man?" he asked.

"No, sir—I never saw him; but he was a friend to my mother and I think he will be a friend to me."

"Ah—do you go out from Damascus to find a friend?"

"I pray you, sir, ask me no questions. If you know where Ben Hadad lives, and it would not trouble you too much, I freely accept your escort."

"Noble lady, I not only know his place of abode, but my own course lies directly that way. If we start at once and meet with no further obstacle, we may reach it by the rising of another sun."

"The sooner we start the better," said Ulin; "and I can ride a long time without resting."

"We will ride as fast and as far as our horses are willing," added Julian, as he truned to prepare for the move.

In a few minutes they were mounted, Ulin and Albia once more taking the horses that had brought them from Damascus; and when all was ready, the chieftain and his lieutenant led off, leaving Shubal to ride with the females, while Osmir and Selim brought up the rear.

A few hours past noon they stopped in a pleasant grove, where pure fresh water bubbled forth from a basin of white sand, and here they made a dinner of bread and fruit while the horses rested. Julian spoke with the princess and asked her how she bore the fatigue of the journey; but his manner was free from any shade of familiarity. She in turn asked concerning his wound, and expressed the hope that it might not prove serious. When he had gone, Albia remarked:

"The more I see of that man, the more do I love and honor him. He is no common man, my lady."

"I shall always remember him with gratitude," returned Ulin, gazing down as she spoke.

"And I," added the bondmaiden, earnestly, "should like to remain with him, and serve him always."

"You are generous, Albia."

"Because I am but a poor slave, and can only pay such debts with grateful service."

"No, no, Albia—a slave no more. When we left my father's house you stepped forth free. You are my companion—not my slave."

The girl caught the hand of her mistress, and bathed it with tears.

"Free!" she murmured. "Aye—free to serve you now and evermore! Still, dear lady, there is a holy satisfaction in feeling that the servile badge is stricken off. Your poor slave loved you truly, and you may be assured that she will love you none the less now that she is a slave no more."

Shortly after this, and while yet Albia was drying her eyes, Julian called up the horses, and made ready for another start.

Late in the evening they reached the bank of the Pharphar, and once more stopped to rest. The cave of the hermit was only a few leagues distant, and could be easily reached by midnight. For himself the chieftain did not care. He wished the princess to act her own pleasure.

* * * *

The cave of Ben Hadad was in a deep valley, where the river wound between two long, high hills; and thick woods shut it out from the heat of the noonday sun and from the gaze of the stranger. A good path led to it from the plain, though a person needed acquaintance with the way in order safely to follow it. Julian was surely used to the path, for he threaded its various windings without any hesitation, and at length drew up before a bold face of rock, beneath an overhanging shelf on which was the entrance to Ben Hadad's cave. It was too dark now to see all this plainly, but those who had been there before knew very well where they were. A loud call from Hobaddan soon brought a lighted torch from the cave, borne by a black slave.

"Ho, ho—it is Hobaddan."

"Yes, you grinning rascal, it is I; and it is also Julian; and, furthermore, others are with us. Where is Ben Hadad "

"He is in his bed, sir, sound asleep."

"And where is my—where is Ezabel?"

"She is also asleep, sir."

"Then call them at once. But hold—lead us into the cave first."

The negro came out with his torch, and while Hobaddan stopped a few moments with the slaves to look after the horses, Julian led Ulin and Albia into the cave. It was a broad, high chamber in the solid rock, and the light of the torch revealed the fact that there must be other chambers beyond.

In a little while a tall, broad-shouldered old man, with hair and beard as white as the breast of a swan, came forth from a distant passage, and almost at the same time an aged woman came from another direction. Julin quickly approached them, and spoke a few words in private and then said, aloud:

"These ladies, good father and mother, seek your aid and protection. Ask them no questions tonight, for they are worn and weary, and need repose. On the morrow they will tell you their story." He then approached the princess.

The old woman, when she saw Albia's face, recognized her at once; and as she gazed upon the beautiful features of the princess, the latter said: tures of the princess, she said:

"Good mother," replied Ulin, "I shall tell you the whole truth and then you will know just how much protection we need."

And thereupon she went on, and related all that had transpired to the present. She told how she had consented to be the wife of the king—she told of the death of her mother—and then she told how, in her bereavement, she bgean to dread and fear the man she had promised to marry.

The woman took Ulin's hand, and pressed it warmly between her own.

"Dear child," she said, with much emotion, for she had been deeply moved during the recital—"you could not have told your story to one who could have better understood it. I not only sympathize with you, but I will protect you, if need be, with all the power I possess; and I assure you that our good Ben Hadad will join me with all his heart. You did right in fleeing from the wicked king. I know him well, lady; and I believe you have not only saved yourself from an unhappy fate, but you have saved Horam from committing more crime. Thus much we understand; and now, my dear Ulin, if I may venture upon the inquiry, what do you propose to do in the future?"

"My thoughts in that direction have been vague and troublesome," replied the princess. She spoke frankly, for Ezabel had won her entire confidence. "I have reflected upon the subject, and my mind has found but one resting place. I must remain away from Damascus until the king is dead. I can think nothing more. Where I abide I care not, so long as I am safe from harm."

The princess fell upon the woman's neck and blessed her; and after a little time she became calm, and wiped the grateful tears from her face. Her next question was of Julian. Had he yet left the cave?"

"No," replied Ezabel; "nor will he leave it at present! He is wounded in the breast, and——"

"Wounded!" repeated Ulin, catching suddenly at the word, and turning pale. "Is it dangerous?"

"No, not dangerous, lady; but he must have rest and nursing. It is more serious than he at first thought; but if he is careful, there will be no danger."

"Oh," cried the maiden, in a tone of relief, "I am glad it is not dangerous. If he had suffered on my account, the joy of my escape from Horam would have been sadly darkened."

CHAPTER XVIII.

Ezabel bowed her head, and pressed her hands upon her brow. There was certainly some deep and sudden emotion moving within her, for her frame trembled, and incoherent whisperings fell from her lips.

"Julian will not suffer," she said, when she at length raised her head. "Ben Hadad has examined his wound, and it can be easily healed."

"You have known Julian for some time," pursued Ulin, musingly.

"Yes, I have known him from childhood, and my son has been his constant companion."

"Your son?"

"Ah—perhaps you did not know that Hobaddan was my son."

"I did nt."

"Well—such is the fact. Hobaddan is my only child. He was a strong youth, with the stature of manhood, while yet Julian was an infant; and from those early years the two have been always together. In the beginning Hobaddan was the guide and protector; but in later years, since Julian has reached the age and strength of maturity, my son has been content to call him master."

Julian is much feared in Damascus," said Ulin.

"The king fears him," returned Ezabel, quickly; "and he has occasion for fear; but no poor man fears him. However, I will not take it upon myself to excuse Julian's faults. He may have sinned; he may have pursued his revenge too far. Let those who have suffered what he has suffered condemn him if they can."

"He has suffered much, good mother?"

"More than I can tell, my child."

"He is of Damascus born?"

'Yes."

"And—perhaps—of honored family?"

"The blood which runs in his veins is as pure and noble as ever supported a human life. The king himself cannot boast a nobler origin; aye," continued Ezabel, with startling earnestness, "and even now, with the whole story of his life up to this present hour, stamped upon his brow, he is nobler, and better, and purer, than the lords of Damascus. He is a man, and his heart is true; and I love him for the generous, devoted love there is in his soul."

OUTLAWS OF TURKEY.

INTO WHOSE HANDS AN AMERICAN WOMAN FELL.

Previous Experiences of Miss Ellen M. Stone—The Wildest Region of Europe—Character of the Roving Brigands—Woman's Honor Held in Light Esteem.

(Special Letter.)

The abduction of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary, by Turkish brigands, directed the attention of the world upon this unfortunate woman and her cruel and daring captors. Miss Stone is a Boston woman, who for years has been in the employ of the American Women's Board of Missionaries and whose devotion to her work is as intense as was that of the early Christians. Frequently she has been halted by brigands and tested as to her capacity to furnish plunder. In one instance she explained the nature of her work and the fact that she had but little available money, and was allowed to continue her journey and work. In another case, while she was asleep in a small structure, she was and became conscious that hands were passed over her features, but she was not otherwise disturbed, and in the morning she found abundant evidence that brigands had been in the vicinity during the night. Her latest and most serious adventure occurred September 3, when she was halted between Banake and Djoumania by forty brigands. She was accompanied by eighteen other missionaries, all of whom were relieved of their valuables and afterward released. Miss Stone was carried into the mountains. There she is allowed great liberty and is not ill treated, but shameful treatment and, perhaps, death are in store for her if the ransom of $110,000 demanded by the leader of the brigands is not forthcoming. The mission board which Miss Stone represents will, it is said, pay the ransom, but some action will undoubtedly be taken by the state department to secure reparation from the Turkish government.

A Wild Region.

The country in which Miss Stone was captured is the same as the Thessaly of the Scriptures, the Thrace of Grecian history where Philip of Macedon and Alexander the Great led their armies and where Socrates campaigned bare-footed as a common soldier. It is wilder now than then. All the rest of Europe contains nothing as barbarous. Bands of roving, pillaging

MISS ELLEN M. STONE.

Turks or Bulgarian outlaws infest the whole region. Woman's honor is held in light esteem. Up to within a very few years the most deplorable outrages were committed openly and are now even done secretly.

While the corps of Janissaries existed every fifth male child was forced into the Turkish military service and young girls were carried off by thousands to fill the harems of their conquerors or otherwise minister to their pleasure. The haughty bearing and tyranny of the troops which marched to and fro in the country so cowed the Christian population that they became timid serfs. Many escaped death by embracing Islam and it was not uncommon for parents voluntarily to send their daughters to the harems of the Begs, or noblemen, so that they themselves

Might Gain Protection.

Cruel as the bandits are to foreigners, they have a hold on the affections of the population, who shelter and protect them. A curious state of affairs has resulted from this anarchy. When the peasantry are maltreated by the Turkish Begs and other officials they appeal to the brigands, Haiduts, Kirdjalis or by whatever name they are known, for protection or revenge.

In one place a young Turkish nobleman had been guilty of the greatest cruelty and excesses, committing outrages on the wives and daughters of the peasantry, even capturing and selling children. He entered a village on one occasion on horseback, surrounded by his retinue all decked in silk and gold. He had not gone far when a band of Haiduts, led by a well-known chief, sprang from hiding places, pulled the Beg from his horse, broke his arms and legs and struck off his head. This bloody trophy they put on the end of a spear and carried it in triumph at the head of the band as they marched through the village.

FAMOUS GAMBLING PLACES.

Mexican Establishment That Rivals That of Monte Carlo.

Possibly few are aware that in the City of Mexico there exists an establishment which for splendor and luxuriousness runs Monte Carlo very close.

Some years ago the Mexican government resolved to abolish gambling, which is, by the way, as much part and parcel of the Mexican's nature as of the heathen Chinee. The measure proved intensely unpopular, being vigorously opposed not only by the professional sporting element, but by many of the most influential and wealthy subjects of the republic and finally the government "climbed down." Determined, however, not to be altogether outdone, the authorities conceived the idea of imposing a heavy tax upon gambling, and a law was passed requiring every gambling resort to pay the enormous daily license of $1,250.

On the day this measure became law the gambling establishments throughout the country closed their doors, all save one. Senor Martel presented himself at the tax gatherer's office with the amount of the license in his hand, and demanded the privilege of keeping open his house. The license was granted by the dumfounded officials, and long before nightfall it was noised all over the city that Martel's establishment on the Calle de Gante was continuing business as usual. That night the place was literally thronged by the wealthiest "sports" in the city, and Senor Martel's profits ran into the four figures.

Next day the other houses took their licenses, but Martel's bold venture made his establishment far and away the most popular among the gambling fraternity. His successes continued, and he opened other establishments for each of which he pays the enormous tax of something like $450,000 a year.

When it became evident to the authorities that Martel had "come to stay," and taking into consideration the immense revenues they were reaping from his enterprise, a government official was appointed to preside over each of his business places, this fact greatly enhancing Martel's prestige.

The average daily expenses of the great "financier's" establishments amount to the incredible sum of $40,000. That in the Calle de Gante is sumptuously furnished, and those guests who can afford the luxury of gambling here enjoy the choicest cigars and wines that money can purchase.

Felipe Martel is a devout churchman, and recently built a church which cost him over $50,000 in the suburban village of San Angel, where he lives. His residence, is needless to say, a most palatial structure, and (strange trade mark of the gamester's profession) contains 40 windows, representing the number of cards in the Mexican pack.

Let it be Teddy, Still.

Really, musn't we call him Teddy any more? The sticklers for all the solemn proprieties say so. And yet we have rarely had a president of the United States who has escaped either a nickname or a familiar contraction of his name. The Father of His Country is still affectionately called George, and the Savior of His Country is remembered as Old Abe. Other distinguished occupants of the White House have been popularly designated by such names as Old Hickory, Little Van, Tip, Zack, and Old Buck, without detracting from the dignity of the high station they held. Perhaps the time has now arrived for banishing nicknames and diminutives when speaking of our chief executive magistrates. It may reasonably be doubted, however, if President Roosevelt will order the decapitation of those of his countrymen who abbreviate his name occasionally. He isn't that kind of a prig

Value of South African Horses.

One of the great lessons of the Boer war was to show the value of the South African horse. If the Boers had not been so excellently mounted as they were, on horses bred in the Transvaal, Orange Free State and Cape Colony, the war would have worn a different aspect. The South African horse can live on much less food than an English horse; he does not suffer from the climate; he does not tumble into holes; he is sounder, is more sensible and learns better how to stand alone without being tied up.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. "Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made as is now recoguized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflamation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the head. Catarrh when neglected often, leads to "Consumption—Snuffles will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure," Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Doller. THE NEW ENGLAND MAGAZINE paints with loving touch the historic landmarks of New England; it recalls the customs and traditions of the "old red schoolhouse days" and tells of the achievements of New Englanders in all parts of the world. It has distinguished contributors and is artistically printed and illustrated. Monthly, $3.00 per annum.

THE NORTHWESTERN AGRICULTURIST is the leading farm, livestock and home paper in the West. It interests every member of the family, having departments devoted to the interests of women as well as of men, on the farms in the Northwest. It is filled with instructive and interesting reading matter from beginning to end. Its various departments are under the charge of practical men, who have made a success themselves on their particular line on which they are writing. Amongst the department editors who contribute regularly to The Agriculturist, are Prof. Thomas Shaw, Professor of Animal Husbandry at the Minnesota State Agricultural College. Professor Shaw edits the sheep, beef cattle and horse departments; A. X. Hyatt, a dairyman known all over America as a practical and experienced dairy writer; Forest Henry, editor of the swine department, a man who has paid off mortgages by raising swine in Minnesota, and who is himself making money in swine raising now, not as a breeder but as a feeder of swine for market; A. K. Bush, in charge of the horticultural department, State Lecturer on Horticulture at the Minnesota Farmers' Institutes. These are only a few of the more important departments of the paper. Sample Copies will be sent free to all who are interested. The Northwestern Agriculturist is published semi-monthly, and already reaches over 50,000 farm homes twice a month. Subscription price fifty cents a year.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

No Noxies Doses. No Weakening Nerves, A Pleasure for Man.

[illegible] is now generally known and understood that drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors requires antidotes capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is perfectly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so it can be given without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy and as many more have been made temperate men by having the CURE administered by [illegible] loving friends without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent or mine same-ing 'improvement.' [illegible] another approach[illegible] words in [illegible] Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The Home Gold Cure is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 or $50. GREAT OPPURTUNITIES.

The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Norther Railway Company is nearing the completion of it's 140 miles of new extensions in the very richest portion of Southwestern Minnesota. The six new towns, Reading, Wilmont, Lismore, Kenneth, Waters and Conger are rapidly becoming commercial centers for the rich and already thickly settled country surrounding. There has been no "Auction sale of lots" or any attemp to "Boom" these towns; their growth being the result of a demand for convenient markets.

It is the purpose of the railway company to encourage the continuous substantial growth of the towns on their lines. In order that each town may receive the attention of "ownership," it has been decided to sell each town entire, including all unplatted land to private parties. For terms of such purchases, address the undersigned. For busine s openings or purchase of lots address the Town Lot Agent of the respective town.

Attorney A. C. Ripley has just taken possession of his new offices in the new First National Bank Block, and it goes without saying that he expounds Blackstonian lore (not Fred we don't mean,) from as elegant and attractive apartments as any attorney in northern Iowa.

The new fixtures for the First National Bank have been put into their new building, and ere long Messrs Shattuck and Knoop will be smilingly greeting their customers from behind as neat and nobby counters and surrounded by as artistic luxuries and business conveniences as any bank in this part of the state.

Reports reach us that two commercial travelers were drowned in Clear Lake Sathrday afternoon, and at this writing their bodies have not been recovered. One named Montgomery, of the Plano Mfg., Co., of Mason City, the others name and occupation not learned, but both were well known in Mason City, Clear Lake and adjacent country. They were hunting ducks, and nobody knows just how the accident happened that cost them their lives.

The remains of the late A. L. Goodyear arrived here Monday afternoon, from Payette, Idaho, accompanied by the stricken wife and son Carroll, who went there as recited in this correspondence last week to be with the sufferer in his last moments. They had the sad comfort of reaching Mr. Goodyear's bedside before he passed away. The funeral occurred Tuesday, forenoon, the M. W. A., assisted by the Royal Neighbors holding services according to their rituals at the residence, after which the remains were taken to the Congregational church, where the final obsequies took place, after which he was laid to rest in the family plot in Concord cemetery, followed by a large concorse of mourning relatives and friends. Numerous relatives of the deceased were here from abroad, among them being a sister from Pipestone, Minn., his brother Walter from Dixon, Ill., and his daughter Mrs. Rolla Steel and her children from Chicago Ill. Mr. Goodyear has long been a resident of this county and was respected and esteemed as an upright, honerable and generous hearted man. He leaves a wife, two sons and a daughter to mourn the loss of a loving husband and father.

The "Donau Zeitung," a Bavarian newspaper, gives currency to the rumor that the Kaiser has instructed the military authorities to remit all sentences passed on soldiers of the China expeditionary force. His Majesty, it is said, does not wish that the men who went voluntarily to China to fight for the Fatherland shall return home to undergo punishment. Quite a large number of soldiers of the German forces have been sentenced to more or less heavy punishment for offenses against military discipline committed in China and for excesses against the person and property of the Chinese.

When Emma Paul was called as a witness in court in Baltimore, Md., in a suit brought by her father against her mother, the astonishing facts were disclosed that, although she is aged twenty years, she did not understand the nature of an oath, had never been to a church or Sunday school, had never heard of God, or heaven, and did not know of the promise of immortality. It was discovered that the young woman had lived in Baltimore all her life, and that her home was in the heart of a densely populated section. Judge Wickes allowed her to testify, saying she was an extraordinary and unsatisfactory witness.

The street car companies of Chicago are apparently not in high favor with the Service committee of the committee on local transportation of the city council, for it has formulated a code that is likely to reduce the receipts of the railroad companies considerably. The committee at a meeting decided that if a passenger is obliged to stand up in a car and hang on to a strap he has received value for only four cents, and not five. Then the committee has suggested to the corporation counsel to enforce an ordinance relative to transfers, making it obligatory on the traction companies to furnish transfer slips to any of its intersecting lines.

An interesting operation has just been performed in the hospital attached to the University at Halle, Germany. A 6-year-old girl patient was suffering from partial paralysis and as the doctors in charge considered this could only arise from a tumor on the brain, Prof. von Bramann decided to remove it. With an electric saw he cut out a piece of the skull a little larger than a half-crown, cut through the inner skin, and discovered a tumor as large as a walnut. The professor skilfully removed this tumor, sewed up the inner skin, fitted in again the round piece of the skull he had sawn out, and sewed up the outer skin. The operation lasted an hour, and may be considered perfectly successful, as the child is quite well again and all symptoms of paralysis have disappeared.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

CHARGED WITH MALFEASANCE.

Sheriff Climmie, of Appanoose County, Suspended by Judge Roberts.

Ottumwa, Nov. 1.—By a decision rendered by Judge M. A. Roberts in this city, E. G. Climmie, sheriff of Appanoose county, was suspended from office pending the result of a trial in which the sheriff is charged with malfeasance in office and perjury. R. B. Vermila, of Unionville, Appanoose county, was appointed sheriff in the order promuigated by Judge Roberts, during Climmie's suspension.

The case is one which has caused wide-spread comment all over southern Iowa. The sheriff, an Appanoose county constable and a justice of the peace were indicted on the charge of malfeasance in office. In this it was charged that the sheriff would arrest a tramp, bring him before the justice for trial, have him committed, enter up his fees, and, after keeping the vagrant over night, turn him loose. It was alleged, and is so stated in the indictment in legal phraseology, that the sheriff the next day would repeat the operation, thus, it is alleged, considerably enlarging his fee bill. This practice became so much talked about that the citizens committee of Centerville took the matter in hand and procured the indictment of the sheriff and the other two peace officers.

MATLOCK BANK ROBBED.

Six Men Secure Two Thousand Dollars—All Were Heavily Armed.

Matlock, Nov. 1.—The bank of Matlock was burglarized by six men, who secured about $2,000. Of this amount $300 was in silver. Four of the men stationed themselves so as to guard all points while the other two went inside. They made free use of dynamite, three heavy shots being fired, waking a good many people. The safe and vault were shattered and the building badly wrecked. All the glass in the windows was broken out and some pieces of the safe a foot square were blown through the sides of the building and into the street thirty yards. An old man sleeping in an adjoining building was compelled by the robbers to return to the house and keep still. There is absolutely no clew and no effort was made to follow the robbers, because all were so heavily armed. The total loss in money and damage to the safe and building is over $4,000.

ROBBERS LOOT ARISPE BANK.

Secure About Four Hundred Dollars in Cash, Mostly Silver.

Arispe, Nov. 1.—The bank of Arispe was entered by robbers, who exploded nitroglycerine on the safe, valued at $1,000, and shattered the door to bits. Every cent in the safe was taken, and the loss will be over $400 in cash. A number of $1 and $2 bills are included in the amount taken, but the most of the money secured is silver. A large amount of money in a small safe was not secured.

The robbers left their tools in the bank. It is believed that two men did the work, and walked to the railway track and thence north out of the city along the Great Western track. The work was done between 3 and 4 o'clock in the morning, when the sky was darkened by clouds and there was a heavy rain and considerable wind. There was no insurance on the bank safe or its contents, and the loss will be $1,500 or over, including damage to the safe and money taken.

MARRIED BY PHONOGRAPH.

Colfax Man Secures a Bride in a Novel Manner.

Binghamton, N. Y., Nov. 4.—H. F. Bossom of Colfax, Jasper county, Iowa, was married to Miss Mabel Johnson by means of a phonograph. Arrangements had been completed for the wedding and the groom arrived to find his fiancee had been stricken with scarlet fever and was under quarantine. Though the attack was slight, the quarantine was strict, but they determined to go through with the ceremony. The bride conceived the idea of resorting to a phonograph. An instrument was procured into which the minister propounded the questions. It was conveyed to the house and the answers of the bride recorded, then after it was fumigated the groom made his reply and the ceremony was ended by the minister filing a marriage certificate.

ROBBERS ARE FRUSTRATED.

Fail in Their Attempt to Loot Currier's Bank at Salix.

Sioux City, Nov. 4.—Burglars rode into the town of Salix, Iowa, on bicycles at 3 o'clock a. m. and gained an entrance to the bank of J. C. Currier & Son by prying open a window. They cut through the brick wall of the vault and drilled into the iron door of the safe, blowing it open with dynamite. The explosion awakened neighbors and the men fled. They quickly mounted their bicycles and rode away in the darkness. They knocked over a box containing valuable jewelry by the explosion, but they did not have time to stop and get it.

Young Farmer Killed.

Woodward, Nov. 4.—Albert J. Leaming, a young farmer near Dawson, was killed at Dawson while crossing the Milwaukee tracks in front of freight train No. 78. The engine struck the hind wheels of the wagon, throwing it about thirty feet and killing one of the horses. Mr. Leaming jumped from the wagon and one of the wagon wheels struck him in the head, killing him instantly. Albert was born near Woodward, and had made this his home until a short time ago.

BLIND GIRL EARNS A LIVELIHOOD

Linnie Haguewood Is at Last in an Independent Position.

Des Moines, Oct. 31.—The annual report of B. Murphy, trustee of the Linnie Haguewood fund, has been filed in the office of Governor Shaw. The report details the manner in which the appropriation of the state legislature has been expended and there is appended the report made by Miss Dora Donald, under whose tutorage the state's blind ward has been for several years. Miss Donald is now the superintendent of the school for the blind of South Dakota, and Linnie Haguewood is with her. One most interesting part of the report in addition to the precociousness and ambition of the blind girl in her studies is her love for the work in the mechanical department. Miss Donald says:

"Linnie's dexterity along manual lines has been often mentioned. Her love for the feminine arts is deeply rooted in her nature and serves to fill each vacant hour with never ending pleasure. This ability has been called into activity in the institution printing office, where she has taken first honors as an operator of the stereotype maker. All Linnie's natural characteristics are here called into activity. She is not called upon to depart from the well known path, and she writes with an assurance born of conscious power. Proof reading and binding make Linnie a valuable assistant in the printing office, while it opens an avenue of employment that makes her future independent in a financial way."

SHOOTING MAY BE MURDER.

Frank Matthews Hit By a Bullet From "Minnesota Slim's Gun.

Sioux City, Oct. 31.—Frank Matthews, an unemployed railway switchman, who gained notoriety in the A. R. U. strike of 1894 by an alleged attempt to burn the Illinois Central bridge across a dry run in the eastern part of the city, was shot in the stomach and probably fatally wounded by a man known as "Minnesota Slim," also said to have been a railroad man at one time.

After shooting Matthews, the man known as "Minnesota Slim" then turned his revolver upon Phil Kelley, who at times has worked in the packing house of Sioux City, and fired a shot which pierced his coat and grazed the right shoulder. The fellow fired a third shot which did not take effect. He then ran and escaped arrest. The shooting seems to have been done without warning and without provocation.

Dr. Van Buren Knott said as he was finishing the operation: "It will be nothing less than a miracle if this man recovers. His stomach, his liver and his intestines have been frightfully injured."

The shooting took place upon the sidewalk in front of the Oak saloon on the northwest corner of Fourth and Iowa streets. The three men had walked north on Iowa street and had just crossed Fourth street to go into the Oak saloon, when "Minnesota Slim" jerked his gun and began pulling the trigger. Matthews and Kelly were very drunk, and the assailant also had been drinking.

PARKS AND FORESTRY.

Association to Look After These Interests to Be Organized at Ames.

Des Moines, Oct. 31.—Professor L. H. Pammel, who holds the chair of botany in the Iowa State college at Ames, has issued a call for a meeting of all Iowans interested in parks and forestry, to be held November 16 at Ames, at which time a premliminary organization of what is to be known as the Park and Forestry association is to be formed. Temporary officers are to be elected and a program prepared for the first annual meeting of the association, which will be held on the evening of December 16 in connection with the meeting of the State Horticultural society in this city. This move is practically a new one in the state and is made with a view to improving the horticultural conditions throughout the state, especially where they pertain to parks and forestry. Among the enthusiastic promoters of the movement, besides Professor Pammel, are Secretary Wesley Green of the State Horticultural society, who will be present at the meeting at Ames; Prof. Homer C. Price, Prof. A. T. Irwin and Prof. E. E. Little, all of Ames college, are also interested in the movement. A half dozen or more persons have already signified their willingness to appear upon the program for the annual meeting.

Smallpox Among Winnebagoes.

Sioux City, Oct. 31.—Reports from the Winnebago agency state there are from 200 to 250 cases of smallpox among the Indians there, the greater number being in the region of Big Bear's camp, near the Missouri river. During the epidemic last year the first reports were exaggerated, and 200 cases may be more than facts warrant; but the pestilence has taken a very serious phase, and last night Homer established a quarantine against the infected districts. Sioux City, Dakota City, Salix, Sloan and Wakefield have established quarantine against the Winnebagoes, and every precaution is being taken by the agency authorities to check the epidemic. It is reported that during a fortnight twenty deaths have occurred.

Mob Riot Is Squelched

Sioux City, Oct. 31.—Prompt action on the part of the police prevented a "neck tie" party at this place and saved the life of James McGuire, the Kentucky negro, who committed an assault on 13-year-old Ambrose Monahan. The leader of a mob of 100 men was arrested by the police and the crowd dispersed after a refusal of the jailer to surrender the prisoner.

NEWS IN GENERAL

SCHLEY COURT OF INQUIRY

Washington ,Oct. 30.—The cross-examination of Admiral Schley was continued throughout the session of the court of inquiry yesterday. The progress made was exceedingly slow. Practically the whole day was consumed in questioning the admiral about the cruise from Cienfuegos to Santiago, and the motives and influences that governer him in turning back after his squadron had arrived in the vicinity of the latter port. This latter branch of the cross-examination had not been concluded when the court adjourned. The blockade at Santiago, the reconnaissance on May 31 and the battle of July 3 still remain to be covered. It is hardly probable that the judge advocate can conclude before adjournment tomorrow. After he has finished a number of questions prepared by the members of the court will be submitted.

The judge advocate in conducting the cross-examination used a carefully prepared typewritten list of questions. They called for comparison of statements Admiral Schley has made, either in his direct testimony, or in his communication to the senate or his dispatches to the navy department, with the testimony of witnesses who have preceded him, and the logs and signal books of the other vessels of the fleet. The questions were not asked in chronological order, but jumped from one subject to another and from one stage of the campaign to another. Throughout the strain to which the witness naturally was subjected, the admiral retained his customary composure.

Washington, Oct. 31.—The long ordeal to which Admiral Schley has been subjected since Monday morning ended yesterday afternoon, when his cross-examination was concluded and he was allowed to leave the witness stand.

When the judge advocate finished the cross-examination, shortly after 3 o'clock, the court propounded to the admiral thirty-four questions prepared by the members of the court. These questions touched many points of the campaign of the flying squadron, but mainly centered about the difficulties encountered in coaling and the reasons for the retrograde movement. Not one of them related to the battle of Santiago. The judge advocate's cross-examination yesterday covered the retrograde movement, the reconnaissance of May 31, the loop of the Brooklyn and the alleged colloquy with Lieutenant Hodgson about the Texas.

One of the most interesting features of the day was the development of the fact that the report of the battle written by Admiral Schley July 6, 1898, was not the original report.

The original report never has been published, and in accordance with a previous decision, the court yesterday declined to allow it to go into the record. Admiral Schley was allowed to explain, however, that Admiral Sampson declined to receive the first report because he did not mention the presence of the New York. "I felt that the victory at that time," said Admiral Schley, in explaining the matter, "was big enough for all, and I made this change out of generosity and because I knew if the New York had been present she would have done as good work as anybody else."

Washington, Nov. 1.—In the Schley court of inquiry yesterday a number of witnesses were introduced by Judge Advocate Lemly to testify in rebuttal of the evidence given in Admiral Schley's behalf. The court decided early in the day that no witnesses could be introduced at this stage of the proceedings to give testimony on immaterial points. On the other hand, the court held that it was not bound by the ordinary proceeding in civil issues as to the time when testimony can be taken and that witnesses might be called or recalled any time for the purpose of making additions to former statements, but that none of them could reiterate testimony previously given. This decision was rendered on an objection raised by Mr. Rayner to allowing Captain Sigsbee to give new testimony when called as a witness for rebuttal purposes. Captain Chadwick in his statement yesterday said that the precautionary dispatches from the navy department in regard to attacking the Spanish shore batteries had not been communicated to Commodore Schley. This statement is regarded as of great importance by Admiral Schley's opponents, as it distinctly contradicts the admiral's own statements.

New Treaty Framed.

London, Nov. 4.—The first official statement of any kind made for a month in relation to the Nicaragua canal has been obtained by the Associated Press. It confirms the fact that Lord Pauncefote, the British ambassador to the United States, when he landed in New York Saturday had with him the draft of a new treaty, abrogating the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, which is in every particular satisfactory to Lord Salisbury's cabinet.

Minister Wu Has Been Recalled.

Peking, Nov. 4.—The recall of Wu Ting Fang (the Chinese minister at Washington) has been decided upon. He will be offered, it is announced, a subordinate position in the foreign office, beneath his abilities, which, it is believed, he will decline. Li Hung Chang's interpreter, Tseng, a son of Marquis Tseng, is a prominent candidate for the Washington mission. He is 30 years of age and was educated in England.

DEMONSTRATION HAS EFFECT.

Turkish Government Hastens to Accept the Terms Laid Down by France.

Paris, Nov. 4.—The dispatch of Admiral Caillard's squadron from Toulon to Turkish waters has already had its effect. The French foreign office has received a telegram from M. Bapst, councillor of the French legation at Constantinople, announcing that the sultan sent him a message accepting all the French claims, including the Lorando claim.

The porte also telegraphed to the French minister of foreign affairs, M. Delcasse, informing him that the Lorando claim had been settled, and that the sultan had signed an irade accepting the figure fixed by France for the payment of the claim. M. Delcasse proceeded to the Elysee palace and to the ministry of the interior and consulted with President Loubet, the premier, M. Waldeck-Rousseau, and the minister of marine, M. De Lassan. He afterward had another conference with M. Walbeck-Rouseau. It is understood the French government also will demand an understanding that Turkey will not renew recent interference with the diplomatic mail bags.

London, Nov. 4.—A dispatch to a news agency from Rome says that the second division of the Italian Mediterranean squadron has started for Turkey with the object, it is said, of counterbalancing the French naval demonstration.

BRITISH SUFFER HEAVILY

Colonel Benson's Rear Guard Was Rushed By Boers.

London, Nov. 2.—Lord Kitchener has reported to the war office a disaster to the British near Bethel, eastern Transvaal, in which two guns were lost, several officers killed or wounded and fifty-four men killed and 160 wounded.

The following is the text of Lord Kitchener's dispatch dated Pretoria, Nov. 1:

"I have just heard of a severe attack made on the rear guard of Colonel Benson's column, when about twenty miles northwest of Bethel, near Broken Laagte, during a thick mist.

"The strength of the enemy is reported to have been 1,000. They rushed two guns with the rear guard, but it is uncertain whether they were able to remove them.

"I fear our casualties were heavy. Colonel Benson was wounded, but not severely. A relieving column will reach him this morning."

Lord Kitchener telegraphed as follows:

"Colonel Barter, who marched from the constabulary line yesterday, reaching Benson's column early this morning (Friday) is unopposed. He reports that Colonel Benson died of his wounds.

"The casualties are as follows:

"Killed, Colonel E. Guinness, Major F. D. Murray, Captains W. M. Lindsay and F. T. Thorould, Lieutenants E. V. I. Brooks and R. E. Shepherd, and Second Lieutenant A. J. Corlett. Died of his wounds, Captain Eyre Lloyd."

Lord Kitchener then gives the names of thirteen officers who were wounded, most of them severely, and announces that fifty-four non-commissioned officers and men were killed and 160 wounded, adding that four of the latter have since died of their wounds. The dispatch then says:

"I assume that the two guns have been recovered and the enemy has withdrawn, but I have no further details.

"I deeply regret the loss of Colonel Benson and the other officers and men who fell with him. In Benson, the service loses a most gallant and capable officer who invariably led his column with marked success and judgment.

"The fighting was at very close quarters and maintained with determination by both sides. The enemy suffered heavily, but I have not yet received a reliable estimate.

"The Boers retired east."

Colonel Benson had been for some time operating in the vicinity of Bethel, which is northeast of Standerton. He surprised a Boer laager, October 22, near Trichardsfontein, taking thirty-six prisoners. Three days later, according to Lord Kitchener's report at the time after a long march, the commandoes, under Grobelaar and Erasmus, "heavily attacked Benson's rear guards and flanks at Yzirvarkfontein, but were easily driven away."

Whether this was the attack which resulted so disastrously or whether the Boers, who had been repulsed took advantage of mist to renew the attack is still unexplained. Lord Kitchener does not give the date of the Bethel engagement.

A dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, received here today, says Colonel Kekewich, during a night surprise of Van Alberts Laager, northeast of Rustenberg (about sixty miles west of Pretoria) captured seventy-eight Boers.

Sultan Compelled to Pay.

Paris, Nov. 3.—A dispatch to the Temps from Constantinople says 30 officers of the navy recently mutined on account of arrears of pay and proceeded to the palace to make a demonstration. The sultan then sent an aide de camp with an installment of the money due them, and the officers thereupon desisted.

Taylor Is Protected.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 4.—Governor Durbin has refused to grant a requisition for the return to Kentucky of ex-Governor Taylor and Chas. Finlay, who were indicted by Kentucky courts for complicity in the murder of William Goebel.

The Scourge of Damascus

A Story of the East...

By SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

Copyrighted 1891 by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER XVII.—(Continued.)

Ulin bowed her head upon her hands; and could the instinctive promptings of her heart at that moment have been read, they would have revealed a secret not much to be wondered at.

"I think," said Ezabel, after a pause, "that you have had some opportunity to study Julian's character."

"I have seen enough to assure me that he is a noble, generous man," returned Ulin, raising her head.

"And," added Ezabel, "if you could know him better you would find your impressions strengthened. But he will not be here long. As soon as he recovers from his wound he will leave us."

"If I am not mistaken," ventured our heroine, "Julian is at home in this place."

"Most certainly he is, my daughter. From his earliest childhood he knew no other home but this."

"And he was on his way hither when he overtook me in the hands of the Arabs."

"Yes."

"And will my presence cause him to leave you?"

"I think not, lady. But you will give yourself no uneasiness on that account. If Julian feels that he had better be away from you, he will go for his own sake. And, remember—the truly noble soul finds joy in the generous sacrifices which it may be called upon to make. I hear Ben Hadad's voice. He is calling me."

She arose and left the chamber; and when she returned she was followed by Ben Hadad. Now that Ulin saw the hermit by the light of the day she was awe-struck by his venerable appearance. All that could be noble and honorable and lovable in old age seemed combined in him; and as he bent his gaze upon her and extended his hand in welcome, she felt her heart go to him with all its trust and confidence.

"My child," he said in tones of tenderest solicitude, "Ezabel has told me your story and I have come to bid you an affectionate welcome to my cave. Rest here and feel that you are at home. Your mother paid me for this long ago. Come—follow me to where the air is fresher, and where the sunbeams can greet you."

The maiden thanked Ben Hadad as well as she was able and then rose to follow him. He led her to the main cave, where she found Hobaddan and the slaves.

"This is my home," said the old man, as he led the maiden to a seat; "and here have I lived more years than go to fill up the allotted age of man. All these trees and shrubs I have trained up from the tender sprout, and these vines I have taught to clothe the gray old rocks. And I have been most fortunate in my life. I have been able to protect many who needed protection and my days have been lengthened out to protect more."

Ulin was touched by the deep pathos of the hermit's words, and for a whole hour she sat and listened to his conversation. At the end of that time he led her back to the cave where Ortok, the black slave, had prepared dinner. She did not feel hungry, but she sat down with Ben Hadad and Hobadden and Ezabel—she and Albia—and partook with them.

Thus passed three days; and Ulin had become so used to the place that it already seemed like home. She had learned to love the hermit; and she had learned to love Ezabel; and she had learned to respect and esteem the stout-hearted Hobaddan and to converse with him freely. Once she asked the lieutenant what had become of Julian's band. Would they not be seeking him?

And he explained to her that he had communicated with them—that they knew of their chieftain's safety and had gone away into the mountains of Lebanon, where comfortable abiding places for them were plenty.

When Ulin retired to her own apartment she sat by herself, with her head bowed upon her hands, taking no notice of her serving-maid. At an early hour she retired; but it was a long time ere she slept; and when she did sleep she was troubled with strange dreams. She dreamed of the unfortunate Helena, and awoke with a cry of pain. And then she dreamed a more pleasant dream—a dream of something that had haunted her waking thoughts—a dream of the Scourge and Damascus.

CHAPTER XVIII.

Something More Than a Dream.

On the following morning, when Ulin entered the main cave, Julian was there to greet her. She extended her hand to him and smiled as she spoke. The youthful chieftain was somewhat pale, but his large, lustrous eyes burned with a deeped intensity and the white brow offered a strange contract to the waving mases of golden hair. The maiden's smile faded away when she met the earnest gaze that was fixed upon her, and her hand trebled before she withdrew it. He spoke to her a few words of cheer, expressed his gratitude that she had found a place of safety; and hoped that the future might have no more clouds for her.

"O, my mistress," cried Albia, when she and Ulin were alone, "how noble a man he is!"

"Who?" asked the princess, starting out from a deep reverie.

"Julian, I mean," returned the maid, quickly and with enthusiasm. "Does he not look handsomer than ever?"

Ulin bowed her head and made no reply.

"Is he not beautiful to gaze upon?" pursued Albia, without seeming to notice her lady's abstracted mood.

"Hush, Albia, say no more now. I am busy with my own thoughts."

"Pardon, sweet mistress. I meant no wrong. I thought—we owed him so much—and he has suffered in our behalf—that you might—"

"Albia, say no more. I know you meant well. You mistake me if you think I am not grateful. There—say no more. I love you, and would not hurt your feelings. Go out into the grove and walk awhile."

Ulin bowed her head again as she spoke, with her hand upon her brow—upon her brow for a moment—and then pressed upon her bosom. And thus Albia left her.

When the freed girl reached the grove in front of the cave she found Julian and Osmir in close conversation and before they noticed her she had heard enough to excite her curiosity; and with a freedom that was natural to her, she asked them what had happened.

"Osmir thinks," said Julian, with a smile, "that one of the Arab robbers has followed us and tracked us to this place; but I laugh at him."

"I may be mistaken," rejoined the other, "but still I think I am right. I have seen the fellow twice; once by the river at the entrance of the wood, and once further away. It was one of the rascals who escaped us."

"And if it is the Arab, what can he want?" asked Albia.

"If it be one of those fellows," returned Julian, "he may wish to join our ranks."

"Oh," added Osmir, "he may hope to steal something."

"Very likely," assented the chieftain. "However," he concluded, after a brief pause, "we may as well keep a sharp lookout."

"Selim and I are on the watch," said Osmir; "and if we catch the rascal, we'll secure him."

Albia fancied that Julian had thoughts which he was not willing to express in her presence, but she did not mean to fret herself; and before she rejoined her mistress she had almost forgotten the circumstances.

At noon, and again in the evening, did Ulin meet Julian; but they did not converse freely together. She could not meet the gaze of those lustrous eyes without trembling, and she sought to avoid that which so much moved her. If he had approached her and spoken freely with her on some subject of general interest she would have joined him readily; but he did not do so.

Morning came again, and again the maiden met the man who had saved her from the Arabs. This time he greeted her in few words, and soon turned away to speak with Hobaddan. He did not seem well. He looked paler than on the day before, and there was an expression of pain about the mouth and eyes. Ulin was uneasy. Perhaps his wound was giving him new trouble. As soon as the morning's meal had been eaten, she sought Ezabel and asked her if Julian was suffering from his wound.

"No," replied the old woman. "I do not think it is his wound. I have noticed his appearance and have asked him what it meant; but he puts me off with a smile and a blessing and tries to assure me that all is well. I do not like to see him suffer. He is like a child to me and I love him tenderly. Ah, the world little knows what a noble, generous soul dwells within that manly form."

"If I thought he was suffering from my account," said Ulin, "I should be most unhappy."

"How on your account?" said Ezabel, quickly.

"I mean in consequence of the wound he received while fighting for my deliverance."

"I hardly think it is that. Something beside the wound troubles him. It may be that the short captivity in Damascus worries him. He may have heard something there that gives him unpleasant thought."

At noon Julian did not appear when the rest ate their dinner. He was out by the river. Late in the afternoon Ulin met Ezabel again and the latter seemed sad and dejected.

"Julian is going to leave us," exclaimed the woman, in answer to an inquiry from Ulin.

"Leave us!" repeated our heroine, with a start.

"Yes; so he told me only an hour since."

"When will he go?"

"Early in the morning."

"But he will shortly return?"

"I fear not. I asked him that and he only shook his head."

"Does he give any reason for his going away?"

"None that you need to know, my child. In fact, he gives me no reason directly. I am left to draw my conclusions from accidental remarks."

When Ulin retired to her chamber she was in a frame of mind not easily analyzed. She spoke to Albia concerning the chieftain's unexpected departure and the girl expressed the opinion that he felt himself to be in the way.

"What do you mean by that?" asked Ulin.

"Well," replied Albia, "I think Julian feels that there are enough dwellers in the hermit's cave without him. I may be mistaken; but his manner, for a day or two past, has seemed to indicate that he was not perfectly at ease here."

The princess asked no more questions, but busied herself with her own thoughts.

As the sun was sinking from its daily course, Ulin wandered out into the grove alone, and as she approached the spot where she sometimes sat with the hermit, she saw Julian, seated upon a bench beneath an orange tree. At first she thought of turning back, and retracing her steps; but an impulse which was no result of her will, but rather an instinctive emotion, as though some secret force, led her on; and almost before she was aware of it she came so near that the youth heard her stop and looked up. He started when he saw her and a flash of joy, like a quick passage of sunlight, was upon his face. In a moment, however, the look was gone, and a shade of sadness succeeded. The maiden could not now have withdrawn even had she been so disposed in the first place. Following the strong impulse, she advanced to the shadow of the orange tree and placed her hand upon Julian's shoulder; and it thrilled the youth like an electric shock.

"Kind sir," she said, scarcely able to speak above a whisper when she commenced, "Ezabel tells me you are going away."

"Yes, lady," Julian replied, rising as he spoke; "I have so determined."

"And you go soon?"

"In the morning."

"This is sudden, sir."

"No, lady; no more so than my movements are apt to be."

CHAPTER XIX.

Ulin and Julian.

Ulin hesitated and trembled, and finally sat down upon the bench from which the chieftain had arisen. In a few moments she had recovered herself so that she could speak without faltering.

"Good sir, I have one question to ask you." She went on hurriedly, as though the old impulse still led her; "You had not planned to leave the cave so soon?"

"I had planned nothing about it, lady."

"But—if I had not been here, with my servant, you would have remained longer?"

"Lady, do not ask me such questions."

"I must ask them, sir, for I want to know. If I thought that my presence here had caused you to leave your old home, I should be most unhappy. When I came here I did not know how near and dear this place was to you. If one of us must go, let me find some other resting place."

Julian started and trembled like an aspen. A moment it was so, and then he turned upon the maiden a look so earnest and so deep and so full of tumultuous feeling, that she shook beneath it.

"Lady," he said, speaking almost in a whisper, "you shall know the secret which I had purposed never to reveal to mortal being. The words are forced from me. Let me speak them now; and then let them be forgotten. When I heard that the king of Damascus had shut up a fair maiden within the Palace of Lycanius, and that he meant to make that maiden his wife, I felt my heart grow sick within me and I resolved, if the fair one was held against her will, that I would set her free. I led my brave men to the palace and overcame the guard which the king had set. Heaven was opened, but in the blessed realm I was offered no abiding place. I saw the loved spirit of light within the cave which had been the home of my childhood; but my love I dared not speak. How could I, the enemy of Damascus, and the branded robber, tell my love to the daughter of the king's prime minister. Lady, I dare not trouble you more."

Des Moines, Nov. 2, 1901.

The state executive council leased the meandered portion of Wall Lake to the town of Lake View, Sac county, which desires to improve those portions of the lake bed lying adjacent to the town, but rendered useless to the state because of their meandered condition. The lease has not yet been drawn up, but it will probably provide for a consideration of not more than five dollars from the town for the use of the lake bed.

Attorney General Mullen has rendered an opinion to the auditor of state in which he holds that insurance companies doing business on the stipulated premium plan may do an accident business the same as level premium companies. The auditor asked the opinion of the attorney general on this subject as a result of an inquiry made by Dr. E. E. Dorr, president of the Brotherhood Reserve Life association, a stipulated premium company of this city. The attorney general holds that section 1710 of the code, which gives to life insurance companies organized on the stock or mutual plan the authority to do an accident business, applies as well to the stipulated premium companies organized under chapter 65 of the acts of the Twenty-eighth general assembly.

The executive council has decided to appropriate the balance remaining in the providential contingent fund to the Iowa State college at Ames for the purpose of aiding it to tide over the recent loss of the experiment station, barn and contents. The sum was found to be $3,090.42. About a third of this will be used for feed and the remainder for putting up a temporary barn.

Fifty applications for new delivery routes on the rural plan have been sent to Captain Hull and it is said that Special Agent Fry has agreed to recommend to the postoffice department that at least 35 of them be established in the Seventh district. Mr. Fry says he finds the farmers in central Iowa are making better roads than in any other part of the state, using more gravel and coal mine refuse, and that this improvement will mean better rural route service.

Dr. J. I. Gibson, state veterinary surgeon, has submitted to the governor the third biennial report. The report contains many interesting features and covers the period ending June 30, 1901. The inspection of all horses imported into the state at the point of entry, as a protection from glanders, is one of the recommendations by Dr. Gibson. Wonderful prosperity in the live stock industry is noted. A number of valuable papers are incorporated into the report, one of which is by Prof. John J. Repp of the experiment station at Ames, and combats the theories of Professor Koch, announced recently, that tuberculosis is not transmissible to human beings through the use of the meat or milk of tuberculous animals. Dr. Gibson has been kept busy during the past two years in answering official calls and effecting sanitary protection for the live stock industry of the state. Over 150 official calls have been made upon the department during this period, and the following diseases were found to exist: Actinomycosis, abortion, black leg, catarrhal pneumonia, corn stalk disease, encephalities, ergotism, glanders, hog cholera, influenza, mange, Missouri bottom disease, rabies, superative lymphingitis, specific ophthalmia, thrust in cattle, and tuberculosis. Tuberculosis, rabies and glanders largely predominated.

The campaign of education which the fire insurance companies started out some months ago to make against the valued policy law has developed into a different sort of campaign in which the companies are seeking to find out the sentiments of the old members of the legislature who will be returned this winter and to help men into the legislature who will oppose a valued policy bill. A leading member of the senate who was in Des Moines recently related while here that he had been approached by no less than three emissaries of the fire insurance companies. They were anxious to sound him as to the valued policy idea and to ascertain whether he would support a valued policy bill if it was introduced this winter. He replied that he had voted for a valued policy bill in the past whenever he had an opportunity and he intended to do so again this winter. It is understood the fire insurance companies are taking the keenest interests in the legislative contests and that they are organizing carefully for a fight against the valued policy measure this winter. In addition to the work done through the literary bureau, an active lobby will be maintained.

Frank W. Bicknell, for many years a newspaper man and correspondent in this city, has been appointed as a special agent of the department of agriculture of the United States. He will soon go to South America, where he will be occupied for two years in investigations for the department.

Parasites Cause All Hair Troubles.
Nine-tenths of the diseases of the scalp and hair are caused by parasite germs. The importance of this discovery by Professor Unna of the Charity Hospital, Hamburg, Germany, can not be overestimated. It explains why ordinary hair preparations, even of the most expensive character, fail to cure dandruff, because they do not, and they cannot, kill the dandruff germ. The only hair preparation in the world that positively destroys the dandruff parasites that burrow up the scalp into scales called scurf or dandruff, is Newbro's Herpicide. In addition to its destroying the dandruff germ Herpicide is also a delightful hair dressing, making the hair glossy and soft as silk.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address

It is one of the saddest sights in our modern life to see a young couple, when starting to furnish a home, go out with good money and buy bad furniture. It is positively nothing short of criminal for cheap department stores to be allowed to sell the furniture which is being offered today in our great cities. Young people are attracted to this rubbish because of the cheap prices. Every stick of the furniture offered at these stores is cheaply put together, and by glue and thick coats of vaneer is made only to sell. It barely gets into the new house before it falls apart, and what was thought to be a cheap purchase turns out to be a very expensive investment, It is strange that folks cannot get it through their heads that a bed, a table and two chairs, honestly made, are cheaper at sixty dollars, than one of those fearful concoctions known as "bedroom suits" which are sold at forty dollars and eighty-three cents. STORIETTES.

While Charles A. Towne was senator from Minnesota for about thirty days last winter he made a speech on the Philippines in the senate chamber of congress, and it was pronounced a great effort. At the conclusion of his speech, Senator Chauncey Depew was among the first to take Mr. Towne by the hand and congratulate him. "Senator Towne," he is said to have remarked, "your delivery was splendid, your rhetoric unsurpassed, but your argument was damnable." This left-handed compliment was no doubt intended to embarrass Senator Towne, but it didn't. He bowed politely to Mr. Depew, and said: "Senator Depew, I am glad you compliment the only features of my speech you are capable of understanding."

Andrew Lang, in Longman's Magazine, re-tells a capital story of a Mr. M., who was being brought to the Tower with Kilmarncok and Balmerino. A block stopped the sad cortege, and a lady, looking from a window, cried: "You tall rebel!" (Mr. M. was six feet four) "you will be shorter by a head!" "Does that give you pleasure, madame?" said Mr. M. "Yes, it does." "Then, madame," said Mr. M., taking off his hat and making a low bow, "I do not die in vain." Lady ——— was moved. She made interest for Mr. M. There exists a paper in the hand of George the Second to this effect: "Let Lady ———" (the name is obliterated) "have access to her tall rebel, and be damned to her." The royal clemency was extended to Mr. M.

Charles Battell Loomis recently gave a lecture on "American Humor" in a little church in Scotch Plains, where he makes his home. After the author had quoted from and criticised several so-called American humorists, and had eulogized a few that pleased him, he closed his lecture by reading what he called "several bits of really exquisite humor." When the lecture was over, and the author was on his way home, a friend who had accompanied him asked, interestedly: "By the way, Loomis, who was the author of those last few bits you gave?" "Well, I'll tell you," said the author, lowering his voice confidentially, "I've received so many contrary criticisms on my 'wit' that I was anxious to know whether I really had any or not. I decided to put it to a test. Those last few bits, which sent our rural friends into spasms of laughter, were 'poor things, but mine own!'"

THE CHAMPION WING SHOT.

Capt. Bogardus Has a Dangerous Experience but Comes Out Unhurt.

Ferris Wheel Park, Chicago, Nov. 4th.—Capt. A. H. Bogardus, the champion wing shot of the world, has spent the summer here. His shooting school has been one of the features of the Park during the season. He has given many exhibitions and his skill with the rifle is superb.

The Captain tells of a very close call he once had when living at Elkhart, Ill. He had been a sufferer from Kidney disease for several years and it rapidly developed into Bright's Disease. All his friends told him that this was incurable and that he would never get better.

To say that he was alarmed is to put it very mildly. This plucky man had faced many dangers and it made him sick at heart to think that at last he was to be conquered by such a cruel foe.

At last he heard of a medicine that had cured many such cases—Dodd's Kidney Pills. He used them and was completely restored to good health.

He says: "I attribute my present good health to Dodd's Kidney Pills and to nothing else."

A number of girls in a factory in Derby, Conn., went on a strike because a Polish damsel scented the workroom by lunching on garlic and limburger cheese.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 31st.—After investigating Garfield Tea, which is quite universally acknowledged to be the best family remedy, it is not difficult to explain its success—it is the medicine for GOOD RESULTS! It is prepared here by the Garfield Tea Co., in their new and attractive laboratory and is made wholly from simple, sweet and withal, HEALTH-GIVING HERBS. Garfield Tea is the ORIGINAL herb cure for constipation and sick headache.

The Up-To-Date Shirt Waist.

It is really never up-to-date unless it has been ironed with Defiance starch. Any woman that knows of the merits of Defiance will tell you that no other starch will produce that soft, glossy finish that you see so often on up-to-date women. The marvel of it all is that it sells for less (and gives more bulk) than any other brand. Sixteen ounces for 10 cents. Clip this out and take it to your grocer and tell him you want a package. Made by Magnetic Starch Co., Omaha, Neb. Not in the trust.

FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

War on Beet Sugar Makers.

The fight which has been inaugurated by the Sugar trust against beet sugar makers in the Missouri Valley and more western districts, threatens to affect beet sugar interests in all parts of the United States. The Trust has cut the price of granulated sugar to 3½ cents a pound at Missouri River points. This has been followed by a reduction of price in all states from Colorado to California amounting to 30 cents per hundred pounds on beet sugar and 20 cents on cane sugar. The Trust controls most of the sugar plantations and mills in Cuba and Puerto Rico and has practically a monopoly of raw cane sugar. In the beet sugar industry it finds its only competitor. In other words, the beet sugar industry alone opposes the monopoly of the sugar trade of this country by the Trust, which now seeks to close up the beet sugar refineries and compel producers to sell their raw product to the Trust at its own terms to be refined by the Trust at a profit. The recent report of Secretary Wilson on the beet sugar industry estimates the total product of 1901 at 185,000 tons, of which 119.000 tons come from the Pacific coast and Rocky Mountain states, besides 7,000 tons from Nebraska. California, with an annual output of 80,000 tons, is the leading producer. Perhaps a more definite idea of the magnitude and extent of the industry may be gained by other statistics which show that Michigan has eleven beet sugar factories having a beet consuming capacity of 75,000 acres; Colorado, 5 factories, capacity 45,000 acres; California 8 factories, capacity 100,000 acres; Nebraska 3 factories, capacity 20,000 acres; Utah 3 factories, capacity 25,000 acres; New York 2 factories, capacity 10,000 acres; Wisconsin, Minnesota, Oregon, Ohio, Indiana, Arizona, New Mexico, each one factory, with a capacity of 5,000 acres.

An opinion has been expressed that the carrying of the war by the beet sugar men into eastern territory, where the cane sugar trade centers, would compel the Trust to stand losses which would seriously affect the value of their sugar stocks and more greatly damage their interests than those of their smaller rivals. Reports of interviews with leading manufacturers indicate that the beet sugar men intend to appeal to Congress at its next session for legislation that will protect them against the Trust. When one considers that for many years the production of sugar in the United States has been encouraged by the government, that large sums have been spent under the direction of the Department of Agriculture in costly experiments to this end; that some state governments have joined the movement and granted bounties to sugar producers, it would seem strange if no protection could be secured for an industry so carefully nursed and which is just beginning to stand alone, against the aggression of a greedy corporation aiming to establish a despotism in the sugar trade.

Cultivating and Manuring Fruit Trees.

It is probably a fact that pear trees well tilled and well manured are more susceptible to the blight than trees not fertilized and left to grow in sod. Yet the fruit on such trees is correspondingly poor, and it is doubtless better to cultivate and fertilize and take the chances with the blight. It makes a great difference with the fruit whether the tree has been properly looked after and nourished or not. Some speak of the sizes of fruit as being fixed and we see statements that such a fruit is of medium or large size as the case may be. But the experience of the writer is that the size varies according to the soil and condition in which the tree is produced. The writer has in mind two fruits that he has seen greatly modified by cultivation. He remembers a group of Porter apples trees, all but one of the trees standing in greensward. Around each tree each year a circle was cut with a diameter of about ten feet and the ground within was kept free from weeds. Outside of that circle the grass held full sway. It is more than likely that the feeding roots of most of those trees was in the sodded portion of ground and not in the little space that had been dug up. The fruit on those trees was of medium size, very firm and kept fairly well. The one tree excepted was in the midst of a currant patch that was carefully spaded and manured each year and kept in a high state of cultivation all the time. That one tree attained double the size of any other Porter tree in the orchard, and there is no reason to doubt that its thrift was due to the fact that all of its feeding roots were in rich mellow soil. The greatest change was seen in the fruit. The size attained was large and the texture of the fruit was soft, so soft that it would not keep long except under the most exceptional conditions. The apples from that tree could not be shaken off or dropped on the ground lest a bruise result that started decay. The picker had to go over the tree with a basket and carefully pick and place in the basket each apple. But the apples were worth the trouble. They had a flavor and juiciness unknown in the same variety of apples grown in sod. As a luxury they stood next to the Bartlett pear.

The second illustration in the mind of the writer is of a Greening tree that stood near a barnyard and got the drainage from that place. The apples on that tree were larger and of finer texture than any other apples of the same variety in the orchard. The flesh was juicy, yellow and better flavored. They were in every sense fine eating apples at maturity.

This fact of change in characteristics of varieties due to cultivation is frequently noticed in fruit shown at fairs and expositions. The differences are sometimes so great that a casual observer would never suspect that certain exhibits were of the same variety. This all goes to show the effects of cultivation and fertilization on quality and form of fruit.

Purdue University.

Purdue University was organized under the Land Grant act passed by Congress in 1862. John Purdue gave the institution $150,000 and 100 acres of land upon which it is now located. On account of this gift, the state legislature in 1869 gave it the name of Purdue University. Since then the area has been increased by 90 acres. The university is in all senses a public institution, and tuition is free to the young men and women of Indiana. Greek and Latin are not taught, the institution retaining its first character as an agricultural and mechanical college. It now embraces six special schools as follows: School of Mechanical Engineering, School of Civil Engineering, School of Electrical Engineering, School of Agriculture, School of Science and School of Pharmacy. The annual income consists of $57,000 from the United States government, $65,000 from the state government and about $30,000 from fees. The total income last year was about $152,000. The buildings are valued at $357,000 and the equipment at $298,000. The library contains 10,000 bound volumes and 3,200 pamphlets. The teaching staff of the university consists of 69 professors and instructors. The growth of Purdue is shown by the following table of student attendance:

Quality and the Markets.

(From Farmers' Review Special Report.)

At the recent meeting of the American Pomological Society, Mr. Garfield of Michigan spoke on the relation of quality of fruit to the market. In part he said:

The taste of the people should be catered to. If they like Concord grapes they should be given Concord grapes, regardless of whether the growers think them the best grapes or not. The growers of fruit are small in number compared to the number of the consumers, and there is no reason why the few should not try to grow the kind of fruit the many want.

We should, however, try to get as much quality as possible into our fruit, so that people will increase their consumption of them. We cannot expect to increase the consumption of fruit if we try to satisfy the present demand by giving the people the Kieffer pears and Angouleme plums. The prime consideration is good quality. Some of our small growers especially are putting much time and effort into producing fruit of good quality.

Professor Waugh—What do we mean by quality? By it one man means one thing and another another. A fruit-commission man calls that a fruit of good quality that looks well, keeps well and sells well. But what most of us refer to by quality is its taste. This quality is a hard thing to obtain and at the same time get hardiness and large fruitfulness.

On a large proportion of dairy farms many of the fundamental principles which should be observed in producing pure milk are entirely overlooked. The farmer must understand something of the changes which take place in milk after it is drawn, and the conditions which affect its purity, in order to improve these conditions.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—When life looked brightest to me I sustained a hard fall and internal complications were the result. I was considerably inflamed, did not feel that I could walk, and lost my good spirits. I spent money doctoring without any help, when a relative visited our home. She was so enthusiastic over Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, having used it herself, that nothing would satisfy her until I sent for a bottle. I have thanked her a hundred times for it since, for it brought blessed health to me and cured me within seven weeks.

I now wish to thank you, your medicine is a friend to suffering women."—LILLIE DEGENKOLBE.

FRENCH SHIPS FOR TURKEY

Demand to Be Made on the Porte for Payment of Claims.

Paris, Nov. 1.—The officials of the French foreign office confirm the report that a division of the French Mediterranean fleet, composed of three battleships and two cruisers, under the command of Admiral Caillard, has proceeded from Toulon to the Levant, to make a naval demonstration against Turkey.

A foreign office official, in communicating the foregoing to the correspondent here of the Associated Press, said: "The squadron sailed with sealed orders and proceeds first to a Greek port, the island of Syra, I think, where the admiral will receive definite instructions as to carrying out his sealed orders. I am not at liberty to say what the sealed orders are, but the seizure of the customs at Smyra would probably be a very effective way of convincing the sultan that France's patience is exhausted, and that we have decided to enforce an immediate execution of the Turkish government's engagements. We, however, are very hopeful that the sultan will not compel us to go to that extreme.

"Our squadron will not reach the Greek port before Sunday. The Turkish government has thus still three days grace and we trust, in the meantime, to receive complete satisfaction. We have acted very considerately toward Turkey, hoping, up to the last moment, that she would carry out her engagements, and it is only now, when we find that there is no serious indication of her doing so, that we have reluctantly resolved to put stronger pressure to bear, in the shape of a naval demonstration. It is now two months since the French ambassador, M. Constans, left Constantinople. His departure failed to produce the desired effect. On the contrary, even the Quays and Tubini questions, which were settled by the sultan's irades, remain unadjusted. The internal situation in the Turkish empire deterred us, for some time, from taking drastic measures to enforce our demands. But the dignity of France could not permit the present state of affairs to be prolonged indefinitely. We sincerely hope the sultan will fully appreciate the fact that we cannot any longer be trifled with, and relieve us of taking further steps to safeguard our interests."

The official was asked what would happen in the event of the French squadron being ordered to seize the customs and if the Turkish authorities resisted, and he replied: "That is a very unlikely contingency, but if that is the case, I suppose we shall have to bombard the port. We do not want bloodshed and I do not believe there will be any occasion for it."

PROCLAMATION BY THE PRESIDENT

Fixing Thursday, November 28, as a Day of Thanksgiving.

Washington, Nov. 4.—President Roosevelt has issued his proclamation fixing Thursday, Nov. 28, as a day of national thanksgiving. It follows:

A Proclamation—The season is nigh when, according to the time-hallowed custom of our people, the president oppoints a day as the especial occasion for praise and thanksgiving to God.

This Thanksgiving finds the people still bowed with sorrow for the death of a great and good president. We mourn President McKinley because we so loved and honored him; and the manner of his death should awaken in the breasts of our people a keen anxiety for the country, and at the same time a resolute purpose not to be driven by any calamity from the path of strong, orderly, popular liberty, which as a Nation, we have thus far safely trod.

Yet in spite of this great disaster, it is nevertheless true that no people on earth have such abundant cause for thanksgiving as we have. The past year in particular has been one of peace and plenty. We have prospered in things material and have been able to work for our own uplifting in things intellectual and spiritual. Let us remember that, as much as has been given us, much will be expected from us; and that true homage comes from the heart as well as from the lips and shows itself in deeds. We can best prove our thankfulness to the Almighty by the way in which on this earth and at this time each ofus does his duty to his fellow men.

Now, therefore, I Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States, do hereby designate as a day of general thanksgiving November, and do of this present recommend that throughout the land the people cease from their wonted occupations, and at their several homes and places of worship thank the Giver of all good for the countless blessings of our national life.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington this second day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand, nine hundred and one, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-sixth.

(Seal) THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

By the president:

JOHN HAY, Secretary of State.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment, and everything necessary to it's perfect use. "Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made as is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflamation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to "Consumption—Snuffles will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure," Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canaba on receipt of One Doller. THE NEW ENGLAND MAGAZINE paints with loving touch the historic landmarks of New England; it recalls the customs and traditions of the "old red schoolhouse days" and tells of the achievements of New Englanders in all parts of the world. It has distinguished contributors and is artistically printed and illustrated. Monthly, $3.00 per annum.

THE NORTHWESTERN AGRICULTURIST is the leading farm, live-stock and home paper in the West. It interests every member of the family, having departments devoted to the interests of women as well as of men, on the farms in the Northwest. It is filled with instructive and interesting reading matter from beginning to end. Its various departments are under the charge of practical men, who have made a success themselves on their particular line on which they are writing. Amongst the department editors who contribute regularly to The Agriculturist, are Prof. Thomas Shaw, Professor of Animal Husbandry at the Minnesota State Agricultural College. Professor Shaw edits the sheep, beef cattle and horse departments; A. N. Hyatt, a dairyman known all over America as a practical and experienced dairy writer; Forest Henry, editor of the swine department, a man who has paid off mortgages by raising swine in Minnesota, and who is himself making money in swine-raising now, not as a breeder but as a feeder of swine for market; A. M. Bush, in charge of the horticultural department, State Lecturer on Horticulture at the Minnesota Farmers' Institutes. These are only a few of the more important departments of the paper. Sample Copies will be sent free to all who are interested. The Northwestern Agriculturist is published semi-monthly, and already reaches over 66,000 farm homes twice a month. Subscription price fifty cents a year.

THIRD ANNUAL POULTRY SHOW

To be Held at Garner, Iowa, November 27, 28 and 29.

The third annual exhibition of the Hancock County Poultry Association, which is to be given at Garner on the above dates, promises to be a success in every sense of the word. The association is managed by a competent corps of officials and every effort is being put forth to make the show this year eclipse any previous efforts. The officers are as follows:

T. B. Easton, President.
H. E. Watts, Vice President.
F. B. Cassill, Secretary.
L. B. LaRue, Assistant Secretary.
D. A. Monlux, Treasurer.
H. B. Sutton, Superintendent.
H. M. Hoag, Assistant Supt.

It will readily be seen that that this important meeting is in the hands of men who have the energy and push necessary to make any undertaking a success when they put their shoulders to the wheel.

This association was organized in 1899, and held its first meeting at Garner in November of that year, and the second and last meeting was held at Garner last December. Both of these meetings were grand successes as the one this year undoubtedly will be.

"Those who cannot attend the show in person, may be assured that their birds will have the same careful attention at the hands of the management as though the exhibitor was present. Our superintendent, Mr. H. B. Sutton, is a practical poultry breeder of large experience and will give his personal attention to the stock in the show. Come to the show if you can, but send your birds and they will be given fair treatment; you furnish your own coops, regulation size, and supplied with water and feed cups. Coops containing stock for exhibition should be plainly addressed to H. B. Sutton Supt.,

All entries to ——— for competition must be received by the secretary not later than Nov. 26, or if made by mail, must bear a postmark not later than above date. By a mistake in the copy furnished the TIMES, the book we printed made the date of the closing of entries Nov. 23, instead of Nov. 26. We mention this that our readers may get the correct date of the closing of the entries.

Remittances for entries should be made payable to F. B. Cassill, Secretary, Garner, Iowa. Each bird for competition must be entered singly. The fees are 15 cents for each bird and 75 cents additional for each breeding pen. Pigeons, rabbits and pet stock free.

The admission fee is 10 cents, children under 15 years 5 cents, children under ten years accompanied by their parents, free.

If you are interested obtain a premium list and see the premiums offered. We believe the show is sure to be a success and you can make it the more successful by entering your fowls.

Watch for the list of awards of this show. It will appear in full in the TIMES.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Nov. 11, 1901.

The Polk county delinquent tax list is a record-breaker in point of size, being the smallest that the county has had for years and years. The printed tax list is a full newspaper page less than it was last year and far below the average for the past twenty years. The tax list this year shows a remarkable prosperity existing thoughout the county, and in the rural districts this is particularly noticeable. The delinquent tax list for 1901 shows that the country township descriptions are three columns (newspaper print) less than they were last year. Almost every township shows a decrease in the number of pieces of property which are to be offered this year for delinquent taxes.

The Commercial Exchange is conferring with business men relative to investment of about $75,000 capital in a wholesale dry goods business. Secretary Ward has the names of five men who will put in $25,000 cash each, and who want more capital, so an establishment can be opened with at least $250,000 capital. It is said that Sioux City and Omaha have been after the enterprise, but rentals have been so high that the rentals have refused to enter into the scheme, and it is thought that better building accommodations, added to the increased facilities for shipments, will make Des Moines the more advantageous city for the big concern.

State Treasurer Gilbertson has filed with Governor Shaw a new bond for $500,000, and the document has been approved by the governor. This brings the total bond of the treasurer of state up to $800,000, as the bond given by Mr. Gilbertson when he first went into office was $300,000. The reason for the increase in the bond is the large sum of money now in the treasury. The balance in the general revenue fund is approximately $1,000,000. The law makes the minimum of the bond that the treasurer can furnish $300,000. It can be increased to any sum named by the governor. When Mr. Gilbertson first went into office it was agreed between him and the governor that the bond should be larger than it had been in John Herriott's time, and the increase was a carrying out of this understanding. During Mr. Herriott's term the governor felt the bond should be larger than it was, but in view of the differences which had arisen between himself and Mr. Herriott he hesitated to direct an increase, lest his action should be misconstrued. The increase in the bond of the treasurer is a step that meets Mr. Gilbertson's approval. The amount of the bond as suggested by the governor was $750,000, and Mr. Gilbertson advised that $500,000 might as well be added to the old bond while the increase was being made. The bondsmen are a number of Mr. Gilbertson's personal friends and local banks in which the state funds are deposited.

At the forthcoming meeting of the state horticultural society important legislation will be considered, and in all probability steps will be taken to secure its enactment by the general assembly. The foremost movement that is being agitated is for the creation of a department of horticulture, similar to the department of agriculture. The purpose of this movement is the protection of the public and of nurserymen who do legitimate business, from the wiles and inroads of irresponsible tree-jobbers. These men are doing much damage to the legitimate nursery interests and the farmers of the state are suffering largely from their misrepresentations. Fruit trees are sold by canvassers at high prices, and in many instances the trees are worthless. Prominent horticulturists of the state have considered the salient features of a bill they desire enacted. It is desired to have all nurseries pay a license. Only a nominal fee, sufficient to pay the expenses in making the record, is advocated. The measure would then provide that all agents employed outside of the county in which the nursery is located should be required to obtain a certificate before soliciting orders for stock. The tree-jobber would be required to pay a higher license than the nurseryman, and also the furnish a bond showing his ability to indemnify anyone injured by his methods. His agents would be required to comply with the same rules as those of the nurseryman. Nurseries and tree-jobbers from outside the state would be required to conform with governing [illegible] in the state. It is proposed to have everyone connected with the sale of nursery stock on record in the horticultural department. Anyone having cause for complaint would file it with the board. That body would investigate the matter, and if justified, would revoke the license of the tree-jobber, agent or nurseryman who was found guilty of irregularities. State inspection of stock in the packing sheds of nurseries is also advocated. Secretary Wesley Greene of the horticultural society says it is the purpose to broaden the scope of the society, but not to ask for an increase of appropriation.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

HOMER HOLLAND KILLED.

Victim of a Bullet Fired by A. M. Hunter, a Gambler.

Mt. Ayr, Nov. 11.—A. M. Hunter shot and instantly killed Homer Holland on the street at 12:30 Saturday. They had had a dispute over a misunderstanding arising out of a gambling game. Hunter is a professional gambler, 30 years old, and is a marvel of nerve and cold bloodedness. He recently did time in jail for keeping a gambling house. He is a second cousin to the noted bandit, Polk Wells.

No one saw the shooting, although many persons heard the report and were soon on the ground. Hunter stood with the smoking revolver, a 44-caliber Colts, in his hand, and avowed the act. He had also previously told Captain Holland, Homer's father, that he would get back a certain $20, no matter what road he had to travel to get it. As his victim lay dying, Hunter lighted a cigar. He then went home, asked his mother how she felt and said goodbye to her without telling her what he had done.

He went down town and told a friend that he was going to give himself up, but changed his mind and hid in a livery barn hay mow, where he was found at 4 o'clock. He surrendered without a struggle. He claims Holland started to attack him.

An empty revolver was found under Holland, which evidently jolted out of his pocket when he fell. The bullet from Hunter's revolver went clear through Holland's body, shattering the lower one-third of his heart. The gun used is the one which Hunter had been flashing frequently.

When arrested he said:

"It's a d—— bad job, but I never could stand imposition."

Holland's mother is a chronic invalid. His father, Captain A. E. Holland, was formerly sheriff. Homer was 23 years old last February. His athletic record at Drake university and with the Chicago Athletic association, in 1898 and 1899, are familiar. He was looked upon as the most perfect specimen of physical development ever known here. It was freely predicted, when he left Drake, that he would become one of the greatest athletes in the country. He held the running hop, step and jump record for Iowa, 48 feet one-half inch, made at the Iowa intercollegiate field meet in 1898. At the intercollegiate field meet held in Des Moines in May, 1899, he won for Drake five firsts and one second place. In that meet Holland won first in the 50-yard dash, making the distance in 5 4-5 seconds; first in the 100-yard dash in 10 2-5 seconds; first in the broad jump, making 22 feet, 3 1-2 inches; third in the high jump, second in the 120-yard hurdles, and first in the hop, step and jump, making 23 out of Drake's 49 points.

GRAIN MEN ASK RELIEF.

Demand Better Freight Rates to the South.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 11.—The McCauli-Webster Grain company, operating a large line of elevators in Iowa and Nebraska, has begun suit to compel the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway company to give shipments of grain destined to southern points for export the same privileges enjoyed by shipments going by the way of Chicago and New York. The grain company claims that rates via Chicago to New York have been made prohibitive by eastern trunk lines, and that the Milwaukee road is discriminating against the grain company in the way of switching and furnishing cars to carry grain beyond its lines to the gulf seaboard via this city and St. Louis. Thus it asks a restraining order to prevent the railroad from refusing to accord the elevator company's grain all the privileges of other freight. The case is of widespread importance as it will govern the routing of export grain to a great extent from both Iowa and Nebraska, whether it shall go by way of Chicago and eastern trunk lines or St. Louis and southern railroads.

T. F. GATCHELL FALLS DEAD.

Well Known Des Moines Man Expires at a Hospital Meeting.

Des Moines, No. 8.—Theodore F. Gatchell, secretary and manager of the Des Moines Fire Insurance company and one of the best known residents of Des Moines, fell to the floor last evening at the Methodist hospital Train School for Deaconesses, just as he had his hand on the door knob preparatory to leaving a meeting of the board of directors of the Iowa Methodist Hospital association, of which he was a member and [illegible]. Mr. Gatchell's last public act as a member of the board exemplified the sentiments which had marked his whole life. He had pleaded for poor patients; that they might always have admission to the hospital and that the hospital might never be considered a money-making institution.

Serious Fire in Sioux City.

Sioux City, Nov. 7.—Fire which broke out in Gunther & Sully's wholesale toy and notion house in this city at 9:30 last evening entirely gutted the building and neighboring buildings were endangered. At 1:30 a. m. the fire was under control, being confined to the building in which it started. The net loss is stated to be $60,000.

CUMMINS SWEEPS STATE

His Plurality Will Be in Neighborhood of 88,000.

Des Moines, Nov. 9.—Additional unofficial returns from Iowa counties do not change the result of the state ticket as announced yesterday. Mr. Cummins has an apparent plurality of 88,000 or a little less.

Corrected returns from the different counties, with the exception of Keokuk and Plymouth, have been received. They show some changes in the legislative results from those at first announced, the democrats making a better showing in several representative contests than they had been given credit for.

The next general assembly will contain a total of 122 republicans and 28 democrats. This will be the strength on joint ballot. The senate will stand 39 republicans to 11 democrats.

In the house the democrats in 1899 elected 19 members and the republicans 81. This year the republicans have elected 83 and the democrats 17. The democrats elected their representative candidates in Tama, Buchanan, Ida-Monona, Keokuk, Union and Shelby counties. Carroll also elected a democrat. The republicans elected representatives in Crawford, Davis Harrison, Plymouth, Muscatine and Clayton counties, one in Scott and one in Dubuque, and the candidate in the Lyon-O'Brien district. The democrats thus elected seven men in counties formerly republican, while the republicans more than turned the tables by capturing nine representatives in districts formerly democratic. The republican net gain was two.

CLINTON STREET BATTLE.

Two Negroes Under Arrest Open Fire on Officers and Escape.

Clinton, Nov. 9.—Captain William Dougherty, who was shot by Joe McNeil last summer, the bullet passing entirely through the body, and Constable George Huber figured in an exciting gunplay here at an early hour yesterday morning, when two desperate negroes whom the officers had arrested opened fire on them and succeeded in making their escape by dodging behind buildings. The prisoners are desperate characters and are wanted by the officers of several eastern Iowa towns. Wednesday night these same men, it is charged, robbed a Chicago electrician by the name of Cox, who was riding on a freight train near Stanwood. After having robbed Cox, who was riding on the bumpers, the highwaymen struck him on the head with the butt of a pistol, rendering him unconscious. He fell from the train, which was running at the rate of thirty miles an hour, but miraculously escaped without injury from the cars. However, he has a severe scalp wound from the pistol. The same negroes also, it is charged, held up and robbed a farmer near Tipton.

BURGLARS FRUSTRATED.

Partially Successful Attempt to Rob Two Iowa Banks.

Sioux City, Nov. 11.—Bandits cracked the safe of the Turin bank at Turin, Iowa. They were discovered by O. H. Swanson, the cashier. They fired a fusillade of shots, driving the citizens to cover. One bullet passed entirely through the building. The men fled. The safe was blown open with nitroglycerine, the same as that at Scotland, S. D., and at Hinton, Iowa. They were unable to penetrate the money chest, which contained $8,000. The robbers got $35. There is no clue.

Coggon, Nov. 11.—Burglars made an unsuccessful attempt to rob the State bank here. They broke into the bank at the rear door and succeeded in gaining entrances to the vault, where they took the contents of the till, amounting to about $25. They were evidently frightened off before getting the inner vault open. There is no clue beyond the fact that a suspicious looking man boarded the evening train at Ryan.

SAFE BLOWN AND NO CLUE.

Sioux City, Nov. 8.—Two expert safe crackers blew the safe at the bank of Hinton, getting $1,500 in bills, gold and silver. Nitroglycerine was pumped into the safe and the explosion shattered the safe, but the bank's collateral was found to be intact. There is no insurance against loss. The bank will continue operations. Before entering the bank the robbers warmed themselves in a small office, lighting a lamp and acting with great deliberation. There is no clew to the robbers except a necktie. A suspicious character seen near Hinton is believed to be one of the robbers. This is the fourth job of the kind in small banks near here in ten days, the robberies occurring at Matlock, Salix and Jefferson, S. D

Was Charged with Murder of Two Men Near Ft. Dodge.

Fort Dodge, Nov. 8.—The sensational trial of George Bricker for the killing of Clarence Guild has ended, the jury bringing in a verdict of acquittal after being out just an hour. The trial has been stubbornly fought and the issue was in doubt until the verdict was given. The trial was the result of the killing of C. A. Guild and son, Clarence, by George and Oliver Bricker last June in a neighborhood feud over land. Oliver Bricker confessed to the shooting and claimed self-defense, but Charles Guild, son of the murdered man, claimed that George Bricker did the shooting. The trial has lasted two weeks. Three indictments are remaining against the Brickers which will be tried.

NEWS IN GENERAL

SCHLEY COURT OF INQUIRY

Washington, Nov. 7.—The climax of the Schley court of inquiry came yesterday afternoon when Mr. Rayner, the chief counsel for Admiral Schley, continued a brilliant argument of over three hours with a peroration so eloquent and impassioned that all within the sound of his voice were profoundly touched. This remarkable trial, he said, sought to comdemn the man who had brought to a successful termination as a great naval triumph as was ever won. In vivid colors he painted the picture of the Brooklyn, with Commodore Schley on the bridge, fighting the entire Spanish fleet until the Oregon appeared out of the smoke.

The thunders of the Brooklyn, music for the ears of his countrymen, he said, aroused Admiral Schley's envious foes. He pictured the victorious sailor suffering as few have suffered for three long years while the fires of persecution leaped around him, and now awaiting the hour of his vindication in the verdict of the court.

"And when it comes," he continued, "he can, from the high and exalted position he occupies, look down upon his traducers and maligners and with pride exclaim: 'I care not for the venomous gossip of clubs, drawing rooms and the cliques and poisoned shafts of envy and of malice. I await under the guidance of divine providence the verdict of posterity.'"

The scene in the court room as he finished with these words was thrilling. The attendance had been large all day and at the morning session a lady had fainted from excitement. As Mr. Rayner began his eulogy of Admiral Schley, those in the audience, many of whom were ladies, learned forward on their seats. The spell of his oratory was over them, and when he described the admiral's gallant deeds and the long persecution to which he had been subjected, many of them broke down and wept.

The members of the court displayed evidences of emotion, and Admiral Schley himself was plainly moved. He sat, leaning back, with his hands between his head. His chin twitched, and as his counsel said he could afford to await the verdict of posterity, two big tears rolled down his cheek. He moved uneasily to conceal his emotion and, under the pretense of adjusting his glasses, brushes the tears aside. For fully thirty seconds after Mr. Rayner closed there was not a sound. Then the tension broke in a loud burst of applause.

Washington, Nov. 8.—After sittings covering forty days, and with a record which, when completed, will cover about 2,000 pages, the Schley court of inquiry yesterday at 3:45 p. m. adjourned its last public session. To Capt. S. C. Lemly, the judge advocate, had been assigned the duty of making the closing argument in the case, and soon after he had completed his speech, Admiral Dewey, bringing his gavel down upon the big flat table, said: "There being no further business, the court is adjourned."

As was the case yesterday, when Mr. Rayner spoke, the attendance was large. There was only one session during the day. It began at 2 o'clock, and the entire time was devoted to Capt. Lemly's address. He read his speech in clear and distinct tones and was given careful attention. The speech in the main was an analysis of the testimony, but occasionally a conclusion was drawn, and frequently there was a criticism of the course pursued by Admiral (then Commodore) Schley. Speaking of Commodore Schley's conduct, Capt. Lemly said:

"From my knowledge of the man, having served under his command on two cruises, I have never believed, nor do I claim from the evidence, that personal misconduct—or, to call a spade a spade—cowardice, was exhibited by Commodore Schley in any part of his career as commander-in-chief of the flying squadron. But I submit with regret that in the passage from Key West to Cienfuegos, while at that latter port, en route to the southward of Santiago without settled destination, in the retrograde movement, in the return to the vicinity of Santiago and in the affair of May 31 the commodore exhibited unsteadiness in purpose and in push, and failure to obey orders."

A WONDERFUL PIANO.

One of the oldest and richest music houses in the eastern states, in announcing its choice of a high-grade piano for "the most critical and cultured musical people of Boston," says:

"We have selected the A. B. CHASE, from the many fine pianos offered us., as the one most fully meeting the ideal of a perfect instrument. We speak advisedly when we characterize it as a WONDERFUL piano. [illegible] perfect, evenly balanced throughout.

"It is wonderful in musical tone, which is rich, deep and full, with remarkable singing quality, and has captivated the finest musicians in the great cities, both east and west."

You have an opportunity to obtain one of these "WONDERFUL," HIGH-GRADE pianos, direct from the factory, at manufacturer's prices, on trial, to be returned without expense to you if not perfectly satisfactory. For catalogues and full particulars, address The A. B. Chase Co., Norwalk, Ohio; or their Iowa representative, Nathan Ford, 1620 Sixth avenue, Des Moines, Iowa.

London, Nov. 9.—The Duke of Cornwall and York has been created Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester.

CONVICTS MAKE ESCAPE.

Mutiny in the Military Prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kas.

Leavenworth, Kan., Nov. 8.—One man was killed, five others dangerously wounded and twenty-six desperate convicts are at large, as a result of a mutiny late yesterday afternoon at the site of the United States prison, two miles southeast of here, where four hundred prisoners from the federal prison, in charge of thirty armed guards, were at work. The convicts secured two revolvers and forced the guard into submission. They then made an effort to pass through an opening of the stockade, but were met by an armed guard. The guard was shot twice, and the prisoners then started for another opening. Here another armed guard was met and he also received two bullets. The prisoners then made a grand rush for the main entrance and twenty-six of them succeeded in escaping. Most of the men are from the Indian territory. Closely followed by the guards the men ran to a near-by forest and succeeded in evading their pursuers. The men went in the direction of Easton, Kan., and it is reported here that they have held up many farmers, taking horses and clothing en route.

Leavenworth, Kan., Nov. 9.—All the police, deputy sheriffs and farmers in the country adjacent to Leavenworth were on the lookout yesterday for the twenty-six federal convicts who escaped from the stockade. As a result, two convicts have been killed, two wounded and one captured unhurt. The casualties took place in a fight near Nortonville, Kansas, and resulted in the death or capture of five men.

ANGER CAUSED HIS DEATH

Quarreled With Russian Minister and Collapsed.

Peking, Nov. 9.—A violent dispute with M. Paul Lessar, Russian minister to China, over the Manchurian treaty, appears to have been the immediate cause of the death of Li Hung Chang.

The diplomatic events preceding this tragic climax have enabled Japan for a moment to frustrate the designs of Russia. A fortnight ago the Japanese legation secured a reliable outline of the terms of the treaty, and thereupon demanded that the Chinese plenipotentiaries lay before them the text, basing this demand on the allegation that Japanese interests were involved in any change of the status of Manchuria.

The Chinese plenipotentiaries refused to comply with the demand.

Thereupon the Japanese government from Tokio communicated with the southern viceroys and induced them to use their influence with the empress dowager against the treaty. In the meantime the empress dowager instructed Li Hung to communicate the treaty, after certain modifications, to the ministers of the powers, and, if they did not object, to sign the same.

Li Hung Chang visited M. Lessar and explained to him the instructions.

The Russian minister strongly objected to revealing the text of the treaty to the ministers of the other powers, and a stormy interview ensued. Li Hung Chang went home in a violent passion and had a hemorrhage, which the doctors attribute to the over-exertion of a weakened system.

While these things were happening at Peking, the southern viceroys sent to the empress dowager a memorial against the treaty. On receiving it she telegraphed to Li Hung Chang, countermanding the order to sign.

This instruction came after Li Hung Chang had become unconscious. When M. Lessar endeavored to have Li Hung Chang's seal affixed to the treaty Chou Fu, provincial treasurer, who had arrived from Poa Ting Fu, had taken charge of the seals as the temporary successor of Earl Li.

TURKEY'S CRUCIAL POINT.

Submission to Demands of France May Have Lasting Effect.

New York, Nov. 11.—The sultan's yielding to the French demands brings out the full gravity of the possibilities of the effect of the French seizure of Mitylene upon the crumbling edifice of Turkish despotism, says the Constantinople correspondent of the World. The whole of European Turkey is seething with disorder. In Armenia the annual butcheries have been in full swing for the past three months, and in the remainder of the empire there is the perennial violence, corruption, waste and lawlessness. Down to the magistracy, every part of the machinery of government is in a hopeless condition. In the opinion of the diplomatic body at Constantinople, any attempt at patching things up will be [illegible] attention was suppressed at Constantinople for three days, but the sultan's cabinet being in constant session showed that a serious crisis had arisen. The sultan has been in a condition of epileptic fury, and his ministers, who live in perpetual terror of their lives at his hands, were helpless and afraid to do or suggest anything. It is believed in Constantinople that Russia is behind France in this business, and it is felt that the present trouble is inevitably destined to lead to developments in the eastern question in which England will be powerless to make her influence felt.

Farmer Frozen to Death.

Fort Dodge, Nov. 6.—J. L. Schroeder, a farmer living near Pocahontas, was found frozen to death in a corn field a few hundred yards from his home.

The Scourge of Damascus

A Story of the East...

By SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

Copyrighted 1891 by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER XIX.—(Continued.)

He had taken her hand and was raising it to his lips; but she suddenly drew it from him.

"No! no! no!" she murmured.

"Pardon, lady. I meant no offense." The tone was one of grief.

"Oh—Julian! Julian! Leave me not yet!"

She rested her freed hand upon his arm and gazed up into his face. Her eyes were streaming with tears and her bosom heaved convulsively.

"Lady—Ulin!"

"Julian!—O, in this hour of helplessness and need I turn to thee with all my trust and faith. If the love of this poor heart is worth the cherishing, take it, and keep it always. I have no power—I have no choice. The light of thy face, beaming in love upon me, reveals to me that I am bound to thee by chains which I cannot break."

She rested her head upon his bosom; and he, winding his stout arms about her, pressed her to his heart as a treasure the most precious that earth could bestow.

The sun sank to its evening rest, and the shades of twilight deepened over the river and over the grove. The stars came out, one by one, in their celestial stations, and anon the silver moon, lifting its face above the hills of Hobah, cast its soft light into the vale. Still the lovers sat beneath the orange tree; and there they might have sat late into the night, had not Osmir come to interrupt them.

What did the guard want at that hour and in that place. He sought his master. Julian arose and went to him and they whispered hurriedly together; and then Ulin was sure that she heard the Arabs mentioned.

"Ulin," said the chieftain, coming back and taking her hand, "you might go with me to the cave. I am called in another direction."

"What is it? You tremble. Ah, Julian—there is danger."

"No, no, sweet love; harbor not that fear. I go to ward off danger. O, I have something more than life to care for now."

At this point Selim came running up, all out of breath; but before he could speak his master stopped him.

"I understand, good Selim. Osmir has told me—"

"But—my master—"

"In a moment. Wait till I come back."

And thus speaking Julian led the maiden to the cave.

"Excuse me now," he said, raising her hand to his lips. "I will be back shortly. You will not fear?"

CHAPTER XX.

A King's Story.

The first person whom Ulin met after entering the cave was Ezabel, who stood by a table upon which a lamp was burning.

"My dear child, I was just coming in search of you. We were anxious. What—have you been in tears? Ulin, what is it? What has happened?"

The maiden, in memory of the great event of the evening, forgot the cause of fear that had been with her. It was a secret she could not keep—a secret she had no wish to keep; and resting her head upon Ezabel's shoulder, she told the story of her love.

"Dearest Ulin," said the aged matron, kissing the maiden upon the brow, "he is worthy of the trust you have reposed in him!"

At that moment Albia come in from the grove where she had been in search of her mistress; and very soon see, too, had heard the story. She gazed into Ulin's face a moment, and then, with a tear glistening in her eye, she murmured:

"I shall be very happy now, for henceforth I can serve and love you both!"

As Albia spoke, and before any reply could be made, Julian came hurrying into the cave. He was much excited and Ben Hadad saw a fear upon his face such as had never been seen there before.

"My son," spoke the hermit, "what means this? Your manner betokens danger."

"And there is danger," cried the young chieftain, moving instinctively to Ulin's side. "I fear that I have been much to blame. I should have been warned by the words of Osmir and Selim. Those two Arabs have evidently discovered our abiding place."

"Well—and what then?" asked Ben Hadad.

"I think they have brought a large force against us."

"What—of Arabs? Do they mean to rob us?"

"Perhaps," suggested Abia, "they hope to recapture what they have lost."

Ulin moved to Julian's side, and leaned upon his stout arm. He kissed her upon the brow and bade her be of good courage; and then he said to the others, in answer to what had been suggested:

"I fear the truth has not yet been hit. If the Arabs are coming, as I apprehend, there may be another solution to the problem. Those two rascals who escaped us could easily have followed us to this place. We were not looking for such a thing, and so did not guard against it. They knew that the maiden who had been snatched from them was the daughter of the king's prime minister; and may they not have known that she was the king's affianced? At all events, it is not unreasonable to suppose that they may have anticipated some gain of reward by carrying intelligence to Aboul Cassem. If they have done this, then they must also have revealed the whereabout of the Scourge of Damascus."

A low cry of pain from Ulin told how directly the fear had touched her; and again her lover sought to calm her.

"We must leave this place," he said, "and seek shelter in the wood. You and I and Albia will go, and the guards will join us outside. I know where there is safety, so have no fear. Should the rascals come they will not harm these old people; they will not dare to do it."

Ulin had drawn a mantle about her shoulders, and Julian had turned to speak apart with Ben Hadad, when Osmir came rushing into the cave, with terror depicted most painfully upon his ebon features.

"They are coming!" he cried. "They have sprung upon us from a hidden cover."

Who are coming?"

"They are the king's soldiers, led by the captain, Benoni!"

On the next instant the clash of arms was heard at the entrance.

"Back, back, sweet love," said Julian, gently pushing the maiden towards her chamber. "There may yet be hope."

He grasped a sword as he spoke, and leaped toward the entrance; but he was too late. Already a score of armed men were rushing in, a number of them bearing flaming torches in their hands.

"Come, good Osmir," the chieftain cried, bracing himself for the work. "Capture for us is certain death. We can do no better than to sell our lives here."

One—two—three—four of the royal soldiers fell beneath the lightning-like strokes of Julian's trenchant blade; and in the same time Osmir had slain two; but it was not in the roll of fate that two were to overcome the force that came pouring into the cave. A flaming torch was hurled upon the chieftain, and while he staggered beneath the blinding stroke he was drawn over backwards and his arms quickly pinioned. The next movement was to secure Ulin and Albia, after which Ben Hadad and Ezabel were taken.

"Will you lay violent hands upon me?" demanded the hermit.

"I am ordered to bring you all before the king," replied Benoni; "all whom I might find in this cave. I mean to offer you no harm, so if you have complaint to make, save it for those who command me."

While the captain was searching other apartments, to see if more prisoners were to be found, Julian felt a hand laid upon his shoulder, and on looking up he beheld Judah.

"So, my noble chieftain, you are fast once more. The guard played us false, it seems, and I came near losing my head in consequence; but my royal master will pardon me when he sees you again."

CHAPTER XXI.

Innocence of Helen.

The king of Damascus had grown very old and very sour within those last few days. Rage and chagrin had so shaken his frame that he seemed stricken with palsy; and his voice, from its howlings and moanings, had become hoarse and cracked. But he had promise of sweet revenge. His soldiers were upon the track of the fugitives, and he believed they would bring them back. O, how he would gloat over the sufferings of his victims when they came within his power!

"I tell thee, Aboul Cassem," he said, addressing his minister, "the fair, frail Ulin must suffer for this. She is no longer your child; I shall not regard her as such.

Aboul bowed his head, and answered that he was content.

Omar could not help noticing that his friend was in trouble, and he took the liberty to ask what had gone wrong.

"Alas!" cried Horam, "everything goes wrong." And he told how he had put away all his wives for the daughter of Aboul Cassem, and how she had betrayed him and fled from him. And then he told how he had once captured his dreaded enemy, the Scourge of Damascus, and how the prize had slipped through his fingers by means of the treachery of his slaves.

"By my life," exclaimed Omar, "you have been most sorely afflicted."

"But the worst is yet to be told," pursued Horam, clenching his hands, and gnashing his teeth. "The robber and the lady Ulin went off on the same night, and I have every reason to believe that she corrupted my slaves to set him free. In fact, I am sure she did. I think they will be all within my power by tomorrow. O, Omar, you have known much of my sorrow. I have grown old since we last met—very old. In years I am but the passing of two harvests ahead of you; but in trial and trouble I have left you far behind. The last time you were in Damascus the first great trial of my life came upon me. You remember it."

"Of what do you speak?"

"Why—of my wife—of the first wife I ever had—of her whom I made my queen."

"Do you mean the Lady Helena?"

"To be sure I do. Mercy! have you forgotten?"

"No," said Omar, shaking his head, "I remember Helena very well. She was the most bautiful woman I ever saw."

"And as false as she was beautiful," added Horam.

"Is it possible? I did not think she would come to that."

"How!" exclaimed the king of Damascus. "Does your memory fail you?"

"What mean you, Horam? My memory is good."

"Then why do you wonder when I speak of the faithlessness of my first queen? Was it not yourself that gave to me the proofs of her infidelity? Did you not show to me that she had fallen?"

"You speak in riddles," said the king of Aleppo. "I remember that we once suspected the young queen of bestowing her love upon a captain of your guard—I think his name was Jabal."

"Yes," responded Horam. "Jabal was the man, and I slew him. It was your evidence that convicted both him and Helena."

"And was the queen guilty after that?"

"Guilty after that?" repeated Horam, slowly and irresolutely. "What mean you? Do you imagine that I allowed her to live to commit more crime?"

"In mercy's name," cried Omar, "what do you mean by this speech? Do you remember Sanballad and Ben Huram?"

"Yes," replied Horam. "They were two of my chamberlains, who accompanied you to Aleppo at the time of which we have spoken."

"No," said Omar, "they did not quite go to Aleppo. I sent them back before I reached my capital. They brought to you my message?"

"I never saw them again after they went away with you," returned Horam.

"Never—saw—them. Good spirits of mercy! Are you in earnest, Horam?"

"Aye. If they started on their return, they must have been robbed and killed, for I never saw them after they left in your retinue."

The king of Aleppo clasped his hands in agony.

"O, Horam! Horam!" he exclaimed, "what a fearful mistake was that! Bear with me—forgive me!"

"What is it, Omar?"

"Your beautiful queen was innocent!"

"Innocent!" gasped Horam, starting to his feet, and then sinking back again.

"Yes, my brother," replied Omar, in trembling tones, "she was as innocent as in that natal hour when first she rested upon her mother's bosom. At Balbec we found a woman whom some of my officers brought before me supposing her to be the queen of Damascus. She was very beautiful, and so nearly did she resemble the queen, Helena, that even I was at first deceived. Her name was Jasmin, and she told me that she had just fled from Damascus and was waiting for her lover to join her. She said that Jabal was her lover, and that he was a captain of Horam's guard. The truth flashed upon me in a moment. I conversed with her until I had gained her whole story; and then I knew that your queen was innocent. It was all proved to me, as clear as the sun at noonday. At first I had a thought of returning myself, and bearing to you the joyful tidings; but business urged me on, and I sent Sanballad and Ben Huram."

"And they did not come!" uttered Horam, with his hands working nervously in his bosom. "They did not come—and my queen died."

"God forgive me!" ejaculated Omar. "I would have given my own life—Horam!"

TO TELL OF TURKEY.

WOMAN KNIGHT ERRANT COMING TO AMERICA.

The Princess Hairie Ben Ayad, Wife of Former Diplomat of Ottoman Empire, Is Carrying on a Crusade Against Social Conditions.

The United States is to receive a visit this winter from Princess Hairie Ben Ayad, who has created a stir in England by her crusade against social conditions in Turkey. The Princess, who is a daughter of a former Turkish minister to France, hopes to eradicate polygamy in Turkey by organizing a movement against it from the outside. Her lectures in London have been crowded and she has become a fad with society there. She has a beautiful and refined face, unlike the usual heavy type of the East, and carries herself in a regal way. Her husband, who was sentenced to prison for espousing the cause of the deposed sultan, Murad, but escaped, is with her in London. When out driving she wears a heavy veil over her face, according to Turkish custom.

LIFE IN GUATEMALA.

Happy-Go-Lucky Disposition of Americans Located There.

It is one of the ironies of fate that fond parents with dissipated sons should send them to the tropics in the hope that the outdoor life and new surroundings will reform them, writes a Guatemalan correspondent. The experiment has been made many times with disastrous results, and nowadays, when a young fellow steps down the gangplank at any Central American port the American and European veterans who have for years been on their way to the devil via the tropics, mutter cynically: "One more unfortunate. Wonder if he has any good money to sell," and as a preliminary to conversation, ask the newcomer to take a drink. If he takes the first one, it is generally all off with reform, and the chances are ten to one that he will drink from three to five times as much as he did at home.

There are men, of course, who are strong enough to resist the temptation to drink, but they are even fewer than one would expect. Indeed, it is only natural that it should be so, since there is every inducement to forget present miseries in drink and few reasons for not doing so. While the tropics contain many "white" men, as distinguished from natives, who are of the finest character and highest attainments, it is unfortunately true that they also contain more than their full share of men who have made a failure of life elsewhere.

Life in Guatemala, as elsewhere south of Mexico, is a strange medley of civilization and barbarism, grim life and death struggles, and happy-go-lucky, devil-may-care humor. To begin with, the absence of public opinion makes every man a law unto himself to a large extent. The constant never-failing source of jokes, and oaths as well, is the money. When a man lands in the country with $100 and suddenly finds that he has $800 he is apt to think it is a fine country and to throw away what he has as if it had no value whatever. The rate of exchange is constantly varying, and as all railroad salaries are paid in the native currency, no man knows what he will be drawing at the end.

Smoking in Cuba.

Cuba produces no tobacco for chewing or pipe smoking. The Cubans who smoke pipes may be counted on one's fingers without making a second round on the fingers. The cigar and the cigarette prevail. To what extent the Cuban cigarette might ever become popular with American smokers is a matter beyond determination. It is certain that most Americans of prolonged residence, become, if they be smokers, addicted to the Cuban brands and find difficulty in weaning themselves back to American brands on their return.

Malaria continues to be a greater scourge of the British army in India than any other fatal cause.

GRAND OLD MAN IS DEAD

Li Hung Chang Passed Away After a Short Illness.

Pekin, Nov. 7.—Li Hung Chang died at 11 o'clock this morning.

Robert Coltman, an American, who is one of the physicians attending Earl Li, told the correspondent of the Associated Press that when he was called to act with Dr. Velde of the German legation, November 1, he found the patient very weak from a severe hemorrhage due to ulceration of the stomach.

"The hemorrhage was readily controlled," said Dr. Coltman, "but owing to the underlying condition of chronic gastritis and persistent nuasea only the mildest liquid food could be ingested. Tuesday he was cheerful and without pain; but at 2 o'clock yesterday morning he became unconscious and was no longer able to rid himself of the collection of mucus, which he had been freely expectorating."

Earl Li's persistent refusals to refrain from attending to government business have aggravated his malady, while the refusal of the family to permit certain measures customary in western medical practice for relieving the stomach, has contributed to bring his end near.

CHANGES IN THE PHILIPPINES.

The Number of Military Departments Is Reduced to Two.

Washington, Nov. 11.—On recommendation of General Chaffee, commanding the division of the Philippines, the secretary of war has issued an order for the reorganization of that division. Up to the present time the division has comprised four military departments, viz.: Department of Northern Luzon, commanded by Major General Lloyd Wheaton; Department of Southern Luzon, commanded by Brigadier General J. S. Wade; Department of the Visayas, commanded by Brigadier General R. P. Hughes; Department of Mindanao and Jolo, commanded by Brigadier General G. W. Davis.

In accordance with the action of the war department this division will be divided into only two military departments to include within their limits the entire Philippine archipelago. They will be known as the Department of North and South Philippines. The northern department will be commanded by Major General Wheaton and will include the islands of Luzon, Mindora and Masbate, and all the intervening territory.

The southern department, which will be commanded by Brigadier General Wade, will embrace the remainder of the archipelago, and include the large islands of Samar, Panay, Mindanao, the Visayas and Jolo.

The consolidation of these departments is in accordance with Chaffee's plan to institute a vigorous and aggressive campaign against the insurrectionists who recently have become active and troublesome in the islands of Samar, Leyte and in the extreme southern portions of Luzon. It is understood that large bodies of troops are to be concentrated in the districts where outbreaks have occurred, under the command of officers of high rank, with the full purpose of promptly stamping out the spirit of insurrection. It is said furthermore that the reduction in the number of the departments, in addition to making the military forces more compact and efficient, will result in a reduction of expenses.

TURKEY YIELDS FULLY

Concedes Every Demand Made By the French Government.

Paris, Nov. 9.—France has scored a complete triumph in the Turkish dispute. The foreign office has received advices announcing that the sultan has yielded to the entire demands formulated by the French government and only the question of form regarding the execution of the agreement remains to be settled. This may be done within the next twenty-four hours, or, it is expected, at the latest, in two or three days. Then Admiral Caillard will relinquish his occupation of the island of Mitylene.

President Loubet presided yesterday at the cabinet council. The foreign minister, M. Delcasse, announced that the porte had just advised him that it had decided to give satisfaction in the case of the various French demands, to which M. Delcasse replied that as soon as the sultan's order regarding the porte's decision was communicated to him Admiral Caillard's squadron would leave the island of Mitylene.

The Temps prints a dispatch from Constantinople which says that the sultan, in accepting the French demands, firstly authorizes the conducting of the French schools, hitherto unrecognized; secondly, he recognizes, officially, the existence of the religious and hospital institutions already founded and accords them customs immunity and exemption from certain taxes, and thirdly, he authorizes the reconstruction of the schools and hospital institutions destroyed at the time of the Armenian troubles, of which a detailed list is attached to the French note.

"At Valley Forge"

Wm. L. Roberts' colonial drama, which will be seen for the first time in this part of the country at the opening of the new Gaaner Opera House, Friday evening, November 22, is a play praised for its pure tone, beautiful sentiment and strong natural patriotism.

The scenes of the play are laid near the winter camp of the continental troops a Trenton and Valley Forge and the play is unusually well mounted in o manner showing the quaint architecture and splendid woodlands which once surrounded Valley Forge and Trenton during the days of our colonial ancestors.

The play is on a most interesting subject and deals with the love story of a dashing Captain of General Washington's Continental Army and a charming Tory maid.

The presenting company is D E. Lester & Co. of New York City and is reported as being one of unusual merit and the entire production one in kesping with these days when pure clean, well acted play receives the hearty support of a most discriminating public. The company has been especially selected with a view of having the very best show presented that has ever been seen in this locality.

HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1901.

Gentlemen: — Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain

Very truly yours,

Our attention has been called to the fact that there are several chimneys along our streets that are greatly in need of repair. This is a serious question and is liable to result disastrously if not attended to promptly. It is an easy matter for a fire to get started from a defective flue.

In the newspaper blue book, just issued by the United States Press Clipping Bureau, of Chicago, the Tribune is given the honor of being the leading paper of Britt. The Signal is represented in Garner. These are the only two papers mentioned in Hancock county.—Britt Tribune.

The little "blue book" must be a long ways behind the times. While we are speaking about the Hancock county papers, it might be well to note that the TIMES and Kanawha Record were the only Hancock county papers to give the county vote on this important election last week. How about the "leading papers" Bro. Bailey? Better brush up a little. The Tribune's article must have been a sad blow to Brackett, and his boasted "extensive circulation."

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

The Lentil.

The plant herewith illustrated is the Lentil, known scientifically as lens esculenta. It is a small branching plant with delicate pea-like leaves. The small white flowers growing in pairs are followed by flat pods, each containing two very flat round seeds, convex on both sides. Unlike the pea and bean, the lentil is eaten only when fully ripe. The brown or reddish lentil is smaller than the yellow, but of more delicate flavor. The lentil is one of the most ancient of food plants, probably one of the first to be brought under cultivation by man. It has been grown from early times in Asia and in the Mediterranean countries. The reddish Egyptian lentil probably furnished the "red pottage" of Esau. In Europe this legume is far less grown than the pea and bean, partly because its yield of seed and straw is less; therefore the market is partially supplied from Egypt. The lentil, according to analysis, is one of the most nutritious of all the legumes, but its flavor is pronounced and to some persons not as agreeable as that of the pea and bean. It has sometimes been claimed that indigestion and other bad effects followed the eating of lentils, but this impression is known in some cases to be traceable to the use of certain poisonous vetches, whose seed much resembles the lentil. There is every reason to consider the lentil a wholesome food. Until recent years the lentil was little known in the United States, but with the growth of the foreign population its use has steadily increased. The lentils found in our markets are all imported, but the culture of this legume with European seeds is being tried in our southwestern territories and elsewhere. There is already grown in New Mexico and Arizona, as well as in Mexico, a small variety of lentil, the seed of which was doubtless brought from Spain centuries ago by the ancestors of the present mixed race living there. The sandy soil of moderate fertility seems adapted to it; it has become acclimated, is hardy and prolific.

Nets on Apple Trees.

At a recent convention reported by the Farmers' Review, Prof. Webster of the Ohio Experiment Station reported the results of some experiments carried out by him in netting apple trees to keep off the coddling moths. A number of trees were covered with nets to keep out the moths, and beside them were a number of check trees left uncovered. When the apples were harvested it was found that 19 per cent were wormy on the covered trees and over 70 per cent wormy on the uncovered trees. It will be noticed that even the apples on the covered trees were affected to almost one-fifth of all. Just how valuable the experiment is we cannot say, especially as we do not know how near the covered trees were to the uncovered. It seems to the writer that one very important part has not been reported. We wish to ask: Did not the moths that tried to get onto a covered tree turn away from that and go onto an uncovered tree, thus making the number of wormy apples there very much larger than it would have been under ordinary circumstances? If such were the case the relative value of the covering would be lessened for actual use. Also, did the covered tree bear as much fruit as the uncovered one? We ask this, as the netting that kept out the moths might also keep out the insects that assist the cross-fertilization of the blossoms, it having been quite fairly demonstrated that even our apple trees benefit by this cross-fertilization. It may yet pay well to protect some of our fruit trees with nets.

Good and Bad Work of Bees.

Professor Waite of the Department of Agriculture has been investigating the work of the bee relative to its carrying of disease germs from flower to flower, and expresses the opinion that the bee is largely responsible for the distribution of the peach rot fungus. The bee himself does not puncture the peach, but gets to work on the peach after the wasp and the soldier bug have punctured it. Bees also carry pear blight. Pear trees do not usually show much blight till they bloom and begin to bear fruit. The pear blight virus is gummy and can't be blown by the wind; it must be carried by insects. If the virus dries it dies in a few days. A twig that has died of blight is no longer a menace, because the virus that killed the twig is dead also. It is therefore evident that the germs are spread by insects, especially bees.

On the other hand the bee is a great increaser of our crops through his work of cross-pollenization. Many of our plums and apples are sterile to their own pollen, but such is not true of the peach and quince. The pear is not of the type that produces pollen that is borne by the wind. From the biological standpoint the bees are doing their natural work in visiting blossoms, and in spite of what harm they do they are necessary to the best results in our orchards.

Campbell Method of Soil Culture.

Some years ago the Campbell method of soil culture made a considerable stir in agricultural circles. Recently little has been heard of it. The only reference made to it this year is in an experiment station bulletin, which says: "The Campbell method has yielded small crops of wheat, and has given no appreciable saving of soil moisture." As some of our readers will remember Mr. Campbell, the inventor of the tools used in this process, claimed that the stirring up of the ground was not an advantage to crops, and that where the soil was plowed it should be again compacted as firmly as it had been at first, if that were possible. He said that the ordinary roller only compacted the first two inches of earth, but that below that crust the soil was light and loose. The roller he invented was arranged to penetrate the soil and compact the earth down to the depth of the plowing, while at the same time a dust mulch was left on the surface. At one time some of the experiment station men looked quite favorably on the scheme. Results, however, have shown it of no value.

Spraying Fruit Trees in Bloom.

There is at present much controversy whether or not fruit trees should be sprayed when in bloom. In the state of New York a law has been passed making it a misdemeanor to spray fruit trees when in bloom, on account of the danger to bees. It is without doubt true that some bees are killed by the poison in the spray. In one case reported a whole hive of bees were killed, and an examination showed arsenic in the digestive apparatus of the bees.

It has also been discovered that the poison is equally destructive to the life of the pollen, even when the amount of poison is only 9 to 100 parts in 10,000. Even two parts in 10,000 has been frequently found fatal to the pollen. The danger to the pollen is, however, greatly lessened by the fact that the blossoms do not all open at once, but the process extends over several days. In a clump of five apple blossoms the central one opens first, and spraying at that time kills the pollen in only those open blossoms.

Fertilization of Flowers.

Insects are necessary to the fertilization of most flowers; and were it not for insects, especially honey bees, many of the crops we now have would be wanting. There are a good many flowers that produce pollen that has no means of getting from flower to flower except by the medium of insects. On the other hand some plants throw off great quantities of pollen without the help of the insects. Prof. James Fletcher relates that when in British Columbia some people came to him and asked him to explain a shower of sulphur that had apparently fallen during the preceding night. He assured them that there had been no shower of sulphur, but that what looked like sulphur was in reality the pollen of pine trees.

In Belgium Sunday rest leagues have been formed and strong attempts have been made to provoke legislation on the Sunday closing subject but to no avail.

Sweden has 2,303 miles of government, and 4,387 miles of private railroads. The government has not yet succeeded in acquiring the latter, although efforts have been made to do so.

A new form of benefaction to a New England town is that taken in the gift of Francis Schell of New York, who has given Northfield, Mass., a $32,000 bridge.

Water in Cereal Production.

A wheat-raiser says that subsoiling will increase the yield of wheat in his vicinity, but that the amount of water used in the production of the crop is greater. That is most certainly so and it is no argument against sub-soiling. Every increase in the crop of anything means a very large increase in the amount of water used. No other condition is possible. It takes a certain amount of water to convey the food to the grain of the plant, and the amount of water used is hundreds of times the bulk of the food carried. This water is not used over and over again, so far as we know, but after acting as a conveyer is thrown off from the foliage of plants in the form of vapor. Experiments have shown that for every pound of dry wheat created there is used 453 pounds of water. It will thus be seen that to increase the yield of wheat by one bushel means the added use of 27,180 pounds of water. This is over 13 tons. Anent this subject it may be interesting to quote the conclusions arrived at by Professor King of Wisconsin as to the amount of water used in the production of the leading grains. To elaborate one pound of dry matter the requirements are as follows: Barley, 461 pounds; oats, 503 pounds; corn, 270 pounds; clover, 576 pounds; peas, 477 pounds; potatoes, 385 pounds. These figures present an interesting study. The low demands of corn show that it is a crop adapted to a limited water supply and point to its origin and development in a country semi-arid in nature. It will explain why the corn crop comes through drouths that destroy other crops. As to subsoiling for the increase of water supply it must be remembered that that is the prime reason for the process, as it increases the water reservoir of the soil.

Water in the Soil.

There are many things about the physics of soils that remain to be explained. One of them is the movement of soil moisture, both as relates to the water table and to the moisture present by capillary attraction. Thus we notice that in some experiments made in North Dakota it was determined that "the water table falls during the winter season, but there is little or no loss of soil moisture and there is an actual gain of moisture in the surface soil, which is not due to rain or snow." A possible explanation is that the cold earth, even in its frozen state, may act as a condenser of the moisture in the air, on days when the temperature of the air is above the freezing point. Another explanation may be that the air in the soil actually circulates toward the colder surface soil, and deposits its moisture there by condensation, just as is the case with the air above the soil. However, further investigation of the subject may show the main causes of such concentration of the water supply and its advantage to agriculture.

Our Neighbor's Orchard.

Scientists that have had large experience in the matter of orchard treatment declare that it is better to treat large areas for insects and fungi instead of here and there individual orchards. The reason is apparent. In the case of treating a few acres of trees at a time the region around those acres serves as a base of operations for the pest desired to be exterminated. The untreated orchard of our neighbor is the one that does the mischief. How to get that orchard sprayed is a problem. In some states laws have been passed making the treatment of the orchard compulsory on complaint of certain property holders in the vicinity. But such laws are inoperative, for the reason that men are not very numerous that will take the initiative in such a matter. The only effective move we can see as advisable is for the most interested man to call a neighborhood meeting to consider the question of spraying all the orchards. Then, if possible, have all the orchards treated at the same time.

Ducks and geese stand being exhibited at shows better than the land fowls. Among the latter the loss is great. Some of the breeders that follow the fairs and show their birds during an entire season lose as high as half of their birds. Some of these die while at the fairs, and others succumb to disease after they are brought home, but as a direct result of the showing. Not infrequently roup exists among show birds. The cage with the sick fowls may be some distance away from the others, and when the breeder takes his birds home he imagines they have escaped the roup. But a few days after reaching home the dread disease breaks out among the birds he has had on exhibition. Nevertheless, it pays enterprising breeders to take their best birds to the fairs and poultry shows. The reward comes to the breeder not only in an increase of knowledge, but also in increased sales.

BOYS LEAD IN CRIME.

Amazing Statistics Furnished by the City of Chicago.

The last grand jury doing service in Chicago expressed itself as appalled at the large proportion of youths from 16 to 21 years of age among those indicted for crime. Of 600 cases investigated, the majority were offenses by boys or very young men. Hold-ups were invariably the work of young fellows, as were most of the larcenies and burglaries. What is true of Chicago applies to the rest of the United States, according to a statement by State Attorney Deneen, of that city, who is a student of criminology. He says:

"Take a walk through the Cook county jail and you will find it well filled with young men. It was even worse before the juvenile court was established, when we had to deal with boys over 10 and under 16. If I remember rightly, the criminal statistics of the United States show that the majority of crimes are committed by persons between the ages of 22 and 24, while for the whole world the most prolific crime-producing period of life is between the ages of 18 and 22.

"Some people still form their ideas of the criminal from the long-haired, sinister creature carrying a dark lantern or a dirk, which they see on the stage from time to time. In real life the average criminal is generally a young man who looks a good deal like the rest of young men. Crimes are committed by the young when their passions are strongest and their judgment is weakest. Some are neurotics, others are degenerates. In an infant there are all the elements of the criminal. There develops vanity, cruelty, truancy, destructiveness, the proclivity to theft, lack of foresight, and all the traits of the criminal. Some children do not grow up criminals because their natural tendencies are curbed.

"In Chicago and other large cities bad environment is a powerful agency in producing young criminals. More than 80 per cent of the arrests the world over of which any record is kept are of persons who came from the tenement-house districts of the large cities. The city reverses the Lord's prayer and leads into temptation and delivers to evil. Society is gradually coming to its duty of unmaking the criminals it has made and preventing others from becoming criminals."

WHERE NATURE IS UPSET.

Many Strange Incongruities Found In Icelandic Phenomena.

Nature is all turned topsy-turvey in Iceland. Most people regard the island simply as an out of the way spot of no particular consequence to anybody under the sun, yet it supports a frugal, industrious and pious people. It has almost a right to be called fireland, for there frost and fire are strangely mingled. The lofty mountains, towering skyward, are clad with snow fields and glaciers, yet at the same time send forth fire and steam and molten rock. At times the eruption, suddenly bursting forth, melts the ice and snow on the mountain sides, and great floods rush down into the valleys. On the cooled surface of the lava flow ice and snow accumulate and then perhaps a new flow of lava covers up the ice without melting it. The ice is thus shut up as in a great natural ice house, and may be so preserved for thousands of years. Dr. Geikie mentions a case in which a layer of ice occurs between two beds of lava in a geological section. The antiquity of such a bed of ice is to be measured in thousands and tens of thousands of years. On a smaller scale is the famous Eis-hohle, a natural ice house not far from Casselburg, in the Eifel. There on the hottest day in the summer ice is to be found. This ice is famous and was always served at the table of the elector of Cologne.

Amateur Brass Band.

A well-known band was practically men short. It had its full strength numerically; but two of the regular members had not been able to come, and in their stead had been pressed a couple of "followers" who (in the vernacular) "could not play for nuts." Effectually to prevent their getting out a single sound, the conductor had jammed a cord into their instruments, or rather, the instruments they carried. So that they were players and yet not players; they counted as two, but otherwise they were a source of weakness rather than of strength. Handicapped though the band thus was, however, it succeeded in carrying off the first prize.—Good Words.

At Pittsburg Mr. Schwab once took Mr. Carnegie to show him the new steel works he had just erected, and Carnegie said there was only one fault to be found with them. He would like to pull them all down and save $2.00 a ton in production. He did pull them down, and re-erected them at a cost of seven or eight million dollars, thereby saving more than two or three dollars a ton—and it gave him almost a monopoly of manufacture.

A German paper says the man who shaved the Emperor William was always late. His majesty gave him a gold chronometer as a hint to be more punctual. The barber was as slow as ever. The other day the emperor asked him if he still had the watch. He had. "Give it to me," remarked William. "It is evidently of no use to you, and you can have this one instead," and he handed to the amazed barber a nickel-plated watch worth about a dollar.

AN HONEST NAME.

An Illinois Statesman Tells a Good Story—Knew His Father's Son Would Not Lie.

The Honorable Alva Merrill of Chillicothe, member for the Twenty-fourth District, State of Illinois House of Representatives tells an interesting story:

Some two years ago Mr. Merrill gave a testimonial stating that Dodd's Kidney Pills cured his rheumatism. This with Mr. Merrill's portrait were published in thousands of papers all over the United States.

On the train returning home from Springfield one day last winter were the Honorable Mr. Merrill and several other members. After a time one of them said:

"Merrill, what time do you get to Chillicothe?"

This attracted the attention of an old man who had been apparently awaiting some identification of Mr. Merrill and as soon as he heard the name he rushed up to his seat and extending his hand said:

"You are Alva Merrill and you saved my life. I was most dead with Lumbago and in an advertisement I saw your picture and your recommendation of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I knew your father, and I knew his son would not lie, and therefore I decided to try the Pills.

"I am satisfied that Dodd's Kidney Pills and nothing else have saved my life and I have been waiting this opportunity to thank you personally, for had I not seen your recommendation I might never have been led to use this remedy, but, thanks to God, through your honest name and the honest medicine which you so heartily recommended I am still alive.

"I have been watching you since you got on the train at Springfield and thought I recognized your face as the one I had seen in the advertisement, and as soon as this gentleman called you by name, I knew you were the man I had to thank."

TO HOUSE INDIANS.

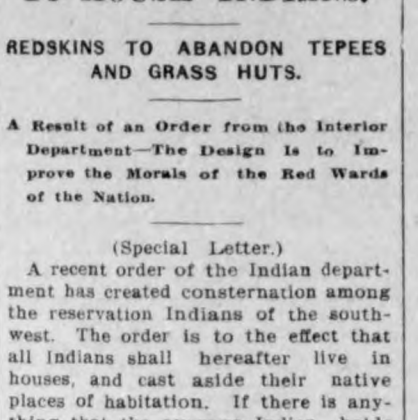
REDSKINS TO ABANDON TEPEES AND GRASS HUTS.

A Result of an Order from the Interior Department—The Design Is to Improve the Morals of the Red Wards of the Nation.

(Special Letter.)

A recent order of the Indian department has created consternation among the reservation Indians of the southwest. The order is to the effect that all Indians shall hereafter live in houses, and cast aside their native places of habitation. If there is anything that the average Indian holds dear, it is his tepee or grass house. It is as sacred to him as his dances, which are also fast passing away. The purposes of putting the Indians in frame houses are two. First, the wish to do away with their habit of crouching about in the hollows and timber during winter time, in their tepees. This kind of structure is not healthful, and hundreds of Indian children die every year of exposure. Again, when the Indians live in tents they are apt to have more than one wife apiece, and indulge in their games and dances, much to the detriment of their moral character.

Most of the Indians have never lived under anything but huts of their own peculiar construction. Most of the tribes live in tepees in summer, but in winter they have grass houses, sod houses, caves in the hillsides and leaf-covered shacks in the valleys. The Wichita Indians, who live in southern Oklahoma, have the most complete house of any of the Indian tribes in the United States. It is called a grass house. The Indian first builds a framework, dome shaped. Huge logs are set up in a cone, and these are covered with sod. The squaws then weave the long grass of the plains into a kind of thick matting. This is waterproof, and is laid in strips over the sod. A cone is formed at the top to turn water, and a small entrance is cut in the south side. A rude door is made to cover this. There are small holes near the bottom of the hut for breathing places, and in winter a chimney hole is cut in the top. But there are no windows of any sort. In summer the lower part of the sod house can be removed, leaving a good roof and open sides. In them they spend the warm weather. Storms have full sweep at them, but they do not seem to care for this. In case the wind blows too hard they go into some of the numerous caves that may be found on their reservation.



A WICHITA GRASS HOUSE.

The Comanches, Kiowas, Pawnees, Poncas and Cheyennes all live in rough tepees both in summer and winter, though among the Poncas the idea of living in the houses supplied by the government is now coming into favor. The Cheyennes and Apaches are almost beyond the reach of civilizing influences. They will have nothing to do with the white people, as a rule, and they scorn the little government houses which have lately been built for them. But the Indian agents will soon issue instructions to confiscate all the tepees of these tribes, burn them and compel the Indians to accept the frame houses as their future homes.

Power of the Elements.

A fall of hail to the average depth of one inch over a region four miles wide and 18 miles long is a fall of 167,340,000 cubic feet of ice, weighing nearly 1,000,000 tons. The average elevation from which it fell may be taken as 5,000 feet. All the mass that fell must previously have been raised to that level; that is, 1,000,000 tons must have been raised 5,000 feet or 5,000,000 foot tons of work must have been done, which corresponds to the work of an engine of a million horse power working for five hours.

The Droskies of St. Petersburg.

There were 37,000 droskies registered at police headquarters in St. Petersburg last summer, or one to about every thirty-three inhabitants. During the winter season, when the wheeled vehicles are changed for sledges of similar patterns, large numbers of people come in from the country with horses to earn a litte extra money.

Hope little and work much is the shortest way the goal to touch.

FAKE HAIR PREPARATIONS

Do Hair No Good, But Often Cause It to Fall Out.

Many hair preparations are "fake" because they are merely scalp irritants. They often cause a dryness, making the hair brittle, and, finally, lifeless. Dandruff is the cause of all trouble with hair. It is a germ disease. The germ makes cuticle scales as it digs to the root of the hair, where it destroys the hair's vitality, causing the hair to fall out. To cure dandruff, the germ must be killed. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Newbro's Herpicide is the only hair preparation that kills the dandruff germ, thereby leaving the hair to grow luxuriantly.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. "Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made as is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflamation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to "Consumption—Snuffles will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure," Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Doller. THE NEW ENGLAND MAGAZINE paints with loving touch the historic landmarks of New England; it recalls the customs and traditions of the "old red schoolhouse days" and tells of the achievements of New Englanders in all parts of the world. It has distinguished contributors and is artistically printed and illustrated. Monthly, $3.00 per annum.

THE NORTHWESTERN AGRICULTURIST is the leading farm, live-stock and home paper in the West. It interests every member of the family, having departments devoted to the interests of women as well as of men, on the farms in the Northwest. It is filled with instructive and interesting reading matter from beginning to end. Its various departments are under the charge of practical men, who have made a success themselves on their particular line on which they are writing. Amongst the department editors who contribute regularly to The Agriculturist, are Prof. Thomas Shaw, Professor of Animal Husbandry at the Minnesota State Agricultural College. Professor Shaw edits the sheep, beef cattle and horse departments; A. N. Hyatt, a dairyman known all over America as a practical and experienced dairy writer; Forest Henry, editor of the swine department, a man who has paid off mortgages by raising swine in Minnesota, and who is himself making money in swine raising now, not as a breeder but as a feeder of swine for market; A. R. Bush, in charge of the horticultural department, State Lecturer on Horticulture at the Minnesota Farmers' Institutes. These are only a few of the more important departments of the paper. Sample Copies will be sent free to all who are interested. The Northwestern Agriculturist is published semi-monthly, and already reaches over 56,000 farm homes twice a month. Subscription price fifty cents a year.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors requires antidotes capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is perfectly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it. Thousands of drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy and as many more have been made temporate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent or misleading "improvement." Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The Home Gold Cure is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 or $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. GREAT OPPURTUNITIES.

The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Norther Railway Company is nearing the completion of it's 140 miles of new extensions in the very richest portion of Southwestern Minnesota. The six new towns, Reading, Wilmont, Lismore, Kenneth, Waters and Conger are rapidly becoming commercial centers for the rich and already thickly settled country surrounding. There has been no "Auction sale of lots" or any attempt to "Boom" these towns; their growth being the result of a demand for convenient markets.

It is the purpose of the railway company to encourage the continuous substantial growth of the towns on their lines. In order that each town may receive the attention of "ownership," it has been decided to sell each town entire, including all unplatted land to private parties. For terms of such purchases, address the undersigned. For business openings or purchase of lots address the Town Lot Agent of the respective town.

Farmer Suicides.

Following is a special dispatch to the Des Moines News from Kanawha under date of November 18:

After several unsuccessful attempts to end his life Joseph Fisher, a farmer residing near this place, committed suicide yesterday afternoon by hanging. Mental disability and differences regarding sale of a farm is supposed to have been the cause. The lifeless body was found hanging in the woodshed. He leaves a family.

Corwith

From the Hustler.

Dr. Van Dyke reports that a nice large plump girl took up her residence at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Baughman last Saturday evening.

In the case of Queal & Co. vs. Nicholsen last Monday on advice of his attorney, Nicholson waived examination and was bound over to the grand jury.

James Delaney returned from Duncomb Monday, where he had been to see his father-in-law, Wm. Gausz, who is lying at the point of death from an abscess or clot of blood on the brain. His children have been called to his bedside.

D. N. Miller, while at Marshalltown, visited the Soldiers' Home. He found our old-time citizen, George Roe, in the hospital. He has not been well for several months and has been confined to the hospital with rheumatism, having to walk with crutches. George says he could not be better treated, but still he longs to see his Corwith friends and extends an invitation to them to visit him whenever convenient.

Britt

From the Tribune.

The Board of Supervisors are in session at Concord this week. Concord is just across the intervening farming lands south of Garner.

Word came from North Dakota that Mrs. Gladys Fillingswarth is now convalescent and that the fever has been "broken." As soon as able to travel she will return to Britt with her mother who is now with her.

Married, at the home of the bride's parents in Britt, Tuesday, Nov. 12th, 1901, Mr. Sophus Richards to Miss Ella Hiadin Ellsworth, Rev. N. S. Lenz officiating. Many fine presents were given the young couple and they took the train for Rock Falls, Ill., their future home on Wednesday evening with the best wishes of everybody.

R. Pope's little girl Edith, while shooting a small target rifle Friday, shot a bullet through the window of John Benton's house. John had just put the storm sash on and the bullet fortunately went through the sash, and also through the inside one before finding a lodging place which was in the back of Mrs. Benton's mother. The ball was spent so that it did not pierce the skin but made quite a bruise. The storm sash was put on but a short time before the accident and but for it this account would chronicle a tragedy instead of a very slight injury and a fortunate escape.

Kanawha

From the Record:

Miss Effie and Clyde Bray entertained a party of young friends Tuesday evening. Light refreshments were served and the evening hours enjoyably passed.

John Huyck says his team of mules can tell when a mail box signal is up, and Carrier Dixen avers that his team has learned which patrons take daily papers. Next!

Jesse Baker seems to be a victim of many accidents. He is staying at Corwith, and last week suffered a severe fall, followed the next day by a sprain of his wrist.

The first number of the lecture course proved entirely satisfactory. A crowded house greeted Monroe Smock, who fulfilled the high expectations of the audience. The next number will be Dec. 13th, Dr. Phil. Baird.

Numerous reports reach us of the death of cattle feeding in the corn stalk fields. We also notice by news papers that like deaths have occurred throughout the state. Some farmers claim it is from smut, while others think the frost on the stalks causes gas to form after eating.

Death of Mrs. Snyder's Father

The following is an account of the death of the father of Mrs. A. M. Snyder of this city, the obituary being taken from the Elgin Echo:

At his home in Elgin, Iowa, on Nov. 9, 1901, occurred the death of Nathan Eastman. Funeral services were held at the Elias Benson residence on Monday, Nov. 11, conducted by Rev. Hack, of the German Baptist church. Interment took place at the Elgin cemetery.

Nathan Eastman was born at Attica, N. Y., June 10, 1827, and was in his seventy-fourth year when he died. On Feb. 3, 1853, he was united in marriage to Miss Charlotte Cullins. Six children were born to this union of whom three daughters are now living: Mrs. Stanton, of Elgin; Mrs. Shutt, of Edna, Iowa, and Mrs. Snyder, of Klemme, Iowa.

Mr. Eastman came to Iowa and Fayette county sometime during the decade of 1850—60 and settled at Auburn, later he moved to Elgin where he resided until his death. He was one of the most conscientious men who has ever lived and the belief of those who knew him best is that he never intentionally did a wrong act nor injured any man. Uncle Nate was loved and respected by everyone who knew him and the memory of his kindly self and words will live as a pleasant recollection in the mind of his acquaintance, so long as life is given them. Mr. Eastman was not only a Christian in profession but also in thought and deed. He was a true follower of the Christ. May his future be in Paradise.

We use 104,000 tons of flax yearly. France comes next with a consumption of 66,000 tons.

Once a distinguished Russian grand duke found himself charged 20 francs apiece for hothouse peaches at a cafe in Paris. "Are hothouse peaches so scarce, then, even in mid-winter?" he asked. "No," replied the maitre d'hotel, "but grand dukes are."

The advance of civilization is noted in the Holy Land, where American beer has become a popular beverage. Jerusalem now has electric lights, telephones and phonographs, and trolley lines are talked of to connect that celebrated city with Bethany, Bethlehem, the Lake of Galilee and other places famous in Bible history.

President Roosevelt's independence of thought and action was illustrated recently in a manner pleasant to record. He bought three fine, high-stepping horses for use in his carriage at Washington. "He was particular about having long-tailed horses," said the man of whom he bought them. "He insisted that they should not be docked. It made no difference to him that short-tailed horses are considered more fashionable."

For the last two years members of the Baptist church of Saco, Me., have been annoyed by a sound of the church building. While it was not especially troublesome, it was annoying from the fact that it was constant and could not be located. The sexton hunted everywhere for it, but without success until the latter part of last week. In making a more thorough search than usual he found tucked away in a gable end a swarm of bees and about fifty pounds of honey.

In the Victoria History of the County of Norfolk, England, the author quotes a note concerning the cod, from an old work on British fishes, which says that on a midsummer eve one was captured in Lynn Deeps and brought to the vice-chancellor of Cambridge. In its stomach was found "a book in three treatises." The date of the discovery was 1626. Can it be that the scarcity of cod in the present year is to be explained by the fact that the fish have been indulging in a literary diet, as did their esteemed predecessor, and with fatal effect? A few "yellow" journals may have been eaten by mistake.

The law which is driving religious orders out of France, has two very simple provisions. The first is a declaration that all religious associations of whatever kind must submit to the general law of the republic and obey the prescriptions laid down for the formation of all corporate societies; secondly, it ordains that all religious institutions in the country must submit to the inspection, approval and control of the bishop in whose diocese they are established, and it provides that no religious association which professes obedience to a superior residing out of France shall be authorized to exist in the country.

The English home office is reported to be considering the abolition of Black Maria. The origin of the term "Black Maria" is curious. When New England was filling with emigrants from the mother country a negress, named Maria Lee, kept a sailors' boarding house in Boston. She was a woman of great strength, and helped the authorities to keep the peace. Frequently the police invoked her aid, and the saying, "Send for Black Maria," came to mean "Take him to jail." British seamen were often taken to the lock-up by this amazon, and the stories they spread of her achievements led to the name of Black Maria being given to the English prison van.

There are many workingmen in all large cities who cannot remove to the suburbs, who must remain in congested districts because they need to be near their work. Thus there is force in a recent suggestion that some immense apartment houses be erected where tenements now stand. Such a building, sheltering a thousand persons, perhaps, might be from twelve to eighteen stories high, supplied with elevators, steam-heated, fire proof and sanitary. In the basement would be a general laundry, on an upper floor a hall for concerts, lectures and unsectarian religious services, and there would be a roof-garden which would be also a play-ground for the children. The Mills Hotels in New York City enable single men to live in decency and comfort at prices working men can afford to pay. The big family hotel would serve the same purpose to married men who cannot leave a neighborhood of tenements, but would like themselves and their families to be farther from sidewalk sounds and scenes and nearer to the sky.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

BATTLE WITH BANK ROBBERS.

One Is Fatally Wounded and Two Others Finally Surrender.

Sioux City, Nov. 18.—The bank of Greenville, nine miles north of Sioux Rapids, was broken into, the vault and safe blown open and the contents taken. The bank is owned by the Bank of Sioux Rapids, and carried a comparatively small amount on hand. The robbers are supposed to have escaped on a hand car, as one belonging to Greenville was found at a Rock Island crossing, two miles south of here. The bank building was wrecked.

The robbers were found in the depot at Albert City by officers and a posse. They were ordered to surrender, when the robbers opened fire, wounding C. J. Lodine, the city marshal, in the hip, and John Sunbland, a business man, in the shoulder. One robber was fatally shot in the stomach and leg by the posse. The other two robbers escaped to the country, and, meeting a farmer with a team, compelled him to drive them east until his team played out and they met another farmer, whom they compelled to take them farther. They were overtaken by a posse from Albert City and surrendered. The robbers have been taken to Storm Lake for safe keeping.

The robbers were apprehended through a description given the bank here by a telephone girl at Spencer. Two are white and one is a mulatto. The wounded man is about 40 years of age, heavy set, and wears a stubby, brown mustache. The other white man is younger and slimmer. The bank is insured against burglars for $3,000, which is said to make the bank good. No report has reached here as to the amount of money found on the robbers captured. he wounded man had $48. Nitro glycerine was found in their possession.

The vault door and safe are entirely destroyed, part of the safe being blown through the front door of the building into the street.

CLAIMS IOWA FIGHT IS WON.

President of Woman's Suffrage Association Expects to Ballot Soon.

Waterloo, Nov. 15.—Mrs. Evelyn Belden, president of the Iowa Woman's Suffrage association, in her address to the state convention declared her belief that the fight had been won in Iowa and that it was only a question of a short time now until the women of this state would be given the same rights as men at the ballot box. She favored compulsory education and recommended the matter to the convention. Mrs. Nellie Nelson, the state secretary, reported a steady growth of the suffrage movement and declared that the membership of the political equality clubs in the state had been doubled during the past year.

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Adeline Ballard of Hull; vice president, Evelyn Belden of Sioux City; recording secretary, Mrs. Eleanor C. Stockman of Mason City; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Nellie Welsh Nelson of Des Moines; treasurer, Anna Ankeny of Des Moines; members of the national committee, Mary C. Coggeshall of Des Moines.

Des Moines, Nov. 16.—The city council last night voted to submit to a vote of the people the question of annexation of the army post.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

"Another harvest season is closing, and the year has been crowned with God's blessing. Neither famine, nor pestilence, nor other material or physical misfortune has visited us. Gratitude becomes a wise and God-fearing people. Therefore, in harmony with custom, and in accordance with the proclamation of the president of the United States, Thursday, November 28, is hereby designated as a day of thanksgiving and prayer. Let each church and every home be an altar of praise to Him who hath promised that 'while the heart remaineth, seed time and harvest, and cold and heat, and summer and winter, and day and night shall not cease. (Signed) Leslie M. Shaw.

(Attested) "W. B. Martin,
"Secretary of State."

DES MOINES COURT HOUSE.

Des Moines, Nov. 15.—A. P. Chamberlain, one of the attorneys representing the river fronters, appeared at the clerk of the court's office yesterday afternoon and filed a petition asking that a writ of mandamus be issued out of the district court and a temporary injunction granted restraining the board of supervisors from using any portion of the proceeds of the $400,000 bonds for the construction of a new court house until the proposition had been resubmitted to a vote of the people. Immediately after filing the document with the clerk Mr. Chamberlain hurried before Judge Prouty and asked that a temporary restraining order be issued. The judge set Monday, November 18, as the time for taking up the matter.

Dr. Crofford Convicted of Murder.

Leon, Nov. 18.—The jury in the Crofford case returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree. The jury was out only a few hours. Dr. J. W. Crofford was on trial under Judge Towner for the murder of Miss Maude Stone, who died at the Crofford sanitarium in Lamoni on January 29 as a result of a criminal operation.

BOARD OF CONTROL NEEDS

Legislature to Be Asked for Appropriation of $848,127.

Des Moines, Nov. 16.—The second biennial report of the state board of control has been placed in the hands of Governor Shaw. The report will not make as large a volume as the first one issued, but when printed, will contain over 900 pages. Probably the portion of greatest interest is the chapter devoted to appropriations to be asked of the legislature for the next biennial period. The full amount asked for is $848,127.50, apportioned among the different institutions as follows:

Soldiers' Home, Marshalltown, $75,100.

Soldiers' Orphans' Home, Davenport, $40,750.

College for the Blind, Vinton, $9,700.

School for the Deaf, Council Bluffs, $13,100.

Home for Feeble Minded Children, Glenwood, $109,075.

Hospital for Insane, Independence, $93,200.

Hospital for Insane, Clarinda, $69,500.

Hospital for Insane, Mt. Pleasant, $105,950.

Hospital for Insane, Cherokee, $132,000.

Industrial School for Boys, Eldora, $47,450.

Industrial School for Girls, Mitchellville, $33,100.

Industrial School for Blind, Knoxville, $3,000.

Penitentiary, Ft. Madison, $85,750.

Penitentiary, Anamosa, $30,452.50.

Many appropriations asked for the different institutions are for new buildings and in each case the gross amount is named, embracing the cost of furnishings and for carrying heat, light, water and sewage through the building.

The board explains a manner in which it would be possible to reduce the amount of appropriations needed as follows: Hospital at Clarinda, $6,000; Industrial Home for Blind, $3,000; penitentiary at Ft. Madison, $22,000; which, deducted from the total sum asked, leaves $817,127.50.

The entire appropriation asked for in the biennial report two years ago was $917,943.93. Deducting the amount needed for the next two years, last named, would leave $100,847.43 less than the amount asked for the same purposes two years ago. Of the appropriation requested, $145,000 is for the purchase of new lands.

The board presents two plans for apportioning the revenue for support of the institutions. The first plan is to make all inmates of the institutions wards of the state and provide for their support, transportation, clothing and all expenses of care of every description, including cost of outbuildings, repairs and betterments out of a general tax to be levied for such purposes, giving the board power to apportion the same as may be deemed necessary for the use of the several institutions.

If the first plan is not acceptable, then it is proposed to provide a per capita appropriation for all the institutions sufficient to cover all expenses, including support, contingent and repair, clothing and transportation and outbuildings.

WORK ON INTERURBAN ROAD.

Graders and Trackmen Begin Work on Colfax and Newton Line.

Des Moines, Nov. 15.—Fifty graders and track men, in charge of Foreman Jack Malone, have begun work on the extension of the Des Moines City railway lines from the state fair ground terminal to Newton, by way of Altoona, Mitchellville and Colfax. Work will be pushed on this interurban extension, at whose head is J. S. Polk, until the weather stops it. Before the end of the week a hundred additional graders in charge of a railroad contractor will be working the ground ahead of the city track men, and the rails will go down at the rate of 1,500 to 2,000 feet a day. Plans have been made already to winter the graders on the J. J. Williams farm, just beyond Grand View park, and as soon as the ground thaws in the spring the work will be resumed and pushed to completion. Mr. Polk intends to run this line to Newton through the towns named. It is possible that a line will also deflect from it at Colfax and run to Marshalltown and other northern points, but the main interurban will be to Newton. This will be finished easily next summer.

ROBBERS GET $2,000.

First National Bank of Leroy Wrecked By Burglars.

Leroy, Nov. 15.—The First National bank of Leroy, in Decatur county, on the Keokuk & Western, was broken into and $2,000 taken. The robbers effected an entrance through the door and exploded the safe by the use of nitroglycerin. The bank building was wrecked and the contents of the safe scattered about promiscuously. No one was awakened in time to see any of the robbers or secure a clue. All the cash was taken. This makes the eighth bank robbery in Iowa within a month.

Convicted of Wife Murder.

Sioux City, Nov. 18.—Ben McKnight, charged with murdering his wife, was found guilty of murder in the second degree. It is alleged against McKnight that he abused his wife most terribly while he was drunk, twisting her limbs and jumping on her. Blood poisoning followed the inflicting of the bruises and the woman died a few days after the assault. Her death bed statement was the most important evidence against McKnight.

NEWS IN GENERAL

INCREASE IN IMMIGRATION.

More Than Half Million People Came to This Country Last Year.

Washington, Nov. 18.—The annual report of Commissioner General Powderly, of the immigration bureau, shows the total steerage arrivals in the United States during the year to have been 487,918, an increase over the preceding year of 39,346, approximately 9 per cent. Of this increase 2,020 came through Canadian ports of this country. There were also 74,950 other alien passengrs who came in the cabin, making a total for the year of 562,868.

The ratio of increase of Italian immigration as compared with those from the same country last year is approximately 36 per cent, or more than three-fold the ratio of increase from all Europe, and the increase numerically from all other countries of Europe aggregates scarcely one-fourth of that from Italy.

The total steerage immigration was distributed as to sex between 331,055 males and 156,863 females, and as to age, 62,562 under 14 years, 396,516 from 14 to 45 years, and 28,840 45 and over. It is shown that 117,587 were unable to read and write; 3,058 could read but not write; that 294,860 brought each less than $30, and that 56,312 had more than $30 apiece.

During the year 363 were returned to their respective countries, having become public charges within one year after landing. The number refused a landing was 3,516, as against 4,246 for last year.

It is shown that the character of immigration was decidedly superior to that of last year, the rejection being 730 less, although the arrivals were 36,346 more.

The principal countries from which the steerage arrivals for the year came are given as follows: Italy, Sicily and Sardinia, 135,966; Austria-Hungary, 113,390; Russian empire and Finland, 85,257; Ireland, 30,561; Sweden, 23,331; German empire, 21,651; Norway, 12,248; England, 12,214.

The larger number of immigrants, it is shown, were destined to the states of Illinois, Massachusetts, New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

STONE KIDNAPING CASE.

Bandits Reduce the Amount of Ransom Demanded.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Nov. 18.—The brigands who captured Miss Ellen M. Stone and Mme. Tsilka have reduced the amount of ransom they demand to £20,000 Turkish. Coincident with this intelligence is the information that the leaders of the band, convinced that this is more than Mr. Dickinson would give, would accept £15,000 sterling. Even this sum is greatly beyond the cash at Mr. Dickinson's disposal. Therefore, unless the captors of the missionary further abate their demands there is no hope of an immediate settlement. An agent who is in touch with the brigands reported that they recognize they made a mistake in kidnaping Miss Stone. They would, however, consider it worse than a blunder to release her without an adequate ransom. There is no longer any fear regarding the brigands' intentions toward the captives. They declare themselves to be not robbers, but patriots performing an obnoxious task in the interests of a holy cause. The majority of the kidnapers are peasants and farmers, directed by a secret committee to execute its decisions.

CANAL AND PACIFIC CABLE.

Important Subjects to Be Considered By Next Session of Congress.

Washington, Nov. 15.—Representative Hepburn, chairman of interstate and foreign commerce committee of the house, and Representative Sherman of New York, a member of the same committee, had a long conference with the president yesterday about the isthmian canal and Pacific cable legislation. As a result of the consultation they announced that it was their purpose to press legislation on both subjects at the earliest possible moment.

The canal bill which passed the house at the last session will be reintroduced in substantially the form in which it was passed last winter. No delay is anticipated in the committee, as the whole subject has been canvassed thoroughly. Colonel Hepburn told the president that the bill undoubtedly would have a large majority in the house.

The cable bill will be identical with the one reported from the committee during the last congress. It provides for the laying of the cable by a private corporation under a contract with the postmaster general, with an alternative provision for the building of the cable by the government if no satisfactory contract can be made. It is understood that the president concurred in the proposed program.

QUEEN WILHELMINA VERY SICK.

Her Condition Serious as Result of Premature Confinement.

Amsterdam, Nov. 15.—A telegram from Apeldoorn, near the royal castle of Het Loo, confirms the report that Queen Wilhelmina had been prematurely confined and says her majesty is very weak, but that her condition is not such as to cause anxiety.

London, Nov. 15.—The condition of Queen Wilhelmina, according to a dispatch to the Standard from Brussels, is worse than has been officially reported. Three physicians are in attendance upon her majesty, and the queen's mother has been summoned. The royal patient will be obliged to keep her couch for six weeks.

JEFFRIES WINS THE BATTLE.

He Was Declared Victor Over the Akron Giant in Fifth Round.

San Francisco, Nov. 16.—In one of the most unsatisfactory prize fights ever witnessed in this country, James J. Jeffries proved the victor last night over Gus Ruhlin, the Akron giant. In the fifth round of what was to have been a twenty-round struggle, Ruhlin wilted and then surrendered to his peer, to the utter amazement and disgust of the assembled thousands. No one was more surprised at the outcome than Jeffries himself, who asserted that while he had delivered one telling blow in the second round, he did not expect to win the victory so easily. Ruhlin's sole explanation of the outcome of the fight is that he received a chance blow which utterly disabled him, and that Jeffries persisted in fighting him low.

While Ruhlin will make no absolute charge of Jeffries having committed a foul, he intimates that he was unfairly handled and injured as a result. Ruhlin received the support of his seconds in this stand, who say that his was a hopeless case after the second round.

BOERS DEFEAT YEOMANRY

British Patrol Is Surrounded With Severe Loss.

London, Nov. 16.—A dispatch from Lord Kitchener, dated from Pretoria, says that a strong patrol of Yeomanry, while reconnoitering, November 3, at Brakspruit, near Zeerust (in the Transvaal colony, about 140 miles west of Pretoria), was surrounded by 300 Boers and lost six men killed and sixteen wounded. Some of the troopers were captured, but were subsequently released.

The rear guard of Colonel Byng's column was attacked near Heilbron, Orange River colony, November 14, by 40 Boers, said to be under the command of General De Wet. After two hours' fighting the Boers retired, leaving eight dead on the field. Of Colonel Byng's column, Lieutenant Hughes and one man was killed, while three officers and nine men were wounded.

Two of Lord Kitchener's monthly reviews, dated August 8 and September 8, were published in the Gazette last evening. They were chiefly summaries of wide, sweeping movements through all parts of the disputed territories, with the results, casualties, prisoners captured, as previously reported. An astonishing number of horses were captured, those in August alone numbering 13,570. About 20 per cent of these were fit for remounts and the others are brood mares and foals.

Though admitting the disappointing results of some of the operations, Lord Kitchener comments on them as folows:

"So long as this rate of progress can be maintained, there can be little doubt of its ultimate effect, even on the enemy to whom no other form of argument seems to appeal."

The report further says that the system of chains of block-houses at intervals of a mile, and sometimes less, along the railroad, was being extended. Besides extending the lines, these block-houses hamper communication between different portions of the Boer forces and act as barriers against which to drive the enemy.

Lord Kitchener says:

"The influence of the Boer leaders and their organized system of intimidation still keeps in the field a large number of burghers, who, if left to themselves, would be ready to surrender."

The writer favorably mentions several hundred officers, non-commissioned officers and men.

MERIT SYSTEM TO APPLY.

President Lays Down Rules for Insular Possessions.

Washington, Nov. 15.—President Roosevelt yesterday announced that in making civil appointments in the insular possessions he would adhere to the principles of the civil service. He declared this policy to Clinton Rodgers Woodruff of Philadelphia of the National Civil Service Reform league. Mr. Woodruff is chairman of the committee on dependencies, and called to ascertain what the president's policy would be. President Roosevelt told him in the most emphatic manner that absolutely no appointments in the insular possessions would be dictated or controlled by political considerations.

Danish West Indies.

Washington, Nov. 18.—The negotiations between the governments of the United States and Denmark relative to the cession to the United States of the Danish West Indies have been transferred to Washington. The transfer to Washington was brought about through the desire of the Danish government to place its interests in the matter in the hands of Mr. Constantin Brun, Danish minister at this capital. He spent some time at Copenhagen last summer and returned to Washington recently, thoroughly prepared to carry forward the negotiations directly with Secretary Hay. It is learned that within the last few days there has been increased activity in the negotiations, and that sensible progress has been made toward the completion of a treaty of cession.

Charged With Poisoning.

Sioux City, Nov. 14.—Henry Ertz, suspected of attempting to poison the family of Joe Neberhause, near Breda, is under arrest. Both are prominent farmers, and the affair has created a sensation.

The Scourge of Damascus

A Story of the East...

CHAPTER XXII.

The Executioners.

At an early hour the following morning he sent for Omar, who soon answered the call.

"I have one word to say—one request to make," said Horam, after the morning's greetings had passed. "I wish you once more to tell me the story of Helena's innocence, and thenceforth to remain silent upon the subject. I may have dreamed some of the things that now startle my thoughts; for I am not clear at what point you left me last night."

Thus called upon, the king of Aleppo related all that he had told on the previous evening, and then made some further explanation of incidents which he had not before revealed. It was a plain, simple statement, bearing the stamp of truth upon every word.

"O!" groaned Horam, clasping his thin hands together, "what would I give to call Helena back to life! But it cannot be. She is gone—and she was innocent!"

He started up from his seat, and walked several times across the floor; and when he next approached his royal guest, he had grown calmer, and his lip had ceased its quivering.

"Omar, I have no blame for you. Henceforth let the book be sealed."

He had taken one or two more turns up and down the apartment, when a messenger entered with intelligence that Benoni had arrived, and desired audience.

"Send him in at once. Good brother, you will remain with me." This last was spoken to Omar, who had turned to leave.

In a little while Benoni made his appearance, and Horam was sure he could see the flush of victory upon his brow.

"Now, my captain, what word do you bring?"

"Good word, sire. We have captured those whom you desired to see, and have also brought an old man and old woman who resided in the cave."

"Have you brought the Lady Ulin—and the robber chieftain—and Osmir and Selim?"

"Yes, sire."

"And these others are the old hermit, Ben Hadad, and the woman who lives with him?"

"Yes, sire."

"By the crown I wear!" cried the monarch, leaping up and clapping his hands, "this is enough to make me forget the wrongs I have suffered. Let the robber chieftain and the two treacherous guards be brought before me. But—hold. There was one other spoken of by the Arab—the lieutenant—Hobaddan his name was."

"He was not in the cave, sire; nor was he about the place."

"Very well. Let the chieftain be brought in."

The captain retired, and presently returned, followed by Julian and the two guards. They were heavily ironed, and six stout soldiers walked behind them. The youthful chieftain had schooled himself for the ordeal, and no sign of fear was manifest. Osmir and Selim stood like two deaf mutes, seeming to care nothing for the fate that surely awaited them.

"That is all," said Horam, after he had looked at the prisoners. "Take them out, and guard them well. Place twenty of your most trusty men over them, and remember that those twenty heads shall answer for the safety of the charge."

"Shall I conduct them to a dungeon, sire?"

"No,—there is no need of it. They will not live to behold the setting of this day's sun!"

Ben Hadad did not tremble when he stood before the king; nor did Ezabel seem much frightened.

"Old man," said Horam, "I understand that you have harbored and protected the notorious Scourge, Julian."

"He hath found shelter with me, as have all who ever sought it," replied the hermit.

"And you also harbored the lady Ulin. You knew who she was, and that she had fled from her home."

"Yes."

"And perhaps you knew why she fled?"

She told me her story, sire."

"It is enough," cried the king, impatiently. "I wish to hear no more. You both stand condemned, and the degree of your punishment shall be made known to you soon enough.

Omar was upon the point of making some remark, when Benoni entered.

"Now, Benoni," said Horam, with more nervousness in his manner than he had before exhibited, "I have a serious question to ask you; and I desire that you should answer me promptly and truly. You have noticed the conduct of the princess Ulin?"

"Yes, sire, she is in love with Julian the robber."

Benoni again went out; but he did not have to go far, as he met Aboul coming towards the royal apartment. The king greeted him as he entered, and asked him if he had seen his daughter.

"Yes, sire," replied the minister. "I have just left her."

"Have you talked with her?"

"Yes."

"Then you must have discovered the secret which hath been imparted to me. Did you speak with her of this robber chieftain?"

"I did, sire."

"Well—what did you observe?"

"O, mercy, sire—spare my child!"

"That is not the answer to my question, Aboul. I asked you what you discovered."

"I discovered," returned the minister, in tones of deepest dread, "that her love had been turned from you."

"Aye—and upon whom?"

"Upon Julian, sire."

"That is it, Aboul," cried the king, again starting up. "That is the thing that enters most deeply into my soul. And now I will tell you what the girl's punishment shall be. She shall witness the death of her robber lover; she shall see his head severed from his body—and then she shall be shut up, to lead a solitary life, through the rest of her days! None of her own sex shall attend upon her; but black guards shall be her sole companions. What say you to that?"

The executioners were not long in obeying the order. A large mat was brought in and spread upon the floor, and three stout baskets of palm-leaf were placed upon it. The mat and the baskets were darkly stained, and even Omar, used as he was to such scenes, shuddered when he beheld the preparations. When all was ready, Horam turned to his captain and ordered that all the prisoners should be brought in.

At length they came. Julian and Osmir and Selim came first. Then followed Ben Hadad and Ezabel, with Shubal and Ortok. And lastly came Ulin and Albia.

The robber chieftain was led up to the block. His arms were folded upon his broad bosom, with the heavy chains hanging almost to his feet, and his head was borne erect. There was a deep pain-mark in his face, but it was not of fear for himself.

"Outlaw!" spoke Horam, through his shut teeth, and with his thin hands clenched, "the hour has come in which you are to close your career of rapine and robbery; and these people who have been friends to you, and who have given you protection in your crime, are to see your head fall. Perhaps you would ask for mercy."

"No!" said the chieftain. "I ask no mercy at the hand of Horam of Damascus. Let the work be finished as quickly as possible, and thus shall one more be added to the list of thy bloody deeds. I could wish to live that I might take more vengeance on thee."

"And is there not one thing for which you would live?" asked the king, bending a searching, burning glance upon him.

Julian started, and struggled; but made no reply. And in a moment more Horam turned to his chief executioner.

"Bel Dara, go now to your work. Let this man's head fall first. Your arm is strong, and your hand is sure. Bend him upon his knees, and watch for my signal."

There was a low, wild cry breaking upon the air; and as Julian turned his head, he saw Ulin, white and faint, in the arms of her attendant.

Before the grim executioners could bend the robber chieftain to his knees there was an interruption in the proceedings. The voice of Ben Hadad, stern and authoritative, sounded above all else:

"King of Damascus, ere you stain your hands with that man's blood, I must reveal to you a secret which it is fitting you should know."

"Old man," he said, "you speak a secret. Do you think to trifle with me?"

"I have to cause a simple story to be unfolded to your majesty," replied Ben Hadad; "and if you will grant this woman speech, she will give you light."

The king looked hard into the face of Ezabel, and for the first time he seemed to be struck by something familiar in her features. A moment he sat as if irresolute, and then he said, starting up as though his mind were fixed:

"Let the woman approach."

Ezabel came near to the throne, Ben Hadad walking close behind her.

"Woman, what is it that you have to tell? Speak, and let not the words lag upon your lips."

"I speak by the request of Ben Hadad," replied Ezabel; "and the story which I shall tell you is known only to the old hermit and myself. Even Julian himself knows not the secret I have to impart, and were he now upon the verge of death, no persuasion should draw it from me. It may be that the disclosure will consign me to your executioner; but I care not. I shall waste no words. I was born in this city, and was married at an early age. One son was born to me, and then my husband died. Shortly after this bereavement I was called to nurse a sick child—a girl, some three years old—who was suffering from an accident. The child recovered under my care, and as I had formed a strong attachment for her, and as she had also conceived the same for me, I was retained to attend upon her. Her parents were of the wealthiest of Damascus, and while they made it very pleasant for me to remain with their daughter, they also provided a good place for my son, Hobaddan. My charge grew up to be a beautiful maiden, and became my mistress; and I served her with joy, for she was good and kind and generous; and I knew that she loved me. In time my mistress became a wife, and I went with her to her new home. For a few months all went pleasantly under this new relation; but finally a dark cloud arose to obscure the heaven of my lady's joy. Her husband became jealous of her—became so jealous that his soul was fraught with deadly vengeance. He fancied that his wife's guilt had been proved, and he resolved to put her away from him forever. Her protestations availed nothing. He would not listen to her—he would not even allow her to approach him; but he gave her into the hands of his executioners, and bade them drown her in the waters of the Pharphar. I discovered what was to be done, and slipped away from the home of the cruel husband, and sought my son, who had then become a stout youth. Hobaddan and I hid ourselves near the gates of the city, and when the executioners came out, we followed them. They had with them a large sack, and I knew that my mistress was in it. We saw them sink that sack in the river—they sank it where the water was dark and deep—sank it in the middle of the night—and then went away. As soon as they were gone we hurried to the shore, and my son plunged into the stream, and succeeded in bringing the sack to the land. We opened it, and my sweet mistress was taken forth, cold and senseless; but she was not dead. Her heart still had motion, and after much labor we succeeded in bringing her back to consciousness. The next need was to find a safe shelter for her. We dared not take her back to the city. I thought of the hermit, Ben Hadad. I had heard that he was a benevolent man, and I resolved to seek him. We found his cave; and when he had heard my story, he promised to give us shelter, and to protect the unfortunate lady.

"My mistress so far recovered as to be able to sit up; but she could not get well. Her system had received too great a shock, and her poor heart was broken. In two weeks from the time when she entered the cave she gave birth to a son, and shortly afterwards she died. She died as pure and true as heaven itself, and her child was the offspring of an honor which no temptation could have tarnished. She died; but the child lived and thrived—lived, and grew strong, and noble, and bold. We told him how his mother had been wronged; but we did not tell him all. We did not tell him who his father was; only we told him that he owed his orphanage to the king of Damascus. When he grew up he resolved that the king should suffer for the deed he had done, and subsequent events have proved that his resolution was not vain.

"This, sire, is the son of the woman who was my mistress. Julian, the Scourge of Damascus is the child I have reared. Would you know more?"

Horam sat in his great chair, with his hands clutched tightly upon the golden arms, and his whole frame quivering.

"O," he gasped, "the secret is nigh to the surface! What shall I ask?"

The king of Aleppo moved to Horam's side, and whispered in his ear.

"Aye," exclaimed the quaking monarch, when he had listened to the words of his brother, "it shall be so. What ho! Benoni—clear this chamber of all save this old man and woman, and this—this—Julian! Lead them out quickly, and remain with them to watch them."

In a few moments the two kings were alone with the three prisoners who had been designated.

"Now—now—speak!"

"King of Damascus," said the aged hermit, taking a step forward, "allow me to tell you the rest. The suns of almost a hundred years have rolled over my head, and not yet have I willingly deceived a fellow creature to his injury. What this woman has told you is true. The lady who was brought to my cave three-and-twenty years ago—who gave birth to a child there—and who died in Ezabel's arms, was Helena, Queen of Damascus! And the son which she bore was the son of the king—I swear it; and in support thereof, I pledge my soul's salvation!"

NOT FOREIGN TERRITORY

Commissioner of Internal Revenue So Decides on Philippines.

Washington, Nov. 16.—The commissioner of internal revenue has rendered a decision in which he holds that beer, whisky and other articles of domestic manufacture subject to internal revenue tax when consumed in the United States are subject to this tax when shipped to the Philippine islands. In this sense the Philippines are held to be domestic territory. Under existing laws articles subject to internal revenue tax at home are relieved from the tax when exported to a foreign country, the exporter giving bond when the goods are withdrawn, which is cancelled when satisfactory proof is furnished that they actually have been landed in foreign territory. Under a ruling made some weeks ago by the commissioner the Philippines have been regarded for purposes of internal revenue taxation, as foreign territory, but heretofore the whisky, beer, cigars, etc., which have been shipped to the islands have been exempted from taxation. Under the present ruling the tax in all cases will be exacted before shipment. It is expected that exporters will pay the tax under protest, having in mind the "fourteen diamond rings case" now pending in the United States supreme court, in which a decision is expected at an early date. This case involves the same question which has arisen in the consideration of the internal revenue tax cases and if the court should hold that the Philippines are foreign territory for customs and internal revenue tax purposes, exporters will be entitled to a refund of the amount of the tax paid.

DIVISION OF BRITISH MINISTRY.

Rupture Caused by Speech of Michael Hicks-Beach.

New York, Nov. 18.—Your correspondent has received from an authoritative source full confirmation of the rumors of cabinet dissensions already hinted at in previous dispatches, cables the London representative of the Tribune. The protracted session of the cabinet has been a deep political mystery, for which neither the program of the session nor the military has supplied a definite clue. What really happened was an onslaught on Sir Michael Hicks-Beach by nearly all his associates. Mr. Balfour joined Mr. Chamberlain, and Lord Salisbury and the Duke of Devonshire supported both in condemning the speech of the chancellor of the exchequer, which had sent down consols with a rush. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach's financial administration and his general proposals for carrying on the additional burdens of the war were harshly criticised and he was left almost alone with all the strongest men against him. Lord Londonderry, Sir Michael's closest friend, intervened as peacemaker, and a truce was arranged by him. The cabinet has been in session since this breach occurred and there has been a renewal of the unpleasant controversy. Some of the best informed politicians are forecasting the early resignation of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach. Mr. Chamberlain and Sir Michael Hicks-Beach have neither understood nor smypathized with each other. One has condemned the method of financing the war, and the other has been coldly critical of all matters of South African policy. The resignation of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach would be an affair of momentous importance. He is the ideal old Tory and country squire and has the power of rallying about him the unprogressive Conservatives. There would be only one candidate for the succession to the treasury and the advent of Mr. Chamberlain as chancellor of the exchequer would be the signal for the adoption of a new system of indirect taxation for relief of the income tax payers and the promotion of the interests of Canada, Australia and other colonies.

TURKS AND BRITISH AGREE.

Yemem and Aden Boundary Commission to Settle Controversy.

New York, Nov. 16.—The Vienna Politsche Correspondenz quoted in a dispatch to the London Times and New York Times from the Austrian capital announces that an agreement has been concluded between Great Britain and Turkey with a view to the delimitation of their respective spheres of influence and frontiers between Yemen and Aden. According to this source of information, a Turkish commission has already been appointed, and now awaits instructions to proceed to the place selected for the opening negotiations.

The correspondent adds that the settlement of the complicated situation in that region has not been anticipated. The British governor at Aden is represented to have said that the existing protectorate and sphere of influence, which extend beyond the Turkish frontier into the Ottoman territory of Yemen, will not be abandoned. The Turkish hope to secure some improvement of existing conditions.

St. Jacobs Oil for Chest-Colds Bronchitis, Croup and Pleurisy.

An outward application for bronchial difficulties is many times far more effective than syrups, cough mixture, cod liver oil, &c., simply because it penetrates through to the direct cause, which is, as a rule, an accumulation of matter or growth tightly adhered to the bronchial tubes.

St. Jacobs Oil, possessing as it does those wonderful penetrating powers, enables it to loosen these adhesions and to induce free expectoration. Cases have been known where expectorations have been examined after St. Jacobs Oil has been applied, and the exact formation was clearly shown, where the adhesions had been removed or pulled off the bronchial tubes. All irritation of the delicate mucous membrane of the bronchæ is quickly removed by the healing and soothing properties of St. Jacobs Oil. In cases of croop and whooping cough in children St. Jacobs Oil will be found superior to any other remedy.

St. Jacobs Oil is for sale throughout the world. It is clean to use—not at all greasy or oily, as its name might imply. For rheumatism, gout, sciatica, neuralgia, cramp, pleurisy, lumbago, sore throat, bronchitis, soreness, stiffness, bruises, toothache, headache, backache, feetache, pains in the chest, pains in the back, pains in the shoulders, pains in the limbs, and all bodily aches and pains it has no equal. It acts like magic. Safe, sure, and never failing.

The man who invented work ought to have finished it.

HAIR WON'T FALL OUT

If You Kill the Dandruff Germ With the New Treatment.

John N. Fuller, a well-known citizen of Colfax, Wash., says: "I had dandruff so badly that it caked on my scalp. Herpicide completely cured me." George H. McWhirk of Walla Walla, Wash., says: "Herpicide completely cured me of a bad case of dandruff of 30 years' standing." They took the only really sensible treatment, a remedy that destroys the dandruff germ—Newbro's Herpicide. Stop dandruff, hair won't fall out, but will grow naturally, luxuriantly. Allays itching instantly and makes hair glossy and soft as silk. At druggists. One bottle will convince any doubter of its merits.

Envy is the lowest known form of praise.

Mother Gray's Sweet Powders for Children

Successfully used by Mother Gray, nurse in the Children's Home in New York. Cure Feverishness, Bad Stomach, Teething Disorders, move and regulate the Bowels and Destroy Worms. Over 30,000 testimonials. At all druggists, 25c. Sample FREE. Address Allen S. Olmsted, LeRoy, N. Y.

A colored parson, after a sermon of fiery eloquence, exhorting the congregation to accept the spirit of the Lord and be saved, concluded his sermon by inviting every one to come forward for prayer and all did except farmer Jones who remained in his seat. "Mr. Jones," said the parson in his most persuasive manner, "won't you come forward for prayer?" "No; guess not," said the farmer quietly. "Don't you want to be born again?" queried the parson. "No, I do not." "And why not, may I ask?" "Fraid I sh'd be a girl."

Shortly after President Roosevelt entered the White House, a politician called upon him, with reference to appointments. After the preliminary expressions of high esteem, unbounding admiration, and eternal loyalty, he began to disclose his business. "I want to speak to you about Mr. Blank, who holds a small office down in my district——" The politician didn't finish his sentence. "What!" exclaimed Roosevelt, interrupting him; "is that infernal scoundrel still in that place? I had some knowledge of him when I was a civil service commissioner." The politician acknowledged that Mr. Blank was still there, and then turned the subject.

Rheumatism and the Eyes.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 18th.—Mr. R. A. Wade, the celebrated criminal lawyer of this city whose opinion on legal matters is unquestioned, has recently made public his unqualified opinion on a matter of medicine. Mr. Wade says that Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble affect the eyesight, and further that there is no case of the kind that can not be cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

He has no fear of being set right by any of his medical friends, for both statements have a living and indisputable proof in the person of the great lawyer himself, who as a result of Rheumatism and Kidney Trouble from which he suffered for years, became totally blind.

Physicians, the best in the country, pronounced his case incurable and hopeless, but Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him, restored his sight, drove away the Kidney Trouble and with it the Rheumatism and made an all-around well man of him.

School Notes.

Mr. Bartz visited room three Thursday afternoon at recess.

Emma Krunklefeld was absent from school Monday and Tuesday.

Bea Bilinger entered school Tuesday morning increasing the enrollment to 21 pupils.

The boys of the Klemme school are organizing a football team. They have already sent for their ball.

Prof. Dawson visited room three Thursday afternoon to give out the announcement of his lecture at the Woodman hall.

The music class in Prof. Suckows room are improving very fast. They are taking up about one new piece a day being the average.

Do not be afraid to send your boy or girl to school, there is plenty of room left. Only 14 empty desks that's all but we wish they were full,

The B class in Prof. Suckows room have finished their outline of the Bill of Right and suffrage or voting and are now taking Distribution of the powers.

Supt. Schell visited room 3 Friday afternoon. He spoke of the work in visiting every school and room of that school at least once a year, He also spoke of improving time and working up our level, also strict obedience to our instructors. Also how to study He said study was not play but work in its fullest sense. And of improving our opportunity he said the only way to success was to improve our opportunities. He said if we wanted to possess a diploma in the near future we must improve our opportunity. We are very sorry that we have to loose Supt. Schell next term.

ROOM II.

The new pupils this week are Charlotte and Gretchen Scharpf and Freddie Becker.

Leslie Ell, George Lau, Grace Blank and Charley Nissen were absent Tuesday.

ARE YOU DEAF?

ANY HEAD NOISES?

ALL CASES OF

DEAFNESS OR HARD HEARING ARE NOW CURABLE

by our new invention. Only those born deaf are incurable.

HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1901.

Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain Very truly yours,

F. A. WERMAN, 730 S. Broadway, Baltimore, Md.

Our treatment does not interfere with your usual occupation.

Owing to the fact that next Thursday is Thanksgiving Day the TIMES will issue one day earlier next week. Correspondents will please get matter for publication to us not later than Tuesday morning. Please remember this.

Last Thursday at the Reform church in Klemme occurred the marriage of Henry Wille and Mrs. Anna Hartbecke, Rev. Mulmeyer efficiating. These parties are well known to our readers and their many friends wish them happiness. They left Friday for Waterloo for a visit, returned here Monday. They moved Tuesday onto Mr. Wille's farm one mile east of Klemme.

Prof. William Dawson, B. A., held forth in the Klemme Hall, Thursday, Saturday and Monday evenings and explained and demonstrated the arts of phrenology, hypnotism, mesmerism and palmisty. He had good audiences each evening. This writer did not attend as we were fearful to have the Prof. examine our "bumps" as we would hate to have him shout out to an intelligent audience that our head was empty. No doubt Mr. Dawson did a rushing business and picked up many half dollars. We are informed that he was quite clever in the above mentioned arts. He went fro here to Go odell.

"At Valley Forge" will be played at the opening of the Garner Opera House Nov. 22. This is a very highly reccommended play and no doubt many Klemmieites will attend.

W. W. Lawrence will give a Thanksgiving turkey shoot on the vacant plat of land south of Tom Blank's, November 27, lasting all day. A good chance to have some sport and get a good fat turkey for Thanksgiving dinner.

The band boys favored our citizens with an out-door concert one evening last week. The boys have lately received some new music and some very good music too, and Instructor Stroemer is pushing the boys right along into first class players.

This office force has been busy the past three weeks with an extra run of job work which has kept us jumping right along. However this is just as we want it to be. Bring in your job printing. We will do it pfomptly, in up to date shape and at prices as low as any for first class work. Give us a trial.

A Scotch newspaper contained a paragraph which told of two local men who had been addressing temperanc meetings in the country and who on their way home were thrown out of the machine in which they sat. The paragraph wound up by saying, "Fortunately both gentlemen were quite sober." One of the temperance men resented the insinuation which might be read into this sentence and wrote an angry letter to the editor. This is how that gentleman apologized. "In our account of the the unfortunate accident to Messrs.——we stated that fortunately both men were sober. It appears this statement has given great offense, We beg to withdraw it."—Editor and Publisher.

STORIETTES.

An insurance officer, who claims to be the only man in his business who ever talked business to J. Pierpont Morgan, remarked the other day: "I could more easily see the hundred hardest men in San Francisco than do it again. Never mind how I did it. I walked in on Morgan at the office one day and stated my business. 'How did you get in here?' said he. 'I walked in,' said I. 'Well, walk out' said he. I did."

Queen Anne, who figures in "The First Duchess of Marlborough," which Mrs. Le Moyne has been presenting at the Columbia theatre, was once surrounded by a host of gayly dressed courtiers, and in the throng was an old man of eighty-three, wearing the plain dress of a country farmer. "Have you ever seen such a sight before?" asked a looker-on, and the throng was startled to hear the old man say: "Never since I sat in her chair." It was Cromwell's son.

The late Ameer of Afghanistan was not a great admirer of the British system of government. On one occasion a very high personage was conferring with him and said, in relation to some matter: "That is a very grave question, and I must refer it to her majesty's government." The Ameer, who did not clearly distinguish the parts of the British constitution, replied: "When you ask me a question I am able to answer it at once: when I ask you, you say you must first ask seven hundred other gentlemen. I prefer our Afghan way of doing business."

An Englishwoman relates this amusing experience with the French customs officers: "My father had an air-cushion with him which he refused to trust to a porter's tender mercies, and insisted on carrying it himself. This attracted the attention of a vigilant douanier. 'What's in this?' he cried, pouncing eagerly upon it. 'Air,' replied my father; 'is there a duty on English air?' the Frenchman was not so easily convinced, and insisted on satisfying himself that the contents were really of such an innocent nature. The cushion was unscrewed, the air escaped, and Jacques Bonhomme's face lengthened more and more as the india-rubber became flatter and flatter."

The Up-To-Date Shirt Waist

It is really never up-to-date unless it has been ironed with Defiance starch. Any woman that knows of the merits of Defiance will tell you that no other starch will produce that soft, glossy finish that you see so often on up-to-date women. The marvel of it all is that it sells for less (and gives more bulk) than any other brand. Sixteen ounces for 10 cents. Clip this out and take it to your grocer and tell him you want a package. Made by Magnetic Starch Co., Omaha, Neb. Not in the trust.

Dr. L. O. Howard, the entomologist of the department of agriculture, calculates that the annual losses produced by certain insects in destroying crops in the United States are over $300,000,000. Most of these damages are by imported insects.

Ask your grocer for DEFIANCE STARCH, the only 16 oz. package for 10 cents. All other 10-cent starch contains only 12 oz. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Visitor—And have you any uncles and aunts? Winifred—Oh, yes, lots of uncles and aunts. But I am very scarce in grandfathers and grandmothers.

If You Want Chromos

Buy inferior goods and the dealers will throw them. But if you want Defiance Starch go to your grocer and he will sell you a 16 ounce package for ten cents. The only premium that goes with it is the merits and quantity. At your grocers. Made by Magnetic Starch Co., Omaha, Neb. None other "just as good."

Lord Brassey says the British navy in men and ships excels any other two navies.

WHEN YOUR GROCER SAYS

he does not have Defiance Starch, you may be sure he is afraid to keep it until his stock of 12 oz. packages are sold. Defiance Starch is not only better than any other Cold Water Starch, but contains 16 oz. to the package and sells for same money as 12 oz. brands.

Forestry Devotees

Field in This Country for Forest Engineers.

The new opening is in forestry, or forest engineering, as it is coming to be called, and in a country with such vast forest tracts as ours, tracts fitted for nothing but forest growth and admirably adapted to that, with vast capital and labor depending on the timber supply for employment, it is evident that there is a field for the forest engineer, the man who knows how to keep up the annual supply forever. Forestry as a profession is not new to the world, for it has been practiced with profit by generations of the more thrifty European races. It is new to this country because the time is only just ripe for its employment. It has become essential to the continued prosperity of our lumber industry in its producing and manufacturing branches. With an increasing population and general prosperity, local consumption of timber has multiplied rapidly. The demand from abroad is also continuous and growing. To meet it we have a very certain and fixed stock of growing timber, and much of the best timber land is abandoned to absolute desert waste, after being clean cut, as the phrase is. Forestry, the applied science of growing trees for profit, would never sanction such shiftless, short-sighted, yea, suicidal methods. It would keep in growing timber, and that of the kinds best suited to the particular soil and market, every acre of land which was not more valuable for agriculture, building or some other form of business enterprise. In brief, it may be said that the wealth produced from our American forests each year exceeds in value the total product of all the gold, silver, copper, iron, lead and coal mines, and the value of this crop surpasses that of the wheat and cotton fields combined. The statistics of our national trade bear out these statements. In similarly abbreviated form it can be said that this country is now and has been for several years past using fully 50 per cent more wood per annum for all purposes than the forests can produce under natural conditions. What those forests can do when skillfully assisted by future generations of forest engineers is for those men to prove. Surely there will not be the wanton waste which goes on today (and that leakage stopped can properly be charged up to the credit of increased production), and the trees will grow faster for being given the proper conditions without the necessity of their fighting for them single handed. Forestry cannot be studied today in any and every college in the land. There are at present three prominent schools devoted exclusively to the subject, and special courses in certain phases of the science have lately been opened by a few other institutions. The three leading schools are here mentioned in the order of their foundation, as follows: The school at George Vanderbilt's forests at Biltmore, N. C.; the New York State College of Forestry, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.; the Yale Forest School, Yale University, New Haven, Conn. Berea College, Berea, Ky., has started a course adapted to the seeds of the mountain farmers, for whom that college chiefly exists. The New Hampshire College of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts, Durham, N. H., has within the year opened a course in the subject, which should be of great help to farmers in northern New England. These are the three chief schools and two of the minor ones. That courses are not opened by more colleges is largely due, no doubt, to the difficulty, even the impossibility of securing competent instructors, and to their lack of suitable demonstration forests where the men can be put to work. This suggests still another field for the young American student who has not yet hit upon his life work, especially if he has an inclination to teach for a living. These schools, and others yet to be, must have professors and instructors in the various branches. Why not study forestry with a view to teaching the science?—Boston Transcript.

Modern Military Surgery

Some Interesting Experiences of the South African War.

The war in South Africa has furnished a vast amount of interesting surgical experience, showing the effect of modern arms of precision and of antiseptic methods in the hospitals. While it is too early to draw deductions from the statistics of the war, it is worthy of note that, where the records were kept of 12,637 officers and men who had been wounded, only 782 died of wounds received in action. This small mortality is attributed to the prompt application of a first-aid dressing. The action of the Mauser bullet upon human tissues depends upon the range at which it is fired. Within 200 yards it has an explosive character. The nickel case seems to expand and become detached, causing a severe, lacerated and contused wound, which heals very slowly. If it strikes a bone it crushes and destroys it. If fired at a longer range it makes a clean-drilled hole through a bone, while if it strikes soft parts of the body only a small wound is made, there being but little difference between the place of entrance of the bullet and its exit, which bleeds but little unless an important vessel is injured.

It is remarkable how few amputations have been performed during the Boer war. Dr. Kendal Franks has reported that in his experience not more than 20 amputations have occurred in 3,000 cases, which he attributed to the conservative spirit of present-day surgery. Dr. Sterling Ryerson relates that he saw at Kimberly 147 wounded Boers in a roller rink which had been converted into a temporary hospital. They were of all ages, from 15 to 65. They had been wounded at Paardeburg, and in many cases the wounds had been undressed for from 15 to 17 days. He tells of one man who had been shot through the elbow joint and whose only treatment had been the universal Boer remedy, tobacco juice. The arm was enormously swollen and almost erysipelatous in appearance. A civil surgeon, however, took the case in hand with modern methods, with the result that the man made an excellent recovery, retaining even the power to move his arm at the joint.

Your faith must be one, your actions one, and one the banner under which you combat.—Mazzini.

THE NORTH POLAR SEA

In a recent lecture on his explorations in the Arctic ocean and the results obtained with regard to the ocean currents on the Norwegian coast, in the northern part of the Atlantic ocean, and in the Arctic ocean during his voyage in the Fram and in the Michael Sars in 1900, Fridtjof Nansen declared his belief that the Northern Arctic ocean is not to be regarded as forming part of the ocean system of the world, but as being an independent inland sea, which contains several subordinate currents which are affected by the influence exerted by the two chief currents of the Gulf Stream and the Arctic ocean. For obtaining reliable data concerning the rate of speed at which the sea currents flow, their temperature and saltness, a most elaborate system of apparatus was made use of, which enabled the ocean currents to be investigated at any depth without sudden changes in the temperature of the water being able to affect the results obtained. In fact, so accurate are these results that Nansen's theory is attracting widespread attention in scientific circles.

Looked Her Part.

She was richly but inconspicuously dressed, and would have attracted no particular attention as she stood on the corner of Tremont and Winter streets had not her face, under a white veil, been writhing in a series of remarkable contortions. Several persons paused to match her "make faces" and then came a feminine acquaintance. "Why!" exclaimed the newcomer, "what upon earth is the matter?" The facial contortions ceased and were replaced by a smile. "With me? Nothing." "But you looked as if you were suffering terribly." "Never felt better." "But your face—you were twisting it into all sorts of shapes." The lady standing at the corner laughed and held out her hands, in each of which was a parcel. "I was only trying," she said, "to work the edge of my veil down under my chin."—Boston Globe.

Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 15th.—A medical authority says: "In many families throughout the world Garfield Tea often takes the place of the family physician, for practically everyone suffers at times from disorders of stomach, liver, kidneys or bowels. Certainly, from no other medicine can such good results be obtained. This Herb remedy makes people well, thus greatly increasing their capacity for enjoying life; it is good for young and old."

An eminent lawyer, while intoxicated, once entered a church where the minister was holding forth on the future punishment of the wicked. Fixing his eye upon the lawyer, who was reeling near the door, the preacher exclaimed: "There stands a sinner against whom I will bear witness in the day of judgment." At this the lawyer folded his arms, planted himself as firmly as he could, and addressed himself thus to the preacher: "Sir, I have ben practicing in the criminal court for twenty years, and I have always found that the greatest rascal is the first to give state's evidence."

NO[illegible]ITAL

The co[illegible]1901. in Des Moines, twenty-t[illegible]ounties being represented. The main object was to discuss means to exert influence on the legislature at its next session to amend the law governing the compensation of county recorders. A legislative committee, composed of Auditor John Cook of Polk, P. O. Clark of Linn and Grimes of Dallas counties, was appointed. The committee will attend the legislative session next winter and urge upon members the justice of amending the law to allow recorders increased compensation and to make better provision for payment of salaries to deputies. Permanent officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, P. O. Clark of Linn county; vice president, E. C. Sloan of Monroe county; secretary-treasurer, John P. Cook of Polk county. The second annual meeting will convene in this city next June.

It is announced from Sioux City that Capt. J. S. Lothrop has received from the federal treasury department at Washington a decision from the court of claims on war claims of Maine and New Hampshire, which makes very certain the expectation that the commonwealth of Iowa will be paid at least $100,000 on its war claim of $455,472.61, "dug up" by Capt Lothrop.

Henry Liebbe, the state architect, has passed upon a general set of plans for the proposed new medical building at the University of Iowa, for which the supporters of that institution hope the next legislature will appropriate $200,000. It is proposed to erect the structure on what is known as the east campus. Dr. L. W. Bierring of Iowa visited some of the foremost medical colleges of the world during his trip abroad last summer and it is said many of his new ideas will be used.

Veterans of the Sixth Iowa cavalry are much interested in the movement to build a monument to the soldiers engaged in the battle of White Stone Hill, Dakota territory, September 3, 1863, for that Iowa organization served there and lost eleven killed in battle and three mortally wounded, fourteen others being wounded. E. R. Kennedy, chairman, and C. Northrop, secretary, of the Veterans' association of Dickey county, North Dakota, in which White Stone Hill is located, have written to the office of the adjutant general asking for the list of casualties sustained by the Sixth Iowa in that battle. This record will be placed on the monument which will be erected.

The Rural Mail Carriers of Iowa met at Des Moines and organized, as stated by the constitution and by-laws adopted, "for the purpose of the study and adoption of the best methods" in their work. It is stated in the by-laws that the organization "is not in the popular sense a labor organization." Permanent officers were elected as follows: President, B. P. Wood, Cherokee; first vice president, E. B. White, Mt. Ayr; second vice president, C. C. Lake, Hampton; secretary and treasurer, A. Jordan, Burlington; membership committee, N. L. Maxon of Webster City, chairman; Leroy C. Zollinger of Ogden; J. J. Downard of Stockport. The objects sought to be attained are improved roads in the interest of more expeditious delivery of rural mail, suggestions for economy in the conduct of the service, increase of compensation, which is considered insufficient for the character of the service, and the organization of all rural carriers in the state into an association for the furtherance of the objects mentioned.

Judge L. G. Kinne has returned from Clarinda insane hospital, which he visited officially. While there he learned that a two-foot vein of coal has been discovered on a farm 300 feet from the land owned by the state in connection with the hospital. The owner of the property, who has already prepared a mine shaft, has begun to mine coal for the market. The coal was found at a depth of but 68 feet. In all likelihood other veins are in existence below that. In all probability an effort will be made to discover if coal is beneath the state land, and without question it is. If the state can mine it, a saving of $10,000 at Clarinda alone would be effected.

Judge Bishop decided the "Mose" Jacobs case in favor of the newsdealer, appointing Simon Casady receiver for the property in dispute. The controversy between the father and son as to who owns the property will now come before the courts on its merits. Receiver Casady qualified as receiver immediately after the court announced its decision. "Mose" alleges that [illegible] earnings as newsboy and which amounted to a sum variously estimated at from $15,000 to $50,000, to be held in trust for him and that just before her death when she was not mentally capable, her husband induced her to transfer the property to him.

Turkey Settles With Austria.

Vienna, Nov. 14.—The numerous grievances of Austria-Hungary against Turkey have been settled by the agreement of the porte to pay 90,000 francs to the Armenian victims and by adjusting, financially and otherwise, the wrongs arising from eight other matters of dispute. It was the purpose of Austria-Hungary to adopt effective measures had the porte not yielded.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. "Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made as is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflamation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to "Consumption—Snuffles will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure." THE NEW ENGLAND MAGAZINE paints with loving touch the historic landmarks of New England; it recalls the customs and traditions of the "old red schoolhouse days" and tells of the achievements of New Englanders in all parts of the world. It has distinguished contributors and is artistically printed and illustrated. Monthly, $3.00 per annum.

THE NORTHWESTERN AGRICULTURIST is the leading farm, live-stock and home paper in the West. It interests every member of the family, having departments devoted to the interests of women as well as of men, on the farms in the Northwest. It is filled with instructive and interesting reading matter from beginning to end. Its various departments are under the charge of practical men, who have made a success themselves on their particular line on which they are writing. Amongst the department editors who contribute regularly to The Agriculturist, are Prof. Thomas Shaw, Professor of Animal Husbandry at the Minnesota State Agricultural College. Professor Shaw edits the sheep, beef cattle and horse departments; A. X. Hyatt, a dairyman known all over America as a practical and experienced dairy writer; Forest Henry, editor of the swine department, a man who has paid off mortgages by raising swine in Minnesota, and who is himself making money in swine raising now, not as a breeder but as a feeder of swine for market; A. K. Bush, in charge of the horticultural department, State Lecturer on Horticulture at the Minnesota Farmers' Institutes. These are only a few of the more important departments of the paper. Sample Copies will be sent free to all who are interested. The Northwestern Agriculturist is published semi-monthly, and already reaches over 56,000 farm homes twice a month. Subscription price fifty cents a year.

GREAT OPPORTUNITIES.

The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Norther Railway Company is nearing the completion of it's 140 miles of new extensions in the very richest portion of Southwestern Minnesota. The six new towns. Reading, Wilmont, Lismore, Kenneth, Waters and Conger are rapidly becoming commercial centers for the rich and already thickly settled country surrounding. There has been no "Auction sale of lots" or any attempt to "Boom" these towns; their growth being the result of a demand for convenient markets.

It is the purpose of the railway company to encourage the continuous substantial growth of the towns on their lines. In order that each town [illegible] and been decided to sell each town entire, including all unplatted land to private parties. For terms of such purchases, address the undersigned. For business openings or purchase of lots address the Town Lot Agent of the respective town.

Garner

From Special Correspondent.

M. B. Cooper has been on the sick list the past few days, but is now reported better.

Rev. Hanscom's resignation was accepted by the members of the Congregational church to take effect the first of January.

Mr. Dorsey has moved into the house recently vacated by Wm. Ayers just south of the Wagner meat market.

Wm. G. Dakin and wife and Miss Elsie Simpkins, of Britt, arrived here Thursday evening, and are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. N. Boardman.

At Valley Forge was played at the new opera house last Friday evening and all who attended were well pleased. There were about 150 along the "Klondike" who attended.

One of the most enterprising businesses here is the poultry business. For the past three weeks they have been very busy, working night and day to fill the many orders that are pouring in upon them. Garner may well be proud of this enterprise.

There are a great many "horseless carriages" in Garner now-a-days. Some are red and some blue and some haven't any color at all. Some are large and some are small, according to the size of the passenger who has to carry it. But getting down to the dry facts, Garner is fast becoming a young Chicago, it has the auto-mobiles, it has good transfer service, (dray lines,) it has just signed a contract for the fast mail between Garner and Concord, and it will try for the county capital in a year or two. If they get defeated they might use the new structure that they have built for an insane asylum. What's the matter with Garner?

R. A. Finette was the victim of a gas lamp explosion last Thursday evening. If the lamp had been filled full it would have caused more damage than it did, as it was it blew all the window lights out of the building and deposited them in small pieces on the opposite side of the street. The citizens came rushing to the scene of action well armed, probably thinking that the town was in the hands of a gang of bankrobbers, but only to find the proprietor of the meat market heroically waving one of those bottled fire extinguishers around his head, cutting great gashes in the smoky atmosphere and probably not throwing it for fear of breaking the bottle. Some of the goods caught fire and were slightly damaged. No one was hurt. Finette now uses kerosene lamps.

Prof. C. W. Thompson has tendered his resignation to the Corwith school board to take effect Dec. 21, in order to assume charge of a newspaper plant which he has recently purchased at Cherokee, Iowa. The Professor is a graduate of Cornell College, Iowa, and a teacher of long experience. He has been principal of the Corwith schools for the past eight years and has brought the schools up to a high standing, ranking second to none in northern Iowa. He is a writer of repute and withal is a very pleasing public speaker. He has had some experience on the lecture platform and will be appreciated by those who hear him. His training has been such as to fit him for a successful newspaper man. This community is sorry to lose him, but wishes him well in his new field.

From the Record:

The arrival of a baby boy is reported at the home of Dave Zeigler and wife Monday.

W. H. Mantle, living southwest on Route 5, is getting estimates on two barns, 24x60 and 24x80 feet.

A son of Jas. Wagner was accidentally shot through the left foot last evening by a target rifle. Dr. Phelps is in attendance. The child is about 8 years old.

Death by his own hand terminated the earthly existence of Joseph Fisher last Saturday morning. Nearly two years ago Mr. Fisher suffered a severe fall on the frozen ground while attempting to stop his team running away, his spinal column being affected, and was entirely helpless for months. Under constant treatment he gradually improved, so much so that it might be considered a marvel by those who compared the improvement with his condition after the accident. However, a change had taken place in his mental condition, the failing of these faculties being quite noticeable the last six months, during which time he attempted, on different occasions to take his own life. Financial troubles grew upon him, over which he brooded, and hastened the end. Saturday morning he was found lifeless in the cattle shed at his farm, having fastened a small rope to a cattle stanchion, placed the noose over his head and then flung his weight upon the rope, his body not being suspended at any time. An inquest was held under direction of the coroner of Wright county. The interement was made in the cemetery southeast of Bruce, services being conducted by Rev. Coulter, of the M. E. church.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Nov. 25, 1901.

Grain men report that indications now are that this winter but little corn will be marketed in Iowa, and that the little that is sold will be resold within the state or shipped west. The short crop resulting from the drouth, and the necessity of putting cattle on corn feed early in the fall because of the burning up of the pastures, has developed a condition almost unprecedented in this section of the country, and grain men say that it is almost the first time in the history of the middle west that every indication pointed to either the entire consumption of the corn crop at home by feeders or the shipment of the small surplus west, instead of east. Already a number of commission orders have been placed with Des Moines dealers for shipments to Kansas City, Omaha and to points beyond, and in the drouth district to the southwest, where the hot winds worked even greater injury to the crops than in this state.

The new State Telephone company, which has been incorporated in Sioux City and has asked for a franchise in that city, announces its intention of building a system of toll lines over the state connecting about sixty-five towns in Iowa, mostly north and west of Des Moines. It is the intention to build a line into Des Moines.

Captain Scott of the local recruiting station has opened recruiting stations recently at Davenport, Creston, Burlington, Sioux City and Ottumwa, and another will soon be opened at Keokuk. The recruits at the local station and throughout the state have very materially increased under the new call by the government for volunteers for the Philippines. The government is also soliciting aplicants for service in the hospital corps, which is one of the best paid departments in the service.

Governor Shaw has added George M. Curtis of Clinton and Samuel Mahon of Ottumwa to the Louisiana Purchase exposition, making the commission now number about thirty. Of the whole number appointed only two have failed to serve, W. A. Dildine of Sioux City and E. M. Stanton of Centerville, both of whom have removed from the state.

Governor Shaw has named as delegates to the international live stock exhibition in Chicago, December 1, the following three delegates at large, including Prof. Charles F. Curtiss, of the Iowa State college at Ames; Arastus A. Harris, of Marshalltown, and I. G. Heaps, of the Farmers' Tribune, Des Moines. The three alternates include Albert Cooley, of Osceola; R. F. French, of Independence, and C. L. Dolk, of Kiron, Crawford county.

"I have not decided to bequeath my biennial election resolution to any particular member of the legislature," said Senator G. M. Titus in an interview here, "but I hope to see it introduced and passed through in correct form. I introduced the proposition because I felt that we should have biennial elections, and I believe that the people voted for it because they agreed that biennial elections are better than annual. In Muscatine county the political campaigns consisted of personal abuse, largely. They cost vast sums of money, also." No member of the incoming assembly has yet signified his intention of taking up the biennial elections resolution. It is believed, however, that it will be introduced at some time during the session and will be passed through without dissent.

In the United States court Max Kroskopf, formerly deputy postmaster at Marshalltown, and who was indicted on a charge of failure to deposit postal funds, entered a plea of guilty as charged. The case was continued for judgment until the next term and the defendant released on a bond of $500, signing his own bond.

The Mutual Insurance association of Iowa elected the following officers: President, R. J. Young, Oelwein; secretary and treasurer, J. E. Brooks of Greenfield; delegates to the national convention, H. A. Gaarde of Emmet county and W. P. Dewey of Sac county. The convention voted down a motion to endorse a valued policy bill.

Eighteen Messages on One Wire.

Boulder, Colo., Nov. 23.—Dr. Wm. Duane, profesor of physics at the state university, has just been granted a patent for an invention by which a large number of telegraph messages can be sent over one wire and earth return at the same time. In the physical laboratory at the university it is said he has had as many as eighteen circuits working on the same wire and return all at the same time. On any of these circuits the Morse instrument can be placed and used exactly as with the single wire now in use. Dr. Duane's invention is based on the principle of synchronizing motors.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

SMALLPOX AMONG INDIANS.

Secretary of Interior Authoritizes Iowa Board of Health to Act.

Des Moines, Nov. 22.—The state board of health has been relieved of considerable anxiety respecting its power to try to control the smallpox outbreak among the Tama Indians by the receipt of a message from Secretary Hitchcock of the department of the interior. Governor Shaw telegraphed to Secretary Hitchcock as follows:

"Smallpox is raging among the Sac and Fox Indians on their reservation in Tama county, Iowa; thirty-five deaths. Doubt exists as to the authority of the state board of health to quarantine. Indians will neither consent to quarantine as among themselves nor stay on the reservation. I wire for instructions. State board of health now in session. Will you wire authority for any direct agent to act?"

Secretary Hitchcock immediately wired the following answer:

"General Leslie M. Shaw, Des Moines, Iowa: Department will be glad to co-operate with the state authorities in protecting the people of Tama against smallpox among the Indians and will so instruct the Indian agent in charge. Under the exigency shown in your telegram your state board of health and state authorities may take any necessary action."

On the receipt of this message Dr. A. M. Linn of this city was appointed to confer with Indian Agent Malin and to take whatever measures are necessary. Dr. Linn is given full authority by the board to act as he sees fit.

Traer, Nov. 22.—Smallpox among the Tama Indians is now on the decrease. The agent, accompanied by three physicians, made a thorough inspection of the camps yesterday and found but sixteen cases. Two weeks ago there were thirty. Since September there have been thirty-five deaths among the Indians, mainly from smallpox. The Indians have steadily refused to go to a pest house and prefer rather to take care of their own sick in their own homes. So far the disease has not spread beyond the camp, with the exception of one case in Montour. After much effort nearly all the Indians have submitted to vaccination.

SEMI-OFFICIAL COUNT MADE.

Cummins Has 226,839, Phillips 143,685, Coates 15,649, the Others 4,238.

Des Moines, Nov. 22.—Secretary of State Martin is in receipt of official returns from all of the counties of the state; footings have been made on the semi-official returns which have been received by his office, also. These are as follows:

For Cummins, rep.	226,839
For Phillips, dem.	143,685
For Coates, pro.	15,649
For Baxter, soc.	3,460
For Weller, peo.	778
Total number of votes.	390,411
Cummins' plurality	83,154
Cummins' majority	63,267

The vote on the republican and democratic candidates for lieutenant governor is all in and shows as follows: For Herriott, republican, 227,306; for Ferguson, democrat, 143,378; Herriott's plurality, 83,928.

The returns from all counties but three show that the vote for the prohibition candidate for governor will exceed the vote for the rest of the republican ticket by over 2,500.

So far as returns are at hand for the judge, the railroad commissioner and the superintendent, four counties missing, it appears that they will have from 300 to 1,000 more votes than Mr. Cummins.

Another Missouri River Controversy.

Sioux City, Nov. 22.—The Missouri river is claimed by a suit just filed in the district court to have earned 3,000 acres, worth $20,000, for 160 acres of land in the neck of the horseshoe bend west of Liberty township. The land, known by Libertyites as "The Island," is claimed by one party, A. L. Beardsley, as Iowa, and by another party, John Mulhall, as Nebraska. The courts are asked to decide whether Beardsley is the owner of Iowa land in Nebraska or whether Mulhall is the owner under title to former Nebraska land, buried in the deposit of Iowa soil.

Lyon County Bond Cases.

Sioux City, Nov. 22.—The Lyon county bond cases, the suits that have notoriously absorbed the attention of the courts for years, are being appealed from the federal district court to the circuit court of appeals. The five suits in which Judge Shiras two weeks ago ruled for the school districts, declaring the bonds void, involve $30,000. The test case, Fairchild vs. the independent school district of Allison, is being appealed, as it involves all the questions in litigation.

Drowned in Storm Lake.

Storm Lake, Nov. 23.—Henry C. Hill, aged about 25 years, a son of Mrs. Joseph Hill, was drowned in Storm lake while trying to get game out of an open place in the ice. The ice gave way with him and a companion was unable to lend assistance. The body was recovered. The young man was the only support of his widowed mother, and was highly respected.

Hunter Prompted By Jealousy.

Mt. Ayr, Nov. 23.—Testimony before the grand jury in the Homer Holland case developed the fact that Hunter was infatuated with Josie Bowman, the telephone girl, and Holland's fiancee, and that it might have been jealousy which actuated the motive in the slaying of Holland.

A DECREASE IS REPORTED

Dairy Business in 1901 Fell Off Considerably.

Des Moines, Nov. 25.—A decrease in the dairy business of Iowa is shown by the fifteenth annual report of the state dairy commissioner's office, just submitted to the governor by State Dairy Commissioner B. P. Norton. Not only was there a falling off in the number of creameries, but the numbers of pounds of butter made dropped over 3,000,000 pounds.

Speaking of the decrease in the business in 1901, Mr. Norton said it was attributed to the fact that stock brought a good price and the farmers, generally, were prosperous. Under such conditions there was invariably a tendency to deal less and less with milk and butter, on account of the trouble involved to the farmer in caring for large numbers of milch cows and the further difficulty in finding suitable and reliable help in this work.

The report shows a tendency to the centralization of creameries, the number of small creameries gradually decreasing and the number of larger institutions gradually growing.

The report recommends several important changes in the laws pertaining to the state dairy commissioner's office.

State Dairy Commissioner Norton now has a deputy, H. R. Wright, and an assistant, F. W. Bouska. The office of assistant was created by the last legislature. The duties of the assistant pertain largely to the inspection of creameries. The report shows that in numerous creameries there is defective sanitation, in some the conditions being absolutely bad from a sanitary viewpoint. More assistants are said to be needed and two or three more will be asked for from the next legislature. As many as can be obtained are said to be needed, but it is thought this number can be had. Another change will be asked for in regard to the law governing the report of the state dairy commissioner. Under the present system there is much delay in getting reports from creameries, and consequently the state dairy commissioner's report is delayed from six months to a year. The report recommends that the time when the report of the dairy commissioner has to be made shall be definitely fixed and that failure of owners of creameries to report by a special time shall be made an offense triable by a justice of the peace. This can be accomplished by reducing the fine as now fixed. As the law now is the offense is an indictable one. Owing to the long delay made necessary a prosecution is seldom begun.

A change is also desired in the law pertaining to test bottles. It is recommended in the report that the dairy commissioner shall furnish the standard for tests in all cases and that all test bottles used shall pass through his office. This will not increase the cost of tubes and will insure correct tests in all cases. Another suggestion is that creameries provide patrons with a statement of the business done and that buttermakers be examined and given certificates of competency.

FOR VIOLATION OF GAME LAWS.

Dubuque Grocer Is Likely to Pay Dear for Birds.

Dubuque, Nov. 25.—A sensation was created among the dealers in game when it was learned that a warrant had been issued for the arrest of a prominent Min street grocer on the charge of having in his possession sixty-eight more game birds than is allowed by the state law. The penalties provided by the law are very severe. It reads that each bird over twenty-five shall constitute a separate count against the person who violates, so that in this case the grocer is liable to a fine of $10 for each bird in excess of the legal number. The law provides also that $5 shall be paid to the informer and $5 to the prosecuting attorney on each count. The total, including costs, etc., would amount to $1,360 aside from the fine. The very lowest would be $745.40. The game warden says that the law is being rigidly enforced in all parts of the state, and it is not a great while since a man out in the interior of the state had to pay $700 for its violation.

Tramps Rob Farmer's Wife.

Denison, Nov. 23.—About 9 o'clock a. m. three tramps held up and robbed Mrs. Ab Kuenze, the wife of a farmer living four miles north of here. Mrs. Kuenze was at home alone with her small children. On returning from the barn she found a man sitting at her table eating, and he refused to leave till he got ready When he had gone two others came in and flourishing revolvers, told her they wanted her money or her life. Thoroughly frightened she told them she had no money but as they emphasized their demands with further threats she went to a drawer and got three dollars which she had, telling them she would give it to them if they would let her go. She got out of the house in this way, and then throwing the money to them she ran away to a neighbors.

Marshal Lodine Dead.

Sioux City, Nov. 25.—Charles Lodine, marshal of Albert City, who was shot in the battle last week with the Greenville bank robbers, is dead, making three fatalities in all, two citizens and one robber.

Probably Fatally Hurt.

Estherville, Nov. 25.—Frank Bullis, a prominent stock buyer, had both legs cut off at the knees by a B., C. R. & N. switch engine. His recovery is doubtful.

NEWS IN GENERAL

CHAMBERLAIN IS BLAMED.

Most Cordially Hated of All British Statesmen.

London, Nov. 25.—Once more has Joseph Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, proved his right to the title to be the most thoroughly hated British statesman. The storm now raging in Germany over his animadversion on the Prussian army has had a powerful reaction in Great Britain, where, regardless of party ties, Mr. Chamberlain has been severely criticised for "uselessly putting his foot into it."

On all sides can be heard irritated expressions of opinion by English business men and politicians, who, while they, perhaps, believe Mr. Chamberlain was correct in what he said, denounce the uttering of such sentiments. It is recalled that Mr. Chamberlain's utterances regarding the czar and the Anglo-American-German alliance have been the cause of the only serious outbreaks of anti-British feeling on the continent in recent times.

It is no exaggeration to say that the financial world of England would be delighted to see Mr. Chamberlain muzzled when intending to speak on England's foreign relations.

As might be expected, Mr Chamberlain himself takes the whole affair with his usual cynical indifference. He is staying quietly at Birmingham and is not exhibiting any particular interest in the storm which he has raised. At the colonial office a representative of the Associated Press was informed that Mr. Chamberlain does not desire to enter into any controversy and stands by what he said. If the German papers continue to misrepresent him (this is Mr. Chamberlain's view), why it cannot be helped.

As at the other government departments the belief exists at the colonial office that the whole agitation will die a natural death and that everything will come out all right. There is no doubt, however, that by this latest outbreak Mr. Chamberlain has seriously, perhaps irreparably, damaged his reputation with the better classes in England.

RECIPROCITY CONVENTION.

Manufacturers Meet at Washington and Express Views.

Washington, Nov. 21.—The national reciprocity convention finishel its work last night and adjourned sine die. Several important resolutions embodying the views of the convention on reciprocity and other matters were adopted. They provide as follows:

Resolved, First, that this convention recommends to congress the maintenance of the principle of protection for the home market, and to open up by reciprocity opportunities for increased foreign trade by special modifications of the tariff, in special cases, but only where it can be done without injury to any of our home interests of manufacturing, commerce or farming; second, that in order to ascertain the influence of any proposed treaty on our home interests this convention recommends to congress the establishment of a reciprocity commission, which shall be charged with the duty of investigating the condition of any industry and reporting the same to the executive and to congress for guidance in negotiating reciprocal agreements.

Resolved, First, that the convention recommends to and requests of congress that a new department be created to be called "the department of commerce and industries," the head of which shall be a member of the president's cabinet; second, that a reciprocity commission be created as a bureau of this new department.

FEDERAL INJUNCTION IS DISSOLVED

Illinois Courts Free to Enforce Assessments Against Corporations.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 23.—The application of the Chicago Union Traction company and the Consolidated Traction company for an injunction restraining the state board of equalization from assessing the capital stock of those companies for 1900 was denied by Judges Grosscup and Humphrey, in the United States circuit court. The temporary injunction issued by Judge Grosscup in Chicago on Tuesday was dissolved.

Immediately after the decision was announced assessments aggregating $75,000,000 and involving over $100,000,000 in 1900 taxes were made by the state board of equalization at the fair cash value of the capital stock of the traction companies over and above the assessment on their tangible property. The $75,000,000 valuations made take the place of $3,500,000 valuations made last year, as representing the fair cash value of the property assessed. The $125,000,000.

A CRISIS IN VENEZUELA.

Caracas, Venezuela, Nov. 23.—(Via Haytien cable.)—President Castro, believing that a conspiracy to overthrow him existed, caused the arrest at Puerto Cabello of Ramon Guerrera, the minister of war.

The president also brought about the arrest at Caracas of a number of partisans of Ramon Guerrera, among them being Montauban, who claims to be a French citizen. The arrests have caused a great sensation. Joachim Garido succeeds Guerrera as minister of war.

President Castro believes Senor Matos and Generals Reira and Juan Pietri to be concerned in this conspiracy against his authority.

WILD RIOTING IN ATHENS.

Students Bring on Conflicts With the Military.

Athens, Nov. 22.—Seven persons were killed, thirty were severely and others slightly wounded in encounters between the military and turbulent demonstrators, because of the agitation against the proposal to translate the gospels into modern Greek. Several shots were fired at M. Theotokis, the Greek premier, but without effect.

Twenty thousand persons assembled around the ruins of the temple of Jupiter Olympus and took part in a demonstration organized by the students. A resolution was passed calling on the holy synod to excommunicate any person who translated the gospels into Greek as now spoken.

Eight hundred marines were landed and co-operated with the troops. Great excitement prevails. Strong military detachments guard the palace and the residence of the premier. Everywhere anxious groups are discussing the situation.

Heart rending scenes occurred when the bodies of the dead were handed over to their relatives. It is rumored that armed men have arrived at the university, but the building is still guarded by the students, who are adopting military discipline.

Opposition deputies paraded the streets during the day, exciting the rioters by violent language. Among those slightly injured are the prefect of police of Athens and the prefect of Attica. As a result of the demonstrations of the day the metropolitan, the commander of gendarmes and the prefect of police have resigned. General Vassos has been placed in command of the armed forces.

ILL-FEELING INTENSIFIES

German Public Is Bitter Against Great Britain.

London, Nov. 22.—The fact that the anti-Chamberlain agitation in Germany has at last extracted a semi-official expression of approval from the North German Gazette has had the effect of convincing the British press that the situation is becoming serious. Heretofore there has been a disposition to disregard and belittle the influence of the agitation. Now the papers are taking trouble to explain that Mr. Chamberlain's words were not intended to insult or offend Germany.

"The temper of the German public is dangerous," says the Morning Post, "and it behooves our people to be on their guard. The Germans appear to regard Great Britain as covetous, rapacious and barbarous. From that belief to the corollary that a barbarous nation ought to be suppressed is a short and easy step."

The Daily News remarks:

"Mr. Chamberlain, as the French say, 'costs dear.' The new imperialism which was to strengthen our position in the world has left us without a friend. America cannot supply what we have lost in Europe, for the German, Dutch and Irish elements in that great community are today more hostile than they were during the Venezuela trouble."

The Daily Chronicle says:

"Unless the authorities restrain the unlicensed abuse of England in the German press, we fail to see how this country can much longer ignore these accumulated insults."

All the papers publish long specials from Berlin describing the public feeling and agreeing that the article in the North German Gazette is a proof that the German government is altogether powerless to stem the agitation, which is intended, if possible, to force Count von Buelow into some anti-British pronouncement.

THE REVOLUTION IN COLOMBIA.

Colon, Colombia, Nov. 23.—It is reported that the government has addressed a communication to the United States consul setting forth that it cannot guarantee protection for isthmian transit. Two sailing boats, having seventy-five soldiers on board, which left Panama with General Alban, returned to that place at 3 p. m. yesterday and General Alban and fifty soldiers arrived there on board the gunboat Boyaca at 7 p. m. The Liberals here assert that General Lorenzo attacked General Tiban's force after it had landed at Chame near Chorrera, and defeated it, only General Alban and a few of his troops escaping. It is also claimed by the Liberals that the other division of General Alban's army was routed and General Lugo, with 400 of Alban's troops, joined the Liberal ranks. The Liberals at Colon are jubilant and assert that they expect General Lugon to arrive at Colon momentarily. Further details of the latter's decisive fighting are expected at Panam at any moment. Senor Espriella, counsel for the Panama railway, who was appointed provisional prefect by the Liberals yesterday, has declined the office, and Dr. Campillo has been appointed prefect in his place. Senor Salas has accepted the apointment as mayor, which was offered to Dr. Valverde.

Message Read to the Cabinet.

Washington, Nov. 23.—President Roosevelt finished the reading of his message to congress to the cabinet members at their regular session yesterday. It is understood to make between 28,000 and 30,000 words. Secretary Root talked to the cabinet for some time about the feature of his annual report which will provide for a board of instruction to supervise the work of the several schools of instruction for officers of the army. This system of higher instruction will, in fact, establish an entirely new branch of army education.

The Scourge of Damascus

A Story of the East...

By SYLVANUS COBB, JR.

Copyrighted 1891 by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER XXII—(Continued).

Julian stood like one thunderstruck. He raised his manacled hands to his brow, and tried to realize the force of the wonderful thing he had heard.

Horam started to his feet, and then sank back, and buried his face in his hands. His thoughts had suddenly flown from the story of the present hour to that other story which he had had heard on the night before; and the crash almost took away his senses.

Omar, when he saw how matters stood, felt called upon to speak; for he believed that he had discovered two things: First, that his old friend and brother was struggling to open his breast to his child; and, second, that Julian might be brought to forgiveness when he knew the whole truth.

"My friends," he said, rising to his feet as he spoke, "the story is not yet complete. It remains for me to finish it."

Ben Hadad and Ezabel gazed eagerly up into his face; and Julian leaned toward him, with a beam of hope struggling upon his brow.

"I am to blame in this matter; or, at least, I was the innocent cause," continued the King of Aleppo, addressing Ben Hadad and Ezabel. "It was I who gave to Horam the evidence upon which he condemned his wife. I supposed the guilt of the lady Helena was positive, as I had the information from officers who would not lie; and I felt it my duty to acquaint the husband with the circumstances. On my way back to my capital, while stopping in Balbec, I gained information which assured me that the Queen of Damascus was innocent; and immediately I sent back two of my officers to convey intelligence thereof to Horam. But those messengers never reached their destination. They must have been robbed and murdered on the way. I pursued my course homeward, and amid the duties of my realm, the thing passed from my mind. Yesterday I saw Horam for the first time in three-and-twenty years; and last evening I revealed to him the fact that his first and best beloved wife, Helena, was wrongfully accused—that she was pure and true. When this truth burst upon him, his grief overcame him, and I feared that the shock would kill him."

"Aye," cried Horam, starting up again, "it did almost kill me; for Helena was my first love, and her place was never refilled. O, my brother what can I do?"

"Do what is right," replied Omar, taking Horam's outstretched hand. "Be a man, and let the heart assert its sway. Remember that you did the first great deed of wrong; and that all the other evil has flowed out from that one unfortunate act."

The king of Damascus stood for a moment with his head bowed upon Omar's shoulder, and his hand still in Omar's grasp. Then he started up, and his countenance had changed.

"By the blood of my heart," he exclaimed, "the wrong shall not grow deeper against me! What, ho! Without, there! Slaves!—attend me!"

The executioners chanced to be nearest, and they answered the call.

"Bel-Dara, strike those irons from that man's limbs! Strike off every bond, and set him free! If you harm him as much as the prick of a rose-thorn, your life shall answer for it!"

The executioner stopped to ask no questions—he did not even stop to wonder at the order; but he proceeded to the work, and in a very few minutes the prisoner was free.

Then the king started down from the throne, and advanced to where the freed man stood.

"My son," he said, extending both his hands, "the truth has come so naked and so plain, that there is no room for doubt; and I now see that you bear upon your face the features of your noble mother—God pardon me for the wrong I was led to do her! And, my son,—here, in the presence of these witnesses, I ask you to forget the past—I ask you to be my son—I ask you to let me be your father;—and then, O, then, Horam will be no more childless!"

Julian had no power to resist the appeal; and as the old king tottered forward the son supported him upon his bosom, and sustained him in the embrace of his stout arms.

And yet Julian was not content. His face wore still a cloud; and there was trouble in his heart.

What could it mean? Horam feared that his son could not quite love him.

Omar saw the trouble, and divined its cause; and stepping quickly forward he whispered into the ear of his brother. Horam caught at the words, and the star of hope beamed again. He clapped his hands and cried out:

"What, ho! Without! Where is Benoni?"

The captain came.

"Benoni, bring the lady Ulin!"

Pale and trembling the princess entered the chamber; but when she saw Julian alive and free, with the shackles broken at his feet, the blood leaped again through her veins. But she had not much opportunity for thought, for the king quickly advanced and took her hand, and led her to Julian.

"My son, this do I give thee in token of my sincerity! Now wilt thou own me for thy father, and forget all of the past save that which tells that we are of one flesh? Take this fair hand, and with it my forgiveness to you both—my forgiveness to all who have befriended you. Take it, my son, and ere Omar leaves us for his northern realm he shall see Horam's own son sitting upon the throne of Damascus, while Horam himself withdraws from the world, that his last days may be spent in quiet repose."

No longer rested the cloud upon Julian's brow. He caught the small white hand which had been placed within his grasp, and sank down upon his knees—sank down, he and Ulin, one in love forevermore—and bowed before the king.

"My father—I accept the blessing! I am thy son!"

THT END.

The Blind Bride.

By Amy Randolph.

Bentley Grange was a pretty place at all times of the year, but loveliest of all when the reapers were at work in the harvest fields and the yellow light of the October sun turned the woodland paths to enchanted aisles. A long, low structure of warmly tinted red brick, with mullioned windows, velvet-smooth sweeps of lawn and box borders, which stood up like walls of solid emerald on each side of the path, it had a savor of the antique about it, which one seldom sees in an American house.

And old Brande Bentley, walking up and down in the mellow sunshine, between the walls of black-green box, with his eyes bent on the ground, and his hands clasped behind his back, corresponded well with the Grange.

Suddenly a cheerful footstep rang on the stone terrace steps—the sound of a clear, flute-like whistle rose above the click of the distant mowing machine, and Harry Wade, the old man's nephew, stood like an incarnation of youth and sunshine before him.

"Uncle," he cried merrily, "you've got the prettiest place in the world here."

Mr. Bentley took out his big, old-fashioned silver watch.

"Two o'clock," said he, "and the bank don't close until four. Humph! It appears to me, young man, that you don't stick very close to business hours!"

"Like a limpet, uncle," said Harry, "and just for today. Will Caryl has come to act as a substitute, for I really wanted to see you, uncle."

"Humph!" again commented Mr. Bentley. "You're very fond of me—just of late!"

"I'm always fond of you, Uncle Brande," said Harry, gravely, "but I've something to tell you."

"Some scrape you've got into," said Mr. Bentley.

"Nothing of the sort, sir!"

"Want to borrow money, perhaps!"

"Upon my word, no!"

"You've fallen in love with some girl, then!"

"You are right this time, uncle," said Harry, laughing and coloring; "and, of course, I have come directly to you to tell you of my good fortune. It is little Bessie Bird!"

"A milliner's apprentice!" snarled the old bachelor.

"If she chooses to help her mother along by trimming hats in her aunt's millinery rooms, I see nothing derogatory in that," said Harry, valiantly.

"A mere child of seventeen!"

"But I don't want an old lady of forty-seven!"

"Humph!" growled Mr. Bentley. "What do either of you know of life?"

"Not much, to be sure, uncle, as yet," admitted the young lover, "but we think we can easily learn—together."

"And where do you think the napkins and tablecloths and bread and butter and rent and water taxes are to come from?" sardonically inquired Brande Bentley.

"I have my salary, Uncle Brande," said Harry, "and Bessie has been educated to be very economical."

"I'll have nothing to say to such nonsense," said Mr. Bentley.

"But, Uncle Brande, all we want is——"

"Nothing, I say—absolutely nothing!" thundered the old man. "It's folly—trash—sentimental tomfoolery! If you want my opinion, there it is! Time enough for you to think of matrimony when you are thirty. There ought to be a law to prevent young people making fools of themselves."

And Brande Bentley turned on his heel and strode back into the house.

So that Harry had no very inspiriting news for Bessie Bird when he met her, as usual, on the corner of Broadway, to walk home with her through the pleasant autumn twilight.

"Was he very cross?" said Bessie, who was a white-kitteny sort of a girl, with fluffy yellow hair, dimples in her cheeks, and eyes the exact color of the "flowing-blue" china on our grandmother's shelves.

"As savage as Bluebeard!"

"Did he scold dreadfully?" asked Bessie.

"Told me I was a fool!"

"But if he won't consent——"

"Then we must manage to get along without his consent," said Harry. "Because, you know, Bessie, I do love you so very dearly, and you like me a little, don't you?"

"But your mother has always counted upon your being his heir," said Bessie. "And to lose all that money, just——"

"Just for love and you," archly interrupted Harry. "Darling, there is nothing in all the world half so sweet to me, or that I court half so ardently as my little Bessie—so let there be no further argument about it. These jolly old coves down at the bank are going to raise my salary fifty dollars at Christmas, and so if you can get your frock made we'll be married then. And set Uncle Brande and the world at defiance, eh?"

The first November snowstorm was drifting its white flashes through the air when a visitor was shown into Brande Bentley's snug parlor.

"Eh," said he, "a stranger, Jones? I never see strangers."

"But you will see me!" said a soft voice—and a slender, golden-haired girl stood before him, neatly yet plainly dressed, her black cloak powdered over with snow, and a spectacled old lady by her side. "I am Bessie Bird—and this is my aunt, Miss Belton, the milliner."

Miss Belton courtesied. Mr. Bentley stared.

"I suppose you have come here to speak to me about my nephew."

"Yes, sir," said Bessie.

"It will be of no use," said he, curtly. "My opinions on the subject of his marriage remain unchanged."

"But mine do not," said Bessie. "Please to hear me through, Mr. Bentley. I have written him a letter to give him up this morning. And I came to tell of it now, so that you will feel kindly towards him once more. I have told him we never could be married."

"You're a sensible girl," said Mr. Bentley, smiting his hand on the table.

"And I have sent him back the little garnet engagement ring that he gave me," added Bessie, with a sob in her throat.

"Better and better!" said Uncle Brande, exultantly.

"Not," bravely added Bessie, "because I don't love him as dearly and truly as I ever did. But because I see now how wrong it would be for me to fetter his whole life. For——" She stopped an instant and a slight shudder ran through her frame. "I may as well tell you all, Mr. Bentley; I am going blind!"

"Blind!" echoed the old man.

"Blind," repeated Bessie, gently, but firmly. "I have had such strange blurs and darknesses come across my vision of late, and went to a doctor. And the doctor told me, as kindly as he could, that these are but the precursors of total blindness. So, of course, all is at an end between Harry and me. Will you please tell him this? I have referred him to you for all particulars."

"I will," said the old man, huskily.

Harry Wade came to his uncle that very morning in great perturbation.

"What does this mean, sir?" said he. "Have you been endeavoring to persuade her to throw me over?"

"No, boy—no," said the old man, and he told him all.

"I am bound to say that the girl has behaved very well," said he. "Shall you give her up?"

"No! Never!" shouted Harry, with pale face and tightly clenched hand. "Never! If she was dear to me before, she shall be doubly treasured and sacred now—my little smitten lamb—my drooping, white lily-bud! I will never give her up while we both live!"

The old man's eyes glittered, a faint color had risen into his withered cheeks, as he rose and grasped both his nephew's hands as in a vise.

"You're a trump, Harry Wade!" said he. "I respect you more at this minute than ever before. Give her up, indeed! If you gave up that little jewel of a girl you would give up the beacon star of your existence. She is a pearl of price, Harry—a true and noble woman, who wouldn't have hesitated to sacrifice herself for your benefit. Marry her tomorrow if you will and bring her right here to Bentley Grange. It shall be her home and yours henceforward."

And in this strange and sudden way, old Brande Bentley relented and took his niece-in-law-elect into his heart. Bessie in all the flush of her rose-bud beauty could never have melted his heart, but Bessie stricken down by God became sacred and precious in his sight.

"WHAR DEW I CUM IN?"

(Being the Soliloquy of a Farmer on the Free Raw Sugar Question.)

"Thar's a mighty lot er talkin' about farmers 'n thar rights,
'N the wonderful prosperity thet beet growin' invites.
Thar's a heap er foolish crowin' 'n the 'beats' begin ter shout
'n holler fer the Tariff ter keep free raw sugar out!
But I notis thet the beet-producin' farms are very few,
An' the farmers through the country ain't got much ef it ter dew.
The hull land ain't a-raisin' beets, 'n ain't goin' ter begin,
Beet growin's right fer sum, I guess—but, whar dew I cum in?

The farmer gits four dollars now fer every ton o' beets—
A hansom price, I must allow—but hidin' sum deceits.
Beet sugar manyfacterers admit es they hev found
Thet "granylated" costs 'em sumthin' like tew cents a pound.
In fact thet leaves a profit on which they'd greatly thrive—
And—if it kin be sold fer three, why should we pay 'em FIVE?
It seems ter me es thet's a game thet's mighty like a skin—
But—if thar's any benefit—waal,—whar dew I cum in?

When Uncle Sam's in want o' cash we're glad ter help him out,
'N we'll stand all the taxes thet are needed, never doubt,
But when his pocket-book's well lined an' nary cent he lacks
Et seems ter me his duty's ter repeal thet sugar tax.
Them fellers wot is interested sez its to protect
The beet-producin' farmer thet the duty they collect,
But I guess thet explanation es a little bit too thin—
The sugar maker,—he's all right;—but—whar dew we cum in?

Take off raw sugar duty an' the price will quickly fall,
To everybody's benefit, fer sugar's used by all.
The poor will bless the Government thet placed it in thar reach—
('n millions of our citizens free sugar now beseech)
The dealer 'll be delighted—less expenditure fer him—
More demand 'n bigger profits—which at present are but slim.
An' the farmer 'll be as well paid as he ever yet hes ben—
But he'll buy his sugar cheaper—thet's whar he an' I'll cum in.

Now, whar's the sense er reason of the sugar tax to-day,
When our treasury's a-bulgin' an' we hev no debts ter pay?
The duty on raw sugar's Fifty million every year—
An' the people's got ter pay it—thet's a fact thet's very clear
Fifty million! Great Jerusha! Ter protect beet magnates, too,
Why should they tax ALL the people—just ter help a scattered FEW?
And the FEW? Beet-sugar MAKERS! Don't it really seem a sin
Thus ter help an' fill thar coffers? Whar dew you an' I cum in?

The farmer growin' beets hes got a contract price fer years,—
Free raw sugar wouldn't hurt him, an' of it he hes no fears.
But mebbe, like myself—he's also growing fruit so nice—
Ter preserve it—at a profit—he needs sugar—at a price!
The repealing of the duty surely cuts the price in two—
Thet'll make a mighty difference, neighbor, both ter me an' you!
Let the sugar manyfactrer make such profits as he kin—
Ter him it may seem right enuff—but whar dew I cum in?

An' I ain't a-goin' ter swaller all the argyments they shout
Thet the farmers need protection—an' must bar raw sugar out.
Common sense is plainly showin' that the people in the land
Want raw sugar free in future—an' its freedom will demand.
'Tis a tax no longer needed—hateful to the public view,—
Taxing millions of our people to enrich a favored few.
They can't blind me any longer with the foolish yarns they spin,—
While they're busy makin' money—whar dew you and I come in?

I'm a-goin' ter keep on hustlin', talkin', pleadin' with my frends,—
Ain't no sense in lettin' others gain thar selfish privet ends.
I'm a-goin' ter write ter-morrer to my Congressman 'nd say
Thet he oughter do his best ter kill that tax without delay!
Feller-farmers, do your utmost—whether you grow beets or not
To repeal the tax on sugar—you can but improve your lot!
Cheaper sugar helps your pocket, greater blessings you can win—
When we've three-cent granylated—that's whar you an' I come in!"

LIQUOR... IN FIGURES

Drink Bills of your Nations Statistically Compared

The Board of Trade of Great Britain and Ireland has just issued some interesting statistical matter with reference to the production and consumption of alcoholic liquors in the United Kingdom, France, Germany, and the United States. The figures are likely to surprise people who are unfamiliar with the subject. The following tables are compiled from returns received from the United States in 1899; with one exception they cover the returns of 1900 in the other countries named, and the first of them has to do with the governmental revenues from alcoholic beverages:

United King'm..	$47,870,000	36 per cent
France	22,064,000	19 per cent
Germany	13,717,000	18 per cent
United States ..	39,968,000	29 per cent

It will be seen that the British government collects a greater revenue, by about $12,000,000, from alcoholic liquors than France and Germany combined, and about $8,000,000 more than the United States. The consumption of wine in the four countries is as follows:

	Total consump., gallons.	Per hd., gallons.
United Kingdom ...	15,816,000	9.39
France	983,158,000	25.40
Germany	81,834,000	1.45
United States	25,346,000	0.33

This serves to prove that France is maintaining her old reputation as the greatest wine consuming country in the world, while it fails to show that the United States has been making as much headway as supposed in changing from the so-called heavy to the so-called light drinks. One of the most surprising of the tables, however, is that covering the consumption of beer, the United Kingdom leading the United States and falling not so very far behind Germany:

	Total consump., gallons.	Per hd., gallons.
United Kingdom (1900)	1,298,756,000	31.7
France (1900)	238,194,000	6.2
Germany (1899)....	1,527,878,000	27.8
United States (1899)	934,210,000	13.3

The per capita consumption of beer in the United Kingdom is greater by about 4 per cent than in Germany, while it exceeds that of France by about 25 per cent and that of the United States by 18 per cent. Belgium and Bavaria, it seems, are the only countries in the world that exceed the United Kingdom in the per capita consumption of beer, that of the former being forty-seven gallons, of the latter fifty-four gallons per head. The table relating to spirits has another surprise to offer:

	Total consump., gallons.	Per hd., gallons.
United Kingdom (1900)	45,890,000	1.12
France (1900	78,452,000	2.02
Germany (1900) ...	107,100,000	1.94
United States (1899)	81,000,000	1.06

Contrary to the popular idea, Germany takes the lead as the consumer of strong drinks, although the per capita consumption is slightly greater in France. The United States falls below, or rises above, the United Kingdom, as the case may be, in this table, and, notwithstanding the reputation of our people as whisky drinkers, we consume a less quantity of ardent spirits per capita than any of the others.

Plant the seeds of common sense in the mind of the child. Nonsense and superstition will grow up spontaneously.

Tests in the cultivation of potatoes, made last year, show that, whether planted whole or cut, the large potatoes gave the biggest yields in every case; but when the financial results were looked into, it was found that the biggest profit was made by planting whole large potatoes, and the next largest profit from whole small ones.

Earache can frequently be cured by wringing out a flannel in boiling water, sprinkling a few drops of laudanum on it and applying it to the ear.

Britt

From the Tribune.

Little Martha Barr has been having a hard time with typhoid fever. A trained nurse has been secured and her mother was sent for at Kansas City, Kansas. She is a little better at this writing and chances good for her recovery.

The Iowa Capital tells of a young somnambulist who arose in the night, hitched up his team and husked two rows of corn before awakening. An effort is being made by the Farmers' Alliance to have him vaccinated in hopes that the virus can be worked on all the hired men in Iowa next fall.

We noticed the corn shredder bought by Milo Brown running at his farm last week as we were driving by. The machine was doing nice work and Mr. Brown will fill his barn with shredded fodder. On account of the heavy fall rains fodder is in bad shape this year. A whole lot of good feed goes to waste in the old way of letting it stand in the field.

Night-watch Back has recently purchased a self cocking cannon for use on burglars and bank robbers. Any of those gentry who come to this town with evil intent will be bombarded front add rear and knocked into the middle of next week by the aforesaid cannon. N. B.—The arsenal is open from 6 p. m. until daylight and the cannon is loaded for bear.

Britt Tribune: Geo. Hammer, of Dubuque county, and Miles Beach, of Deleware county, each lost an arm in a corn shredder last week. These machines appear to be nearly as dangerous as playing football.

HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1901.

Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain Very truly yours,

F. A. WERMAN, 730 S. Broadway, Baltimore, Md.

ABOUT PEOPLE YOU KNOW

When the gravy's on the buckwheats
And the sausages are hot.
When the steam's floating upward
From the shining coffee pot,
When the cook stirs up the batter
That was set the night before,
When little Bob and Clara
Smack their lips and yell for more.
Oh, its then a man is always
Feeling pretty near his best—
If there isn't any trouble
With the works beneath his vest—
And its then he ought to humbly
Thank the Lord for what he's got—
When the gravy's on the buckwheats
And the sausages are hot.
There's a fragrance that comes floatin'
From the pancakes on the plate,
That should nerve a man to action
Make him strong for any fate.
There is joy, there's inspiration.
In the smears on Bessie's chin,
And it's good to see dear Willie
As he scoops the sausage in.
And what sweeter music is there
Than the slapping, flapping sound
That busy cook produces as
She stirs the stuff around?
Oh, each precious, luscious mouthful
Quickly finds the proper spot,
When the gravy's on the buckwheat
And the sausages are hot.—Stolen.

It has been advertised that at the turkey shoot east of Goodell "a real live deer will be shot off." This would be a sight worth going to see, but we would hate to be very close to said deer when the explosion takes place.

We had the pleasure of attending the opening of the new Garner opera house last Friday evening, the play being the popular one entitled "At Valley Forge." A number from our town were in attendance and we have yet to hear of any one who was dissatisfied with the play, and the opinion of all is that Garner has one of the prettiest, neatest and most commodious opera hall in this part of the state. The management certainly displayed good judgment in securing the above mentioned company to dedicate their hall, and we believe it will be some time before the people of Garner will have a chance to see as good an entertainment in their opera house, although the management will undoubtedly give them the best there is going. We understand that the "Si Hawkins" company will hold forth there Dec. 2nd.

With the testimonial is a picture of the vehicle in which the old gentleman took his last ride—a hearse.

The First Thanksgiving

NCIDENTALLY," remarked the man with a basket on his arm as he came into the presence of the editor, "I might mention the fact that if you want the finest and fattest turkey for your Thanksgiving dinner, my store is the place to get it, but that is not what I am here for. I came in to bring you an item of interest. You may not know, notwithstanding an editor knows more than anybody else on earth, that the first proclamation of Thanksgiving Day that is to be found in printed form is the one issued by Francis Bernard, Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief in and over his Majesty's province of the Massachusetts Bay in New England, and Vice-Admiral of the same, in 1767."

The editor admitted that it had not occurred to him previously.

"I'm glad I'm giving you something new," continued the turkey man, "and ow let me read it to you, so you may compare it with the modern style. It is headed 'A Proclamation for a Public Thanksgiving:'

"'As the business of the year is now drawing toward a conclusion, we are reminded, according to the laudable usage of the Providence, to join together in a grateful acknowledgment of the manifold mercies of the Divine Providence conferred upon Us in the passing Year: Wherefore, I have thought fit to appoint, and I do, with the advice of his Majesty's Council, appoint Thursday, the Third Day of December next, to be a day of public Thanksgiving, that we may thereupon with one Heart and Voice return our most Humble Thanks to Almighty God for the gracious Dispensations of His Providence since the last religious Anniversary of this kind, and especially for—that He has been pleased to preserve and maintain our most gracious Sovereign, King George, in Health and Wealth, in Peace and Honor, and to extend the Blessings of his Government to the remotest part of his Dominions; that He hath been pleased to bless and preserve our gracious Queen Charlotte, their Royal Highnesses the Prince of Wales, the Princess Dowager of Wales, and all the Royal family, and by the frequent increase of the Royal Issue to assure us the Continuation of the Blessings which we derive from that Illustrious House; that He hath been pleased to prosper the whole British Empire by the Preservation of Peace, the Encrease of Trade, and the opening of new Sources of National Wealth; and now particularly that He hath been pleased to favor the people of this Province with healthy and kindly Seasons, and to bless the Labour of their Hands with a Sufficiency of the Produce of the Earth and of the Sea.

"INCIDENTALLY," SAID THE MAN.

"'And I do exhort all Ministers of the Gospel with their several Congregations, within this Province, that they assemble on the said Day in a Solemn manner to return their most humble thanks to Almighty God for these and all other of Her Mercies vouchsafed unto us, and to beseech Him notwithstanding our unworthiness, to continue His gracious Providence over us. And I command and enjoin all Magistrates and Civil Officers to see that the said Day be observed as a Day set apart for religious worship, and that no servile Labour be performed thereon.

"'Given at the Council Chamber in Boston the Fourth Day of November, 1767, in the Eighth Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord George the Third, by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c.

"Fra Bernard.

"'God Save the King.'

"Remember what I told you about the place for Thanksgiving turkeys," said the turkrey man, laying the paper on the desk and walking out.—New York Sun.

Happiness has less use for comfort than indolence has.

OF the many feast days celebrated throughout the world, Thanksgiving Day, the day set apart by proclamation to give thanks to the Giver of all good for the mercies and blessings of the year is nearest and dearest to the hearts of the American people. Especially is this so in historic old New England, where family ties, associations and memories, together with the day-by-day life of the hardy sons and daughters of this prosperous and picturesque region, are tempered and molded even to this day by the traditions of their Puritan ancestry, writes Rev. John Hall.

Nearly three centuries ago a little band of brave, adventurous pioneers celebrated the first appointed day of Thanksgiving. Governor Bradford, at Plymouth, Mass., in the autumn following the landing of the Pilgrims, set apart a day to be devoted to thanksgiving, prayer, praise and incidentally to various and sundry demonstrations of good will, good fellowship and a general good time for young and old. It was a day of bounty, of openhandedness, a day when the latch-string was not only altogether out, but the door was wide open. It is said of certain venerable Puritans that after the feast was over, after the hangers-on and the few poor of the neighborhood had been fed, that they gathered into baskets the scraps and bits that remained and went out through the highways and byways looking for hungry dogs and cats, that they also might be filled on this blessed day. Failing in this, they placed the food on some rock or tree trunk, that the birds and wild beasts might eat thereof. There are many holidays around which pleasant memories cluster, but among them all Thanksgiving Day presents to our view the most kaleidoscopic pictures. This day for family reunion, this milestone on the pathway of human life, this day from which many households date their pleasures and their griefs, the red-letter days in the calendar of the aged and infirm, hoped for, waited for, prayed for, because it brought once more the smiling faces of loved ones; because it furnished one more delight before the venerable and snow-crowned heads were laid away in their last long home. There is one most delightful feature of this altogether happy occasion: Blessed be the roof under which an unbroken family circle gathers. Then it is that the day can have its full significance of thanksgiving and praise. It is hard indeed to accept the decrees of Providence when they remove from us those to whom our hearts are closely united. Try as we may, profess as we will, up from the depths of our souls comes the cry for the beloved who have been taken from us. But when we come, one and all, an unbroken band and take our places at the table filled with the good things of life, then in the fullness of our hearts we can give thanks not only for the plenty which has been showered upon us, but for the presence of those without whom our lives would be incomplete and full of sorrow.

It is meet that before we enjoy the delights of a table laden with the delicacies and dainties with which the season has furnished us, that we should render our tribute of praise and thankfulness to the great Provider who giveth at the proper time the harvest of field, orchard, meadow, forest and stream. It is but common justice that we would do this even to a friend who has bestowed favors upon us. How much more, then, to the great Creator who gives not only the simplest, but also the greatest, gifts of our lives! For the gift of life! What is life? Life is the spirit of God Himself. When God made man He breathed into his nostrils His own breath and with it a fragment of his own spiritual and immortal being.

DECORATING THE CHURCH.

It isn't such a difficult matter if you just plan a little. First go to the church and get a fixed idea in your mind of the proportion. Then make a little plan of it, and design something that will fit the spaces. If the spaces are large I should advise using American flags and quantities of corn, on the stalk as much as possible. A very good scheme is to have a large arch roughly constructed and then you have something on which to build. If an arch does not quite suit your church, perhaps some sort of a pavilion or triangular-shaped structure would be better. Drape the flags at the back, so as to form a background, and catch them up with bunches of corn. Outline the structure with cornstalks and intersperse wheat and perhaps something bright colored to give an air of brightness to it. I think you will find this will give a very pretty background for whatever you plan to have in the foreground. It makes me quite envious to think of the rich stores that you have available in the country. For instance, the cornstalks and ears, wheat, Virginia creeper, autumn leaves of all kinds in their brilliant coloring, red berries, the names of which I know not, but have seen in the woods; and all kinds of fruit and vegetables. Around the platform autumn leaves make an effective showing. Leaves that were gathered in their prime and laid away, if curled at Thanksgiving time, may be submerged in water and they will be so freshened by the process that you can use them very nicely. The frost has held off so long this year that perhaps you may be able to use some vines such as the graceful ends of the Boston ivy. One thing do remember, that the harmony of color is everything.—Mark K. Krout in Farmers' Review.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Ormsby of Chicago, Ill., have been married seven years, and during that time she has twice given birth to twins, once to triplets, and on September 29 of the present year she added quadruplets to her family. In the seven years she has had fourteen children.

Red-headed Indians are very rare. One of them, belonging to the Passamaquoddy tribe's reservation at Pleasant Point, near Eastport, Me., recently died there, aged sixty-nine. His name was Sopiel Haney, and all through his life he was shunned by the other members of his tribe because of his bright red hair.

As a word to be used in place of "Miss" or "Mrs.," when the addresser is ignorant of the state of the person addressed, the Springfield Republican suggests a word of which "Ms." is the abbreviation, with a pronunciation something like "Mizz." But the Republican does not tell what the new word is or how it is to be spelled.

MONEY AND THE RAILROADS.

The prosperity of American railroads in these days of low rates and fast service is due largely to the scientific reduction in the cost of operating.

Some years ago when the western roads built into new and undeveloped territory there seemed to be an element of risk attached to it, and money could only be borrowed at high rates of interest. Seven per cent construction bonds were sold at a discount, but now that the country has developed and the railroads by good management have established a large and growing business, money can be had for about three per cent, and so it is found profitable to expend large sums in improvements which make it possible to save money in daily operation.

The Burlington System of 8,000 miles for instance, has during the past two years spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in reducing grades and eliminating curves, the result being that heavier trains can be hauled with the same engine power, besides making travel far more comfortable and also less dangerous, thus reducing materially the loss incident to claims for damage and injury.

The cousins of Menzo Shaul of Herkimer, N. Y., are coming into existence with the fecundity of rabbits all over the country. He died recently, leaving $21,000 to be divided among his third cousins, meaning, as he expressed it, "the children of those persons related to me as cousins." There are already 370 persons, from various parts of the United States, who have sent in their claims to the estate.

ANOTHER WONDER OF SCIENCE.

Biology has Proved that Dandruff is Caused by a Germ.

Science is doing wonders these days in medicine as well as in mechanics. Since Adam delved, the human race has been troubled with dandruff, for which no hair preparation has heretofore proved a successful cure until Newbro's Herpicide was put on the market. It is a scientific preparation that kills the germ that makes dandruff or scurf by digging into the scalp to get at the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality, causing itching scalp, falling hair and finally baldness. Without dandruff hair must grow luxuriantly. Herpicide at all druggists. It is the only destroyer of dandruff.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.

How Truly the Great Fame of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Justifies Her Original Signature.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

It will entirely cure the worst forms of Female Complaints, all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacement of the Womb, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is peculiarly adapted to the Change of Life.

It has cured more cases of Backache and Leucorrhœa than any other remedy the world has ever known. It is almost infallible in such cases. It dissolves and expels tumors from the Uterus in an early stage of development, and checks any tendency to cancerous humors.

Irregular, Suppressed or Painful Menstruation, Weakness of the Stomach, Indigestion, Bloating, Flooding, Nervous Prostration, Headache, General Debility quickly yields to it.

Womb troubles, causing pain, weight, and backache, instantly relieved and permanently cured by its use. Under all circumstances it acts in harmony with the laws that govern the female system, and is as harmless as water.

It quickly removes that Bearing-down Feeling, extreme lassitude, "don't care" and "want-to-be-left-alone" feeling, excitability, irritability, nervousness, Dizziness, Faintness, sleeplessness, flatulency, melancholy or the "blues," and backache. These are sure indications of Female Weakness, or some derangement of the Uterus, which this medicine always cures.

Kidney Complaints and Backache of either sex the Vegetable Compound always cures.

No other female medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles.

Those women who refuse to accept anything else are rewarded a hundred thousand times, for they get what they want—a cure. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Refuse all substitutes.

STORIETTES.

A French journal recalls the story of Voltaire, who, under a fictitious name, offered to the Comedie-Francaise a play, entitled "Le Droit du Seigneur." It was promptly rejected as badly written and poor in rhyme; but when he offered the same manuscript a second time under the title "L'Ecueil du Sage," and signed with his own name, it was accepted with enthusiasm and universally declared admirable.

Speaking of sympathetic strikes the other day, Chief Arthur, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, told of one that he conducted when only a boy working on a farm: "The force of hands had dwindled to two, a fellow named Joe and me. The farmer decided to discharge the other fellow, whereupon Joe suggested that I should stop work also, leaving the farmer in a fix. This I did. I went out on a sympathetic strike; but the result was that the farmer hired Joe back again, and I was left out in the cold."

Sir Henry Irving has no special cabby on his nightly transit from the London Lyceum theater to his home, and when he leaves the theater the first man within call gets the job, and, it may be, a ticket for the pit on some future occasion. One of these occasional cabbies to whom a pass had been given was asked by Sir Henry how he liked the play. The man hesitated, and then, choosing what seemed to be the most grateful words to express his pleasure, answered: "Well, sir, I didn't go." "You didn't go! Why not?" "Well, sir, you see, there's the missus, and she preferred the wax works."

Daniel Webster once told a friend that his great speech in reply to Hayne, which is the high water mark of modern eloquence, but which at the time was supposed to have been delivered without preparation, had been substantially prepared long before. When called upon suddenly to reply to the fiery Carolinian's attacks, which so alarmed the New Englanders at the capital, he was entirely at ease and ready for the fray; for, as he said, he had "only to turn to his notes tucked away in a pigeon hole," and refresh his recollection. "If Hayne," he said, "had tried to make a speech to fit my notes, he could not have hit them better. No man is inspired by the occasion; I never was."

CANADA'S CAPITAL AROUSED.

Never Was There Such Excitement—Physicians' Association Trying to Explain.

Ottawa, Canada, Nov. 25th.—This city is stirred up as never before. Some seven years ago the local papers published an account of a man named George H. Kent of 408 Gilmour street, who was dying of Bright's Disease and who at the very last moment after several of our best physicians had declared he couldn't live twelve hours, was saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

People who know how low Mr. Kent was refused to believe that he was cured permanently and the other day in order to clinch the matter the papers published the whole case over again and backed up their story by sworn statements made by Mr. Kent, in which he declares most positively that in 1894 he was given up by the doctors and that Dodd's Kidney Pills and nothing else saved him, and further that since the day that Dodd's Kidney Pills sent him back to work seven years ago, he has not lost a single minute from his work. (He is a printer in the American Bank Note Printing Company.)

Mr. Kent is kept quite busy during his spare hours answering inquiries personally and by letter, but he is so grateful that he counts the time well spent. Indeed he and his wife have shown their gratitude to Dodd's Kidney Pills in a very striking way by having their little girl—born in 1896—christened by the name of "Dodds."

Altogether it is the most sensational case that has ever occurred in the history of medicine in Canada and the perfect substantiation of every detail leaves no room to doubt either the completeness or the permanency of the cure.

The local physicians have made the case of Kent and Dodd's Kidney Pills the subject of discussion at several of the private meetings of their association.

Since the 1st of March 100 men have been engaged in killing mosquitoes about Havana in every known way, and the result is stated to be that, instead of having 52 deaths from yellow fever and 32 from malarial fever, the average in September, there were only two deaths from yellow fever and 11 from malarial fever during the past September. No smallpox has occurred in a year, and there were scarcely any cases of other infectious diseases.

The most valuable kitchen in the world belongs to the shah of Persia. With its outfit of cooking utensils and dishes it is said to be worth about $5,000,000. Even the cooking pots are lined with gold, and the plates and dishes used at the royal table are of solid gold, encrusted with precious stones.

COLON TAKEN BY REBELS

Colombia's Capital Occupied With Little Fighting.

Colon, Colombia, Nov. 21.—(Via Galveston, Texas.) The liberals made another attack on Colon at 8 o'clock Tuesday night. The government was not prepared and there was little resistance. After some fighting in front of the Guartel and in certain streets for an hour and a half the liberals gained possession of all the public offices and the town of Colon. The prefect, Guardia, is a prisoner. Over twenty men were killed and about thirty were wounded. The United States gunboat, Machias, now here, took no part in the proceedings.

Colon, Colombia, Nov. 22.—The city of Colon is perfectly quiet. It is claimed on behalf of the liberals that there has been no unseemly behavior. Foreigners are being respected and protected and transit across the isthmus is uninterrupted.

Col. Borrera, commander of the liberal forces, asserts that he has notified the district representatives of the department of the interior and other former officials of the government that he has appointed a commission to take over their offices, formally. Senor Espriella, a prominent lawyer and counsel for the Panama railway, is a member of the commission.

The feeling of the community cannot be regarded as antagonistic to liberalism. The existing conditions have created no panic, but it is recognized that the fact that the liberals hold Colon, while the conservatives are in possession of Panama, creates a state of affairs which cannot possibly be continued.

Col. Borrera admits that the government troops numbered less than 200 men. It was at first reported that twelve or more men had been killed and about thirty wounded, but the bodies of more dead men have since been discovered.

The inspector of customs escaped on an outgoing steamer. Several prisoners were captured by the liberals and have since been released. General Zaldana commanded 200 liberal troops at Gatsun railway station about six miles from Colon.

GENERAL ALBIN REPULSED.

He Was Unable to Land Troops at Chorrea.

Colon, Colombia, Nov. 25.—Many versions are current, all based in favor of the liberals regarding the whereabouts and fate of General Alban's expedition, which left Panama on the 17th. The following is the most plausible:

Arriving off Perequite, distant about thirty miles from Panama and ten miles beyond Chorrera, General Alban, on the gunboat Boyaca, sent forth two schooners, which grounded. The liberals on land immediately poured a terrible fire on these vessels, causing much havoc on board. General Alban then ordered the Boyaca's boats to go to the assistance of the schooners. The crew of the Boyaca complied, with the result that many were wounded, and the boats returned to the Boyaca. When ordered for the second time to go to the assistance of the schooners, the boats' crew refused on the grounds that it was useless to do so and that such a step meant sure death to them. Hence the Boyaca returned to Panama on Thursday night, taking many wounded men with her. The liberals claim that 300 men of General Alban's force were captured in this way and that they now strengthen the liberal ranks.

It has been held all along that General Alban undertook no easy task when he attempted to land troops in the vicinity of Chorrera. The general's return to Panama was looked forward to with great hopes, but when he returned in the manner in which he did many people were discouraged and downcast, which leads to the belief that the gravity of the situation is recognized.

MERELY SIGN OF DEFIANCE.

Boer Colonel Will Not Claim Seat in the English Parliament.

London, Nov. 25.—The Irish nationalists disclaim any intention of exposing Col. Arthur Lynch to arrest and trial for treason by insisting on his attendance at Westminster. They have elected the Boer warrior as a defiant method of making themselves as disagreeable as possible, and, incidentally, have dispatched a member of a ministry responsible for the policy of killing off home rule by kindness, for Horace Plunkett will be forced to resign after his second defeat.

The Irish party has scored twice, from its own point of view, and is satisfied. It will not risk a government counterstroke in the arrest of Lynch, nor is it possible to smuggle him into the house of commons and enable him to take the oath without observation.

Turkey in Financial Straits.

Constantinople, Nov. 25.—Never has the Turkish government been in such financial straits as at the present time. It is impossible to see how the expenses of the Ramazan and Bairam, due in December and January and involving 360,000 pounds sterling, can be met. The Ottoman bank utterly refuses to make any more advances and the penury is so acute that even the troops in many of the provinces are unpaid. The consequence is that there have been mutinies in several districts. Hostile demonstrations have recently here only been quieted by the authorities hastily scraping together a few thousand piastres as something on account. The discontent in the army forms the real danger of the situation.

SYRUP OF FIGS

IS

AN EXCELLENT FAMILY LAXATIVE—

IT IS REFRESHING TO THE TASTE AND ACTS PLEASANTLY AND GENTLY.

IT ASSISTS ONE TO OVERCOME HABITUAL CONSTIPATION PERMANENTLY

With many millions of families Syrup of Figs has become the ideal home laxative. The combination is a simple and wholesome one, and the method of manufacture by the California Fig Syrup Company ensures that perfect purity and uniformity of product, which have commended it to the favorable consideration of the most eminent physicians and to the intelligent appreciation of all who are well informed in reference to medicinal agents.

Syrup of Figs has truly a laxative effect and acts gently without in any way disturbing the natural functions and with perfect freedom from any unpleasant after effects.

In the process of manufacturing, figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinally laxative principles of the combination are obtained from plants known to act most beneficially on the system.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. "Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made as is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflamation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to "Consumption—Snuffles will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure," Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canaba on receipt of One Dollar. LESLIE'S MONTHLY, now in its fifty-second volume, is another of the great modern monthlies. Its program for the coming year embraces features second in interest to no other periodical, while its illustrations will continue to be the highest expressions of magazine art. Monthly, $1.00 per annum.

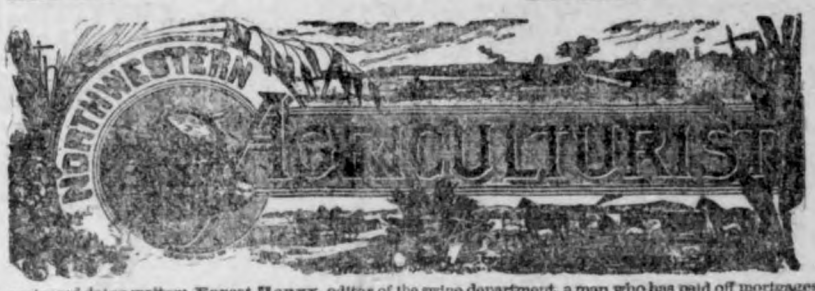
THE NEW ENGLAND MAGAZINE paints with loving touch the historic landmarks of New England; it recalls the customs and traditions of the "old red schoolhouse days" and tells of the achievements of New Englanders in all parts of the world. It has distinguished contributors and is artistically printed and illustrated. Monthly, $3.00 per annum.



THE NORTHWESTERN AGRICULTURIST is the leading farm, livestock and home paper in the West. It interests every member of the family, having departments devoted to the interests of women as well as of men, on the farms in the Northwest. It is filled with instructive and interesting reading matter from beginning to end. Its various departments are under the charge of practical men, who have made a success themselves on their particular line on which they are writing. Amongst the department editors who contribute regularly to The Agriculturist, are Prof. Thomas Shaw, Professor of Animal Husbandry at the Minnesota State Agricultural College. Professor Shaw edits the sheep, beef cattle and horse departments; A. N. Hyatt, a dairyman known all over America as a practical and experienced dairy writer; Forest Henry, editor of the swine department, a man who has paid off mortgages by raising swine in Minnesota, and who is himself making money in swine raising now, not as a breeder but as a feeder of swine for market; A. R. Bush, in charge of the horticultural department, State Lecturer on Horticulture at the Minnesota Farmers' Institutes. These are only a few of the more important departments of the paper. Sample Copies will be sent free to all who are interested. The Northwestern Agriculturist is published semi-monthly, and already reaches over 56,000 farm homes twice a month. Subscription price fifty cents a year.

THE HOME GOLD CURE.

It is now generally known and understood that drunkeness is a disease and not a weakness. A body filled with poison and nerves completely shattered by periodical or constant use of intoxicating liquors requires antidotes capable of neutralizing and eradicating this poison, and destroying the craving for intoxicants. Sufferers may now cure themselves at home without publicity or loss of time from business by this wonderful "HOME GOLD CURE" which has been perfected after many years of close study and treatment of inebriates. The faithful use according to directions of this wonderful discovery is positively guaranteed to cure the most obstinate case, no matter how hard a drinker. Our records show the most marvelous transformation of thousands of drunkards into sober industrious and upright men. WIVES CURE YOUR HUSBANDS!! CHILDREN CURE YOUR FATHERS!! This remedy is in no sense a nostrum but is a specific for this disease only and is so skillfully devised and prepared that it is perfectly soluble and pleasant to the taste, so it can be given in a cup of tea or coffee without the knowledge of the person taking it Thousands of drunkards have cured themselves with this priceless remedy and as many more have been made temporate men by having the CURE administered by loving friends without their knowledge in tea or coffee and believe today that they discontinued drinking of their own free will. Do Not Wait. Do not be deluded by apparent or misleading 'improvement.' Drive out the disease at once and for all time. The Home Gold Cure is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar thus placing within reach of everybody a treatment more effectual than others costing $25 or $50. Full directions accompany each package. Special advice by skilled physicians when requested without extra charge. Sent prepaid to any part of the world on receipt of One Dollar. GREAT OPPURTUNITIES.

The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Norther Railway Company is nearing the completion of it's 140 miles of new extensions in the very richest portion of Southwestern Minnesota. The six new towns. Reading, Wilmont, Lismore, Kenneth, Waters and Conger are rapidly becoming commercial centers for the rich and already thickly settled country surrounding. There has been no "Auction sale of lots" or any attempt to "Boom" these towns; their growth being the result of a demand for convenient markets.

It is the purpose of the railway company to encourage the continuous substantial growth of the towns on their lines. In order that each town may receive the attention of "ownership," it has been decided to sell each town entire, including all unplatted land to private parties. For terms of such purchases, address the undersigned. For business openings or purchase of lots address the Town Lot Agent of the respective town.

Paul du Chaillu is probably the only living explorer who is familiar with both tropics and the Arctic regions.

The discovery of what is true, and the practice of that which is good, are the two most important objects of philosophy.

Professor Loeffler, the bacteriologist who has done so much in the study of diphtheria, announces rather guardedly his probable discovery that cancer may be alleviated if not eradicated by inoculating the patient with malaria.

New Zealand has just decided to teach swimming and life saving in its public schools. The Life Saving Society's method having been adopted, two thousand hand-books and charts have been sent by order of the government for the use of schoolmasters.

The king of Italy is gradually reducing his stud of carriage horses and replacing them by automobiles. The late King Humbert had 380 horses in his stables. This number has now been reduced to 150. His majesty owns ten automobiles—two for himself, one for the queen, and the rest for the members of his suite. The Count of Turin has one automobile but the Duke D'Aosta has four, and has also reduced his stable.

Experiments have been made in Brussels with an automobile lorry which is destined for the Congo Free State. It was loaded with 36 hundredweight of iron and tested over difficult country, including very heavy and muddy roads. The result was entirely satisfactory. One of these automobiles will replace sixty-five native carriers, and eventually it is hoped that sufficient lorries may be used to dispense with carriers altogether.

A new method for the use of detectives and antiquaries is suggested in a recent report on the magnetic survey. One of its exploring parties was able to tell about what year an old town had been laid out by the amount of deflection of its street lines from the true north and south; they knew at what time in the past that had been the variation of the compass in that part of the country, and their surmise as to the age of the town proved correct.

Gold mining in Korea is now assuming considerable importance, especially since an American company, the Oriental Consolidated Mining Company, began working the Wonsan deposits. The company has concession over the richest known gold district in the country. Work at present is confined to the quartz, but it will shortly be commenced on the extensive placer deposits which exist. About seventy foreigners and over 3,000 natives are employed.

The Greatest Woman in History—At a Missouri teachers' institute not long ago a Miss Vickroy received a prize for the originality of her answer to the question, "Who is the greatest woman in history?" Her answer was: "The wife of the Missouri farmer of moderate means, who does her own cooking, washing and ironing, brings up a large family of girls and boys to be useful members of society, and finds time for her own intellectual and moral improvement is 'the greates' woman in all history.'"

Of the sixty Cuban school teachers who have begun a two years' course at the New York State Normal School at Newpaltz, Principal Doremus Scudder declares he never had so eager, interesting and congenial a group of pupils. Besides book-learning and the English language, their instruction includes cooking, keeping a house clean and other domestic arts; weaving, carpentry and such practical industries as will grow out of their home environment; gymnastics to correct their weak muscles and "short wind," and the vital art of amusement for their leisure.

In the old days of the Hudson Bay Company, trade with the Indians was conducted wholly by barter. The standard of value was a beaver-skin, and guns, knives, powder, lead and blankets were exchanged for furs without recourse to coin. In time, however, the trade produced its own currency—a stick or tally known as the "made-beaver." This was issued by the company and accepted for the value of one beaver-skin at any post. Some flavor of the old romance will attach to the new Canadian gold coins to be known as the beaver, the half-beaver and the double-beaver. They will be the counterpart in value of our eagle, half-eagle and double-eagle, the beaver being the "national bird" of Canada as the eagle is of the United States. It is safe to say that interest in these new coins will not be confined to people who care for romance

MODIFIED REPORT FILED.

Board of Control Revises Its Statements as to Ames.

Des Moines, Dec. 1.—The board of control's amended report on the Iowa State college has been filed with Governor Shaw by Judge Robinson. The modified report is in several particulars less severe on the trustees and the college management than the original.

In the first place, all reference is omitted in the revised report to the construction of engineering hall. In the original report the board of control criticised the trustees for securing an appropriation for a building to cost $85,000, and then erecting a structure valued at $160,000. The board of trustees proved to the satisfaction of the board of control there was an understanding with the legislature that the proceeds of the special one-tenth mill building tax could be used for this building and the subject was accordingly dropped the revised report.

The revised report also omits reference to the increase in salary list. The trustees objected strongly to this, holding that no account was taken of the fact that increased needs of the college had called for additional teachers, who had to be employed.

All reference to the expenditure of state funds for banquets and similar entertainments is omitted, so far as Ames is concerned. It is not omitted, however, with reference to the state university and the state normal school.

The general observations of the board of control as to loose methods of purchasing in retail quantities and questionable expenditures for traveling expenses and hotel bills are not eliminated. The board does, however, strike out the criticism against the allowing of a bill upwards of $16 to pay the expenses of a member of the faculty who went to Cedar Rapids to read proof, and makes one or two other minor changes.

The board of control does not retract its statements as to the payment of bills for expenses incurred in lobbying. Neither does it modify its report as to the state university in this respect, in spite of the recent protests from Secretary Haddock. The language of the amended report is the same as the original one on this subject.

CLAIM TO BE SCALED DOWN.

Lothrop Does Not Think State Will Get Full Amount of War Claims.

Des Moines, Nov. 30.—Captain J. C. Lothrop of Sioux City, ex-senator and well known Woodbury county attorney, was at the state house yesterday, looking up records from which he will compile the proofs of the matter which is to be sent to the secretary of the national treasury when Iowa's war claim is presented. Captain Lothrop has been pushing this war claim for Iowa for many months past, and feels that his efforts are about to be rewarded.

He states that he does not think it will be necessary for either the attorney general or himself to appear in person in Washington, D. C., to push the claim, since the recent decisions of the court of claims in favor of a number of eastern states which are seeking to collect the same claim Iowa is after. He thinks the matter will not even go before the court of claims, but will be allowed directly by the secretary of the treasury.

The only feature of the case that Captain Lothrop does not now fancy is the probabuity of having the claim scaled down. He believes the effect of the recent decisions of the court of claims will lead to this in every case. Iowa's claim is for something over $455,000 in interest on a bond issue of $300,000 at 7 per cent, which ran for twenty years and which the state has paid since the war. Captain Lothrop believes this claim is likely to be scaled down to $100,000. He hopes to get the matter before the proper authorities within a month.

VERDICT BY ELEVEN JURYMEN.

W. W. Ames Convicted of Larceny By Embezzlement.

Dubuque, Nov. 29.—The case of the state vs. Walter W. Ames, indicted on the charge of larceny by embezzlement, which has been on trial in the district court here for the past week, has been concluded. The indictment alleged that Ames on July 21, 1898, while manager of the Iowa Mutual Building and Loan association, received $132.99 for and on account of the association and converted the money to his own use without consent of the association. The case has been ably handled on both sides by the best legal talent in Dubuque. Owing to the illness of one of the jurymen, both sides agreed to proceed with eleven jurymen. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty. The case has attracted a great deal of attention.

Says Hogs Will Go to $7.00

Sioux City, Nov. 30.—"Seven dollar hogs on the Sioux City market by next spring is pretty near a sure thing," declared John J. Murphy, buyer for the Cudahy Packing company. "I'm expecting prices that make me shudder when I think about them," he continued. "They will not be below $7 per 100 weight, and may go away beyond it. Growers are marketing now such immature product that the average weight is 20 to 25 pounds lighter than last year. The result will be that by spring there will be comparatively nothing left for us to buy, and the demand for porkers will shoot the prices skyward."

WORK BEFORE ASSEMBLY.

A Wide Variety of Legislation Is Proposed for the Coming Session.

Des Moines, Dec. 2.—The approaching session of the general assembly will prove to be an unusually busy and important one unless present signs are a failure. Measures of significance along a wide variety of lines will require consideration. That the session will last the traditional one hundred days appears to be certain, judging from the large amount of work that will have to be disposed of. The second Monday in January, in this instance January 13, is the date fixed by the constitution for the meeting of the general assembly and it is likely that the session will not be concluded until well towards the close of April.

With a vast surplus of a million in the state treasury it is inevitable there should be a call for extraordinary outlays. It is not often the temptation for heavy expenditures of public funds has been worth while indulging in in Iowa, but this time the outlook is promising. On every hand there is demand for unusual appropriations. The educational institutions are reaching out after large amounts. There is a demand for from an eighth to a quarter of a million for capitol improvement purposes. The state historicald department is in quest of $150,000 for the next biennial period with which to complete the historical building. The sum of $75,000 is wanted for the erection of a state arsenal. The board of control seeks a large amount for the various institutions of the state. Increased salaries are being talked of for the governor and the supreme judges. The creation of an insurance department and the prospective establishment of an appellate court if carried through will add to the public burdens. And if these and numerous others not listed are found insufficient to quell the rising tide of the state surplus, there will be the opportunity for a donation of a quarter of a million to the St. Louis exposition of 1903.

In the way of elections, the general assembly will have to go through the formality of selecting Allison and Dolliver to succeed themselves in the United States senate. There will also be the election of a state printer and a binder, providing these offices are not abolished, in the direction of which there is a notable tendency. The senate will be required to confirm the governor's appointment of a member of the board of control and the appointment of a custodian. Congressional redistricting may or may not be brought up. There are differing views on this subject.

MAP OF IOWA FORESTRY.

Vice President of New Association Is Gathering Data for Future Use.

Des Moines, Nov. 30.—Wesley Greene, secretary of the State Horticultural society and the vice president of the recently organized Iowa Park and Forestry association, is outlining a map showing the timbered regions of Iowa. The most thickly wooded parts of the state are east, and especially the southern portions, although there is timber along most of the streams and a small wooded region in the extreme southwestern portion of the state. This map will be used by the Iowa Park and Forestry association in taking up the question of preserving the timber of the state and encouraging the growth of it in regions which now have none.

Waukee Fire Losses.

Waukee, Dec. 1.—The full amount of loss by the fire which destroyed a large part of the business side of this town was:

Smith livery barn and 8 horses	$ 2,500
Lumber Co.'s buildings and lumber	10,000
J. H. Carter's implement house	4,000
G. T. Howe's grocery	3,000
Staver's restaurant	1,000
Shaw's harness shop	800
Waukee Advocate	500
Boston Furniture	2,500
Total	$24,300

All the buildings were insured except there was no insurance on the livery, whatever. A train which passed through Dallas Center refused to allow people to go over to help fight the the fire. The fire started in the hay mow of the livery barn from an overturned lantern. No one was hurt.

Baby Baked in an Oven.

Sioux City, Dec. 1.—Mrs. Fred Myers, living five miles from Correctionville, wrapped her five months old baby in a blanket, put her in the oven of the kitchen stove to keep warm and went out in the yard to gather fuel. When she returned, half an hour later, the fire in the stove had blazed up and the room was filled with smoke. Rushing to the oven she found the blanket and clothes in flames. The baby was dead and its arms and legs burned to a crisp.

Osborne Deigaan in Hospital.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 30.—According to a letter received from him by his relatives in this city, Osborne Diegman, who accompanied Lieutenant Hobson on the Merrimac at Santiago, is in Ukiah hospital, owing to a nervous breakdown, due to overwork in the service. His mental condition is perfect.

Suicide of Wealthy Farmer.

Estherville, Dec. 1.—Henry Bouck, a wealthy bachelor farmer, committed suicide at Gruver by hanging himself. Twelve thousand dollars in bank drafts and $55 were found on the body. It is estimated that Bouck was worth over $100,000. No cause is known for the deed.

HEPBURN MEETS DEFEAT

Fails to Secure Liberalization of the House Rules.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The canvass of the republican members of the house was held in the hall of representatives yesterday and lasted three hours. Speaker Henderson and the old officers of the house were made the unanimous choice of the caucus and the major portion of the time was devoted to an effort, led by Representative Hepburn of Iowa, to effect some changes in the rules of the last house. Mr. Hepburn has made a similar fight for liberalization of the rules at the opening of each congress for a number of years, but without success, and yesterday was again unsuccessful.

Mr. Cannon of Illinois presided over the deliberations of the caucus, and Mr. Loudenslager of New Jersey acted as secretary. There were 146 of the 198 republican members of the house present. Mr. Lacey of Iowa placed General Henderson in nomination for speaker, and he was unanimously chosen as the candidate of the caucus.

He was escorted to the chair by a committee consisting of Messrs. Payne, New York; Tawney, Minnesota, and Lacey of Iowa.

Mr. Henderson was given an enthusiastic reception and after expressing thanks for the honor, said in part:

"The duties before us in this congress will be onerous. We will require all of the wisdom we possess, and all of the patriotism, for we have a great danger to confront us continually, and that is a surplus in the treasury. I appeal to my colleagues, republicans, to keep in mind that this is a danger, and if we can be wise in the presence of that danger we will find approval from the American people.

"The American people do not expect any niggardliness in the treatment of the matters that they require. I do not counsel that, but I counsel that conservative consideration of every question which should be observed at all times without reference to the hundred million that we are soon to have.

"The people of the country have put the republicans in control of this house; they expect much from us, and if we can sink locality in favor of country we will find approval when we go back to meet our constituencies. I, therefore, appeal for wisdom and work and for the constant presence of the members of the republican party."

Mr. Sherman of New York then offered an omnibus resolution for the re-election of the old officers of the old house, as follows:

Alexander McDowell of Pennsylvania, clerk; Henry Casson of Wisconsin, sergeant-at-arms; W. J. Glenn of New York, door-keeper; Joseph C. McElroy of Ohio, postmaster, and Henry N. Couden of Michigan, chaplain.

This resolution was also unanimously adopted.

Mr Hepburn's efforts to secure a modification of the rules followed. Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania offered a resolution for adoption of the old rules with certain prescribed changes, which, however, did not alter the operation of the rules themselves.

Mr. Hepburn immediately offered an amendment providing that the rules should be adopted temporarily for forty days, at the end of which time they would be placed before the house for consideration. He made a very earnest argument in favor of this temporary action, in the course of which he pointed out four material changes which he believed should be made in the rules as they have existed for several congresses. One of these was to provide that the right of recognition, now lodged in the speaker, should be given to the first member addressing the chair; the second was to provide for four suspension days a month instead of two; the third was to provide for the revival of the old "morning hour" as it existed before the first congress of Mr. Reed was speaker, and the fourth was to provide that senate amendments to house bills should be subject to the same points of order to which they would be subject had the amendments originated in the house.

Hepburn spoke in advocacy of his resolution, while Dalzell and Shattuck opposed it. When Mr. Hepburn's motion was put it was defeated by an overwhelming vote, about 3 to 1. He then offered in succession as distinct amendments the four modifications of the rules which he had suggested in his argument. These were in turn voted down. The highest vote which any of them received was 41. No question of policy was broached at the caucus.

Kick Cost Him $25.

Ottumwa, Nov. 29.—Thomas J. Phillips, recent democratic candidate for governor, who recently kicked R. H. Moore, editor of the Herald, was before Justice Campbell, charged with assault and battery, and was found guilty. He was fined $25 after pleading guilty, and was bound over to keep the peace under a bond of $100, which was signed by Mr. Phillips' son, John Phillips, of this city. Mr. Phillips appealed the assault and battery case to the district court. Mr. Moore stated that he was not through wih Mr. Phillips yet—in fact, that he had barely got started. It is reported that he has engaged Attorney C. W. Whitmore to prepare papers for filing a damage case.

STEP IN DIRECTION OF WAR.

Colombia Breaks Off Diplomatic Relations With Venezuela.

Washington, Nov. 30.—The state department has received confirmation of the notification fro mthe Colombian government to Venezuela that it has terminated diplomatic relations. This came in the shape of a cablegram from Minister Hart. This action is the result of the hasty withdrawal last August from the Venezuelan capital of Dr. Rico, the Colombian minister there. Such a breach does not necessarily mean war, though it is undoubtedly a step in that direction. Venezuela has had several affairs of this kind, some of the European nations withdrawing their representatives from Caracas for long terms, and only a year and a half ago our own government was obliged to give Minister Loomis an indefinite leave of absence from Caracas as a warning to Venezuela of our dissatisfaction with its attitude in the controversy growing out of the asphalt dispute.

SURRENDER OF LIBERALS

Government Troops Are Now in Control of Colon.

Colon, Nov. 30.—The terms of surrender agreed upon at Thursday's conference held on board the United States gunboat Henrietta, and at which the commanding officers of the Marietta, of the British gunboat Tribune and of the French cruiser Suchet, Lieutenant Commander McCrea of the Machias, Captain Perry of the Iowa, Generals Alban and Jeffries, representing the government of Colombia, and Senor de la Rosa, who represented the liberal party, were present, agreed as follows:

Senor de la Rosa agreed to surrender the liberal soldiers now at Colon, with their arms, to Captain Perry at noon yesterday; Captain Perry in his turn agreed to hand over these men and their arms later in the day to General Alban, who in his turn guaranteed life and liberty to all men recently in arms against the conservative government of Colombia. The surrender of arms was to be bona fide in every respect.

At 11:30 yesterday morning a large number of blue jackets from the Iowa, the Marietta and the Machias landed at Colon and proceeded to the barracks. Here the arms belonging to the liberal soldiers were taken over by the Americans in the presence of Captain Perry, the commanders of the warships above mentioned, the American, British and French consuls at Colon and a large concourse of people who sympathized with the liberals in their surrender.

Later in the day General Alban, accompanied by officials of the conservative government of Colombia, arrived here from Panama and Senor de la Rosa, representing General Domingo Diaz, whose secretary he is, surrendered himself and the liberal troops to the conservative general in the presence of Captain Perry and the naval and consular officers above mentioned.

DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS.

Resolutions on Policy Referred to Committee to Report Dec. 7.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The democratic members of the house of representatives met in caucus in the hall of the house at 11 o'clock yesterday. There are 151 democrats and eight fusionists, silverites and populists in the house. Of these members of the minority, 126 were present. Without opposition the following selections were made for the offices of the house:

Speaker, Mr. Richardson of Tennessee; clerk, Ex-Representative James Kerr of Pennsylvania; Sergeant-at-arms, Ex-Representative E. V. Brookshire of Indiana; postmaster, James K. Jackson of Albany.

The selection of Mr. Richardson, as candidate for speaker, clothes him officially with the minority leadership. The four places on the house pay-roll allowed the minority will be filled by Isaac Hill of Ohio, K. English of California, Felton B. Knight of Georgia and Ewing Bland, son of Silver Dick Bland, special employes. The interesting portion of the caucus followed. Representative McCleland of New York, at the direction of the New York democratic delegation, which had met just prior to the assembling of the caucus, offered as an expression of the sense of the caucus, a resolution pledging opposition to the existing tariff; favoring reciprocity; favoring just and generous treatment of the inhabitants of Porto Rico and Cuba; opposing the ship subsidy bill, and favoring self government for newly acquired territory. Ball of Texas gave notice that he would offer the Kansas City platform as a substitute. A motion to refer all resolutions to a committee of twelve prevailed. A motion carried that this committee report to a caucus to meet January 10. Adjourned.

Governor of Oklahoma to be Ousted.

Washington, Nov. 30.—The major portion of the last cabinet meeting before the convening of congress was devoted to going over some recess appointments which will be sent to congress next week. Considerable time was spent upon the question of reappointing Governor Jenkins of Oklahoma. Charges were made against Governor Jenkins regarding his connection with a cattle company organized in the territory and the president gave him a hearing last Monday. It was decided not to reappoint him.

MARY THE MAID OF THE INN....

A Story of the Romantic Age in England.

By JOSEPH HATTON.

CHAPTER I.

There was no pleasanter coaching-house between London and the far North, in the days when the great highlands of England were lively with the romance of travel than the Star and Garter at Kirkstall.

To this day it challenges admiration for its picturesque site, its handsome bay windows, its pleasant smoking-room, and its old-fashioned bowling-green, which is still frequented by lovers of a time-honored game.

From the bright windows of the old inn one still looks out upon the ruins of the famous Abbey, and though the river Aire is no longer clear and full of fish, it flows through green meadows and reflects such local beauties of landscape as the needs of the busy town of Leeds have not yet annexed. In these days the river is begrimed with dust, and clogged with the refuse of mills and dye-works. When Mary Lockwood was the belle of the field and river thereabouts, and the bright particular star of the bar-parlor of the local inn, it was a mirror in which Venus herself might have been satisfied to cast the reflected image of her beauty.

England was a merry England then, in spite of the severity of her laws, and the constant drain which continental wars made upon the manhood of the nation. Troops were continually on the march. Highwaymen on fleet chargers dashed along the roads and levied toll with a pistol and an epigram. Judges of assize entered the great towns in state, and left behind them vague snatches of tragic stories, and in the name of Justice, an occasional grim sign-post as a warning to evil-doers. On dark nights the clinking chains of the gibbet made the chimney corners seem more than usually snug, and gave an additional spice of fear to the story of the local tragedy, as the gossips loved to tell it, while the wind whistled down the chimney, and the rain rattled at the casement.

With all their drawbacks, these were merry days. Men loved the country, lived country lives, and ate plain but wholesome fare. And what superb women delighted the eye. You might, nevertheless, have traveled all over England and never have seen a more lovely woman than Mary Lockwood, who has been immortalized by the poet Southey as "Mary, the Maid of the Inn."

She was tall and straight as a Normandy poplar. She walked from the hips, as an athlete does. Her figure had all the graces of a woman's curving outlines, with suggestions of great strength. Her arms were white as if they knew none of the labor of household work. Her head rested upon her shoulders with the easy pose that suggests the head and neck of the race horse. She was fair, though her hair was of a rich brown. Her complexion was healthful rather than ruddy, her eyes a deep blue; her mouth firm, but with a tendency as if it were to curl into a smile. She wore a pleasant, fearless, innocent expression.

There was no self-consciousness in her manner. She would rather be complimented upon her strength and courage than her beauty. She was five and twenty, and had the strength of a man and the courage of an army. She had been brought up to rough it on a farm, a wild girl of the meadows, until her uncle, Joseph Morley, the landlord of the Star and Garter, losing his wife, took it into his wise old head that Mary would be a useful girl in the house, and would well repay the cost of keeping her.

The girl won upon the old man, not only on account of her usefulness, but for the reason that Morley, being naturally weak and timorous, admired in Mary an exactly opposite physical and moral capacity. She was to him a possession of which he boasted. She could beat any of his customers at bowls. There was not a man in the neighborhood who could fling a quoit as deftly. There was no kind of a horse she could not ride. She had broken in a dozen or two of the colts up at Master Taylor's farm; and Master Taylor had often said it was a good thing for Mary he was not a young man, for in his early days he had been "a devil among the women," and boasted of it.

But Mary had no fear of men. There was not one of her acquaintances who had ever thought of offering her an insult, or who would have dared to do it; and none of them ever made the slightest impression on her heart.

It is true honest Jack Meadows had hung about her skirts for a matter of four years, but he was looked upon both by Mary and her uncle, only in the light of a neighbor and friend.

Jack had never ventured to speak of love to Mary, but he had insinuated himself into her good graces by many acts of consideration and thoughtfulness.

He was about her own age, and well-to-do. His father had died and left him a comfortable little farm a few miles beyond the abbey; the only incumbrance being his mother, whom Jack found a solace rather than an incumbrance, for he was a good son, and everybody agreed that he would make a good husband to the woman who would be fortunate enough to win him.

Jack Meadows was a steady young yeoman of mild manners, but of a resolute character. He owned his own farm, hunted with the local hounds, was respected by everybody and cared for nobody, he would say. But he always said this with a mental reservation which included Mary and his mother, but more particularly Mary. He usually dressed in a velveteen shooting jacket, and did not mind at all if some stranger mistook him for a gamekeeper; in fact, he rather liked to be mistaken for a gamekeeper; the position had for him a spice of romance, and, moreover, he was a crack shot, a rare fellow across country, and master of all country sports. He rolled somewhat in his gait as sailors do, and spoke in a loud voice, except when he was addressing Mary Lockwood, and then his voice dropped into soft tones like those of a woman.

It was a common remark in Kirkstall that Jack and Mary would make as fine a couple as ever stood before an altar. Mary paid no heed to this kind of observation, and the fact that Jack had, under the influence of wise instinct, spoken no words of love to her, enabled Mary to have him as a constant companion, hawking, fishing, riding, nutting, or climbing the walls of Kirkstall Abbey.

But, at the opening of this history, Mary had become too valuable in the management of the inn for her uncle to be able to spare her for more than occasional indulgence in these holiday kind of sports and rambles.

She had settled down to the work of the house, to the management of the bar; and, although she had a very limited knowledge of reading and writing, she kept Joseph Morley straight with his customers, and with the bank at Leeds. She was, in short, a treasure of good sense, good conduct, and good looks, and was both famous and beloved by all the travelers along the road. She was always scrupulously neat and clean, in cotton or woolen dresses gathered about the waist, and often wore upon her head nothing more than a kerchief, but it was deftly draped and pinned as a Spanish mantilla, or an Italian head dress. Her only corset was the band about her waist, and thus having the free use of her limbs, she walked with a stately grace that was beaming with health and vigor.

It was a curious contrast, and yet full of human nature, the picture of Joseph Morley—thin, wizened, short of stature—in a posture of admiration and worship, as you might have seen him now and then, drawing attention to his nieces in some act of physical prowess, trying a horse along the road, flinging a quoit in the yard, or deftly rolling a ball to its goal on the green at the back of the house.

"I am an old fellow," he would say, "but I have allus paid my way, allus can, allus mean to, and, when I'm gone, if Mary don't choose to marry and give the Star and Garter a new landlord, why, she is man enough and woman enough to manage the house herself. And so I shall die happy whenever my time be come; and what can a man want more than to see straight afore him up to the last journey he makes, and that's to the church yard. If man wants any more below, well, I haven't heard of it!"

Mary would smile at the old man, and pat his thin cheek, and say it was not for folk to look too far ahead; the main thing was to do your duty and trust in God's mercy and cultivate content!

CHAPTTR II.

But when you are happiest, beware! One pleasant autumn evening two travelers arrived at the Star and Garter. One of them was young and handsome, the other might have been any age from 35 to 50.

The younger of the two was dark and fiery-looking, but he had a fine mouth and a musical voice. His name was Richard Parker. He was London born and bred. His hair was black as night, and he wore a slight mustache. He came swinging into the outer bar, with its cups and jugs, and ale-warmers, its bright polished floor, its wide fireplace and its pretty screen, which cut it off from the bar-parlor, otherwise the sanctum of Mary and her uncle, but more particularly the sanctum of Mary, the Maid of the Inn, where she kept her accounts, presided over the cellar, and where she and her uncle ate their meals and lived their indoor life. He came swinging into the outer bar—this young, dashing, Corsican-like hero, in a light coat or cloak with a cape (such as was worn by our fathers at this picturesque period), corduroy breeches, an under coat with a tall collar, a steeple-shaped hat with a buckle on it, and he carried a riding-whip with a lash.

"House!" he exclaimed. "Where are you all?"

"We are here—some of us," said Mary, advancing from the inner bar—"who is it in such a hurry?"

"A fair good evening to you!" said Parker, doffing his hat.

"The like to you," Mary replied. "I was lighting the candles and had not heard you. If you had ridden, your horses can hardly have been shod; I did not hear them."

"We have ridden and put up our horses, too, my pretty maid," the young fellow replied—for men paid compliments of this kind those days, and no harm meant.

"And want supper, and drink, and beds," said the young fellow's companion in a testy tone, as if he wished to put an end to useless talk or courtesy. "What can you give us?"

Mary eyed the second traveler with no great favor, and called the barman, or groom, or waiter, or whatever Tom Sheffield's position might be at the Star and Garter, and, whatever his office, he had held it since boyhood, and to the satisfaction of all parties.

"Supper, drinks, beds," said Mary, addressing Tom, and indicating the travelers with a courteous wave of the hand.

"Yes, mum," said Tom. "Come this way, gentlemen; there's the blue room and the red, both at your service, and the balcony room—that's double-bedded, if you'd loike to see 'em before you sup; your 'osses is all right, and I mek no doubt Star and Garter can mek you as comfortable as 'osses—good accommodation for man and beast isn't a sign as we put up, but we does it wi'out boasting—this way."

They followed Tom without more ado, for Mary had quietly retired to her little room, and the younger of the travelers, after looking in a dreamy kind of way at the spot where she had been standing as if she were a beautiful vision that had vanished, strode after his companion.

"By Jupiter, and Venus, and Diana, a Juno and Hebe in one!" exclaimed Dick Parker to his friend when they, having settled to sleep in the double-bedded room that looked upon the bowling green, were alone.

"Oh, she'll pass muster for a country wench," said the other, who was known to his companions as Andy Foster, Andy being short for Andrew, "she'll pass muster, and if she's handsome, she knows it."

They did not carry much luggage, for travelers, though they had been on the road for some days. They each had a saddle-bag (in which were a few common necessaries of the toilet, a map of the country and a flask), and pistol holsters, in which were weapons of weight; for men did not travel in those days without being prepared to defend their money and their lives.

Except for the general cheeriness and well-known respectability of the Star and Garter, any two men being shown into the double-bedded room of this famous hostelry might have deemed it necessary to be prepared for emergencies, it looked so dark and shadowy, lighted with only a candle now that the sun had gone down. The two great beds might have been tents for generals on the march in a hostile country, so hung about with somber curtains, so tall, so wide, so seemingly mysterious as were they. And the great bay window, with its outer balcony, which could just be seen in the fitful moonlight, might have been the entrance place of banditti or midnight assassins, such as one reads of in stories of old days. But Dick Parker ("Gentleman Dick" they called him, the friends who called Foster Andy), and his morose friend had no fear of these things, though the small pistols they carried in addition to those in their holsters might have been looked upon as arguing the contrary.

"Oh, curse the girl!" said Foster, presently, in answer to fresh outburst from Dick, as he swilled his face at the capacious washstand. "That's not the business that has brought us all these miles out of our beat."

"But it may be an incident of pleasure, you snarler," said Dick.

"It may be anything you like, if you will not make it the first consideration, as you generally do; damme, I'm getting sick of your trifling! You've had every stiver we've made for the last six months. Your gallantries, as you are pleased to call them, have twice run our necks within measurable distance of the gallows; and now that we are in the locality of our newest and most promising quarry, you begin raving about a country barmaid, as if she was my Lady Dolly, or the Duchess of Seven Dials, or some other crack beauty made to drive men mad, and to ruin millionaires!"

"Bravo, Andy! That's a long speech for you!"

...ABOUT... SUN RINGS

Queer Things Astronomers See Through Big Telescopes

In regard to the halo around the sun which created much excitement throughout the eastern section of this country, Mr. Justice Stahn, secretary of the astronomical section of the Maryland Academy of Science, says: "Very often, when the heavens are overcast by slight, or light, fleecy clouds, we observe colored rings about the moon and the sun. They are termed halos, or aureoles. I have never observed a halo about the sun in the latitude of Baltimore, but halos about the moon are quite frequent. One of the most brilliant that I have observed in Baltimore occurred some time in the beginning of 1901. Very often the halos do not form a complete circle, but are visible only in sections. Probably the reason we do not notice the halo about the sun is on account of its intense brilliancy, and that we do not look at it directly. The best way to observe halos is to observe the reflection of the sun in a black mirror, black glass or glass smoked on one side. In meteorology the halos are divided into two classes—the corona, which is of small diameter, and the halo, which is of a greater extent. In the corona the color of the inner part of the ring is blue, and the outer red. In the large halo the red is on the inside and the blue outside. The corona is classed as a different phenomena—that is, the light from the sun or moon in encountering the small particles in the cloud or which form the cloud is broken up, scattered or diffracted, like the graftings that Prof. Rawland ruled at the Johns Hopkins university. Diffracted light may be of two kinds. It may pass through fine material and be diffracted like in a transmission grating, or it may be broken up by encountering the fine particles and being reflected. We never have a diffraction caused by a reflection of the light from the small particles in the cloud. The halo is supposed to be due both to diffraction and reflection. When light is diffracted it passes through a medium which both disperses it and bends it out of its course. Thus the rainbow is produced by the sunlight passing through the drops of water and the water regional ways opposite to the sun. Halos occur only in the higher clouds and are more frequent than the corona. Sometimes the halos intersect each other, and at their intersection round patches are formed, called mock suns. The particles of matter forming the medium for refracting the light are mostly small ice crystals or ice needles. Mr. Gildersleeve, the late president of the Baltimore Astronomical Society, related that at various times he had observed snow storms through the telescope while making daylight observations of the stars and planets. At any rate there is considerable solid matter in the atmosphere that we sometimes observe in sweeping around with the telescope. On rare occasions we can see a bird flying across the field of view, of which not a sign can be seen with the naked eye. Then, again, small specks fly across, looking like small meteors. At one time I observed a ray seeming to have its origin at the setting sun on the horizon and extending as a slender beam clear to the zenith and lost to view a little to the east of the zenith. The mock suns are mostly seen in high latitudes. We can then come to the conclusion that halos and mock suns are simply due to the state of the atmosphere when it contains moisture, ice crystals and snow, and they existed from the remotest times, when the earth had been fashioned to its present condition, and there is no cause for alarm."—Baltimore News.

"Is she pretty?" they asked of the young man who was speaking of his fiancee. "Well, I don't want to boast," he replied, "but she always gets a seat on the street car."—Baltimore American.

BATTLESHIP'S WEAKNESS

Barbettes on English Craft Said to Have Sunk Six Inches

The report that the Implacable's barbettes have sunk six inches or so is a very serious one, but while it is an error to minimize the matter, nothing is gained by exaggerating it. We still hope that a good deal of exaggeration will be found to exist in the early reports. So far as we can gather from the vague paragraphs going around the daily press, the thing that has happened is not altogether without precedent. Twice before it has occurred with that system of gun mounting of which the essence is an immense weight supported on a very small base at the bottom of the ship. The principle is, roughly, that of an inverted cone, and has been used in a not very dissimilar form by the French for a good ten years. It has certain great advantages, but like most advantages, there are counterbalancing factors. If anything in the ship's construction is faulty, the whole mounting is likely to sink, and the fault may be created by the strain of docking. This actually occurred with the Japanese battleship Shikisima, and it would puzzle anyone where to lay the blame.

So far as we can gather her barbette guns were moved in dock, and the ship did not happen to be fully supported directly underneath the barbette. A sinking resulted, and it was remedied by cutting off some of the base of the cone. Now it was obviously impossible for either builders or gun makers to anticipate an incident of this sort. Probably, we should say, the Implacable trouble is on all fours with that of the Shikisima. The Glory started for China with a defective barbette; this, so far as we can ascertain, was the direct result of rushing things, parts destined for various other ships being crowded into her so as to complete her in a hurry. It would be interesting to learn whether any Peters were robbed to pay the Implacable Paul. In any case, however, bad as the accident may be, there is no reason for the shriek that a certain class of people love to raise directly anything goes wrong. Any number of foreign ships meet similar or somewhat similar accidents. The foreigners, however, are never in a hurry to advertise the fact.—London Engineer.

It is the peculiar quality and character of an undisciplined man, and a man of the world, to expect no advantage, and to apprehend no mischief from himself, but all from objects without him. Whereas the philosopher, quite contrarily, looks only inward, and apprehends no good or evil can happen to him, but from himself alone.—Epictetus.

The Ringmaster of Old

He Used To Wear Evening Dress and White Gloves

A circus without a ringmaster! They used to have black hair, parted in the middle and beautifully smoothed, evening dress (even at matinees) and white gloves. The ringmaster was almost one's earliest hero; the butcher came first, perhaps, and then the policeman and railway guard; but the ringmaster, when his hour struck, thrust these plebians, these usurpers, these Warbecks and Simnels, into impenetrable darkness. That whip was beyond all steels, all truncheons, all bull's eye lanterns and whistles; one would not exchange it for a scepter. The ringmaster's effulgence was superior even to the dimming influences of the clown's wit. That immortal dialogue following upon the bet of a bottle of "wine" (always "wine;" what is "wine?" champagne? claret? sherry? port?—port I suspect), that the ringmaster could not answer three questions with plain yes or no; how often have I heard it and how potent it always is! The first question was anything; the second question was anything; but the third, propounded by the clown after long self-communing, was steeped in guile: "Do you still beat your wife?" There is no way out of that; affirmative and negative alike are powerless to rob that "still" of its sting; and off goes the clown with his bottle of wine, crack goes the whip, round ambles the old white horse with a back like Table Mountain, and the signorina resumes her petty capers. And today the ringmaster is seen only for an instant, and the speaking clown not at all!—The Cornhill.

HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1901.

Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain Very truly yours.

ORDINANCE NO. 17.

An ordinance licensing the running at large of dogs in the incorporated town of Klemme, Iowa.

Be it ordained by the town council of the incorporated town of Klemme, Iowa:

Section 1.—Any person keeping or having the care of any male or female dog of any age shall annually cause the same to be registered in the office of the Town Clerk and shall pay to the said Clerk the sum of One Dollar. ($1.00) for every male and Two Dollars, ($2.00,) for every female dog.

Section II. On such registry, the city Clerk shall give to the owner thereof a certificate of registry showing date thereof, when the same shall expire, and the description of the dog. the amount paid and the name of owner, keeping a register to correspond with such certificate, said certificate shall constitute a license of said described dog to run at large in said town for one year from the date of said certificate.

Section III.—The Clerk shall pay over to the City Treasurer all money received from such source less Twenty-five cents. ($.25), for each license.

Section IV.—There shall be a collar placed on the neck of each dog registered, to be metal or leather, upon which shall be placed a license tag which tag shall be furnished by the town at the time of the registry of such dog; and any dog not registered or not having on a collar as above specified shall be destroyed as herein provided.

Section V.—Any person keeping or having a dog of any kind not registered or using a collar as above specified on any dog not registered shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to a fine not exceeding Ten Dollars, ($10.00.)

Section VI.—It shall be the duty of the town Marshall to give the owner or harborer of any dog, if such owner or harborer can be found, three (3) days notice to procure a license for such dog and at the expiration of three (3) days if such license is not procured, the Marshall shall kill any dog found without a collar as above. Nothing herein shall be construed to refer to dogs owned by persons living outside of town of Klemme, when such dogs shall follow their owners to town for the purpose of remaining for the day only.

Section VII.—This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its publication in the Klemme Times.

Passed and approved by the Mayor this 2d day of December, 1901.

NOTICE—I will be at J. L. Harr's drug store Wednesday, Dec. 11th. to examine EYES and fit glasses for all that may need them. Examination free.
DR. T. B. WALLACE, Optcn.

H. E. Pietzke and his right hand man, Geo. Nissen, are about the busiest men in town these days, judging from the number of horses that go into that blacksmith shop each day, and come out nicely shod for winter travel.

At the meeting of the city council last week, G. L. Bartholemew was sworn in as our new mayor. Mr. Terhufen having resigned. We understand that H. E. Pietzke was first appointed by the council, but did not accept.

Fred Grieman, one of Ell township's prosperons and substantial farmers, last week sold to W. R. Bloom, our rustling stock buyer, twenty-eight fine, fat, record-breaking porkers, the average weight of each being about 420 pounds. For this fine bunch of hogs Mr. Grieman received a check for the handsome sum of $646.25. How's that for high? It is a record breaker, sure.

B. L. Allen has installed a new piano in his home,

Fence and Anchor Posts. All kinds at Northern Lumber Co.

Kluckhohn is getting in his line of Holiday Goods. See his line and get the best there is.

Chas. P. Ell and wife. of near Meservey, visited and ate Thanksgiving turkey at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Philipp Ell in this city.

The Sunday School convention held in Klemme last Sunday was a success. LACK of time and space compels us to leave the report until next week.

Sam Baack, who has been working here a short time for the Northern Lumber Co., left Thursday for Buffalo Center, where he will work for the same firm.

All local notices are five cents a line each insertion and will be run and charged for until ordered out. Please bear this in mind so there will be no misunderstanding.

Now is the time to get in your bid for the holiday trade. People always have money to spend at this time of the year and they are going to patronize those who ask for their patronage. Buy some space in the TIMES. It will bring trade.

Last Wednesday evening in the U. P. church in Garner, oc, curred the marriage of Thomas Gauley, of Ell township, to Mrs. Eliza Johnston, Rev. Bell officiating. Mr. Gauley is well known to our readers as an excellent and conscientious man, and a prosperous Ell township farmer. We wish the couple much happiness.

This is the time of the year when the farmer and the mechanic must do his buying and selling. There is no better market around these parts than right here in Klemme, and here is the best place to do your trading. The merchants are always ready and willing to attend to your wants The markets are as high as any and the weights and prices are right. Paste this in your hat.

Holiday Goods at Kluckhohn's.

The town council in session Monddy night passed ordinance No. 17, which appears in this issue. Read it.

Having traded their stock of goods for land, Gruetzmacher Bros. will sell anything in stock at greatly reduced prices. They will endeavor to keep all staple aarticles in stock up to March 1.

Quarterly meeting at the English M. E. church Sunday evening, Dec. 8th Rev. James, pastor at Garner, will preach and conduct the sacramental service. Come out and hear Rev. James and as far as consistent partake of the Supper of the Lord. Monday, Dec. 9th, at 2 p. m., the quarterly conference will be held at the church. All members of the conference are earnestly requested to be present.

Dr. Zinn arrived in Klemme last week Wednesday evening and will practice medicine here. He is formerly of Hawkeye, Ia., but for the past three months has been taking some post-graduate work. The doctor called at this office Monday and placed a card in the TIMES. He informed us that he met Dr. Richter in Chicago just before coming here. Dr. Zinn has his office over the State Savings Bank. Note his card.

Word was received here Wednesday morning of the death of A. J. Gibbs, which occurred at Las Vegas, New Mexico, Tuesday evening at 6:45. This news comes as a sad blow to his parents, relatives and friends in this place, while not really unexpected, yet none the less sad. Deceased was a young man of rare ability and sterling character and was very highly esteemed by all who knew him. His many friends here mourn his departure yet find consolation in knowing that he is now in that heavenly abode where suffering is unknown. The whole community sympathizes with the stricken ones in their affliction. At this writing we are unable to learn when or where the interement will take place.

School Notes.

Misses Rosa Schaper and Anna Willert visited Room 3 Friday.

Examinations were held in room 3 Friday and Monday.

We will try to have last month reports in next week's paper.

There have been no broken bones in the foot ball team but rather the boys report fine health.

Examinations have passed and pupils have returned to the daily routine.

A MOST LIBERAL OFFER

All our farmer readers should take advantage of the unprecedented clubbing offer we this year make, which includes with this paper the Iowa Homestead, its special Farmers' Institute editions, and the Poultry Farmer. These three publications are the best of their class and should be in every farm home. To them we add, for local, county and general news, our own paper, and make the price of the four one year only $1.45. Never before was so much superior reading matter offered for so small an amount of money. The three papers named, which we club with our own, are well known throughout the West, and commend themselves to the reader's favorable attention upon mere mention. The Homestead is the great agricultural and live stock paper of the west; The Poultry Farmer is the most practical poultry paper for the farmer, while the Special Farmers' Institute Editions are the most practical publications for the promotion of good farming ever published. Take advantage of this great offer, as it will hold good for a short time only Samples of these papers may be examined by calling at this office.

All parties knowing themselves indebted to the undersigned will please call and settle at once.

FRATERNITY BUILDING FOR ST. LOUIS' WORLD'S FAIR

The Louisiana Purchase World's Fair will have a fraternal building on its grounds erected by the Masons, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, Royal Leaguers, and members of all other fraternal societies in this country. No world's fair or exposition has ever had such a structure, and it will be one of the extremely unique and interesting features of the St. Louis celebration. The building will be called the Temple of Fraternity and will cost $200,000. It will be erected by the World's Fair Fraternal Building Association, under the auspices of the Missouri Fraternal Congress.

The building will be 300 feet by 200 feet in size—an adaptation of the Parthenon of Athens. It will be surrounded by Doric columns inclosing 16-foot verandas. There will be 80 rooms and an inner court. The rooms will be equipped with modern conveniences of every kind for fraternity members. For the building site and surrounding grounds space to the extent of 500 by 600 feet has been allotted.

UNIQUE BUILDING TO BE A FEATURE OF WORLD'S FAIR AT ST. LOUIS.

JAP FIRE FIGHTERS.

WHEN NOT FIGHTING FLAMES THEY ARE BUILDING.

Fearfully Destructive Fires That Have Swept the Capital, Tokio—It Is Asserted That Incendiarism Is Not of Infrequent Occurrance.

The firemen of Japan spend their time when not engaged in subduing flames in building operations and hence there is a mild suspicion that the firemen are not over anxious to minimize the ravages of fire lest their other occupation of housebuilding should suffer. The average fireman is a pugnacious individual. His greatest pleasure, says a writer, is to pick a quarrel, and brawls are a necessary element of his life. Until very recently he was almost invariably tattooed in gorgeous colors, the beauty of which was his constant boast. As preliminary to the scuffle, he would slip his clothes off his shoulders and make his opponent sick with envy at the sight of his wondrous tattooed figure.

The firemen a little over 50 years ago numbered 10,000, but their present strength is 1,540. The reduction is due to the introduction of modern fire engines, which have greatly mitigated the horrors of a fire in a town of wooden houses. The engines have also impressed the firemen with a sense of their waning importance, for they have no longer absolute control over fires. The authorities of today are content if the annual fires do not cover more than one hundredth part of the city. What the annual ravages were in former times is a matter of historical record. The fire of 1657 practically destroyed the entire city, and over one hundred thousand persons are said to have perished in the flames. The Shogun's palace was reduced to ashes, and the prisons were opened on condition that their inmates should return after the fire was subdued. They never came back, for their mad rush for a place of safety was interpreted by the warder of the city gate as an attempt at escape. He closed the gate when he saw them coming, and they, together with others, were either trampled to death or perished in the conflagration. In the great fire of 1772 the flames left behind them a track 15 miles by two and a half from the southwest outskirts of the city to beyond its northeast boundary; and in 1806 a fire which originated in the southern extremity covered in 22 hours an area of nearly six miles in length and half a mile in width. Even since the restoration there have been no less than five great fires in Tokio. In 1872, 41 streets were destroyed; in 1876, 70 streets and 10,000 houses were burned down; in 1879, 77 streets and 13,464 houses were wiped out, and in 1881 no less than 11,000 houses went up in smoke. The last great fire occurred in 1892, when 4,000 houses were destroyed and 34 lives lost.

OLD STYLE JAPANESE FIREMAN.

A PICTURESQUE FIGURE.

The Lap Women Very Clever in Managing the Reindeer.

The Lap women who live in Alaska are proving themselves exceedingly valuable by their aptness in the management and care of the reindeer and they are now teaching the native Alaskan art, if such it may be called. There are about a dozen reindeer stations now established in Alaska and more to follow. The natives are required to serve an apprenticeship of several years at the reindeer stations. During this time they are practically taught how to manage the deer and the making of sledges and reindeer harness. After the expiration of their service the government allows each a number of deer as his own personal property. The total number of reindeer in Alaska at present is 3,500, of which some 2,000 have been distributed to the Eskimos.

The average Lap woman is a picturesque figure. She is generally young and robust, and ten chances to one has an infant in her characteristic Lapland cradle, which is hewn out of a solid log and carried on the back by a strap. The wife of the chief herder is one of the most noted women of the colony. She is very intelligent, and her particular duty is to teach the Eskimo women the art of making reindeer clothing, which is the warmest and best adapted for Arctic climates. She also instructs them how to prepare the various foodstuffs which the reindeer furnishes, such as butter, cheese, and the cooking and the drying of the meat. For this work she receives the same pay as the herders.

She travels from station to station, where the classes of women are assembled from the surrounding county of 100 miles or more. She then gives daily object lessons in her domestic work and gradually the Eskimo women are taught the ways of civilization.

BAD TEMPER MAY BE CURED.

Now Treated Much as Other Diseases Mental and Physical.

It is a very generally recognized fact that an irritable temper and fits of anger are diseases, and amenable to treatment just as are other maladies. The diseases, too, are curable if taken in time. They are diseases of the nerves manifesting themselves, like any other diseases in their own particular way. In adults these maladies can be often curbed and sometimes cured, but in children they can be effectually dealt with. The symptoms first show themselves in irritability or maliciousness, the child flying into a temper one minute only to be sorry the next. This is described as neurasthenia, and can be easily cured by dieting or such simple measures as dashing cold water on the angry child or placing him before a mirror to let him see how ugly he looks. All this should be done calmly, without blows or threats. It will be found that this mode of treatment is very efficacious, but if it does not have the desired effect do something extremely unusual in a very excited manner. It may distract the child with happy results. On the other hand, a regular course of treatment is prescribed for the wickedly angry child. Let him drink nothing but water and milk, permit no meat foods, allow him fresh vegetables, eggs and fish. The hours of rising and retiring should be fixed; he should be as much as possible in the open air, and be bathed and well rubbed daily. In fact, regularity in all things should be rigidly adhered to. Neurasthenics should have as much nourishing food as possible.

MUSHROOMS AS FOOD.

They Give Palatableness to Other Food Materials.

Recent investigations made by the department of agriculture show that mushrooms are about equal to potatoes in the element of nutrition that goes to make flesh and blood, but that, on the other hand, they do not hold much of the fuel stuff required to keep the body machine running. Containing, as they do, a very large percentage of water, they may be said, in a sense, to correspond with fresh vegetables in respect to food value. The notion that their composition resembles closely that of meat—a conception which has caused the term "vegetable beefsteak" to be applied to them—is an absurd error. One would have to consume eight pounds of mushrooms in a day in order to take the place of the ordinary ration of beef or mutton. The great usefulness of mushrooms lies in the palatableness which they give to other food materials. This is a matter of no small importance from the point of view of the economic expert in dietetics who looks upon the attractiveness of dishes as a notable element in their value. This common mushroom is a trifle more than 91 per cent water. It contains nearly 4 per cent of flesh forming stuff, 3½ per cent of starchy and sugar substances, and 1 per cent of fat and fibre, with one-half of 1 per cent of mineral material.

An Arithmetic Lesson.

A lesson in arithmetic is no joke—painful reality, rather—yet a Boston school boy is alleged to have been inspired to humor by the very worst of the problems in long division. After he had failed on the sums the teacher had set, he asked permission to give one of his own. The privilege was granted. "My aunt has eight children," he said, "and she doesn't like to favor one above the other. She was at the market the other day and she bought eight apples for them, one apiece; but when she got home she found she'd lost one apple. All the same she divided the apples so as to give each child the same number. How did she do it? The class hadn't got along to fractions, and the boy insisted that his aunt knew nothing about algebra. So the puzzled teacher finally asked: "Well, how did she divide the seven apples so as to give each of the eight children an equal number?" "She made apple sauce."—Youth's Companion.

The World's Loneliest Missionary.

The loneliest missionary in all the world is said to be Rev. J. O. Springer, whose station is on Herschel Island, near the mouth of the Mackenzie river, well within the Arctic Circle. The latest received letter from this most solitary man is dated October 22, 1900. No ship has been at Herschel Island for two winters, and the missionary's white neighbors are at Peel river, 250 miles away.

In some parts of England bedbugs are politely referred to as "Norfolk Howards." The reason is thus explained: Some years ago a stylish young man became disgusted with his name, which was John Bugg, and he changed it to Norfolk Howard.

In some of the hotels in Sweden women are entertained at less cost than men, because, as a rule, they do not eat so much. A man and wife are charged as one and one-half persons if they occupy the same room. A husband and wife may travel as one and one-half persons by railway.

A French scientist claims to have discovered that laziness in mankind is caused by bacteria. Now he is experimenting with drugs which he hopes will kill the microbes of laziness, and permit the man to become industrious and energetic, and eager to earn a good living. We fear there are many people who are so fond of indolence that they will never willingly let the innocent little microbes be harmed.

Professor Syle, of the State university, cannot tolerate snobbishness on the part of his scholars, and any such offense is sure to call forth some keen, sarcastic comment. The other day, while calling the roll of one of his classes, he came upon the card of a Miss Greene. He paused and expressed his disapproval of the final e in her name by saying: "G-r-e-e-n-e, does that spell Green or Greenie?" Miss Greene promptly replied: "S-y-l-e, does that spell Syle or Sillie?"

A Clergyman's Discovery.

Fredericksburg, Ind., Dec. 2.—According to the positive declaration of Rev. E. P. Stevens of this place, that gentleman has found a remedy for all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs. For years he suffered severely with these complaints, incontinence of the urine, making life a burden to him, but he never ceased experimenting in the hope that some day he would discover a remedy. After many failures he has at last succeeded and is today perfectly cured and a well man, and explains that his recovery is due to the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. This remedy has been successfully applied to many cases of Lame Back, Rheumatism, Bright's Disease, Diabetes and other Kidney Disenses and there seems to be no case of the kind that Dodd's Kidney Pills will not cure. This is the only remedy that has ever cured Bright's Disease.

DANDRUFF CAUSED BY A GERM.

A New Discovery That Kills the Germ and Prevents Baldness.

Pretty nearly all the hair preparations for dandruff have some merit in allaying itching of the scalp, and in being a fairly good dressing for the hair, but there is only one that recognizes what causes dandruff, falling hair and baldness, and that destroys the cause, a little germ—and that is Newbro's Herpicide. This germ eats its way into the scalp, down to the hair root, where it saps that vitality, causing dandruff as it digs up the scalp into little white scales. Unless it is destroyed there's no permanent stopping of falling hair and cure of dandruff and baldness. Newbro's Herpicide kills the germ. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect."

WHAT A LEADING AGRICULTURIST SAYS OF WESTERN CANADA.

Prof. Thomas Shaw of Minnesota University Gives an Unbiased Opinion.

In a letter to "The Farmer," St. Paul, dated Sept. 1st, 1901, Prof. Thomas Shaw of the Minnesota State University has the following to say, after having made a trip through Western Canada:

"The capabilities of the immense area known as Western Canada are but little understood on this side of the line. Our people are apt to look upon it as a region of frost and snow, a country in which but a small portion of the land relatively will ever be tillable, because of the rigors of the climate. True, the climate is cold in winter, but Western Canada has, nevertheless, just that sort of climate which makes it the most reliable wheat producing country in all the continent.

An Immense Area.

Western Canada is not only an immense area, but the same description will apply to those portions of the country that are capable of being successfully tilled or grazed. Nearly all of the prairie Province of Manitoba can be brought under cultivation, although probably not one-third of its surface has been laid open by the plow. Assiniboia to the west is a grain and stock country. Saskatchewan to the north of Assiniboia has high adaptation for the same. This also may be said of Alberta to the west. Here lies what may be termed a grain-growing and stock producing empire, the resources of which have been but little drawn upon comparatively, viewed from the standpoint of the agriculturalist. When it is called to mind that even in the Peace River country in Athabasca, and several hundreds of miles north of the Canadian boundary, wheat was grown which won a premium at the World's Fair in 1893, the capabilities of this country in wheat production loom up more brightly than even the brilliant northern lights of the land that lies toward the pole.

Adapted to Stock and Grain Production.

The region under consideration is, however, mainly adapted to growing grain and grazing stock. Much of it is adapted to growing both grain and stock, but certain areas, especially towards the mountains, are only adapted to ranching, except where irrigation will yet be introduced. This, of course, can be done successfully along the many streams that flow down from the Rockies and water the country towards the east and north. The adaptation of the country for wheat production is of a high character. The cool nights that usually characterize the ripening season are eminently favorable to the filling of the grain, and to the securing of a plump berry, and consequently large yields. The crop this year is a magnificent one. In Manitoba and the territories it should certainly give an average of more than 20 bushels per acre. But should the yield be not more than 20 bushels, the crop will be a most handsome one, owing to the large area sown to wheat. Many farmers only grow grain. But those who do succeed as well in growing oats and barley as in growing wheat, hence these foods for stock should always be abundant. Some grow cattle mainly, and others combine the two. The last named, of course, is doubtless the safest of the three during a long course of years, that is to say, where much farming is practicable.

Quality of the Live Stock.

It was a pleasurable surprise to note the high quality of the stock. The average of quality in cattle is higher than the average of cattle in our state, unless in the dairy classes. This opinion is not reached rashly or without ample opportunity for investigation. I spent three long days in the show ring at Winnipeg making the awards in the beef classes. I question if any of our states, single handed, could make such a showing in cattle. It was my privilege to make the awards at several shows and at all of their fairs were evidences that much attention is given to the improvement of the stock. I noted carefully the character of the herds that grazed along the railroad and everywhere the high average of the quality of the stock was in evidence.

Reasons for Quality in Stock.

The quality of the grass is good. Many of the settlers came from Ontario and had been schooled as to the value of good stock before going west. The railroads and the government have taken a deep interest in making it less difficult and costly to the farmers to secure good males.

Those who are anxious of changing their residence should bear in mind that the lands in Western Canada are many of them free and others reasonably cheap.

Information will gladly be given by any agent of the Canadian government, whose advertisement appears elsewhere.

Thrown from His Cart and Killed.

The following is a most interesting and, in one respect, pathetic tale:—

Mr. J. Pope, 42 Ferrar Road, Streatham, England, said:

"Yes, poor chap, he is gone, dead—horse bolted, thrown off his seat on his cab he was driving and killed—poor chap, and a good sort, too, mate. It was him, you see, who gave me the half-bottle of St. Jacobs Oil that made a new man of me. 'Twas like this: me and Bowman were great friends. Some gentleman had given him a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil which had done him a lot of good; he only used half the bottle, and remembering that I had been a martyr to rheumatism and sciatica for years, that I had literally tried everything, had doctors, and all without benefit, I became discouraged, and looked upon it that there was no help for me. Well," said Pope, "You may not believe me, for it is a miracle, but before I had used the contents of the half-bottle of St. Jacobs Oil which poor Bowman gave me, I was a well man. There it is, you see, after years of pain, after using remedies, oils, embrocations, horse liniments, and spent money on doctors without getting any better, I was completely cured in a few days. I bought another bottle, thinking the pain might come back, but it did not, so I gave the bottle away to a friend who had a lame back. I can't speak too highly of this wonderful pain-killer."

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Dec. 1, 1901.

Adjutant General Byers has shipped to the Tama Indian reservation, near Toledo, two large national guard hospital tents and a number of cots with which an improved hospital for the care of the smallpox patients on the reservation is to be erected. The shipment was made as the result of investigations made by Dr. A. M. Linn, member of the state board of health, and upon the order of Governor Shaw. Dr. Linn filed with Dr. J. F. Kennedy, secretary of the state board of health, his report, a typewritten document of three pages. Dr. Linn says that help has come to the Indians at a very late date, but that he believes some lives can be saved. The worst problem before the state board of health, he says, is how to go about the renovation of the reservation. After a conference with Governor Shaw it was decided that the state board had no right to burn the blankets and belongings of the Indians without taking the matter up with the department of the interior and getting authority from them, so that the Indians might be supplied with clean blankets and clothing, thus preventing the further spread of the disease.

A consolidated statement of the expenses of all state offices from January 1, 1900, to July 1, 1901, has been prepared by Secretary A. H. Davidson of the executive council. It has been compiled from the itemized reports of expenses which the different officers are required by law to make to the executive council. The statement shows that the aggregate office expenses tor the period for the different state officers exceeded half a million dollars. The exact total was $567,693.08. The total sum in fees, moneys and costs collected in the same period was $293,119.92. The following are the different items making up the aggregate office expenses:

Salaries and clerk hire	$290,813.08
Contingent expenses	7,129.73
Supplies from supply department	18,160.73
Telegraph, telephone, etc.	1,530.98
Express, cartage and drayage	6,010.72
Office expenses	7,420.47
Articles and printing on contract	24,019.83
Printing by state printer	40,458.03
Binding by state binder	28,944.62
Paper used by state printer	11,844.22
Other expenses	106,276
Traveling expenses	25,084.75
Total	$567,693.08

The total amount paid per annum for schools has increased more than $1,000,000 since 1896, says State Superintendent Barrett in his biennial report. The number of teachers required to supply the schools is 1,123 greater in 1901 than in 1896. The value of school houses has increased nearly $2,500,000. The report says: "In cities and towns there have been marked growth and improvement. The high schools are now, as a general rule, well equipped and supplied with teachers well educated for their special work. There is also a larger number than usual of grade teachers, who have qualified themselves for teaching in a superior manner. 'With us,' said a college president only recently, 'it is now a question of refusing to receive more students or of enlarging our capacity.' This condition may not exist at all higher institutions, but evidence is before us to show that it does in many. The great material prosperity of the people for the youth to avail themselves of the advantages offered by our higher institutions, and this they are doing in larger numbers than ever before."

One of the striking features of the thirtieth biennial report of the superintendent of public instruction is the evidence presented of the gradual decrease in the number of male teachers employed in the schools of Iowa. On the other hand, the number of female teachers is steadily increasing. In 1890 there were 5,814 male teachers employed and 22,567 female teachers. According to the statistics for 1901 there are now but 4,757 male instructors, while the number of female teachers has increased to 24,086. Comparison of the statistics for this year with those for 1900 shows the number of male teachers has declined since last year and that the number of teachers of the other sex has increased. There were 4,948 male teachers employed in 1900 and 23,841 females. The falling off in the number of male teachers is in some degree explained by the fact the average of wages for female teachers has declined since 1896, while the average for males has increased.

ABOUT EIGHTY ARE DEAD

Appalling Accident on Wabash Railroad in Michigan.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 28.—Two heavily loaded passenger trains on the Wabash railroad collided head-on at full speed one mile east of Seneca, the second station west of Adrian. The westbound train of two cars, loaded with immigrants and burned with the result of awful loss of life and fearful injuries to a majority of its passengers. The eastbound train, the Continental limited, suffered in scarcely less degree. The track in the vicinity of the wreck was strewn with dead and dying.

The track at the point where the collision occurred was straight and at first the officials could not understand how the accident could have happened. No. 13, which ordinarily is due to leave Detroit at 2:30 o'clock, was two hours late, leaving at 4:20. The two trains met at Montpelier, O., according to schedule, but No. 4 had orders to meet No. 3 at Seneca. The blame is therefore placed on the conductor or engineer of No. 4.

Had this train been held at Seneca the accident would not have occurred. The train was due at Seneca at 6:43, according to the change in the schedule, but apparently orders to wait were disobeyed and the probabilities are that the true story will never be told, as the train crews undoubtedly met instant death.

The trains came together one mile east of Seneca, under a full head of steam. All but the two rear coaches on No. 13, the westbound train, were demolished and the coach on No. 4 was telescoped. Five of the cars of train No. 13 caught fire and are still burning.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 29.—When night fell over the scene of Wednesday's awful calamity on the Wabash railroad near Seneca, Mich., those who had been investigating the disaster had found nothing to altar the estimat of about eighty lives lost as a result of the collision.

Superintendent George M. Burns of the division on which the wreck occurred insists that the estimates are too high.

"I do not consider," said he, "that the total death list will exceed twenty."

However, in support of the larger estimate, it is pointed out that there are now fourteen passengers known to be dead. The bodies of eight of these have been recovered and it is considered that the fragments of other bodies, now in the morgue at Adrian, will account for many more than the twelve dead necessary to make up Superintendent Burns' estimate of twenty. In addition to the comparatively few fragments recovered and sent to the morgue, those who were early on the scene say that many more pieces were discovered which crumbled to powder while they were being removed.

The Detroit newspaper men who were at the scene of the wreck and loaded with immigrants, and 5 other say that the official list does not bear out the statement of the passengers nor evidence of the horrible loss of life which they witnessed at the spot where the accident occurred.

The Free Press say that the loss of life was in round numbers 100 and that the statements made by the Italian immigrants on train No. 13 bear out this claim. These immigrants say that there were about 125 of their nationality on the train and that only about twenty-five of them escaped. While there are only ten of them known to be dead it is asserted that the other ninety were completely incinerated and that with the removal of the wreckage the bodies crumbled to dust which was scattered by the wind which swept across the counntry. If the names of these dead are ever known it will be when friends make inquiry for them and in many instances this seems highly improbable.

READY TO RELEASE CUBA

General Wood in America to Make the Arrangements.

New York, Nov. 30.—General Leonard Wood, military governor of Cuba, who arrived yesterday, said in an interview:

"I came here this time to perfect arrangements by which Cuba may be turned over to the Cubans and to talk over with the president and Secretary Root the economic situation of the island.

"This island now imports between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000 worth of stuff every year. Of this amount we furnish only $28,000,000 worth, notwithstanding our superior markets and proximity. Of wine alone Cuba imports $5,000,000 worth each year from Spain. She also spends in foreign countries $2,500,000 for shoes, $6,000,000 for cotton fabrics and $2,000,000 for rice."

General Wood said he would proceed directly to Washington to report to President Roosevelt, and expected to return by Saturday's steamer. He said he had expressed no opinion on the question of annexation of Cuba, and that to do so would be impolitic. The story, he added, was probably put out to affect the elections in Cuba, but nothing would come of it. Matters were quiet in Cuba and preparations were being made for the coming election in February.

"Of course," said General Wood 'there are a number of people in Cuba who desire annexation, but I doubt the possibility of securing a canvass of opinion on the question. The people of Cuba wish to see their flag floating over Morro castle, even if it were only for a week."

There are more murders in Kentucky with its 2,000,000 people than in Great Britain with a population of 40,000,000. Finally, there are more murders in the United States than in the whole of Europe, with Italy and Turkey left out and Russia included."

I, as a matter of conscience, can only prescribe the best, and as I know and have proven that there is nothing in Materia Medica which equals Lydia E. I know of nothing better for ovarian troubles and for falling of the womb or ulcerations; it absolutely restores the affected parts to their normal condition quicker and better than anything else. I have known it to cure barrenness in women, who to-day are happy mothers of children, and while the medical profession looks down upon 'patents,' I have learned, instead, to look up to the healing potion, by whatever name it be known. If my fellow physicians dared tell the truth, hundreds of them would voice my sentiments."—DR. WANATA, Lansing, Mich.

ABOUT MINNESOTA LAND.

As many Hancock county people have lately purchased land in the Red River Valley we publish the following letter written to the Weekly Courier by an Illinois man:

Hallock, Minn., Nov. 4, 1901.

Editor Courier:

Mr. Ogden and myself have spent the past two weeks in this wonderful valley of the Red River of the North. After leaving St. Paul our first stop was at Moorhead, a small town just across the river from the thrifty city of Fargo. N. D. We spent two days driving over the country around Moorhead and were well pleased with what we saw. The land is level and soil rich and productive, especially near the river. From the class of improvements the farmers evidently are prosperous.

From Moorhead we journeyed to Crookston some sixty miles down the river. Crookston is a busy, rustling city of about 6,000 inhabitants. It is headquarters for the lumber interests in Northern Minnesota, and immense saw mills turn out thousands of feet of lumber daily, the price of which is much cheaper than it is in Urbana. The county of Polk is free from debt although a court house costing $75,000 holds a commanding view on an elevated spot in the city of Crookston. Crookston is out of debt, and has about $10,000 in the treasury with which to begin paving next spring. Asphalt will be used. * * The deposits in the three banks of Crookston aggregate over $1,000,000. The First National according to a recent report having $476,705.34 on deposit. The land around Crookston is, to quite an extent, under a high state of cultivation, and notwithstanding its productiveness, can be bought for from $15 to $35 an acre.

From Crookston we went to Hallock Kittson county, where we indeed found the 'promised land.' Land anywhere in the Red River Valley is good, but in Kittson, Marshall and Polk counties it more nearly approaches the perfect state. Kittson county in our opinion having the advantage in depth and richness of soil and extent of productive area. The soil is as black as it is in Champaign county and the landscape is very beautiful. While the land is smooth and apparently level yet it has a fall of about five feet to the mile on an average, to the river, making a perfect drainage. Several small streams flow through Kittson county and the clear sparkling water affords an abundance of water the year round for stock. These streams are fringed with timber which furnished fuel for the settlers in years gone by, and besides in almost every direction small groves dot the prairie and relieves the eye from the sameness common to the bare level land. There seems to be no limit to the productiveness of this land. Wheat, oats, barley and flax are the principal crops and all vegetables common to Illinois are raised in abundance. Here No. 1 hard wheat is raised, the best in quality produced in the United States. And right here in this Kittson county, James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern railroad, selected a wheat farm, and raises thousands of acres of it every year.

We talked with farmers who have lived in this county for over twenty years. Most of them homesteaded the land and were men of small means Today they have finely improved farms, are out of debt and are enjoying life. Many of these older settlers have large two story houses and big red barns, better improvements in fact than a great many farmers in Champaign county have today. These farmers tell us that they have never had a total crop failure in twenty years. We have it from their lips that they raise from 20 to 40 bushels of wheat, 50 to 75 of oats, 40 bushels of barley and from 10 to 20 bushels of flax per acre. Wheat is worth 60c. oats 35c, barley 40c and flax $1.30 per bushel in Hallock. Strange as it may seem, land in this country can be bought at from $10 to $30 an acre, $20 perhaps being a fair average price. As yet the county is in its infancy, and it is only within the last year that the land seekers' attention has been directed to it. Buyers are coming by the hundreds and land is advancing rapidly.

The county is quite large, having about 30 townships. The population is less than 10,000, consequently there is a great deal of unoccupied land which explains why it is so cheap at present. There is no reason why any industrious farmer who settles here cannot become independent and own a home of his own. And these opportunities for securing homes are rapidly slipping away. Hallock, the county seat of Kittson county, is a town of about 1000 inhabitants. It has a good graded school with seven rooms, five churches, two banks, two newspapers, two flouring mills and four elevators. The court house is a fine structure and is paid for. The county's finances are in good condition the entire indebtedness being less than $25,000. Taxes are low and run from $10 to $20 on a quarter section, owing to improvements, school district taxes, etc. There are 72 school houses throughout the county and churches are numerous.

The climate, I am satisfied from my talks with the old settlers, is preferable to that of Illinois. It usually freezes up about the 10th of November and stays frozen until spring. It is not cold one day and warm the next but instead the temperature remains about the same, the air is dry and pure, but little snow in this part of the valley and no rain during the winter. There is not that raw, chilly damp and disagreeable atmosphere like we have in Illinois.

Some one asked Lincoln how long a man's legs ought to be. Lincoln replied that they should be long enough to reach the ground. That is the case with the seasons in the Red River Valley. They may seem short but they are long enough to grow and mature perfectly the finest crops of wheat, oats, barley, flax and vegetables that we have ever seen anywhere. Let any doubting Thomas come and see for himself.

Very truly, S. W. LOVE.

GREAT OPPURTUNITIES

The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Norther Railway Company is nearing the completion of it's 140 miles of new extensions in the very richest portion of Southwestern Minnesota. The six new towns, Reading, Wilmont, Lismore, Kenneth, Waters and Conger are rapidly becoming commercial centers for the rich and already thickly settled country surrounding. There has been no "Auction sale of lots" or any attempt to "Boom" these towns; their growth being the result of a demand for convenient markets.

It is the purpose of the railway company to encourage the continuous substantial growth of the towns on their lines. In order that each town may receive the attention of "ownership," it has been decided to sell each town entire, including all unplatted land to private parties. For terms of such purchases, address the undersigned. For business openings or purchase of lots address the Town Lot Agent of the respective town.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. "Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made as is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflamation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to "Consumption—Snuffles will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advive from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure," Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canaba on receipt of One Doller. SATURDAY REVIEW BITTER

Advocates a Future British-German Policy Against America.

London, Dec. 9.—In an intensely bitter anti-American article the Saturday Review advocates German-English friendship for the purpose of holding the United States in check. Emperor William, it declares, sees in the growing German population of Chile and Brazil the inevitable necessity for future which "in any form, involves a conflict with the United States." This, the Saturday Review holds, it is impossible for Germany to wage successfully if Great Britain is hostile.

"While not advocating an alliance with Germany against the United States," the Review says, "we advocate still less one with the United States against Germany. But, in the event of a conflict we might, with advantage to ourselves, hold the balance. With a friendly Germany forever eliminated from the political chess board of the new world, we should, with our present policy, admitting the unbridled pretension of the United States everywhere, find ourselves elbowed forever out from both North and South America, while Canada would be found to have become a fraction of an empire from which Great Britian not only never did anything to protect, her, but took opportunity of courting and belauding in public."

The Saturday Review stigmatizes Great Britain's policy regarding Nicaragua and other matters as fatuous, ridiculuous and unpopular.

How English opinion differs, however, can be judged from the Spectator, which devotes its chief article to advocating a closer understanding with Russia, in order to head off Germany, from which, it declares, it is impossible for Great Britain to expect friendliness, adding:

"A German alliance is the least stable ground on which we can lay the foundation of our foreign policy."

Under the caption, "Crisis in the British Iron Industry," the Statist, after expatiating upon the enormous developments in this line in the United States to the detriment of Great Britain, earnestly advocates the importing of ore from Newfoundland and Nova Scotia, and the establishment in England of basic furnaces, by which alone that ore can be treated.

"The revolution in the British industry must begin with the construction of basic furnaces for the utilization of phosphoric ores," the paper adds, "which soon will be all that is available. But that will not suffice to preserve our steel making industry. We must also merge our smelting and steel making in one continuous, economical process."

In corroboration of the Statist's remarks it is said in the Scotch steel trade many works will remain closed throughout January owing to the uncombatible competition of America and the continent and the dearth of fresh orders.

BITTER STRUGGLE FEARED.

Legislation for the Philippines Is Not a Simple Matter.

Washington, Dec. 9.—An important conference was held at the war department Saturday in regard to the legislation necessary to meet the financial conditions in the Philippines as a result of the recent insular decisons of the supreme court. There were present Secretary Root, Senators Lodge and Platt of Connecticut, and Representatives Payne and Dalzell.

During the afternoon Senator Spooner called at the war department and talked with Secretary Root about the legislative necessities of the Philippines. It appears that the problem presented is not so easy as was supposed when it was thought that a simple joint resolution could be put through congress within a few days to continue pratically existing tariff rates as to Philippine exports and imports. Some members of the ways means committee see difficulties growing out of the existence of an export tax in the islands, and there is much apprehension that the issue may be made a party one, with the result that there will be a bitter struggle, at least in the senate, if not in the house, before satisfactory legislation can be had. It is the expectation, however, that after hearing from all the leaders Secretary Root will be able to perfect a plan of action.

It is learned that in the course of the conference Secretary Root took advantage of the opportunity to talk freely with his callers about the pressing needs of Cuba, and to urge early action upon legislation along the line reccommended in his last annual report.

A movement is on foot among the republican members of the ways and means committee to incorporate a reciprocity feature in the forthcoming Philippine tariff bill. As roughly outlined in the informal talks thus far had among members of the committee, the reciprocity provision would recite that when the Philippine commissioners reduced the duty on certain designated articles, including American textiles and various goods easily marketable in the Philippines then the president of the United States shall by proclamation grant stated reductions on Philippine sugar and other products shipped to this country. This reciprocity provision woud be along the lines of that provided in the Dingley act, whereby President McKinley, by proclamation, made tariff reductions on a limited number of articles without the formality of a treaty.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

BANK CROOKS KILL OFFICER.

Chelsea, Tama County, the Scene of a Bloody Fight.

Marshalltown, Dec. 7.—Night Marshal J. B. Smith at Chelsea, was shot in the head by three robbers early yesterday morning and died two hours later. The robbers were discovered by the officer while attempting to break into the bank and in an exchange of shots, the latter was killed. The robbers made their escape on a handcar.

William McGarst, a hardware merchant, was returning to Chelsea from a visit in the country where he had been calling upon a young lady. The robbers thinking he was the city marshal, secreted themselves until he was directly opposite. They commanded him to throw up his hands and when he complied with the request they bound, gagged and tied him to a post. While they were binding McGarst the city marshal put in an appearance and was likewise commanded to throw up his hands. In doing so the marshal pulled his gun but his defensive move was detected and he was immediately shot through the head.

The robbers boarded a handcar which they used as far as long point, then cut across the country to the Milwaukee road and boarded the train at Keystone.

Cedar Rapids, Dec. 7.—Three suspects are under arrest at Keystone. The sheriffs of Tama and Benton counties, with posses, are pursuing three other men along the Milwaukee.

TWO ROBBERS MUST DIE.

Found Guilty of the Murder of Marshal Lodine of Greenville.

Storm Lake, Dec. 6.—A sure vengeance was meted out late yesterday afternoon to Albert Phillips and Lewis Brooks, the two bank robbers who killed John Sunblad while escaping from their Greenville bank raid. After a day's deliberation the jury in their cases declared these twb men guilty of murder in the first degree and condemned both of them to death by hanging.

Neither Phillips nor Brooks manifested as much excitement over the vedict when it was announced as the hundreds of spectators who had crowded into the court room. They were unmoved and merely looked significantly at each other as they sat together in the prison box. They will probably be taken to the Anamosa prison to await their penalty as soon as sentence is passed.

These two men raided the Greenville bank about three weeks ago. They were discovered near Albert City soon after and a running fight followed, in which Sunblad and a constable were badly wounded, both dying later. Brooks is a white man and Phillips a negro. Neither has given any clue to his identity.

STARCH WORKS BURNED.

Fire Almost Wholly Destroyed the Big Plant at Des Moines.

Des Moines, Dec. 6.—Fire destroyed the National Starch Works in Southeast Des Moines last night, entailing a loss of $250,000. The fire broke out at 5:45 p. m., and at midnight had destroyed the main building, composed of the run room, the mill room, the main factory, four stories in height, and all of the machinery. A part of the one-story room was saved.

At 1 o'clock this morning the fire broke out again, ruined the engine house with its 500-horse power engine, skipped the boiler house, and destroyed the steep house in the rear of the main plant. The boiler house, the elevator, the corn cribs and the old Sleeper starch plant, west of the burned structure, are all of the property left to the National Starch Company of its magnificent establishment. The plant was fully insured. Probably $300,000 was carried on the main establishment and elevator; probably $60,000 additional on the old plant and adjacent structures.

Fireman Warren Taylor and Joseph Hamilton were injured by falling walls during tue fire. Chief Burnett narrowly escaped death in a vat of soft starch.

WILL EXPEND $10,000 FOR AMES.

Chicago Stock Yards Will Give This Sum to Further Experiment.

Des Moines, Dec. 7.—Governor Shaw nas returned from attending the live stock exposition at Chicago. He brought word that the Iowa State College, as indicated in the press dispatches, had taken a leading position among the agricultural colleges represented at the exposition. To such an extent it is true that the management of the Union Stock Yards in Chicago have decided to give $10,000 to enable Prof. Charles F. Curtiss of the department of animal husbandry to conduct an experiment in breeding cattle.

Governor Shaw says the school at Ames is recognized as the best in the world and that Prof. Curtiss is known to all the leading breeders of America and Europe.

IOWA SETS A NEW RECORD.

Crop of the Past Year the Most Valuable Ever Raised.

Des Moines, Dec. 7.—Director Sage of the Iowa weather and crop service yesterday completed the work of compiling the crop statistics for the season just closed, and issued his statement of the total yield of each of the crops, the average per acre and the total value at current prices of the several crops.

In summing up his report, Professor Sage says that the total value of crops in the state for the year, at current prices, is $274,000,000, or about $44,000,000 more than the total value of crops in any preceding year. His figures show a falling off in the yield of all the crops because of the drouth, but the difference in market prices is credited with making up the discrepancy in values.

SUIT FOLLOWS MURDER.

Chicago Great Western Made Defendant in a Damage Suit.

Cedar Rapids, Dec. 9.—The $25,000 damage case of Mary Matthews, administratrix of the estate of Con Matthews, against the Chicago Great Western, railawy has been filed with Clerk Stewart, of the federal court. It is an action that was originally instituted in the state court of Grundy county. Upon application of the railway company the case was transfered to the central division of the federal court at Fort Dodge. Later the company discovered the latter was lacking in jurisdiction and a trasfer was secured to the Cedar Rapids division, where the case properly belongs.

The petition alleges that Con Matthews came to his death on August 21st, 1899, while in the employ of the Chicago Great Western railway. About that time there were a large number of tramps, or hoboes, beating their way on the trains. The petition proceeds to rehearse the alleged facts surrounding the killing of Matthews, for whose death the $25,000 damages is demanded. He was employed as a brakeman on a freight between Marshalltown and Des Moines and pursuant to the orders of the conductor he was required to remove from the train three or four tramps who were armed. While Matthews was so engaged, the hoboes, who were armed, set upon, assaulted and beat him and shot him and threw him from the train, the injuries and wounds producing death. It is alleged that when Matthews was ordered to remove the trespassers that the conductor was acquainted with their dangerous character; that they were determined to ride upon the train without payment of fare or take the lives and limbs of the trainmen if they attempted to eject them, and that the conductor well knew that the life and limb of Matthews was likely to be taken by the tramps, but that he was negligently and wrongfully ordered to remove the hoboes. The negligence of the company is alleged to consist in the failure of Matthews' superior to notify him that the hoboes were armed and dangerous.

Claims He Was Assaulted.

Cedar Falls, Dec. 9.—W. H. Showers, an old resident of this city, was found at the end of East Tenth street with a ghastly wound in the back of his head, a gash across the face and a mutilated countenance. He was brought home by Dick Shelly, who was latter arrested charged with assaulting him. He was taken before Mayor Robinson, who placed him under bonds in the sum of $1,000 to await trial on a later date not yet set. The true facts in the case will not be known until the time of the trial. A woman of East Tenth street claims that he called at the house in the evening under the influence of liquor and that he made insulting remarks, which were resented by Dick Shelly, whereupon a fight followed. It is not known just how serious the wounds may be.

Statuary at Mason City.

Mason City, Dec. 9—The group of statuary called "Patriotism," which occupied a prominent position upon the bridge at the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo this summer, has been presented to the Memorial University, Sons of Veterans, in this city by Director General Buchanan. The statuary has been shipped from Buffalo already. The credit for securing this splendid gift for the Memorial University is due to Past Commander Madison B. Davis, of Sioux Ctiy, who convinced General Buchanan that this institution was an appropriate home for this piece of statuary.

Guilty Couple Court Death.

Hampton, Dec. 6.—Geo. Flethouse of this place, and Mrs. F. H. Griffith of Waterloo, attempted suicide in an apartment at the Hotel Rure by taking morphine. Physicians were hastily summoned, and after several hours of hard work tne lives of the young couple were saved. Young Flethouse is the son of J. A. Flethouse, of a wealthy grain firm. Little is known of mrs. Griffith, but it is reported that she is the wife of a traveling man, whose headquarters are Waterloo.

Editor Moore Asks Damages.

Ottumwa, Dec. 9.—R. H. Moore, editor of the Herald, who was the victim of a kicking episode in this city a few days ago in which Thomas J. Phillips, late democratic candidate for governor, played the role of kicker, has filed suit in the district court here against Phillips for $3,000 damages for alleged false imprisonment, assault and battery and aggravated assault. The papers in the case were filed late this evening and service has not yet been had on Phillips.

Jenks Given Five Years.

Davenport, Dec. 6.—E. S. Jenks, a contractor, pleaded guilty to the charge of forging a relative's name at Mount Pleasant, and was sentenced to the penitenary at Ft. Madison for five years. On account of the high social position of his family here and at Mount Pleasant, considerable interest attaches to the case. Jenks went away and was lost to the authorities for a month, and returned voluntarily.

Officer & Pusey Dividend.

Council Bluffs, Dec. 9.—On recommendation of the receivers a dividend of 20 per cent has been declared in favor of depositors in the defunct Officer & Pusey bank. It amounts to $114,340 and makes 45 per cent paid up to this time. According to the report of the receivers, but a small amount of assets remain.

Date for Death Set.

Sioux City, Dec. 9.—The Greenville bank robbers, Louis Brooks and Albert Phillips, were sentenced to hang December 18, 1902, at Storm Lake, Iowa. The men appeared utterly indifferent regarding their fate.

Some men's minds are cumbered with useless memories.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Dec. 9, 1901.

Governor Shaw is in receipt of a letter from ex-Governor Francis, president of the Louisiana Purchase exposition, suggesting that December 20 be observed as Louisiana Purchase Flag day. This is the anniversary of the actual transfer of title by France to the United States. Governor Shaw is in hearty sympathy with the movement, and requests that the American flag be displayed from all public buildings, state, county and municipal, in honor of this historic event, which has proven to be of such value to the world as well as to the nation.

In the forthcoming biennial report of the state superintendent of public instruction there will be an emphatic endorsement of the present system of free text books, which has been adopted in a number of counties in Iowa. The state superintendent, while acknowledging that there has been some criticism of the methods employed in some counties by the firms seeking to secure the adoption of books, says the practical workings of the law have been satisfactory. As an argument against any change in the present law, the superintendent cites the fact that during the present year between forty and fifty counties have adopted or readopted a uniform series of books for a period of five years, and any changes in the law would greatly embarrass these communities.

On recommendation of the city physician, Dr. N. C. Schiltz, the city council has taken action looking to the ordering of general vaccination in the city. A communication of Dr. Schiltz was referred to the city solicitor with instructions to prepare a communication addressed to the local board of instruction and to prepare another communication addressed to employers of labor in the city, and especially to proprietors of large stores and factories.

Governor Shaw has offered a reward of $150 for the apprehension of the slayer of Samuel Crafton, the colored preacher found dead in a corn field near Ireton the middle of last October.

An appeal case which will test the features of the Iowa code which was designed to circumvent the original package theory of the courts with regard to interstate commerce, will come on for admission at the next term of the Iowa supreme court. In the Iowa code it was sought to prevent the sending into the state of liquor in original packages by making it a crime to solicit orders for liquor to be shipped into the state. On behalf of this feature of the law it is claimed that the solicitation of orders is an act entirely within the state and entirely separate from the act of making the sale and shipment in another state. A number of cases have been tried in the district courts involving the construction of this law, some decided one way and some another, but a test case has been made of one from Jefferson county in which one Hanaphy was fined for taking orders for an Illinois liquor house. Judge Eichelberger decided that the law is constitutional, and the convicted person appeals. The papers have just been finished in the case. The default relies on the well known principle of non-interference with interstate commerce. The supreme court has not passed on the question as applied to this statute. The case is of great importance as involving one feature of the Iowa prohibitory liquor law.

State Auditor Merriam in his forthcoming biennial report makes a recommendation for the establishment of an insurance department. This recommendation is one of the most important features of the report. An insurance commissioner, with powers similar to those conferred on like officers in other states, is recommended, in view of the fact that the auditor's office as now constituted is overburdened.

The collection of Chinese arms of warfare presented by Major E. H. Conger to Kinsman post of this city recently, has been removed to the state historical department. Kinsman post has loaned the collection to the state museum, with the intention of donating it permanently to the state.

According to statistics in the office of the secretary of state there were 1,229 convictions in the counties of Iowa for criminal offenses last year. This is for the year ended September 30 last. The number for the previous year was 1,153, and for the year before that 1,191. Of those convicted 477 were convictd of felonies, 724 of misdemeanors and 28 for other offenses. Five persons were convicted of murder, 52 of burglary, 63 of breaking, and 33 of robbery.

Of the persons convicted during the year 705 were American born, 190 foreign born and 334 of unknown nationality.

The total amount of fines collected and paid into county treasuries was $52,651.95 this year, against $43,990.15 in 1900.

The state G. A. R. department has been notified of the appointment of John Hughes of Iowa county as inspector of the state department. He has been appointed by General Torrance, the commander-in-chief, and will make an inspection of the state headquarters this winter. Mr. Hughes was re-elected as a member of the lower house this fall.

CONGRESS.

Washington, Dec. 3.—Senate—The senate today received the president's message. Careful attention was given to the reading of the message by all senators. On motion of Foraker the following resolution was adopted:

"That a committee of eleven senators be appointed on the part of the senate to join such committee as shall be appointed on the part of the house to consider and report by what token of respect and affection it may be proper for the congress of the United States to express the deep sensibility of the nation over the tragic death of the late President McKinley and so much of the message of the president as relates to that deplorable event be referred to such committee."

As a further mark of respect to the memory of the late president, the senate, on motion of Mr. Foraker, at 2:28 adjourned.

House—The speaker announced the appointment of the committee on rules as follows: Mr. Henderson of Iowa, Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania, Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio, Mr. Richardson of Tennessee and Mr. Underwood of Alabama. The president's message was received and read. Ordinarily, presidential messages at the opening of a congress are listened to in perfunctory fashion, but today throughout the reading the keenest interest was manifested. A resolution similar to that adopted by the senate was adopted by the house and the house, as a further mark of respect for the late president, adjourned.

Washington, Dec. 4.—Senate—Senator Barrows today introduced a bill to "provide for the exclusion and deportation of anarchists." Vest offered a resolution proposing an inquiry by the common judiciary as to the powers of congress to deal with anarchy, to suppress the teachings of anarchy and to provide for a penal colony for convicted anarchists. Hansbrough reintroduced his irrigation bill of the last session with various amendments. In executive session the Hay-Poncefote treaty was received and referred to the committee on foreign relations.

Washington, Dec. 5.—Senate—Senator McComas, of Maryland, made an extended and carefully prepared speech in the senate today with anarchy for his theme, and was followed by some brief remarks by Mr. Hoar, of Massachusetts, on the difficulties in the way of dealing with anarchist assassins. The senate passed a bill extending the life of the industrial commission until February 15 next, to complete the work it now has in hand.

EDITORS ESCAPE PRISON.

Judge Dunne Says They Had a Right to Libel Judge Hanecy.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—Andrew M. Lawrence, managing editor of the Hearst's Chicago American, and H. S. Canfield, a reporter, who where sentenced recently to forty and thirty days, respectively, in the county jail for contempt of court, were discharged from custody by Judge Dunne.

In granting a writ of habeas corpus to the relators the court said that the case hinged on whether the case on which the Chicago American commented had been disposed of by Judge Hanecy or was still pending. Judge Dunne held that the case in question has been finally disposed of by Judge Hancey when he gave his decision from the bench. The fact that the clerk had not entered the order when the comment was made on the decision was printed and published therefore does not show that the case was still pending. The act of entering the order on the record was merely a ministrial act, Judge Dunne said.

Judge Dunne admitted that the articles and cartoon which Judge Hanecy objected to were clearly calculated to intimidate and coerce the court had the court not already rendered its decision. Judge Dunne admitted that the cartoon in evidence was probably libelous, and the article possibly so.

Harsh criticism, Judge Dunne remarked, is one of the incidents and burdens of public life. "I see no reason," he said, "why a judge should be offered a different remedy for attacks in the public prints than a president, or a governor or a congressman. Criticism of a public official, if just, will do good; if unjust, it will do no harm."

In concluding the court said:

"I am clearly of the opinion that the language used in open court by Judge Hanecy amounted to the final order disposing of the case under consideration, and that being a final order, under the doctrine of contempt as laid down in this state by our supreme court in Storey vs. the People, that the relators had a right to comment and criticise that decision, exent to the extent of libeling the honored and respected judge who rendered that opinion, without exposing themselves to prosecution for contempt of court."

Following is Judge Hanecy's comment on Judge Dunne's decision:

"Judge Dunne had the power so to decide, but he did not have the right. Every judge has the power to let every prisioner out of the penitentiaries, but they have not the right, nor does anybody expect the will.

The contempt case and the habeas corpus hearing which followed grew out of an effort made by the Chicago American to secure an order for quo warranto proceedings to compel the People's Gas, Light and Coke company to show by what right they operated in Chicago.

Judge Hanecy refused to allow the quo warranto proceedings, and following this refusal the American printed articles and a cartoon strongly intimating that the judge had been unduly influenced and that when he again came up for election he would discover that the people had no confidence in him.

MARY THE MAID OF THE INN....

By JOSEPH HATTON.

CHAPTER II.—(Continued.)

"Then lay it to heart," said Foster; "it is likely to be my last!"

"You're beginning to weary me with your growls and threats."

"Growls, not threats," Foster replied. I never threaten in the sense you mean."

"And what is my idea of threats?"

"The same as most of your other ideas."

"And what are they like?"

"Like yourself, handsome and unreliable."

"I admit the first charge, because I cannot help it; I did not make myself."

"Nor I," said Foster.

"If you had—well, never mind that. In what respect am I unreliable?"

"In every respect; ask the women whom you know; ask the men you profess to lead."

"Oh, am I really a leader?"

"Ditson, Jones, Wild, and the rest think so."

Do you?"

"Sometimes."

"Only sometimes?"

"Look here, Dick, you have had every penny we have made since June. I am hard up. We have both borrowed from Isaacs; you have borrowed from me."

"Well, who put money into your purse and enabled you to lend? I will not ask you to reply. I will admit a certain laziness of late—a holiday, if you like; but I will have no more of your scurvy tempers, Andy, do you hear?"

"I hear."

"What the devil is the name of this traveling bank of yours, this Midas in disguise, this argosy on the highway?"

"Bellingham," Foster answered in a whisper.

"Tall, sinewy, with strong hands, clean-cut jaw, iron-gray hair? He is in the house."

"He came from the back and went into the bar as Tom showed us up the stairs."

Dick Parker had many accomplishments, and they gave him power as the chief of the enterprising company of gentlemen, whose headquarters were in the metropolis, and whose operations were on the merry English highways.

He was a gentleman by birth and education. His family had come over with the Conqueror. One of his ancestors had sat in the House of Lords, but had lost title and estates for rebellious conduct. Another had been hanged for piracy on the high seas.

On the other hand, there was a bishop in his family, and his sister had married a Spanish Don. He had a wonderful faculty of observation, was quick in resource, generous, fearless, and had never taken a life, except once, in a duel that was forced upon him.

He had danced with the Duchess, whose party he had afterwards stopped and robbed on the way to Bristol. He had taken a big purse on Blackheath and gone straight to the swell taverns in St. James' street upon which the present aristocratic clubs rest their foundations, and doubled it or lost it at cards. He had been the most apparently timid of inside passengers in the York coach, and at a favorable moment made the rest of the passengers prisoners, while Foster had ridden up and dominated guard and driver with his pistols. His escapades and triumphs were themes of admiration at a shady hostelry within the sound of Bow bells, where a few choice spirits, his friends and companions, met as members of a club of Merchant Venturers.

"Supper," said a thick voice at the door, after the owner of the voice had struck the timber a strong hard blow necessary to make an impression upon the ears of those within.

"Right!" said Foster.

"Do you feel better?" Dick asked.

"I am hungry," Foster replied.

"After supper I am going into that little room, the bar parlor," said Dick. "No incivilities mind."

"Let us go up to supper," Foster replied with no signs of better humor.

"I am not joking, Andy."

"I understand, and I mean business."

It was a capital supper. Old Morley himself placed the first dish on the table.

They supped in the general room, which was furnished in old mahogany. The sideboard was brilliant enough in its polish for a looking-glass. There was a white cloth upon it. On the cloth there were two great bowls of celery, a Cheshire cheese, a sirloin of beef, a Yorkshire ham and a white loaf of bread.

CHAPTER III.

"The supper consisted of a joint of stuffed chine and a dish of partridges done to a turn, and with the most savory bread sauce that epicure could desire.

At another table in the room was a gentleman whom Dick had already christened Bellingham. He was supping upon a hot stew of some kind, and the light fell generously from a couple of wax candles upon a starry cut decanter of sherry. The stranger eyed the other travelers curiously, and Dick talked to his friend of their escape through the French cruisers somewhere in the Mediterranean, and otherwise made himself and Foster out to be very worthy and very loyal persons.

After supper Dick asked the landlord if he and his friends might crack another bottle of Madeira in his snuggery, or smoke a pipe, or otherwise make themselves at home, being travelers who had not seen England for some years owing to the wars breaking out in countries with which they were trading as British merchants.

Morley, having consulted his niece, gave his consent, and upon the little table in the inner bar, Mary placed some fruit with the wine, and a dish of fresh walnuts, and she hovered about the parlor all the time they sat and chatted, and uncorked a couple of her uncle's best Madeira; for Mary had extra duties on the night in question, otherwise she might have sat by the fire and joined in the conversation.

The bowling club members had held their usual weekly meeting, and, scenting the first frost of the season, had made it an excuse for mulled ale and egg sherry; so that Mary was busy with the flush of her various responsibilities on her bright cheery face. She looked in Dick's eyes more lovely than he had even at first thought her. He could not keep his eyes away from her, and he thought, being accustomed to conquests among women, that she was not displeased with his undisguised admiration.

"Your daughter?" he said, Morley having spoken to Mary about the wine.

"My niece," said Morley, "and the best and bravest girl in Yorkshire."

"Or in any other shire, I am sure," added Parker.

"And you may say that, I believe," said the landlord.

"You will excuse the admiration of travelers who have seen none but foreign wenches for five years," said Dick; "it does one's heart good to see such a picture of health and beauty as your niece. What did you call her?"

"Mary," said Morley. "Mary Lockwood is her right name. She was my sister's child, God rest her, who lies with her good man in the Kirkstall churchyard this ten years."

"And so you took charge of her and became a second father to her?"

"That is the truth, whoever may have made it known to you," said Morley.

"Many guests in the house?" asked Foster, looking in an opposite direction from the person addressed, as was his wont.

"No; York coach went through with full complement of passengers, but none got down, and she don't change horses till she gets to Harrogate. Beyond yourselves and 'Squire Bellingham, a married couple from Derby, and Harry Dunstan, who fishes the Aire every autumn, we have nobody in the house; not as we have accommodation for many more, not laying ourselves out for much custom in that way."

"'Squire Bellingham!'" said Foster, touching Dick with his boot.

"Well, we call him 'Squire, 'cause his father before him was 'Squire in these parts and farmed most of the land; but his son—well, he's more of a merchant than a squire, for that matter. He does business in wool and is a bit of a broker in a way, and a rare good gentleman, and strong. He once had a quoit match with my Mary, I forget how many yards, thinking to get the betetr of her by distance and weight, but I won my bet—I tell you I won it, and he give lass a new gown into the bargain."

Old Morley chuckled at the remembrance of Bellingham's discomfiture, adding: "But he bore no malice, not he; he is a gentleman, 'Squire Bellingham!"

"Does he live hereabouts, 'Squire Bellingham?" asked Foster.

"He do, and he don't," said Morley.

"Do, and he don't," repeated Foster in his morose, grumpy fashion.

"A traveler may be said to live in a good many places, I reckon," said Morley, evidently thinking he had said something clever.

"That is true," said Foster.

"For instance, take yourself."

"I live in London," said Foster.

"Of course you do, except and peradventure when you live in some good old hostelry on the road—such, for instance, not at the same time desiring to be arrogant, as the saying is; such for instance, and peradventure, as the Star and Garter."

"You say true," answered Foster stolidly. "I make no doubt the 'squire is well content with the Star and Garter."

"The 'Squire is not well content with anything," Morley replied. "The 'Squire is as warm as warm can be, and yet he will go on laying up riches; the 'Squire is continually on the road; he buys in this market, he sells in the other; he is partner in the bank at Leeds; he buys cattle; he sells wool; and he has one of the finest houses hereabouts; and best servants, a groom as can have no equal; but being a bachelor, he is restless like; and must have occupation, as he says; though, mind you, he don't care for no occupation in which there hain't good sale and barter, and the like; though there is no more charitable 'Squire in all Yorkshire."

"And a brave man to boot, I hear say."

"If you mean brave in the sense that he neither fears heaven nor hell, because he is a good man, and has no reason to; if you mean that he makes no account of highwaymen and the like, if you mean that he is ready to back his opinion with his money on any question—why 'Squire Bellingham is a brave man; but if you agree with me in thinking that to be properly brave you should also be cautious, then I think we shall come to the conclusion that the 'Squire is not brave in the right way, but rash—rash, sir, reckless, decidedly reckless."

"In what way is he reckless?"

"In riding alone and sometimes at nightfall with large sums of money in his possession, with gold and notes in his belt or what not. These are perilous times, sir, when the roads are infested with men from the wars, who went to fight only for the fun of it, and who, being at home again and out of employment, are ready to fight their own countrymen, aye, and to slay them for that matter, for the sake of a booty ever so small—yes, sir, ever so small."

"But the 'Squire is well armed, of course."

"You never spoke more truly; armed to the teeth, as the saying is; armed back and front, and mounted on a horse that can talk—yes, sir, talk! I'll be bound that 'Squire Bellingham's groom has had many an intelligent conversation with William, as was bred and broke on the 'Squire's own farm."

"Then he need, of course, have no fear, the 'Squire," said Foster, beating his boots with his whipstock. "Your highwayman is no fool; I suspect he knows who he is attacking. I have ridden over nearly every highway in England, and it is well known that I carry barkers that bite like the devil, and if any unfortunate ruffian had had the hardihood to stop me he would not live to stop any other honest traveler."

CHAPTER IV.

Had not Dick Parker been quietly engaged in a conversation with Mary he would have put a spoke into the conversational wheel of Mr. Foster. It was well agreed in the company to which they belonged that Foster had no social gifts; that the less he said the better under any circumstances; but he plumed himself upon having drawn the landlord of the Star and Garter, though he had not added one iota of information to that already in the possession of his chief and himself.

If Mr. Morley had been as good a judge of character as he was of a glass of Madeira or had he been a man of ordinary observation, he would hardly have been as friendly and confidential in his conversation with Foster as he was with the other stranger guest, Mr. Richard Parker.

But Morley, when he got the opportunity, liked to hear himself talk, and Foster was very willing to give him all the opportunity he could desire, and also to put in a word or two himself. It was well for Foster that Morley was as weak as he was good-natured, otherwise he might have suspected his guest's calling—this gentleman, who wished it to be understood that he lived in London, had much more the cut of a freebooter than a merchant; had much more the appearance of a man to attack than to be attacked.

Foster had no redeeming qualities; Parker had several. Foster was a thick-set, colorless-looking person. He had strong, heavy hands, long arms, big feet, and a hard, rasping voice. He was popular with those gentlemen who met now and then at that shady tavern in London, because he was a man of his word. He never went back on anything he said or promised. His persistence, his capacity to creep where he could not walk to his quarry, his delight in his work, his physical strength, made him next in importance, if not next in popularity, to Dick.

THREE CHICAGO DOCTORS

Failed to Do for Miss Mabelle L. LaMonte What Was Accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

ASA JAMES GIBBS.

The remains of A. J. Gibbs arrived in Klemme last Saturday from Las Vegas, New Mexico, at which place the death occurred as chronicled in this paper last week. The funeral services were held Sunday morning at 11 o'clock in the English M. E. church, Rev. Phelps officiating. After the funeral sermon the Masons held a short service, after which the large army of friends of the deceased accompanied the remains to the Klemme cemetery, where all that was earthly of Asa James Gibbs was consigned to the grave.

Deceased was the beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Gibbs of near Klemme, and was born in Indianapolis, Ind., August 1st, 1875, being 26 years, 4 months and 3 days old at time of his death, which was caused by tuberculosis in the region of the kidneys.

He was well thought of by every one of his acquaintances and his patience in suffering was indeed commendable.

He was baptised on the 28th of October, just before leaving here for Las Vegas. It was thought that the climate there might help to stamp out the disease, and all that mortal man could do was done to benefit him but without success. He was called to his Maker, and he was prepared and ready to go. He was a Mason and also a member of the Modern Woodmen and both these orders held short services at the burial. His host of friends sympathize with the bereaved ones in their sad affliction.

CARD OF THANKS.

To our friends and neighbors, to the church and Sunday school, of Klemme, and to the fraternal orders of the A. F. & A. M. and the M. W. A., we desire to extend our heartfelt thanks for the many kindnesses and sympathy shown us during the sad bereavement and loss of son and brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Gibbs and Family.

ORGANIZE A FIRE COMPANY.

A number of our citizens held a meeting last Monday evening in the town hall for the purpose of organizing a fire company for Klemme. A goodly number turned out and the following officers were named:

President—John Baumgartner.
Vice Pres—George Nissen.
Foreman—Wm. Meyers.
Ass't Foreman—Ed. Ell.
Secretary—Al Koerner.
Treasurer—Lude Fuller.
Trustees—
Frank Terbufen,
Chas. Schrader,
Frank Kluckhohn.

A second meeting was held Tuesday evening and the organization perfected. There are now about 23 members. The boys are enthusiastic over the matter and propose to give the people of Klemme a good fire company. There is no question but that the town needs a fire company and means of fire protection. The fire boys want to fix up trucks for the hooks and ladders, and also to put up a water tank to be kept full of water for an emergency. This is a deserving cause and should be encouraged by all our people. We need fire protection. Every one help the fire laddies in every way possible.

First Annual Reduction Sale!

at the Koerner Bros. & Co. Hardware Store.

One Week Only

Commencing Monday morning, Dec. 16, Closing Saturday evening, Dec. 21, 1901.

POSITIVELY NO LONGER.

WE are nearing the close of our 2nd year of business. What success we have attained is we feel due as much to the appreciation and good will of our patrons as to our own efforts. Our object in this reduction sale is threefold.

FIRST—We feel that it is due you in return for your generous patronage and good will.

SECOND—At this season of the year we are anxious to reduce stock, which in many cases we feel is larger than we wish.

THIRD—We believe it will bring people to our store who are not in the habit of favoring us with their business and at the same time cement closer the good will and friendship of our tried and true customers, both old and new.

ERGO

We offer you your choice of our stock of Standard Hardware, with the exception of a few restricted goods, a stock that will stand inspection in every detail.

The Sunday School convention held in the English M. E. church at this place, Sunday, Dec. 1st, was a success from every point of view. Every person on the program was present to assist and everything went off smoothly. The morning session was conducted by Messers Schell and Schaper and Rev. Phelps, who each read interesting and instructive letters. Committees were then appointed. The afternoon session opened with a prayer and praise service, followed by a talk by Mr Ramsay, of Garner. Papers were then read by J. J. Suckow, Jr., and Miss Avis Foley, and others. Discussions followed. Rev. Duiitz of this city gave a very interesting address at the evening service, followed by a musical program. The whole day's program was interspersed with fine musical selections under the able direction of Wm. Koerner. The attendance was good and everyone present profited by the instructive points brought out in the papers. discussions and addresses.

Koerner Bros. have inaugurated a bran new idea in the line of a well digger being nothing more or less than a common post hole auger. The boys have worked in all on the well about ten hours and at this writing have the well sunk about thirty feet. There is about twenty feet of water in the well now. It is a novel way to dig a well to dig a well to be sure. but seems to be successful in this case. They will continue digging until they get through the blue clay and will put in a good casing, and probably a well as good as anybody's well. If you don't believe this go and take a peep at the aforesaid.

STORIETTES.

Calling one day on a Miss Ferguson, and observing a fine honeysuckle in full blossom over the door, Sir Walter Scott congratulated his friend on its appearance. She spoke of it as a trumpet honeysuckle. "Weel," said Scott, "ye'll never come out o' your ain door without a flourish o' trumpets!"

Not long ago a western Kansas politician was asked by his wife to lay aside politics long enough one day to dig the potatoes in the garden. He consented, and, after digging for a few minutes, went into the house and said he had found a coin. He washed it off, and it proved to be a silver quarter. He put it in his jeans and went back to work. Presently he went to the house again and said he had found another coin. He washed the dirt off of it, and this time it was a silver half-dollar. He put in his jeans. "I have worked pretty nard," said he to his wife; "I guess I'll take a short nap." When he awoke, he found that his wife had dug all the rest of the potatoes. But she found no coins. It then dawned upon her that she had been "worked."

As a young man, Paul Kruger was regarded as an authority on psalm singing, and the farmers used to come to him to learn the key-note for starting the psalms at the next Sunday's service. Kruger, even in those days, was no believer in the policy of giving anything away—not even a note of music—so he had a uniform charge of a double-handful of dried peaches for his instruction. Even the fact that the work was in the service of religion did not deter him from resorting to strategy, for he made a point of giving each applicant a different note. The result when the pious Doppers attempted to raise their voices in sacred harmony next Sunday may be imagined. The result was that each man concluded he had lost the key, and had to return for a further lesson. "I nearly bankrupted them of their dried peaches," said the president.

The other day Mrs. Norma Adams and Samuel Garnder, who live on adjoining farms, began suit to determine the ownership of a brood of fourteen turkeys. The brood, headed by two old hens, a white and a bronze, had been running the fields of both farms all summer. Mrs. Adams owned the bronze hen and Mr. Gardner the white. Each claimed that their respective hen was the mother of the brood. One of the witnesses before the justice testified that he had once turned a dog upon the straggling band of turkeys. At the approach of the dog the young birds flew into a tree, the bronze hen ran into the woods, while the white hen stood under the tree and gave battle to the dog, which she repulsed, then called the brood to her, and they marched off. After hearing this witness, the justice decided that the white hen was the mother of the brood, and gave the turkeys to Gardner.

CAUSE OF FALLING HAIR.

Dandruff, Which is a Germ Disease—Kill the Germ.

Falling hair is caused by dandruff, which is a germ disease. The germ in burrowing into the root of the hair, where it destroys the vitality of the hair, causing the hair to fall out, digs up the cuticle in little scales, called dandruff or scurf. You can't stop the falling hair without curing the dandruff, and you can't cure the dandruff without killing the dandruff germ. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Newbro's Herpicide is the only hair preparation that kills the dandruff germ. Herpicide is also a delightful hair dressing.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE READ TO CONGRESS

Governmental Problems Dwelt On at Length in the Document.

ORGES EXCLUSION OF THE ANARCHISTS

Czolgosz and His Ilk Enemies of the Human Race.

THE MERITS OF RECIPROCITY.

President Defends the Workings of the Protective Tariff—Construction of the Nicaraguan Canal Urged, and the Laying of a Cable to Hawaii and the Philippines—Changes in the Present Militia Laws Recommended—The Navy.

A comprehensive synopsis of President Roosevelt's message to Congress is given below:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

"The Congress assembles this year under the shadow of a great calamity. On the sixth of September, President McKinley was shot by an anarchist while attending the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, and died in that city on the fourteenth of that month.

"Of the last seven elected Presidents, he is the third who has been murdered, and the bare recital of this fact is sufficient to justify grave alarm among all loyal American citizens. Moreover, the circumstances of this, the third assassination of an American President, have a peculiarly sinister significance. Both President Lincoln and President Garfield were killed by assassins of types unfortunately not uncommon in history, President Lincoln falling a victim to the terrible passions aroused by four years of civil war, and President Garfield to the revengeful vanity of a disappointed office-seeker. President McKinley was killed by an utterly depraved criminal belonging to that body of criminals who object to all governments, good and bad alike, who are against any form of popular liberty if it is guaranteed by even the most just and liberal laws, and who are as hostile to the upright exponent of a free people's sober will as to the tyrannical and irresponsible despot."

The President speaks in the highest terms of the personal and public virtues of Mr. McKinley. Describing the nature of the assassination and the motive that inspired it, the message continues:

Motive of the Assassin.

"The blow was aimed not at this President, but at all Presidents at every symbol of government. The anarchist, and especially the anarchist in the United States, is merely one type of criminal, more dangerous than any other because he represents the same depravity in a greater degree. The man who advocates anarchy directly or indirectly, in any shape or fashion, or the man who apologizes for anarchists and their deeds, makes himself morally accessory to murder before the fact. The anarchist is a criminal whose perverted instincts lead him to prefer confusion and chaos to the most beneficent form of social order. His protest of concern for workingmen is outrageous in its impudent falsity; for if the political institutions of this country do not afford opportunity to every honest and intelligent son of toil, then the door of hope is forever closed against him. The anarchist is everywhere not merely the enemy of system and progress, but the deadly foe of liberty. If ever anarchy is triumphant its triumph will last for but one red moment, to be succeeded for ages by the gloomy night of despotism.

Would Exclude Anarchists.

"I earnestly recommend to the Congress that in the exercise of its wise discretion it should take into consideration the coming to this country of anarchists or persons professing principles hostile to all government and justifying the murder of those placed in authority. No matter calls more urgently for the wisest thought of the Congress.

"The Federal courts should be given jurisdiction over any man who kills or attempts to kill the President or any man who by the Constitution or by-law is in line of succession for the Presidency, while the punishment for an unsuccessful attempt should be proportioned to the enormity of the offense against our institutions.

"Anarchy is a crime against the whole human race; and all mankind should band against the anarchist. His crime should be made an offense against the law of nations, like piracy and that form of manstealing known as the slave trade for it is of far blacker infamy than either. It should be so declared by treaties among all civilized powers.

The Trust Problem.

"The creation of great corporate fortunes has not been due to the tariff nor to any other governmental action, but to natural causes in the business world, operating in other countries as they operate in our own.

"It is not true that as the rich have grown richer the poor have grown poorer. On the contrary, never before has the average man, the wage-worker, the farmer, the small trader, been so well off as in this country and at the present time. There have been abuses connected with the accumulation of wealth; yet it remains true that a fortune accumulated only on condition of conferring immense incidental benefits upon others. Successful enterprise, of the type which benefits all mankind, can only exist if the conditions are such as to offer great prizes as the rewards of success.

"The captains of industry who have driven the railway systems across this continent, who have built up our commerce, who have developed our manufactures, have on the whole done great good to our people. Without them the material development of which we are so justly proud could never have taken place. Moreover, we should recognize the immense importance to this material development of leaving as unhampered as is compatible with the public good the strong and forceful men upon whom the success of business operations inevitably rests.

Caution Is Urged.

"An additional reason for caution in dealing with corporations is to be found in the international commercial conditions of today. The same business conditions which have produced the great aggregations of corporate and individual wealth have made them very potent factors in international commercial competition. America has only just begun to assume that commanding position in the international business world which we believe will more and more be hers. It is of the utmost importance that this position be not jeoparded, especially at a time when the overflowing abundance of our own natural resources and the skill, business energy, and mechanical aptitude of our people make foreign markets essential. Under such conditions it would be most unwise to cramp or to fetter the youthful strength of our Nation.

"Disaster to great business enterprises can never have its effects limited to the men at the top. It spreads throughout, and while it is bad for everybody, it is worst for those farthest down. The capitalist may be shorn of his luxuries; but the wage-worker may be deprived of even bare necessities.

"In facing new industrial conditions, the whole history of the world shows that legislation will generally be both unwise and ineffective unless undertaken after calm inquiry and with sober self-restraint. Much of the legislation directed at the trusts would have been exceedingly mischievous had it not also been entirely ineffective. In dealing with business interests, for the government to undertake by crude and ill-considered legislation to do what may turn out to be bad, would be to incur the risk of such far-reaching national disaster that it would be preferable to undertake nothing at all.

"All this is true; and yet it is also true that there are real and grave evils, one of the chief being over-capitalization because of its many baleful consequences; and a resolute and practical effort must be made to correct these evils.

Government Supervision.

"It is no limitation upon property rights or freedom of contract to require that when men receive from government the privilege of doing business under corporate form, which frees them from individual responsibility, and enables them to call into their enterprises the capital of the public, they shall do so upon absolutely truthful representations as to the value of the property in which the capital is to be invested. Corporations engaged in interstate commerce should be regulated if they are found to exercise a license working to the public injury. It should be as much the aim of those who seek for social betterment to rid the business world of crimes of cunning as to rid the entire body politic of crimes of violence. Great corporations exist only because they are created and safeguarded by our institutions and it is therefore our right and our duty to see that they work in harmony with these institutions.

Publicity Remedy for Trusts.

"The first essential in determining how to deal with the great industrial combinations is knowledge of the facts—publicity. In the interest of the public, the government should have the right to inspect and examine the workings of the great corporations engaged in interstate business. Publicity is the only sure remedy which we can now invoke. What further remedies are needed in the way of governmental regulation, or taxation, can only be determined after publicity has been obtained, by process of law, and in the course of administration. The first requisite is knowledge, full and complete—knowledge which may be made public to the world.

"Artificial bodies, such as corporations and joint stock or other associations, depending upon any statutory law for their existence or privileges, should be subject to proper governmental supervision, and full and accurate information as to their operations should be made public regularly at reasonable intervals.

"The large corporations, commonly called trusts, though organized in one state, always do business in many states, often doing very little business in the state where they are incorporated. There is utter lack of uniformity in the state laws about them; and as no state has any exclusive interest in or power over their acts, it has in practice proved impossible to get adequate regulation through state action. Therefore, in the interest of the whole people, the Nation should, without interfering with the power of the states in the matter itself, also assume power of supervision and regulation over all corporations doing an interstate business. This is especially true where the corporation derives a portion of its wealth from the existence of some monopolistic element or tendency in its business. There would be no hardship in such supervision banks are subject to it, and in their case it is now accepted as a simple matter of course. Indeed, it is probable that supervision of corporations by the National government need not go so far as is now the case with the supervision exercised over them by so conservative a state as Massachusetts, in order to produce excellent results.

"I believe that a law can be framed which will enable the National government to exercise control along the lines above indicated; profiting by the experience gained through the passage and administration of the Interstate-Commerce Act. If, however, the judgment of the Congress is that it lacks the constitutional power to pass such an act, then a constitutional amendment should be submitted to confer the power.

"There should be created a Cabinet officer, to be known as Secretary of Commerce and Industries, as provided in the bill introduced at the last session of the Congress. It should be his province to deal with commerce in its broadest sense including among many other things whatever concerns labor and all matters affecting the great business corporations and our merchant marine.

Restriction on Immigration.

"With the sole exception of the farming interest, no one matter is of such vital moment to our whole people as the welfare of the wage-workers. If the farmer and the wage-worker are well off, it is absolutely certain that all others will be well off, too. It is therefore a matter for hearty congratulation that on the whole wages are higher to-day in the United States than ever before in our history, and far higher than in any other country. The standard of living is also higher than ever before. Every effort of legislator and administrator should be bent to secure the permanency of this condition of things and its improvement wherever possible. Not only must our labor be protected by the tariff, but it should also be protected so far as it is possible from the presence in this country of any laborers brought over by contract, or of those who, coming freely, yet represent a standard of living so depressed that they can undersell our men in the labor market and drag them to a lower level. I regard it as necessary, with this end in view, to re-enact immediately the law excluding Chinese laborers and to strengthen it wherever necessary in order to make its enforcement entirely effective.

"Our present immigration laws are unsatisfactory. We need every honest and efficient immigrant fitted to become an American citizen, every immigrant who comes here to stay, who brings here a strong body, a stout heart, a good head, and a resolute purpose to do his duty well in every way and to bring up his children as law-abiding and God-fearing members of the community. But there should be a comprehensive law enacted with the object of working a threefold improvement over our present system. First, we should aim to exclude absolutely not only all persons who are known to be believers in anarchistic principles or members of anarchistic societies, but also all persons who are of a low moral tendency or of unsavory reputation. This means that we should require a more thorough system of inspection abroad and a more rigid system of examination at our immigration ports, the former being especially necessary.

"The second object of a proper immigration law ought to be to secure by a careful and not merely perfunctory educational test some intelligent capacity to appreciate American institutions and act sanely as American citizens. This would not keep out all anarchists, for many of them belong to the intelligent criminal class. But it would do what is also in point, that is, tend to decrease the sum of ignorance, so potent in producing the envy, suspicion, malignant passion, and hatred of order, out of which anarchistic sentiment inevitably springs. Finally, all persons should be excluded who are below a certain standard of economic fitness to enter our industrial field as competitors with American labor. There should be proper proof of personal capacity to earn an American living and enough money to insure a decent start under American conditions. This would stop the influx of cheap labor, and the resulting competition which gives rise to so much of bitterness in American industrial life; and it would dry up the springs of the pestilential social conditions in our great cities, where anarchistic organizations have their greatest possibility of growth.

Question of Reciprocity.

"There is general acquiesence in our present tariff system as a national policy. The first requisite to our prosperity is the continuity and stability of this economic policy. Nothing could be more unwise than to disturb the business interests of the country by any general tariff change at this time. Doubt, apprehension, uncertainty are exactly what we wish to avoid in the interest of our commercial and material well-being. Our experience in the past has shown that sweeping revisions of the tariff are apt to produce conditions closely approaching panic in the business world. Yet it is not only possible, but eminently desirable, to combine with the stability of our economic system a supplementary system of reciprocal benefit and obligation with other nations. Such reciprocity is an incident and result of the firm establishment and preservation of our present economic policy. It was specially provided for in the present tariff law.

"Our first duty is to see that the protection granted by the tariff in every case where it is needed is maintained, and that reciprocity be sought for so far as it can safely be done without injury to our home industries. Just how far this is must be determined according to the individual case, remembering always that every application of our tariff policy to meet our shifting national needs must be conditioned upon the cardinal fact that the duties must never be reduced below the point that will cover the difference between the labor cost here and abroad. The well-being of the wage-worker is a prime consideration of our entire policy of economic legislation.

"Subject to this proviso of the proper protection necessary to our industrial well-being at home, the principle of reciprocity must command our hearty support. The phenomenal growth of our export trade emphasizes the urgency of the need for wider markets and for a liberal policy in dealing with foreign nations. Whatever is merely petty and vexatious in the way of trade restrictions should be avoided. The customers to whom we dispose of our surplus products in the long run, directly or indirectly, purchase those surplus products by giving us something in return. Their ability to purchase our products should as far as possible be secured by so arranging our tariff as to enable us to take from them those products which we can use without harm to our own industries and labor, or the use of which will be of marked benefit to us.

"We have now reached the point in the development of our interests where we are not only able to supply our own markets but to produce a constantly growing surplus for which we must find markets abroad. To secure these markets we can utilize existing duties in any case where they are no longer needed for the purpose of protection, or in any case where the article is not produced here and the duty is no longer necessary for revenue, as giving us something to offer in exchange for what we ask. The cordial relations with other nations which are so desirable will naturally be promoted by the course thus required by our own interests.

"The natural line of development for a policy of reciprocity will be in connection with those of our productions which no longer require all of the support once needed to establish them upon a sound basis, and with those others where either because of natural or of economic causes we are beyond the reach of successful competition.

"I ask the attention of the Senate to the reciprocity treaties laid before it by my predecessor.

Our Merchant Marine.

"The condition of the American merchant marine is such as to call for immediate remedial action by the Congress. It is discreditable to us as a Nation that our merchant marine should be utterly insignificant in comparison to that of other nations which we overtop in other forms of business.

"American shipping is under certain great disadvantages when put in competition with the shipping of foreign countries. Many of the fast foreign steamships, at a speed of fourteen knots or above, are subsidized; and all our ships, sailing vessels and steamers alike, cargo carriers of slow speed and mail carriers of high speed, have to meet the fact that the original cost of building American ships is greater than is the case abroad; that the wages paid American officers and seamen are very much higher than those paid the officers and seamen of foreign competing countries; and that the standard of living on our ships is far superior to the standard of living on the ships of our commercial rivals.

"Our government should take such action as will remedy these inequalities. The American merchant marine should be restored to the ocean.

"The Act of March 14, 1900, intended unequivocally to establish gold as the standard money and to maintain at a parity therewith all forms of money medium in use with us, has been shown to be timely and judicious. The price of our government bonds in the world's market, when compared with the price of similar obligations issued by other nations, is a flattering tribute to our public credit. This condition it is eminently desirable to maintain.

"In many respects the National Banking Law furnishes sufficient liberty for the proper exercise of the banking function but there seems to be need of better safeguards against the deranging influence of commercial crises and financial panics. Moreover, the currency of the country should be made responsive to the demands of our domestic trade and commerce.

Reduction of Revenues.

"The collections from duties on imports and internal taxes continue to exceed the ordinary expenditures. The utmost care should be taken not to reduce the revenues so that thre will be any possibility of a deficit; but, after providing against any such contingency, means should be adopted which will bring the revenues more nearly within the limit of our actual needs.

"I call special attention to the need of strict economy in expenditures. The fact that our national needs forbid us to be niggardly in providing whatever is actually necessary to our well-being, should make us doubly careful to husband our national resources, as each of us husbands his private resources, by scrupulous avoidance of anything like wasteful or reckless expenditure.

Regulation of Railroads.

In 1887 a measure was enacted for the regulation of interstate railways, commonly known as the Interstate Commerce Act. The cardinal provisions of that act were that railway rates should be just and reasonable and that all shippers, localities, and commodities should be accorded equal treatment. A commission was created and endowed with what were supposed to be the necessary powers to execute the provisions of this act.

"That law was largely an experiment. Experience has shown the wisdom of its purposes, but has also shown, possibly that some of its requirements are wrong, certainly that the means devised for the enforcement of its provisions are defective.

"The act should be amended. The railway is a public servant. Its rates should be just to and open to all shippers alike. The government should see to it that within its jurisdiction this is so and should provide a speedy, inexpensive, and effective remedy to that end. At the same time it must not be forgotten that our railways are the arteries through which the commercial lifeblood of this nation flows. Nothing could be more foolish than the enactment of legislation which would unnecessarily interfere with the development and operation of these commercial agencies. The subject is one of great importance and calls for the earnest attention of the Congress.

The message points out the value of the American forests and the necessity for their conservation, and urges the construction and maintenance of reservoirs and irrigating systems for the reclamation of the arid lands of the West. Of the water rights it says:

"In the arid states the only right to water which should be recognized is that of use. In irrigation this right should attach to the land reclaimed and be inseparable therefrom. Granting perpetual water rights to others than users, without compensation to the public, is open to all the objections which apply to giving away perpetual franchises to the public utilities of cities. A few of the Western states have already recognized this and have incorporated in their constitutions the doctrine of perpetual state ownership of water.

Development of Hawaii.

"In Hawaii our aim must be to develop the territory on the traditional American lines. We do not wish a region of large cities tilled by cheap labor; we wish a healthy American community of men who themselves till the farms they own. All our legislation for the islands should be shaped with this end in view; the well-being of the average homemaker must afford the true test of the healthy development of the islands. The land policy should as nearly as possible be modeled on our homestead system.

"It is a pleasure to say that it is hardly more necessary to report as to Porto Rico than as to any state or territory within our continental limits. The island is thriving as never before, and it is being administered efficiently and honestly. Its people are now enjoying liberty and order under the protection of the United States, and upon this fact we congratulate them and ourselves. Their material welfare must be as carefully and jealously considered as the welfare of any other portion of our country. We have given them the great gift of free access for their products to the markets of the United States. I ask the attention of the Congress to the need of legislation concerning the public lands of Porto Rico.

Progress in Cuba.

"In Cuba such progress has been made toward putting the independent government of the island upon a firm footing that before the present session of the Congress closes this will be an accomplished fact, Cuba will then start as her own mistress; and to the beautiful Queen of the Antilles, as she unfolds this new page of her destiny, we extend our heartiest greetings and good wishes. Elsewhere I have discussed the question of reciprocity. In the case of Cuba, however, there are weighty reasons of morality and of national interest why the policy should be held to have a peculiar application, and I most earnestly ask your attention to the wisdom, indeed to the vital need, of providing for a substantial reduction in the tariff duties on Cuban imports into the United States. Cuba has in her constitution affirmed what we desired, that she should stand, in international matters, in closer and more friendly relations with us than with any other power; and we are bound by every consideration of honor and expediency to pass commercial measures in the interest of her material well-being.

The Philippine Problem.

"In the Philippines our problem is larger. They are very rich tropical islands, inhabited by many varying tribes, representing widely different stages of progress toward civilization. Our earnest effort is to help these people upward along the stony and difficult path that leads to self-government. We hope to make our administration of the islands honorable to our nation by making it of the highest benefit to the Filipinos themselves; and as an earnest of what we intend to do, we point to what we have done. Already a greater measure of material prosperity and of governmental honesty and efficiency has been attained in the Philippines than ever before in their history.

"In dealing with the Philippine people we must show both patience and strength, forbearance and steadfast resolution. Our aim is high. We do not desire to do for the islanders merely what has elsewhere been done for tropic peoples by even the best foreign governments. W hope to do for them what has never before been done for any people of the tropics—to make them fit for self-government after the fashion of the really free nations.

"To leave the islands at this time would mean that they would fall into a welter of murderous anarchy. Such desertion of duty on our part would be a crime against humanity. The character of Governor Taft and of his associates and subordinates is a proof, if such be needed, of the sincerity of our effort to give the islanders a constantly increasing measure of self-government, exactly as fast as they show themselves fit to exercise it. Since the civil government was established not an appointment has been made in the islands with any reference to considerations of political influence, or to aught else save the fitness of the man and the needs of the service.

"There are still troubles ahead in the islands. The insurrection has become an affair of local banditti and marauders, who deserve no higher regard than the brigands of portions of the old world. Encouragement, direct or indirect, to these insurrectos stands on the same footing as encouragement to hostile Indians in the days when we still had Indian wars. As we will do everything in our power for the Filipino who is peaceful, we will take the sternest measures with the Filipinos who follow the path of the insurrecto and the ladrone.

"The time has come when there should be additional legislation for the Philippines. Nothing better can be done for the islands than to introduce industrial enterprises. Nothing would benefit them so much as throwing them open to industrial development. It is therefore necessary that the Congress should pass laws by which the resources of the islands can be developed; so that franchises (for limited terms of years) can be granted to companies doing business in them, and every encouragement be given to the incoming of business men of every kind.

"I call your attention most earnestly to the crying need of a cable to Hawaii and the Philippines, to be continued from the Philippines to points in Asia. We should not defer a day longer than necessary the construction of such a cable. It is demanded not merely for commercial but for political and military considerations.

"Either the Congress should immediately provide for the construction of a government cable, or else an arrangement should be made by which like advantages to those accruing from a government cable may be secured to the government by contract with a private cable company.

Recommends Nicaraguan Canal.

"No single great material work which remains to be undertaken on this continent is of such consequence to the American people as the building of a canal across the Isthmus connecting North and South America. While its beneficial effects would perhaps be most marked upon the Pacific coast and the gulf and South Atlantic states, it would also greatly benefit other sections. It is emphatically a work which it is for the interest of the entire country to begin and complete as soon as possible; it is one of those great works which only a great nation can undertake with prospects of success, and which when done are not only permanent assets in the nation's material interests, but standing monuments to its constructive ability.

"I am glad to be able to announce to you that our negotiations on this subject with Great Britain, conducted on both sides in a spirit of friendliness and mutual good will and respect, have resulted in my being able to lay before the Senate a treaty which if ratified will enable us to begin preparations for an Isthmian canal at any time, and which guarantees to this nation every right that it has ever asked in connection with the canal. In this treaty, the old Clayton-Bulwer treaty, so long recognized as inadequate to supply the base for the construction and maintenance of a necessarily American ship canal, is abrogated. It specifically provides that the United States alone shall do the work of building and assume the responsibility of safeguarding the canal and shall regulate its neutral use by all nations on terms of equality without the guaranty or interference of any outside nation from any quarter. The signed treaty will at once be laid before the Senate, and if approved the Congress can then proceed to give effect to the advantages it secures us by providing for the building of the canal.

"The true end of every great and free people should be self-respecting peace; and this nation most earnestly desires sincere and cordial friendship with all others. Over the entire world, of recent years, wars between the great civilized powers have become less and less frequent. Wars with barbarous or semi-barbarous peoples come in an entirely different category, being merely a most regrettable but necessary international police duty which must be performed for the sake of the welfare of mankind. Peace can only be kept with certainty where both sides wish to keep it; but more and more the civilized peoples are realizing the wicked folly of war and are attaining that condition of just and intelligent regard for the rights of others which will in the end, as we hope and believe, make world-wide peace possible. The peace conference at The Hague gave definite expression to this hope and belief and marked a stride toward their attainment.

The Monroe Doctrine.

"This same peace conference acquiesced in our statement of the Monroe doctrine as compatible with the purposes and aims of the conference.

"The Monroe doctrine should be the cardinal feature of the foreign policy of all the nations of the two Americas, as it is of the United States. The doctrine is a declaration that there must be no territorial aggrandizement by any non-American power at the expense of any American power on American soil. It is in no wise intended as hostile to any nation in the old world. Still less is it intended to give cover to any aggression by one new world power at the expense of any other. It is simply a step, and a long step, toward assuring the universal peace of the world by securing the possibility of permanent peace on this hemisphere.

"This doctrine has nothing to do with the commercial relations of any American power, save that it in truth allows each of them to form such as it desires. In other words, it is really a guaranty of the commercial independence of the Americas. We do not ask under this doctrine for any exclusive commercial dealings with any other American state. We do not guarantee any state against punishment if it misconducts itself, provided that punishment does not take the form of the acquisition of territory by any non-American power.

"Our attitude in Cuba is a sufficient guaranty of our own good faith. We have not the slightest desire to secure any territory at the expense of any of our neighbors. We wish to work with them hand in hand, so that all of us may be uplifted together, and we rejoice over the good fortune of any of them, we gladly hail their material prosperity and political stability, and are concerned and alarmed if any of them fall into industrial or political chaos. We do not wish to see any old world military power grow up on this continent, or to be compelled to become a military power ourselves. The peoples of the Americas can prosper best if left to work out their own salvation in their own way.

Powerful Navy Urged.

"The work of upbuilding the navy must be steadily continued. Whether we desire it or not, we must henceforth recognize that we have international duties no less than international rights. Even if our flag were hauled down in the Philippines and Porto Rico, even if we decided not to build the Isthmian canal, we should need a thoroughly trained navy of adequate size, or else be prepared definitely and for all time to abandon the idea that our nation is among those whose sons go down to the sea in ships. Unless our commerce is always to be carried in foreign bottoms, we must have war craft to protect it.

"Probably no other great nation in the world is so anxious for peace as we are. There is not a single civilized power which has anything whatever to fear from aggressiveness on our part. All we want is peace; and toward this end we wish to be able to secure the same respect for our rights in return, to insure fair treatment to us commercially, and to guarantee the safety of the American people.

"Our people intend to abide by the Monroe doctrine and to insist upon it as the one sure means of securing the peace of the Western hemisphere. The navy offers us the only means of making our insistence upon the Monroe doctrine anything but a subject of derision to whatever nation chooses to disregard it. We desire the peace which comes as of right to the just man armed; not the peace granted on terms of ignominy to the craven and the weakling.

"It is not possible to improvise a navy after war breaks out. The ships must be built and the men trained long in advance. In the late war with Spain the ships that dealt the decisive blows at Manila and Santiago had been launched from two to fourteen years, and they were able to do as they did because the men in the conning towers, the gun turrets and the engine-rooms had through long years of practice at sea learned how to do their duty.

"It was forethought and preparation which secured us the overwhelming triumph of 1898. If we fail to show forethought and preparation now, there may come a time when disaster will befall us instead of triumph; and should this time come, the fault will rest primarily, not upon those whom the accident of events puts in supreme command at the moment, but upon those who have failed to prepare in advance.

"There should be no cessation in the work of completing our navy. It is unsafe and unwise not to provide this year for several additional battleships and heavy armored cruisers, with auxiliary and lighter craft in proportion; for the exact numbers and character I refer you to the report of the Secretary of the Navy. But there is something we need even more than additional ships, and this is additional officers and men. To provide battleships and cruisers and then lay them up, with the expectation of leaving them unmanned until they are needed in actual war, would be worse than folly; it would be a crime against the nation.

"To send any warship against a competent enemy unless those aboard it have been trained by years of actual sea service, including incessant gunnery practice, would be to invite not merely disaster, but the bitterest shame and humiliation. Four thousand additional seamen and one thousand additional marines should be provided; and an increase in the officers should be provided by making a large addition to the classes at Annapolis.

Our Present Naval Force.

"We now have seventeen battleships appropriated for, of which nine are completed and have been commissioned for actual service. The remaining eight will be ready in from two to four years, but it will take at least that time to recruit and train the men to fight them. It is of vast concern that we have trained crews ready for the vessels by the time they are commissioned. Good ships and good guns are simply good weapons, and the best weapons are useless save in the hands of men who know how to fight with them. The men must be trained and drilled under a thorough and well-planned system of progressive instruction, while the recruiting must be carried on with still greater vigor.

"The naval militia forces are state organizations, and are trained for coast service, and in event of war they will constitute the inner line of defense. They should receive hearty encouragement from the general government.

"But in addition we should at once provide for a National Naval Reserve, organized and trained under the direction of the Navy Department, and subject to the call of the Chief Executive whenever war becomes imminent. It should be a real auxiliary to the naval seagoing peace establishment, and offer material to be drawn on at once for manning our ships in time of war. It should be composed of graduates of the Naval Academy, graduates of the Naval Militia, officers and crews of coast-line steamers, longshore schooners, fishing vessels and steam yachts, together with the coast population about such centers as life-saving stations and lighthouses.

Need for Powerful Navy.

"The American people must either build and maintain an adequate navy or else make up their minds definitely to accept a secondary position in international affairs, not merely in political, but in commercial, matters. It has been well said that there is no surer way of courting national disaster than to be 'opulent, aggressive, and unarmed.'

"It is not necessary to increase our army beyond its present size at this time. But it is necessary to keep it at the highest point of efficiency.

"Every effort should be made to bring the army to a constantly increasing state of efficiency. When on actual service no work save that directly in the line of such service should be required. The paper work in the army, as in the navy, should be greatly reduced. What is needed is proved power of command and capacity to work well in the field. Constant care is necessary to prevent dry rot in the transportation and commissary departments.

"The Congress should provide means whereby it will be possible to have field exercises by at least a division of regulars, and if possible also a division of national guardsmen, once a year.

"Only actual handling and providing for men in masses while they are marching, camping, embarking, and disembarking, will it be possible to train the higher officers to perform their duties well and smoothly.

Militia Laws Obsolete.

"Action should be taken in reference to the militia and to the raising of volunteer forces. Our militia law is obsolete and worthless. The organization and armament of the National Guard of the several states, which are treated as militia in the appropriations by the Congress, should be made identical with those provided for the regular forces. The obligations and duties of the Guard in time of war should be carefully defined, and a system established by law under which the method of procedure of raising volunteer forces should be prescribed in advance. It is utterly impossible in the excitement and haste of impending war to do this satisfactorily if the arrangements have not been made long beforehand. Provision should be made for utilizing in the first volunteer organizations called out the training of those citizens who have already had experience under arms, and especially for the selection in advance of the officers of any force which may be raised; for careful selection of the kind necessary is impossible after the outbreak of war.

"That the army is not at all a mere instrument of destruction has been shown during the last three years. In the Philippines, Cuba and Porto Rico it has proved itself a great constructive force, a most potent implement for the upbuilding of a peaceful civilization.

Eulogy of Veterans.

"No other citizens deserve so well of the republic as the veterans, the survivors of those who saved the union. They did the one deed which if left undone would have meant that all else in our history went for nothing. But for their steadfast prowess in the greatest crisis of our history, all our annals would be meaningless, and our great experiment in popular freedom and self-government a gloomy failure. Moreover, they not only left us a united nation, but they left us also as a heritage the memory of the mighty deeds by which the nation was kept united. We are now indeed one nation, one in fact as well as in name; we are united in our devotion to the flag which is the symbol of all national greatness and unity; and the very completeness of our union enables us all, in every part of the country, to glory in the valor shown alike by the sons of the North and the sons of the South in the times that tried men's souls.

Merit System Endorsed.

"The merit system of making appointments is in its essence as democratic and American as the common schools system itself. It simply means that in clerical and other positions where the duties are entirely non-political, all applicants should have a fair field and no favor, each standing on his merits as he is able to show them by practical test. Written competitive examinations offer the only available means in many cases for applying this system. In other cases, as where laborers are employed, a system of registration undoubtedly can be widely extended. There are, of course, places where the written competitive examination cannot be applied, and others where it offers by no means an ideal solution, but where under existing political conditions it is, though an imperfect means, yet the best present means of getting satisfactory results.

"It is important to have this system obtain at home, but it is even more important to have it applied rigidly in our insular possessions. The administration of these islands should be as wholly free from the suspicion of partisan politics as the administration of the army and navy. All that we ask from the public servant in the Philippines or Porto Rico is that he reflect honor on his country by the way in which he makes that country's rule a benefit to the peoples who have come under it. This is all that we should ask, and we cannot afford to be content with less."

Treatment of Indians.

The message points out the defects in our present consular service, and recommends the passage of bills now before Congress that will increase its efficiency. Of the Indian problem it says:

"In my judgment the time has arrived when we should definitely make up our minds to recognize the Indian as an individual and not as a member of a tribe. The General Allotment Act is a mighty pulverizing engine to break up the tribal mass. It acts directly upon the family of the individual. Under its provisions some sixty thousand Indians have already become citizens of the United States. We should now break up the tribal funds, doing for them what allotment does for the tribal lands; that is, they should be divided into individual holdings. A stop should be put upon the indiscriminate permission to Indians to lease their allotments. The effort should be steadily to make the Indian work like any other man on his own ground. The marriage laws of the Indians should be made the same as those of the whites.

"In dealing with the aboriginal races few things are more important than to preserve them from the terrible physical and moral degradation resulting from the liquor traffic. We are doing all we can to save our own Indian tribes from this evil. Wherever by international agreement this same end can be attained as regards races where we do not possess exclusive control, every effort should be made to bring it about.

"For the sake of good administration, sound economy, and the advancement of science, the Census Office as now constituted should be made a permanent government bureau. This would insure better, cheaper and more satisfactory work, in the interest not only of our business but of statistic, economic and social science.

"The remarkable growth of the postal service is shown in the fact that its revenues have doubled and its expenditures have nearly doubled within twelve years. Its progressive development compels constantly increasing outlay, but in this period of business energy and prosperity its receipts grow so much faster than its expenses that the annual deficit has been steadily reduced from $11,411,779 in 1897 to $2,923,727 in 1901. Among recent postal advances the success of rural free delivery wherever established has been so marked, and actual experience has made its benefits so plain, that the demand for its extension is general and urgent.

Growth of Postal Service.

"It is just that the great agricultural population should share in the improvement of the service. The number of rural routes now in operation is 6,009, practically all established within three years, and there are 6,000 applications awaiting action. It is expected that the number in operation at the close of the current fiscal year will reach 8,600. The mail will then be daily carried to the doors of 5,700,000 of our people who have heretofore been dependent upon distant offices, and one-third of all that portion of the country which is adapted to it will be covered by this kind of service.

Second-Class Mail Matter.

"The full measure of postal progress which might be realized has long been hampered and obstructed by the heavy burden imposed on the government through the intrenched and well-understood abuses which have grown up in connection with second class mail matter. The extent of this burden appears when it is stated that while the second-class matter makes nearly three-fifths of the weight of all the mail, it paid for the last fiscal year only $4,294,445 of the aggregate postal revenue of $111,631,193. If the pound rate of postage, which produces the large loss thus entailed, and which was fixed by the Congress with the purpose of encouraging the dissemination of public information, were limited to the legitimate newspapers and periodicals actually contemplated by the law, no just exception could be taken. That expense would be the recognized and accepted cost of a liberal public policy deliberately adopted for a justifiable end. But much of the matter which enjoys the privileged rate is wholly outside of the intent of the law, and has secured admission only through an evasion of its requirements or through lax construction. The proportion of such wrongly included matter is estimated by postal experts to be one-half of the whole volume of second-class mail. If it be only one-third or one-quarter, the magnitude of the burden is apparent. The Postoffice Department has now undertaken to remove the abuses so far as is possible by a stricter application of the law; and it should be sustained in its effort."

"We view with lively interest and keen hopes of beneficial results the proceedings of the Pan-American Congress, convoked at the invitation of Mexico, and now sitting at the Mexican capital. The delegates of the United States are under the most liberal instructions to co-operate with their colleagues in all matters promising advantage to the great family of American commonwealths, as well in their relations among themselves as in their domestic advancement and in their intercourse with the world at large.

The occurrences arising from the "Boxer" outbreak in China are reviewed in detail, and the steps taken to secure to the United States its share of the trade of the Orient are explained. The message concludes:

"The death of Queen Victoria caused the people of the United States deep and heartfelt sorrow, to which the government gave full expression. When President McKinley died, our nation in turn received from every quarter of the British empire expressions of grief and sympathy no less sincere. The death of the Empress Dowager Frederick of Germany also aroused the genuine sympathy of the American people; and this sympathy was cordially reciprocated by Germany when the President was assassinated. Indeed, from every quarter of the civilized world we received, at the time of the President's death, assurances of such grief and regard as to touch the hearts of our people. In the midst of our affliction we reverently thank the Almighty that we are at peace with the nations of mankind; and we firmly intend that our policy shall be such as to continue unbroken these international relations of mutual respect and good will.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

White House, December 3, 1901.

A physician, writing to the London Times, says: "Everything we eat and drink and wear runs the gantlet of germs to an extent which nervous people had better not contemplate. Far too much fuss is made of them. If we listened to all these scares, there would be nothing left to do but get into a bath of carbolic acid and stay there until starvation freed us from the dangers of life."

The German emperor is reported to have made an order for a commission of experts to be appointed with a view to the most radical and exhaustive investigation of cancer that can possibly be made. The deaths of his father, mother and uncle from this cause have naturally given this scourge a terrible interest in his eyes, which has naturally been shared by those allied in England.

Captain John B. Ford, of Pittsburg, known as the "father of the tin plate industry," in the United States, celebrated his ninetieth birthday at his home in Creighton, Pa., on November 17. Public services in honor of the event were held in the $50,000 public building presented the town of Tarentum by Captain Ford. Captain Ford is suffering from cancer. His mind in excellent condition, but he realizes that the disease has placed a limit on his days.

Physicians Much Interested.

Northport, Mich., Dec. 9.—The medical men are just now eagerly discussing a most remarkable cure of a severe case of Kidney Disease in this county. Mr. Byron O. Leslie of Northport has for years been a victim of kidney derangements, with all the consequent pain and annoyance. He was gradually growing worse and as the disease advanced he became very despondent, often wondering if he would have to endure this suffering all his lifetime.

But at last he found a remedy that cured him in Dodd's Kidney Pills. He was much pleased, but did not say much about it lest the good effect he experienced would not last. Now, however, after months of continued good health he has concluded that he is permanently cured and his announcement of this has caused a profound sensation among the physicians and the people who knew of his apparently hopeless condition.

Out of 6,831 earthquakes which had been recorded in the world from the earliest times up to 1850, the British isles experienced no fewer than 225.

SYRUP OF FIGS

Acts Gently;
Acts Pleasantly;
Acts Beneficially;
Acts truly as a Laxative.

Syrup of Figs appeals to the cultured and the well-informed and to the healthy, because its component parts are simple and wholesome and because it acts without disturbing the natural functions, as it is wholly free from every objectionable quality or substance. In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal virtues of Syrup of Figs are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative and to act most beneficially.

Its market reports are unexcelled. It is printed in two colors on the finest press in Iowa. Excellent mail facilities make it within the reach of every home in Iowa. In 1902 the Daily Capital will be by far the greatest newspaper in the state. Remember the date, December 28, three days after Christmas, three days before New Year's.

A MOST LIBERAL OFFER

All our farmer readers should take advantage of the unprecedented clubbing offer we this year make, which includes with this paper the Iowa Homestead, its special Farmers' Institute editions, and the Poultry Farmer. These three publications are the best of their class and should be in every farm home. To them we add, for local, county and general news, our own paper, and make the price of the four one year only $1.45. Never before was so much superior reading matter offered for so small an amount of money. The three papers named, which we club with our own, are well known throughout the West, and commend themselves to the reader's favorable attention upon mere mention. The Homestead is the great agricultural and live stock paper of the west; The Poultry Farmer is the most practical poultry paper for the farmer, while the Special Farmers' Institute Editions are the most practical publications for the promotion of good farming ever published. Take advantage of this great offer, as it will hold good for a short time only. Samples of these papers may be examined by calling at this office.

GREAT OPPURTUNITIES.

The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Norther Railway Company is nearing the completion of it's 140 miles of new extensions in the very richest portion of Southwestern Minnesota. The six new towns, Reading, Wilmont, Lismore, Kenneth, Waters and Conger are rapidly becoming commercial centers for the rich and allready thickly settled country surrounding. There has been no "Auction sale of lots" or any attempt to "Boom" these towns; their growth being the result of a demand for convenient markets.

It is the purpose of the railway company to encourage the continuous substantial growth of the towns on their lines. In order that each town may receive the attention of "ownership," it has been decided to sell each town entire, including all unplatted land to private parties. For terms of such purchases, address the undersigned. For business openings or purchase of lots address the Town Lot Agent of the respective town.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, ut permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the discharges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. "Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made as is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflamation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to "Consumption—Snuffles will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure." ALL CASES OF

DEAFNESS OR HARD HEARING ARE NOW CURABLE

By our new invention. Only those born deaf are incurable.

HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1901.

Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain Very truly yours.

A Good Safe Place.

A bed bug that was being relentlessly pursued by a busy housewife managed to escape into the yard and was figuring on where he would go next when he saw another bug beckoning him to come over. "Come over and bunk with me," said the second bug in a hospitable manner, "you will find this a mighty good place." "Is there no women of the house over there?" asked the first bug cautiously. "Oh, yes, there is a lady of the house over here, but you needn't worry about her; she is preparing a paper to read at the next meeting of her club on the subject 'How to Care for a Home and Save the Bo.." And right there the two bugs formed a partnership that lasted undisturbed until both died of old age.

Accident Near Kanawha.

Kanawha Record: Charley Hample, a hired man in the employ of Geo. Meyers, northwest of town, shot himself Sunday with fatal results.

With some companions he had walked to a neighbor's house, carrying a shot gun, and upon arrival still carried the gun with hammer up. His friends had started to enter the house, when they heard the discharge of the gun, and turning they found that Mr. Hample was seriously shot. He was carried to a couch in the house but lived only about ten minutes. The contents of the gun entered near the stomach, but it is not definitely known in what manner it was accidentally discharged.

The remains were taken to Detroit, Mich., Tuesday, accompanied by a friend of the deceased. He was much beloved by the friends he had made since coming here, who sincerely regret his untimely end and extend their deepest sympathy to the relatives and friends in the east.

Recently little Bessie had been sent to kindergarten and in that sheltered retreat she has picked up strangly enough, a number of slang phrases, which sound amusing and at the same time shocking, as they fall from her rosebud lips.

Ever since she could lisp little Bessie has said her prayers regularly, night and morning, and in her petitions she invariably mentions each member of the family by name, back to include her grandparents on both sides of the house.

The other evening her mother had tucked her in bed, after her prayers were said, when she suddenly sat up and said: "Mother I forgot part of my prayer."

Out of bed she climbed and knelt down again like a little white cherub in her pretty gown.

"O, Lord" she began, with a most serious tone of voice, "I forgot to pray for grandmother. Wouldn,t that freeze you?"—Chicago Tribune.

The occasion marked the climax of a notable football season, in which the general public has taken an extraordinary interest, not without ample compensation.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

GREEN'S SALARY RAISED.

Horticultural Society Directors Increase Secretary's Pay.

Des Moines, Dec. 13.—The thirty-sixth annual convention of the Iowa State Horticultural society was brought to a close yesterday afternoon. Last night the new directory board held a meeting at the state house and after a session of several hours completed the work at hand and adjourned. One of the results at the directory meeting last night was an increase in the salary of Secretary Wesley Greene from $800 per year to $1,200. Mr. Greene, who has done much for horticulture in the state, should not be asked to devote his time to the welfare of the society for the meager salary he has heretofore been granted.

The premium list for the annual meeting was revised at last night's session of the directors, so as to admit cold storage fruits. The annual rules of the organization of the organization were adopted, the only modification of the old rules being the abandonment of the requirement that each director shall report the most popular fruits in his district.

To further the interests of a creditable exhibit at the St. Louis exposition, the directors appointed Silas Wilson of Atlantic to look after the selection of fruit for the exhibition on behalf of the society. Mr. Wilson is not appointed as a state commissioner and is not intended to interfere in any way with any appointment that may be made hereafter of a state superintendent of the horticultural exhibit. It is intended that he shall get in touch with as many members of the society as possible and arouse interest so as to insure them a good exhibit, so far as the society is concerned.

Prof. H. C. Price of the Iowa State college was elected to fill the experiment station of the society at Ames. N. C. Fluke of Davenport was re-elected on the supervisory committee of experiment work.

VAN HOUTEN DEFEATED.

John Simpson Chosen for Secretary of State Agricultural Society.

Des Moines, Dec. 13.—John Simpson was yesterday elected secretary of the Iowa state board of agriculture over G. H. Van Houten, the former secretary, W. M. McFadden of West Liberty and George Briggs of Sac City. SLUG THREE

Mr. Simpson receive twelve votes, Mr. Van Houten received two, and Mr. McFadden one, on the formal ballot. The overwhelming victory of Mr. Simpson is the result of one of the most spirited contests which the Iowa agricultural leaders have ever witnessed. Yet the campaign made by Mr. Simpson, who has been assistant secretary, has been kept so quiet that knowledge concerning it has been confined to a comparatively few persons, the announcement of his election being a surprise to many. Even Secretary Van Houten himeslf, for the contest really lay between him and Mr .Simpson, at the time of the meeting of the board confidently expected re-election, although he had not been making an active fight for the place. He had held the position for three years and says that he had no knowledge of the active opposition to his re-election until he heard of the caucus of Simpson men which was held at the Savery house Wednesday evening. One of the steps taken by the agricultural convention before closing its meeting was to reinstate Old Soldiers' day at the state fair.

Censures But Does Not Indict.

Sioux City, Dec. 16.—The grand jury investigation of the county officials has closed in a rather a farcical way. Members of the jury intimated all along that they knew of unquestioned crookedness and criminal looseness in the transactions of the board of supervisors, and perhaps other officials, but its report made last evening censures no one in particular and merely speaks of general conditions. The report was unsatisfactory to one juror, A. J. Jones, who declared that it did not go far enough. For several hours the report was delayed because he refused to sign it. He insisted that there should be no mincing of matters, but that the names of the officials who had been transacting business in a questionable way should be mentioned, as also the instances of their looseness. The report finds:

First—That many hundreds of bills were allowed by the supervisors without being signed or even sworn to, as required by law, and that some were unjust and without merit.

Second—The bills were allowed without being itemized, as required by law.

Third—That some officials have not made reports according to law.

Fourth—That the supervisors have not kept a bridge record, as required by law.

Fifth—That supervisors file claims and receive pay for divers persons.

Sixth—That individual supervisors transact important business without taking it before the entire board.

Iowa Farmer Robbed.

Sioux City, Dec. 12.—By stealing the receipt for a package of valuables placed in the safe of the Great Northern hotel at Chicago, a clever thief was enabled to get possession of money, diamonds and other jewelry to the amount of $1,000, the property of Edward C. Hovey, of Sioux City. E. C. Hovey is a farmer who lives near North Riverside.

Chelsea Suspects Released.

Chelsea, Dec. 10.—The two men who were arrested at Keystone, suspected of being concerned in the murder of Marshal Smith, have been released, as it was shown they were not the right ones.

$150,000 FOR VICKSBURG

That Sum Is Asked in Report of State Commission.

Des Moines, Dec. 16.—A state appropriation of $150,000 is asked for by the Vicksburg commission in its report to Governor Shaw, which has been filed by Colonel J. K. P. Thompson, of Rock Rapids, chairman of the commission. The commission recommends this sum be expended for the erection of an elaborate state monument, one monument for each regiment and battery engaged in the campaign and siege of Vicksburg, and for the erection of such historical tablets, monuments and markers as may be decided upon by a commission to be named for that purpose. The further recommendation is made that the legislature authorize the governor to appoint a commission to consist of five members to have charge of the erection of the memorial monuments.

The report is a lengthy, typewritten document and is replete with interesting information concerning the part taken by the troops of Iowa in the campaign and siege of Vicksburg. It takes up the work of the commission from its inception, and gives an account of its trip to the scenes about Vicksburg in November, 1900. A description is included of the national military park that has been set apart at Vicksburg in commemoration of the siege. This park contains 1,232 acres, and when it is improved as contemplated will have more than twenty-five miles of costly avenues and drives.

The report makes a strong showing as to the reasons why Iowa should feel the deepest interest in the erection of monuments appropriately to commemorate the campaigns about Vicksburg.

The fact that Iowa had more troops in this campaign of Grant's than any other state and more than in any other campaign or engagement in the civil war is emphasized.

"The conspicious part taken by the troops from Iowa in the Vicksburg campaign and the famous siege," says the report "is known to most of her citizens, and needs but to be referred to to compel the admiration of their brilliant achievements. It forms a radiant chapter in our history. Iowa had twenty-eight regiments of infantry, two of cavalry and two batteries engaged in the campaign and siege of Vicksburg. In the sixteen divisions composing the Army of the Tennessee, May 18 to July 4, Iowa had troops in ten and in the forty-six brigades she had troops in fourteen."

PAYNE HAS A PLAN.

Nevada Man Has a Scheme for Changing the Congressional Districts.

Des Moines, Dec. 14.—W. O. Payne, editor of the Nevada Representative, has a plan for the redistricting of the state for congressional representation and is busily engaged in furthering it. Payne was in the city and talked with a number of members of the house and senate concerning the matter.

Payne's plan is understood to involve a radical change in the present districts, paying no attention to present district lines or to the wishes of the Iowa delegation to keep the districts intact.

Senators who are here at the present time report that there are at least two other plans for redistricting in exsistence. One of them has been prepared by Senator Lester W. Lewis of the Fremont-Page district. It is understood that Senator Lewis is very strong in favor of redistricting the state according to an equitable distribution of population, with no attempt to retain the present boundary lines. It has been rumored that Mr. Herriott will name Senator Lewis as chairman of the committee on congressional districts, in spite of the fact that Senator Blanchard was chairman of the committee two years ago. The belief is obtaining among the senators generally that Mr. Herriott will be guided largely in the makeup of his committees by his opinions regarding matters of legislation rather than along the lines of precedent or custom.

CEDAR RAPIDS ELECTRIC ROADS.

City Expects to Be the Center of a Big Interurban System.

Cedar Rapids, Dec. 14.—It is being freely predicted that Cedar Rapids will within the next five years become the great center of the most important interurban system in Iowa. The construction of the Cedar Rapids, Iowa City and Southern, or Dows-Smith electric line, will be commenced as early in the spring as the conditions of weather will warrant. The articles of incorporation of the company indicate that it is the intention to build south from Iowa City, but so far no surveys have been made. Iowa City has been in hopes that the proposed line from Davenport to this city would be built via that city, but the State Press gives the following information:

"For the present, at least, we propose to run our line to Tipton, and from there to Cedar Rapids, as we feel that will take us through a better country with more towns than if we went to Cedar Rapids by the way of Iowa City."

Another company is figuring on an electric road to the northeastern part of the county, via Beaver park and Marion.

MAY BE FORCED INTO A TRUST.

Eastern Capitalists Want to Purchase Iowa Coal Mines.

Oskaloosa, Dec. 14.—Coal men here have been approached by a representative of Harry Taylor of the Wilmington Coal Company of Chicago, for the purchase of their mines. The man admitted that J. Pierpont Morgan was behind the deal, and that it meant the consolidation of the bituminous coal industry of the country. The local men were given to understand that if they did not sell they could prepare themselves to quit business. This visit has caused considerable uneasiness among operators here.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Dec. 16, 1901.

The last bulletin issued by the census department at Washintgon is on the subject of manufactures in Iowa, and much information is contained which is of much interest. In the first place the bulletin shows that Iowa has passed into a new era and has discovered that she can manufacture raw material into finished products as well as raise corn and fatten stock. There are now 14,819 factories in the state, whereas in 1890 there were but 7,440, and their product is now worth $164,617,877, wneras ten years ago it was $125,049,183, and twenty years ago was but $71, 045,926. It is shown that the wholesale slaughtering and packing of meats is the most important industry in the state, the 27 Iowa packing houses giving employment to a total of 2,887 wage earners, while the products of 1900 were valued at $25,695,044, or 15.6 per cent of the total value of state manufactures. The manufacture of butter, cheese and condensed milk in factories occupies second place as a state industry, there being no less than 907 establishments, employing 1,133 wage earners and turning out a product valued at $15,846,077. The increase in the value of this output during the decade was 50.3 per cent. Third place in state is held by the flour and grist mills, there being 702 such establishments, employing 1,285 wage earners, and turning out a product worth $13,823,083. There were 264 establishments engaged in the manufacture of lumber and timber products in 1900, and these employed 2,793 men and produced $8,677,058 in the way of a manufactured product. In 1890 the product was much larger, being worth $12,056,302 that year the decrease during the decade being 28 per cent. An interesting description is given the pearl button factories, an industry of recent origin. In 1900 there were 53 establishments, with 1,042 wage earners and products valued at $866,538, the leading center of industry being Muscatine, where in 1898 they have five completely organized plants and 28 saw works. The report says that almost every Iowa town between Sabula and Fort Madison on the river has a plant.

Iowa State College at Ames has a right to plume itself on its tremendous victory at the live stock show just ended in Chicago, where it took about all the prizes there were to take in college and class exhibits and in the stock judging contests. Following were the prizes won: On steers, six first prizes, three seconds, two championships; on hogs, two first prizes, one second, one championship; in judging, the Spoor trophy and most of the money prizes.

In the stock judging contest the Iowa college team was composed of H. O. Tollier, F. B. Kennick, R. J. Kinzer, J. T. Hoover. Not only did they win the Spoor trophy, but they took $5 out of every possible $7, took the grand sweepstakes, twenty-one class prizes, and out of $1,450 took $1,018.

The experiment station also took second for the best all 'round exhibit.

The sheriffs of Iowa in state convention elected new officers for the ensuing year; named a legislative committee; referred the matter of an equitable salary law to the legislative committee after failing to reach an agreement between different proposed measures; endorsed Sheriff J. B. Lewis, of Clay county, for sergeant-at-arms of the next legislature; passed a resolution of sympathy for the family of the late Sheriff Richardson, of Iowa county; suggested a bill for the legislature providing for the payment of regular salaries to deputy sheriffs; and adjourned to meet in this city a year hence. The new officers elected are the following: President, R. C. Kennelley, of Guthrie; vice-president, Lew Hodson, of Warren; secretary and treasurer, Geo. W. Mattern, of Polk.

Representative John Hughes Jr., of Iowa county, will introduce at the coming session of the legislature his anti-pass bill which gained him such notoriety two years ago. Mr. Hughes says that he has not changed his mind about the necessity for such a bill, and inasmuch as it came within one vote of passing the house he believes that there is a demand for such a bill again. Mr. Hughes was chairman of the committee on congressional districts in the last assembly, and was a member of the committee on ways and means, suppression of intemperance, banks and banking, labor, private corporations, military and county and township organization. Mr. Hughes is a strong believer in the reforms advocated by John Herriott, was a Cummins man during the last campaign, and is thoroughly in accord with the principles of the men who will control the coming legislature. He has been named in connection with the chairmanship of the committee on ways and means along with Clarke of Dallas.

The state board of agriculture voted unanimously to engage the orchestra at the girl's industrial school at Mitchellville for three days at the coming state fair. John Cownie of the state board of control appeared before the board and presented the matter. The orchestra is composed of thirty-five members, who have been drilled by Superintendent Fitzgerald to a high degree of perfection. The girls filled an egagement at Midland Chautauqua last summer and were disappointed that they were not engaged by the fair management last fall. They will come for actual expenses, and it is expected that they will prove a good feature at the fair.

Portia Washington, the daughter of Booker T. Washington, is a student at Wellesley college.

CONGRESS.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Senate—Aside from the Tillman-McLaurin incident, the proceedings were unimportant. Bills were introduced to authorize the construction of a railroad across the territory of Alaska; giving the United States jurisdiction in cases of lynching and making the crime of participation in lynchings punishable by death; defining conspiracy in restraint of trade.

Washington, Dec. 11.—Senate.—The senate after routine business, went into executive session. Senator Hoar presented the report of the committee of judiciary recommending the confirmation of Attorney General Knox. He made a brief statement refering to the protest against confirmation made by the anti-trust league, but said that after giving careful attention to this representation the committee had decided to recommend the confirmation. No oppostion was voiced, but action on the nomination was postponed by common consent. The senate, before taking up the isthmian canal treaty proceeded to pass upon other nominations, of which there are an exceptionally large number before the senate. At 1:55 an adjournment until Friday was taken.

House—Speaker Henderson, at the session of the house yesterday, announced the appointment of the committees. Usually the committees are not appointed until after the holiday recess, but Speaker Henderson had the situation well in hand when congress met, and having completed the lists he announced them. The early appointment of the committees should facilitate legislation considerably. A general speech on the Philippines was delivered by the venerable ex-speaker, Galusha A. Grow of Pennsylvania. Mr. Burke of South Dakota formally announced the death of Senator Kyle, and as a mark of respect the house immediately adjourned. The adjournment was until Friday.

Washington, Dec. 12.—Senate—The house concurrent resolution providing for a holiday adjournment from December 19 until January 6, 1902, was referred to the committee on appropriations. The senate at 12:22 p. m., on motion of Mr. Lodge, went into executive session to further consider the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, and at 2:06 p. m. adjourned until today. Two speeches on the Hay-Pauncefote treaty were made in the executive session, one by Senator Bacon, in opposition to the treaty, and the other by Senator Cullom, the prospective chairman of the committee on foreign relations, in support of it.

Washington, Dec. 13.—House—The house, after less than an hour's session today, adjourned until Tuesday. The bill to temporarily provide revenue for the Philippine islands was reported by Mr. Payne, and by unanimous consent an order for the consideration of this bill on Tuesday and Wednesday next was adopted, general debate to close at 4 o'clock Wednesday, when the bill will be placed upon its passage.

VENEZUELA IS ANGRY.

Uncle Sam's Support of Germany Is the Cause.

Willemstad, Island of Curacos, Dec. 14.—Via Haytien cable—There has been a halt in the exchange of communications between Germany and Venezuela, owing to publication in the newspapers of Curacos of cable dispatches from the United States setting forth that the government at Washington will not oppose any steps which Germany may take to enforce her rights in Venezuela, with the exception of preventing the annexation of Venezuela territory. As a result the newspaper attacks on Germany have ceased, but the semi-official papers are now attacking the United States and say that Washington is authorizing Germany to take action in her dispute with Venezuela and looks upon the latter country as a part of the territory of the United States.

It is believed here that Germany at the end of the present month will take steps to obtain a due acnowledgment of her claims of $2,000,000 arising from losses sustained by German citizens during the last revolution here and disallowed by Venezuela, who answered that Germany should present her claim before the special Venezuelan courts appointed to pass upon such matters. But Germany, the United States, Great Britain and France refused to appeal to these courts. Italy alone, being bound by a former treaty, was oblidged to present her claims to the Venezuelan courts. The claim of the Disconto bank of Berlin will probably be included in the claims presented by Germany.

PIANOS FOR CHRISTMAS.

No gift can be more appropriate and acceptable at the season of joy and cheer than a fine, high-grade piano. And no piano is finer or of a higher grade than the "WONDERFUL" A. B. CHASE PIANO, manufactured in Norwalk, Ohio, and recommended by the highest authorities, musical and otherwise, from President McKinley down.

You can obtain one of these "wonderful" pianos direct from the factory, "on trial," on most liberal terms, by addressing the manufacturers at Norwalk, Ohio, or their state representative, Nathan Ford, 1620 Sixth avenue, Des Moines, Iowa, enclosing this notice.

Boers Taken by Surprise.

London, Dec. 12—Lord Kitchener in a dispatch from Standerton, Transvaal colony, dated Tuesday, December 10th, announces that General Bruce Hamilton, after a night's march, surprised and captured practically all the Boer Bethel command at Trichardsfontein early that day. Seventeen Boers were killed and 131 made prisoners.

MARY THE MAID OF
A Story of English Life.

By JOSEPH HATTON.

(CHAPTER IV.—Continued.)

At the same time Dick had no greater admirer than Andrew Foster, for the very reason that Morley admired his niece. Dick had qualities Foster did not possess, resources he could not understand, was always merry, and combined with the manners and appearance of a prince, rare generosity.

Unfortunately for the continuation of Foster's good opinion, Dick had of late made nothing and spent much, his gallantries being as expensive as his personal extravagance in other directions. Moreover, he had recently endangered both Foster's neck and his own by a piece of unnecessary recklessness that had rendered it desirable they should seek fresh woods and pastures new for their future operations. This had brought them into Yorkshire; and their quarry, as Foster called it, was this very Bellingham who had supped in the same room with them, and had been spotted by Dick with his usual promptitude.

The next morning when they were getting up the travelers had an interesting conversation.

"He is going to Newcastle," said Foster; "on his return he will stop at York."

"Yes," said Dick.

"Black Diston will shadow him meanwhile, and we will meet him at a convenient bend in the road near the abbey if the time is convenient."

"The money is not in doubt?"

"Not in the least; we have information from a clerk in the bank."

"The young fellow we drank with at Leeds last night?"

"You are devilish quick—the same."

"Ah, now you are quite well again, Andy; you have not paid me a compliment for a week."

"I hope to pay you several before the month is out, and to see ourselves provided for the winter."

"Always practical," said Dick; "and between now and the Bellingham incident, what is your proposal?"

"The program is yours, not mine. We move on today, get acquainted with the roads, visit Harrogate, take a glance at York, and make dispositions for retreat to Whitby, where a sloop will be lying at anchor for us."

"You will forgive me if I change the program."

"Change it," exclaimed Foster; "it is a settled scheme, and we are on it. And I never made a more complete plan of retreat nor a longer one, by your own wish."

"I shall take up my quarters here during those ten days."

"Then by all the oaths which bind us I will not forgive you," said Foster, hissing the words between his broken teeth.

"Why not?" asked Dick, paying more than usual attention to his toilet.

"Because you are at the old game; and I will neither be ruined nor hanged for you, except in the way of business—though, mark me, Dick, I will not tamely give you up. You are necessary to this work—it has got to be done. When it is done, you can come and stay here until you rot; for, whatever happens, I have done with you when this job is over."

"There is something wrong, truly," said Dick. "I have thought so many times this six weeks; you talk so much and so fast—reticent Andy, we used to call you—loquacious would be more truthful now."

"I mean business, Dick—never so much as on this occasion—and neither heaven nor hell nor you shall stop me, and if it comes to a quarrel between you and me, let it come—only don't forget that it ends one of us."

Foster spoke with calm, brutal deliberation. His manner and his language evidently made an unusual impression on the younger traveler, who paused while buckling his shoes, looked up into the sinister face of his companion and bit his lip as if to stay an angry retort.

"Your language is as [illegible] before face," said Dick; "Shall we teeth like Wild [illegible] shooting match in she springs [illegible] produce a funeral into go out a[illegible] entertainment of Kirkstha[illegible] the y[illegible] what other delightful surprise th[illegible] you in store for the natives?"

"I mean friendship, honor, share and share alike; or I mean what we all mean when a comrade turns traitor."

"Who is conducting this business?" asked Dick, standing up and confronting Foster.

"Up to now, you."

"Then listen. I have other schemes beyond the Bellingham business which you will be good enough to allow me to develop in my own way. It is my intention for the next week or so to fish in the Aire. I shall go into Leeds in the morning and buy ba[illegible] and tackle; you will amuse yourse[illegible] as you please in the meantime. [illegible] think you should reconnoiter Harr[illegible] gate and York—study the roads—[illegible] will be ready to join you when yo[illegible] want me."

"I know you well enough," said Fo[illegible] ter, "to understand this change [illegible] front. I have said all I intend to sa[illegible] —you know me well enough to kno[illegible] what I mean. I am friend or foe, [illegible] you elect—friend to the death, foe [illegible] the death. You are in command; [illegible] the affair miscarries through you [illegible] will be our last campaign, and——"

"That is enough, Mr. Andrew Fo[illegible] ter. I have stood your insolence a[illegible] your threats for auld lang syne—y[illegible] have inflicted them upon me becau[illegible] I have been friend enough to go [illegible] step beyond our rights of share a[illegible] share alike. I owe you a little mor[illegible] —it is only the low-born cur w[illegible] serves his friend and mentions it—[illegible] will call a truce on this quarrel; h[illegible] you shall answer it! And now let [illegible] stop, or, if you were fifty times [illegible] comrade and fifty times Andrew Fo[illegible] ter, I would strangle you where y[illegible] stand."

As he spoke, the young man, by [illegible] quick action of his right arm, pinn[illegible] Foster to the wall as if he were in [illegible] vise.

"There! Curse you, strong as y[illegible] are. I could tear your heart out, [illegible] you had one! Curse you for a huc[illegible] stering wretch!"

CHAPTER V.

Andy writhed under the yount[illegible] man's grip and words, grew livid an[illegible] was clearly afraid.

Suddenly releasing him, Dick flu[illegible] him to the ground, and drew a pist[illegible] from his breeches pocket.

Foster looked up for a moment, the[illegible] gathered himself together and aro[illegible] to his feet. He did not speak; neith[illegible] did Dick. The deadly silence was [illegible] last broken by Dick.

"Am I the chief?" he said, replacin[illegible] his weapon.

"You are the chief," Foster replied

"This is our first serious quarrel, [illegible] it be our last," said Dick.

"It shall," Foster replied; "the ma[illegible] who can twist Andrew Foster about a[illegible] if he were a weathercock is goo[illegible] enough to follow."

"You think so, truly? And no knif[illegible] in your thoughts, no knife or pisto[illegible] on a dark night when your man is of[illegible] his guard?"

"I am sincere," said Foster, thor[illegible] oughly cowed.

"Your hand on it."

Foster put out his hand. Dick took it, and as he pressed it in a peculiar way repeated part of the oath which bound the little company of so-called merchants together. "And whosoever he shall break his oath of fealty to the chief then and there in authority, his life shall be forfeit and may be taken by one and all; or, failing this just execution, he shall be deserted by all in the hour of his need."

"Those are the words, I think?"

"They are," said Foster.

"You still subscribe to them?"

"I do."

"Then it is I who spare your life, Andy; not you who spare mine, eh?"

"That is so," said the red-eyed sneak.

"And we will forget all that has occurred to shake our tempers [illegible] stall."

"And at Leeds," said [illegible] to make the amends [illegible]

"We are friends," said Dick, [illegible] ers, once more. "After [illegible] pleasant [illegible] your waist turnpike, [illegible] will [illegible] ek you w[illegible] all meet you Foster; and such [illegible] —a mile [illegible] enforced by authand [illegible] at 9," with superior skilards [illegible] ugh, that, half an hour aft[illegible] were the young traveler and his [illegible] scably as breakfasting together as [illegible] shadow if there had never bee[illegible] recourse. of a cloud upon their [illegible] in the private They preferred to [illegible] the high road; room that overlook[illegible] other guests in Bellingham and t[illegible] the general room.

It was a cozy wainscoated apartment, this private room that flanked the bar, and snatched it with a large bow-window which commanded a fine view of Kirkshall Abbey, with the Aire and a stretch of green meadows in the foreground, and in the distance glimpses of the river as it flowed in crystal beauty through one of the loveliest valleys in England.

As the two travelers were finishing their morning meal they were attracted by Tom Sheffield, the man of all work, leading to the door a smart cob, which was followed by a young fellow

CABLES MAY [illegible]

Wireless Telegraphy Across the Atlantic Ocean.

St. Johns, N. F., Dec. 16.—Signor Marconi announced the most wonderful scientific discovery of modern times Saturday night in stating that he had received electric signals across the Atlantic ocean from his station in Cornwall, England. He exclaimed that in England he had an electric force, generated there, a hundred times greater than at his ordinary stations. Before he left England he arranged that the electrician in charge of the station, which is located at Poldhu, should begin sending signals daily after a certain date which Signor Marconi would cable him after perfecting his arrangemens there. Signor Marconi arrived here a week ago Friday, selected Signal hill, at the entrance to the harbor, as an experimenting station, and moved his equip-

Last Mo[illegible] station to begin sending to Poldhu p. m. daily and to continue them at 3 6 p. m., these hours being respectively 11:30 a. m. to 2:30 p. m., St. John's time. During these hours Wednesday Signor Marconi elevated a kite with an aerial wire, by means of which signals are sent or received. He remained at the recorder attached to receiving apparatus, and to his profound satisfaction signals were received by him at intervals, according to the programme arranged previously with the operator at Poldhu. These signals consisted of repeating the letter "S," which, in Marconi's code, is made by three dots or quick strokes. This signal was repeated so frequently and so in accordance with the detailed plan to provide safegaurds against possibility of mistake that Signor Marconi was satisfied that it was a genuine transmission from England.

Again on Thursday, during the same hours, the kite was elevated and the same signals were renewed. This made the assurance so complete that Signor Marconi cabled to his principles in England and also informed the governor of Newfoundland, Sir Cavendish Boyle, who appraised the British cabinet of the success of the experiments.

Signor Marconi, though satisfied of the genuineness of the signals and that he has succeeded in his attempts in stablishing communication across the Atlantic without the use of wires, emphasizes the fact that the system is yet only in an embryonic state, and that the possibilities of its ultimate development is demonstrated by the success of the present experiments with incomplete and imperfect apparatus, as the signals can only be received by the most sensitively adjusted apparatus, and Signor Marconi is working under great difficulties owing to the condition prevailing here. The Cornish coast is 1,700 miles from St. Johns.

OFFER IS TO BE REJECTED.

Carnegie's Proffer Unsatisfactory to President Roosevelt.

Washington, Dec. 16.—It is said to be definitely decided that President Roosevelt will not accept the offer of Andrew Carnegie of $10,000,000 of bonds of the United States Steel corporation for the purpose of founding an institution for higher education in this city. The views of prominent visitors and representatives, as they have been given to the president, are practically unanimous against the acceptance of the offer in its present shape. The provision attached to the offer that the government shall hold the bonds for a term of years is considered especially objectionable. The president, however, is very hopeful that an adjustment can be made by which Mr. Carnegie will convert the gift which he tendered into cash or United States bonds and that the gift will then be accepted in that shape.

BOER LAAGER SURPRISED.

British Inflict Loss of Sixteen Dead and Seventy-six Wounded.

London, Dec. 14.—Reporting to the war office from Pretoria, Lord Kitchener says:

"Bruce Hamilton, after a long night march, surprised Piet Viljoen's laager, at dawn, December 15, at Witkraens, twenty-five miles northwest of Ermelo, killed sixteen Boers and captured seventy-six armed prisoners. Many others were wounded and were left at farms. He also recaptured one of Benson's guns, the other having been destroyed. Two field cornets are among the prisoners. The recaptured gun is in good order and was used against the retreating enemy."

Right Hon. John Broderick, secretary of state for war, received the government congratulations upon Gen. Hamilton's brilliant achievements.

A FAMINE PREDICTED.

CONGRESS DIVIDES

Washington, Dec. [illegible] prolonged, interesting and important naval tribunal ever held in this country came to a close yesterday, having in open and secret session lasted three months short by one week, when Secretary Long was handed the findings of the court of inquiry which inquired into the conduct of Rear Admiral [illegible] Santiago campaign by George Dewey, president, and by Samuel C. Lemley, judge advocate. This is a form said to be recognized in all courts of inquiry, the signatures of the other members not being necessary, but it is explained that Admiral Dewey signed the second, a minor report, to express his qualification of or dissent from the views expressed by the court comprising, beside himself, Admirals Benham and Ramsay in the first report. It is said at the navy department that there will be no further proceedings in this celebrated case on the department's initiative. Secretary Long and Judge Advocate Lemly positively decline to discuss the findings in any phase. The court itself recommends no further proceedings, owing to the lapse of time.

A representative of the Associated Press conveyed the first information of the findings of the court to Admiral Schley. He was seated in the public reception room of a hotel chatting with friends and several newspaper men and evidenced no signs of nervousness over the outcome. When the conclusions of Admiral Dewey were read to him, Admiral Schley showed his pleasure, and it was evident from his manner that he regarded the statement from Admiral Dewey as a vindication of his cause.

Following is the opinion of Admirals Benham and Ramsay, the majority of the court:

"Commodore Schley, in command of the flying squadron, should have proceeded with utmost dispatch off Cienfuegos and should have maintained a close blockade of that port.

"He should have endeavored on May 23, at Cienfuegos, to obtain information regarding the Spanish squadron by communicating with the insurgents at the place designated in the memorandum delivered to him at 8:15 a. m. of that date.

"He should have proceeded from Cienfuegos to Santiago de Cuba with all dispatch, and should have disposed his vessels with a view of intercepting the enemy in any attempt to pass the flying squadron.

"He should not have delayed the squadron for the Eagle.

"He should not have made the retrograde turn westward with his squadron.

"He should have promptly obeyed the navy department's order of May 25th.

"He should have endeavored to capture or destroy the Spanish vessels at anchor near the entrance of Santiago harbor on May 29 and 30.

"He did not do his utmost with the force at his command to capture or destroy the Colon and other vessels of the enemy which he attacked on May 31.

"By commencing the engagement on July 3 with the port battery and turning the Brooklyn around at port helm, Commodore Schley caused her to lose distance and position with the Spanish vessels, and especially with the Viscaya and Colon.

"The turn of the Brooklyn to starboard was made to avoid getting into dangerous proximity to the Spanish vessels. The turn was made toward the Texas and caused that vessel to stop and back her engines to avoid possible collision.

"Admiral Schley did injustice to Lieut. Commander A. G. Hodgson in publishing only a portion of the correspondence which passed between them.

"Commodore Schley's conduct in connection with the events of the Santiago campaign prior to June 1, 1898, was characterized by vacillation, dilatoriness and lack of enterprise.

"His official reports regarding the coal supply and the coaling facilities of the flying squadron were inaccurate and misleading.

"His conduct during the battle of July 3 was self-possessed and he encouraged in his own person his subordinate officers and men to fight courageously."

The following is the opinion of Admiral Dewey:

"In the opinion of the undersigned the passage from Key West to Cienfuegos was made by the flying squadron with all possible dispatch. Commodore Schley having in view importance of arriving off Cienfuegos with as much coal as possible in the ships' bunkers.

"The blockade of Cienfuegos was effective.

"Commodore Schley in permitting the steamer Adula to enter the port of Cienfuegos expected to obtain information concerning the Spanish squadron from her when she came out.

"The passage from Cienfuegos to a point about twenty-two miles south of Santiago was made with as much dispatch as was possible while keeping the squadron to a unit.

"The blockade of Santiago was effective.

"Commodore Schley was the senior officer of our squadron off Santiago when the Spanish squadron attempted to escape on the morning of July 3, 1898. He was in absolute command and is entitled to the credit due to such commanding officer for the glorious victory which resulted in the total destruction of the Spanish ships."

$150,000 FOR VICKSBURG

That Sum Is Asked in Report of State Commission.

Des Moines, Dec. 16.—A state appropriation of $150,000 is asked for by the Vicksburg commission in its report to Governor Shaw, which has been filed by Colonel J. K. P. Thompson, of Rock Rapids, chairman of the commission. The commission recommends this sum be expended for the errection of an elaborate state monument, one monument for each regiment and battery engaged in the campaign and siege of Vicksburg, and for the erection of such historical tablets, monuments and markers as may be decided upon by a commission to be named for that purpose. The further recommendation is made that the legislature authorize the governor to appoint a commission to consist of five members to have charge of the erection of the memorial monuments.

The report is a lengthy, typewritten document and is replete with interesting information concerning the part taken by the troops of Iowa in the campaign and siege of Vicksburg. It takes up the work of the commission from its inception, and gives an account of its trip to the scenes about Vicksburg in November, 1900. A description is included of the national military park that has been set apart at Vicksburg in commemoration of the siege. This park contains 1,232 acres, and when it is improved as contemplated will have more than twenty-five miles of costly avenues and drives.

The report makes a strong showing as to the reasons why Iowa should feel the deepest interest in the erection of monuments appropriately to commemorate the campaigns about Vicksburg.

The fact that Iowa had more troops in this campaign of Grant's than any other state and more than in any other campaign or engagement in the civil war is emphasized.

"The conspicious part taken by the troops from Iowa in the Vicksburg campaign and the famous siege," says the report "is known to most of her citizens, and needs but to be referred to to compel the admiration of their brilliant achievements. It forms a radiant chapter in our history. Iowa had twenty-eight regiments of infantry, two of cavalry and two batteries engaged in the campaign and siege of Vicksburg. In the sixteen divisions composing the Army of the Tennessee, May 18 to July 4, Iowa had troops in ten and in the forty-six brigades she had troops in fourteen."

PAYNE HAS A PLAN.

Nevada Man Has a Scheme for Changing the Congressional Districts.

Des Moines, Dec. 14.—W. O. Payne, editor of the Nevada Representative has a plan for the redistricting of the state for congressional representation and is busily engaged in furthering it. Payne was in the city and talked with a number of members of the house and senate concerning the matter.

Payne's plan is understood to involve a radical change in the present districts, paying no attention to present district lines or to the wishes of the Iowa delegation to keep the districts intact.

Senators who are here at the present time report that there are at least two other plans for redistricting in exsistence. One of them has been prepared by Senator Lester W. [illegible] of the Fremont-Page district. It is understood that Senator Lewis is also strong in favor of redistricting the state according to an equitable distribution of population, with no attempt to retain the present boundary lines. It has been rumored that Mr. Herriott will name Senator Lewis as chairman of the committee on congressional districts, in spite of the fact that Senator Blanchard was chairman of the committee two years ago. The sentiment is obtaining among the senators generally that Mr. Herriott [illegible] largely in the makeup of the committee.

Read what our holiday advertisers have to say this week. This should prove interesting reading for you, as you will want to know where the best place is to buy your holiday gifts.

Through an oversight we failed to change our market reports last week. This will not occur again. We will change our market reports just before going to press whether we get anything else in the paper or not.

In spite of the disagreeable weather. Klemme merchants have been doing a rushing business the past week. It only requires an inspection of the stocks to sea that our merchants are alive to the wants of the shopping public. Trade in Klemme and you'll get satisfaction.

Last Friday was one of those "chilly" days that we read about the thermometers about town registering about 10 below zero. And Saturday morning they registered 32 degrees below. This is reported as the coldest December weather in this country since 1882. Well, it was cold enough.

Two of our town young men appeared on the street last Monday morning looking a little the worse for wear. One had a badly swollen optic while the other had a bad cut on the cheek just north of his proboscis. We don't know what the trouble was Neither Al nor George would enlighten us.

If you want to buy your holiday goods right come and do your trading in Klemme. This is no joke. Our dealers are well stocked up with these goods and their prices are right. A look over the displays in our stores will soon convince you that we speak the truth. Klemme merchants will not be outdone by any in the county.

The statement of the State Savings Bank of Klemme appears in this issue. As will readily be seen by the figures given, this reliable institution is flourishing under the present able management. The Klemme bank is one of our town's strongest institutions and that it has the confidence of our people and the people of the surrounding country is very evident, and that the bank deserves this confidence is a well known fact.

Westward the star of journalism takes its way. Ten years ago Massachusetts claimed the highest general intelligence of all the states, because within its borders were the greatest number of newspapers in proportion to the population. Now comes the United States census and shows a remarkable change in the last decade. The center of intelligence—on the newspaper basis—has moved beyond the Mississippi river. Iowa now holds the place that Massachusetts held ten years ago. and leads the states with the largest number of newspapers in proportion to the number of inhabitants. The census gives 23,916 as the present number of printing establishments in the country. a gain of 1,916 since 1890.

The U. S. Civil Service Commission will hold examinations at several places in each state during March and April, to secure young men and women for the government service. 9,889 persons secured positions last year through these examinations. Probably 10,000 appointments will be made this year. All appointments are for life and for most positions only common school education is required. Salaries at appointment vary from $660 to $1200 a year with liberal promotions afterward. Politics is not considered. This affords a good opportunity for people between 16 and 45 years of age. Those desiring places of this kind can get full information about them. free, by writing to the Columbian Correspondence College, Washington, D. C. and asking for its Civil Service catalogue, No, 3.

None but the initiated knows the accuracy required in a printing office, says the Press Spectator. The average reader who detects a misspelled word or a letter upside down feels that his mission on earth is not fully accomplished till he has called the attention of the overworked editor to the glaring defect. He does not notice the thousands and tens of thousands of letters that are in the right place nor the multitude of words correctly spelled, but his eagle eye is glued on the one that is out of place. So it is with our deeds. Man does a thousand good deeds and no attention is paid to them, but if he makes one mistake it is flashed all over the world. A lifetime may be spent in building up a reputation that may be wrecked in a moment. The world is a harsh critic, exacting to a fault, and if the Father of all does not temper justice with mercy, we may fail of heaven.

RESOLUTIONS.

The Tramp's Christmas

He was such an unkempt, sad looking creature when he presented himself at the back door that Christmas morning asking for something to eat that Mary was more than half inclined to disobey the rule of the Tracy household, which stood good at all seasons of the year as well as at Yuletide, and refuse his request. Before she could do so, however, Mrs. Tracy herself came into the kitchen, and, with scant show of hospitality, Mary allowed the tramp to enter.

She had always secretly grumbled because Mrs. Tracy would allow no one to be turned away hungry, and today there was no excuse, for the family had just finished breakfast and there was plenty of food left to give the man a substantial meal.

"Goin' to come and rob the house to-night, like's not," was Mary's inward comment as she put the coffee pot on the stove, and she watched the man narrowly to see if he were making a mental plan of the house, but her suspected burglar did not once look up from the floor as he sat nervously twirling his hat.

"He's young and able to work," Mary soliloquized, as she bustled to and fro putting eatables on one end of the kitchen table. "Might be tolerable good lookin', too, if he was shaved and dressed up—and—washed."

"There!" she snapped, setting a cup of coffee down on the table with as much force as she could without spilling its contents. "Your vitual's set."

The man, scarcely raising his eyes, dropped his hat and hitched his chair near the table.

Just as he eagerly clutched the cup of fragrant coffee, a door opened, a pair of merry blue eyes peered into the kitchen and a shrill little voice piped out, "Hello, man, merry Christmas!"

The "man" started, shifted uneasily in his chair, but made no reply. Undaunted by his chilling reception, the door was burst open, and a golden-haired little boy burst into the room. With the unquestioning confidence of childhood, he walked up to the stranger and said gravely, "I said merry Christmas."

"Run into the other room, Donald," Mary put in hastily.

The man shot a half-defiant glance at her, but did not look at the child.

"I don't want to," the little fellow replied. "He's company, and mamma said I could 'tain him. I bringed the new Mother Doose book dat I dot from Santa Claus to show he," and, pushing a chair close to the table, from it he mounted the end of the table opposite the man, and sat there like a sweet, rosy cherub observing some dark spirit.

The tramp, who seemed almost famished, paused just long enough to look wonderingly at his strange little companion, and then gave his full attention to the meal.

"Don't you want to talk?" Donald demanded.

"I'm not fit—that is, 'er, I don't know how to talk to such a little kid," the man answered.

"All right, I guess you want to eat," the child observed, graciously. "I guess I'll read to you," opening the book he was holding in his arms. "You know Mother Goose, don't you?"

The man shook his head, but something like a smile flitted across his sullen features.

"Well, I'll show you the pictures and read you 'bout 'em. This one," and Donald slid along the table as near to the man as the dishes would allow, "this one is about 'Blue Boy.' I'll read 'bout him," and, in a very solemn and impressive tone, he repeated the rhyme of "Little Boy Blue."

"Did you ever sleep under a haymow?" he asked, suddenly, at the conclusion of his recitation.

The man frowned slightly at the childish query, bit his lip and nodded his head.

"Was it nice?" went on his interrogator. "Did your mamma let you?"

The man's lower lip was pressed cruelly by his teeth at this question, but a surly shake of his head was his only reply.

"Oh, was you naughty and runned away?" the boy asked, slowly.

Had Mary been an observing girl, she would have seen, under the scrubby beard and grime on the haggard face, a dull red flush spread to the roots of his shaggy, neglected hair.

"Didn't your mamma come to look for you?" continued the little tormentor.

"She didn't know where I was," the tramp answered, in a strange, muffled voice.

"Then you hided from her!" exclaimed the child, with blue eyes wide open.

The man was looking out of the window now, forgetful of his good breakfast.

"YOU KNOW MOTHER GOOSE, DON'T YOU?"

"I was naughty once and runned away," Donald prattled on, "and when my mamma found me she was just awful glad, but she cried, too—wasn't that funny? And she said mothers was always glad when they got their boys back, even when they was big and runned awful far off, 'strayed into the paths'—I forget just what that part was, but she said I must always come back to her—an'—an'—I don't 'member any more, but I guess if you'd go back to your mamma she'd forget the naughty and be glad. Do you think she'd cry?"

The man cast one fierce look over his shabby person. "Cry!" he exclaimed, bitterly. "Oh——" he drew his breath hard between his teeth as the sight of the baby face choked back the oath that nearly escaped him.

"Isn't you goin' to eat any more?" chirped the little fellow, with awakened hospitality, noticing that his guest, sitting with his head on his hand, seemed to have lost his appetite. The child's voice roused him from his thoughts, and, seeing that Mary had paused in her work and was watching him curiously, he asked humbly, "Can I have some coffee?"

Meanwhile Donald was turning the pages of his book. "Here's a funny picture," he announced, pointing with his fat little finger, "but it's 'bout a dreadful naughty boy. I'll read 'bout him," and, in a very solemn and impressive tone, he repeated the tale of "Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son."

"It's dreadful bad to steal, you know," he commented, gravely. "My mamma says so, and, of course, she knows—mammas know most everything, don't they? Once—what do you think?—I stole! I didn't steal a pig like Tom, but I stole some little cakes, and my mamma talked to me a long time, and she told me so many things so I'd grow to be a good man. Did your mamma want you to be a good man, too?"

The man choked on a hasty cup of coffee, but made no reply. Donald did not seem to expect one, but chatted on. "I was 'fraid my mamma did not love me any more when I stole those cakes, 'cause she looked so sorry, but," with a happy little laugh, "seemed like she loved me more'n ever after. But I don't want to see her look sorry like that again. Did you ever make your mamma look sorry—out of her eyes, you know?"

A smothered groan from the stranger and, with a child's intuition of "something wrong," Donald sought to cheer and console, and said, reassuringly, "Well, you just go an' tell her you're sorry an' see if she don't be glad and love you. I most know she will."

The man had ceased eating and sat motionless with his head bowed on his breast until Mary approached and curtly asked if he were "done eatin'."

"Yes," he answered absently, and, looking wistfully at the child, he reached for his hat.

"Is you goin' to see your mamma?" questioned Donald, eagerly.

"Yes, my little man;" came the answer, in a clear, ringing voice that made Mary jump and drop a basin. "That's just where I am going. But first, tell me your name."

"I'm little Donald Robert Tracy, and my papa's big Donald Robert!"

"Good-by, little preacher. You're the best one I've ever heard," and just brushing the golden head with his lips, the tramp passed out of the door and went down the street, not with the slouching, hang-dog air with which he had approached the house, but with head erect and shoulders squared, he swung along with long, easy strides.

"Of all the ungrateful wretches!" exclaimed Mary, angrily, to Mrs. Tracy, who had slipped in through the half-open door. "He never even said 'thank you.'" Her mistress did not seem to hear, but, with shining eyes, gathered her little son up in her arms, and, as she pressed him closely to her, she whispered brokenly, "And a little child shall lead them."

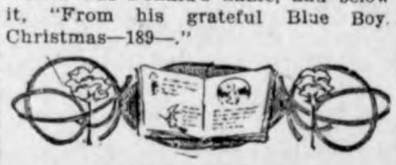
* * * * *

A year passed, and little Donald's "'taining" the tramp was forgotten by all save Mrs. Tracy. She often wondered what fruit the good seed sown by the innocent child last Christmas morning had borne. That he had been God's chosen instrument for working out some great end, her gentle heart never doubted.

It was, therefore, a great pleasure and satisfaction to her to receive a long letter from the "man." It was written from his home in a far eastern city, and told, in a simple, straightforward manner, the story of his downfall and how, moved by Donald's childish prattle, he had worked his way back home, resolved to begin life anew; how kind friends had helped him and encouraged him, and how he was doing well at his old trade of bookbinding.

"I was going from bad to worse," the letter ran, "and nothing is easier for a young fellow to do, and the road down to being a 'common tramp' is a short one when one gets started. When I came to your house that Christmas morning I was bitter, hard and desperate. No one living could have touched my heart as did that little blue-eyed boy. His little sermon, with its text taken from 'Mother Goose,' snatched this poor brand from the burning. Tell the little chap that I found my mamma, and she was glad as he said."

Accompanying the letter was a package of Christmas gifts, addressed to Donald. Among other things it contained a book—a copy of "Mother Goose" exactly like the one from which he had "read" to the man to "'tain him," exquisitely bound in white vellum. On the cover in gold letters was Donald's name, and below it, "From his grateful Blue Boy. Christmas—189—."



In England children hang their stockings at the foot of their beds. In America the whole family suspend their stockings from the mantelpiece of the sitting room, to save Santa Claus the trouble of ascending the stairs and entering each room to distribute his wares.

STORIETTES.

When the present Archbishop of Canterbury was Bishop of London, he was one day examining theological students on the matter of parish calls, and offered himself as an object-elsson for such a call. He went into the next room and lay down on a sofa, with his face to the wall, and a young Irishman, whos lot it was, entering directly after, walked up to him, laid his hand on Dr. Temple's shoulder, and said: "Ah, Frederick, Frederick!—the drink again!"

As an instance of the acuteness of "Al" Daggett, the former republican leader of Kings county, who is to manufacture postal cards for the United States government, the fact is recalled that when Seth Low was elected mayor of Brooklyn some years ago, he wrote to Mr. Daggett, offering to appoint, as commisioners of elections, one of any three men he might name. "Al" wrote three lines to the mayor as follows: "Charles Henry Cotton, C. H. Cotton, C. Henry Cotton." Needless to say, Mr. Cotton was appointed.

A professor in the medical school of the Long Island College, in Brooklyn, asked a student how much he would prescribe of a certain powerful poison. "A teaspoonful," was the reply. The professor made no comment, but the student a quarter of an hour later, realized that he had made a mistake and hurriedly said: "Professor I want to change my answer to that question." "Its too late, sir" responded the professor, curtly, looking at his watch. "Your patient has been dead fourteen minutes."

The following curious marriage notice appeared the other day in the London Times: "On Tuesday, the fifteenth inst., at Bottesfield, Lincolnshire, John Kirk, an occasional preacher in the Methodist connection, to Susanna Seaton, of Burringham, mantaumaker. The patient bride kept company near two years with a blacksmith of the same place, and was actually published with him in the church the very Sunday preceding her marriage, but for the reasons best known to herself eloped next day with the preacher; so true is it that we know not what a day may bring forth."

General Ballington Booth, of the Volunteers of America, tells a story of a prayer meeting held in New York on the East Side during the recent mayoralty campaign. In the midst of a prayer, he relates, one pious brother said: "Oh, Lord, we pray Thee that the democratic party may hang together in the coming election." "Amen, answer prayer, Lord," put in a republican who was near. "But I do not mean it as the republican brother means it, Lord. I pray that we may hang together in concord and accord," continued the democrat. "Amen, Lord," again said the republican; "any cord, so long as they hang."

SASKATCHEWAN, WESTERN CANADA IS CALLED THE "GARDEN OF EDEN."

By a Former Resident of Reed City, Michigan.

In a letter to the Reed City, Michigan, Clarion, Mr. Jas. G. Armstrong, of Meltford, Saskatchewan, says, writing on 27th May, 1901:

"This is a fine country for a poor man, as he can go out on the hay slews and cut all the hay he needs. He turns his cattle out on the prairie, and when he is not using his horses he turns them out also. There is such an abundance of food, they never wander away.

"A lady, who has lived here eight years told me that this was the original 'Garden of Eden'. I certainly would believe it, if we could only find the apple trees. But as it is, we have many varieties of fruit—strawberries, cranberries, saskatoons, huckleberries, red and black currants, dewberries, plums, red and black cherries, and red raspberries. All of these fruits grow wild. Then the flowers that dot the prairies, making them look like a real garden. We have eaten of the wild red currants, and they are equal if not superior to those grown in Michigan. We have sweet corn 7½ inches high. As the Western farmers are all done seeding, branding cattle and sheep shearing are now progressing. Wool is only five cents a pound, and many ranchers have on hand last year's clip. I enclose you a potato blossom, slice of new potato, which measured 6½ inches when cut. This is no fairy tale, as we are so much farther than Reed City. It is all facts. Come up and see. This has been truly called the 'garden of the west.' With fruits and flowers, lakes and streams, fish and fowl, beautiful rivers, tracts of timber and mountains, what more does a man want?"

Information concerning all parts of Western Canada will be cheerfully given by communicating with the agent of the government of Canada, whose advertisement appears elsewhere.

Don't wait for opportunity to call on you. Go and meet it half way.

We wish to call attention to the advertisement in this issue of the Haslam Land Co. of Winnipeg, Manitoba. They have had large dealings with land buyers in this state and they are the largest dealers in farm lands in Canada.

UNABLE TO STAND FOR MONTHS BECAUSE OF SPRAINED ANKLES.

Cured by St. Jacobs Oil.

(From the Cardiff Times.)

Among the thousands of voluntary endorsements of the great value of St. Jacob's Oil for sprains, stiffness and soreness, is that of Mrs. G. Thomas, 4 Alexandra Road, Gelli, Ysbrod, near Pontypridd, South Wales, who says:

"It is with great pleasure that I add my wiling testimony to the invaluable excellence of your celebrated St. Jacobs Oil, as experienced in my own case. I sprained both my ankles in walking down some steps so severely that I was unable to stand for several months. The pain I suffered was most severe and nothing that I used helped me until I applied St. Jacobs Oil, when they immediately became better daily, and in a short time I was able to go about, and soon after I was quite cured. I am now determined to advise all persons suffering from pains to use this wonderful remedy, which did so much for me."

Mrs. Thomas does not enlighten us as to what treatment she pursued during the months she was unable to stand, and during which time she was suffering so much, but we venture to suggest that had she called in any well-known medical man he would have at once prescribed St. Jacobs Oil, for it has conquered pain upwards of fifty years, and doctors know there is nothing so good. The proprietors of St. Jacob's oil have been awarded twelve gold medals by different international exhibitions as the premier pain-killing remedy of the world. The committees who made the awards were in each instance composed largely of the most eminent medical men obtainable. Mrs. Thomas evidently did not know the high opinion in which St. Jacobs Oil is held by almost every progressive medical man.

The common lizard changes its color like the chameleon. It will become black after remaining on black soil for about half a minute, but upon an old-fashioned wooden fence the animal soon assumes the motely gray hue of a weather-worn rail. Upon a green leaf the same lizard will soon take on a greenish tint.

The motto of a certain Kansas paper is to "Lie, Steal, Drink and Swear." The editor thus explains its meaning: "When you lie, let it be down to pleasant dreams; when you steal, let it be away from immoral associates; when you drink, let it be pure water; when you swear, let it be that you will patronize your home paper, pay your subscription, and not send your job work away from home."

Madame Modjeska, the popular actress, is a great joker. At a small social gathering, composed chiefly of Americans, she was asked to sing a song in her native tongue. At first she declined, but at last complied. the melody elicited enthusiastic compliments, some of her hearers declaring that the charm of the Polish words was irresistible. To an intimate friend Madame Modjeska afterward confided that, not being able to remember perfectly any Polish lyre, she had simply sung the numerals of her native tongue from one to a hundred!

New Cure for Rheumatism.

Hester, Mo., Dec. 16.—An unusual case which has recently come to light here is exciting the keenest interest among medical men. Mrs. Ellenor Guardhouse suffered for over forty years with Sciatic Rheumatism so severely and so constantly that her case has been regarded as chronic and absolutely incurable. At times the pain was almost unbearable and she could not rest day or night.

Some months ago she was induced to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, a remedy recently introduced in this neighborhood. The immediate results were magical and she continued till she had taken eight boxes, and now she declares she has not an ache or pain left. She believes that she is completely and permanently cured and as she has not used the pills for some months and is to-day in the best of health the doctors who were at first skeptical are amazed.

You might as well talk to an echo as to a person who always agrees with you.

HAIR SOFT AS SILK.

New Scientific Treatment Kills Dandruff Germs, and Makes Hair Soft.

It is an accepted fact, a proven fact, that dandruff is a germ disease; and it is also a demonstrated fact that Newbro's Herpicide kills the dandruff germ. Without dandruff falling hair will stop, and thin hair will thicken. Herpicide not only kills the dandruff germ, but it also makes hair as soft as silk. It is the most delightful hair dressing made. It cleanses the scalp from dandruff and keeps it clean and healthy. Itching and irritation are instantly relieved, and permanently cured. At all druggists. There's nothing "just as good." Take no substitute. Ask for "Herpicide."

BOATS FOR SOLDIERS.

NOVEL CONVEYANCE IN USE IN THE GERMAN ARMY.

Framework Constructed of Lances—Craft Will Hold from Twelve to Sixteen Men and Is Safe and Roomy—Innovation Considered a Success.

The German army, which has originated so many ingenious devices to facilitate military operations, has recently adopted a method for improvising boats that is both simple and effective.

The question of getting a company of soldiers across a body of water quickly when the obstacle is unexpected has always been an important one in military tactics and has never been solved quite satisfactorily.

Here, however, is a device that seems to combine all the requisites.

It is a boat, the framework of which is constructed of lances such as are used in the German army.

There is no trouble in putting this framework together.

It is easily adjusted and two or three men can complete the task in a few minutes.

The shell of the boat is a prepared piece of tarpaulin that does not weigh enough to make it a serious addition to a soldier's kit.

When this is stretched over the framework the boat is complete and ready for launching.

Each craft will hold from twelve to sixteen men, depending somewhat on the weight of the baggage carried.

They are safe and roomy and are propelled by oars, which are made of lances tipped with adjustable blades.

The boats have been subject to severe tests recently and have stood all of them well. In fact, the success has been so marked that they have been adopted and made a part of the equipment of several companies.

The daily drills in putting the boat together have so improved the men that it is now a matter of only a few minutes.

So far there have been no accidents of any consequence. The craft is deep and broad enough to be fairly steady, though, of course, it would not live long on a high sea.

HAWAIIAN BOYS' PLUCK.

To Start a School Newspaper to Raise Money for a Gymnasium.

The Hawaiian boys are apparently boys of spirit. Those of the Kaahumanu school at Honolulu have long desired a gymnasium building on the school grounds, but the city has not seen fit to build it for them. Now the boys have undertaken to raise the money and have it built without municipal aid. After holding several meetings they decided on a plan which they feel sure will be successful. The boys are soon to start a paper to be called the Maile Lehua to be devoted to matters of interest concerning Kaahumanu school, and in a general way give information concerning all the other schools of Honolulu. From subscriptions to the paper and advertising the boys hope to form the nucleus of a fund which will go far toward making their pet scheme a certainty. Kaahumanu school has a printing establishment, and the older boys are being taught to set type and perform all the little odd jobs which are necessary in the printing department of a job office or newspaper. They have a fine printing press and everything appertaining to the mechanical needs of such a paper as they contemplate issuing. The printing of a paper would naturally come within the scope of the training which the teachers are giving the older pupils, and the practical lesson in conducting a paper will be of great benefit to them.—New York Sun.

Why the Coffee House Fails.

The coffee house is a temperance substitute for the inn in England. It furnishes, minus the intoxicating stimulants, similar social features, but it is tacked on to the same social habit that the inn developed. In this country those habits were not formed by the saloon experience, and the attempt to establish the coffee house as a substitute for the saloon necessarily lacks that social incentive which exists in England. The coffee house here takes on the features of the restaurant rather than either the German beer garden or the English inn. The Americans have never learned to go to these places for their leisurely intercourse and amusements.—Gunton's Magazine.

Threw Away a Fortune.

As a victim of hard luck, a French provision dealer, whose shop is in the Faubourg Montmartre, Paris, is entitled to first place.

Being pressed for ready money a few days ago he sold for a moderate sum a Ville de Paris lottery bond of the 1869 issue. Two days later, when the drawing took place, he learned, to his profound disgust, that the bond he had parted with had brought in $40,000 to its new possessor.

Precautions have been taken to prevent the unfortunate publican from committing suicide.

Rev. Marguerite St. Omer Briggs, 35 Mount Calm Street, Detroit, Michigan, Lecturer for the W. C. T. U., recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—My professional work has for the past twenty years brought me into hundreds of homes of sickness, and I have had plenty of opportunity to witness the sufferings of wives and mothers who from want, ignorance or carelessness, are slowly but surely being dragged to death, principally with female weakness and irregularities of the sex. I believe you will be pleased to know that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured more women than any other agency that has come under my notice. Hundreds of women owe their life and health to you to-day, and, therefore, I can conscientiously advise sick women to try it."—Marguerite St. Omer Briggs.

$5000 FORFEIT IF THE ABOVE LETTER IS NOT GENUINE.

When women are troubled with irregular or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, flatulence, general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

GREAT OPPURTUNITIES.

The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Norther Railway Company is nearing the completion of it's 140 miles of new extensions in the very richest portion of Southwestern Minnesota. The six new towns, Reading, Wilmont, Lismore, Kenneth, Waters and Longer are rapidly becoming commercial centers for the rich and already thickly settled country surrounding. There has been no "Auction sale of lots" or any attempt to "Boom" these towns; their growth being the result of a demand for convenient markets.

It is the purpose of the railway company to encourage the continuous substantial growth of the towns on their lines. In order that each town may receive the attention of "ownership." it has been decided to sell each town entire, including all unplatted land to private parties. For terms of such purchases, address the undersigned. For business openings or purchase of lots address the Town Lot Agent of the respective town.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the disnarges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. "Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made as is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease It cures all inflamation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to "Consumption—Snuffles will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure." Sent prepaid to any address in the United States or Canada on receipt of One Doller. Address Dept., A 295, EDWIN B. GILES 2330 to 2332 Market St. Philadelphia.

THE NORTHWESTERN AGRICULTURIST is the leading farm, live-stock and home paper in the West. It interests every member of the family, having departments devoted to the interests of women as well as of men, on the farms in the Northwest. It is filled with instructive and interesting reading matter from beginning to end. Its various departments are under the charge of practical men, who have made a success themselves on their particular line on which they are writing. Amongst the department editors who contribute regularly to The Agriculturist, are Prof. Thomas Shaw, Professor of Animal Husbandry at the Minnesota State Agricultural College. Professor Shaw edits the sheep, beef cattle and horse departments; A. N. Hyatt, a dairyman known all over America as a practical and experienced dairy writer; Forest Henry, editor of the swine department, a man who has paid off mortgages by raising swine in Minnesota, and who is himself making money in swine raising now, not as a breeder but as a feeder of swine for market; A. K. Bush, in charge of the horticultural department, State Lecturer on Horticulture at the Minnesota Farmers' Institutes. These are only a few of the more important departments of the paper. Sample Copies will be sent free to all who are interested. The Northwestern Agriculturist is published semi-monthly, and already reaches over 66,000 farm homes twice a month. Subscription price fifty cents a year.

ARE YOU DEAF?

ANY HEAD NOISES?

ALL CASES OF

DEAFNESS OR HARD HEARING ARE NOW CURABLE

by our new invention. Only those born deaf are incurable.

HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

BALTIMORE, Md., March 30, 1901.

Gentlemen: — Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain Very truly yours,

F. A. WERMAN, 730 S. Broadway, Baltimore, Md.

Our treatment does not interfere with your usual occupation.

A farmer near Cylinder, Ia., purchased the outfit of a stranger. W. P. Church went over there the latter part of last week and got his property.

A Million Voices

Could hardly express the thanks of Homer Hall, of West Point, Ia. Listen why: A severe cold had settled on his lungs, causing a most obstinate cough. Several physicians said he had consumption, but could not help him. When all thought he was doomed he began to use Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption and writes—"it completely cured me and saved my life. I now weigh 227 lbs." It's positively guaranteed for Coughs, Colds and Lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Harr's.

If newspaper readers knew what advertising meant they would say that the real news that affects the pocketbook is found in the advertising of local merchants. The merchant who advertises is a reporter. He reports to the people through the newspaper what he has for sale and what bargains he has to offer. And it is real news. It affects the pocketbook of every family. If some merchant is making a great run on shoes and is selling them cheap, that is news that every person who needs shoes had ought to know. If another is offering special bargains in overcoats, underwear, corsets, hats, furniture, dress goods, carpets, groceries, coal or wood, stoves, anything that a family needs, it is news that means money to every family and the people know it. That's why the merchants advertise in the newspapers.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

NO SHIELD FOR CRIMINAL.

Supreme Court on Privileged Communications.

Des Moines, Dec. 20.—An important ruling on the question of privileged communications was made by the supreme court yesterday in the case of the state of Iowa, appellant, vs. Gus Grinnell, appellee. The case is an appeal from the court of Judge S. M. Elwood of Greene county. Defendant was accused of the crime of murder in the second degree, perpetrated in a questionable medical operation. A verdict of not guilty was directed and the state appealed.

The case involved the question of whether a communication was privileged. The defendant objected to certain evidence on the ground it was privileged under section 4608 of the code, which reads as follows: "No physician or surgeon * * * who obtains information by reason of his employment * * *shall be allowed in giving testimony to disclose any confidential communication properly intrusted to him in his professional capacity and necessary and proper to enable him to perform the functions of his office according to the usual course of practice. * * * Such prohibition shall not apply to cases where the party in whose favor the same is made waives the rights conferred."

The supreme court holds this statute was never intended to operate as a shied for one who is charged with murder, or to be a barrier to the enforcement of the criminal laws of the state.

MANY VETERANS NEED CARE.

Iowa Soldiers' Home Unable to Meet All Requirements.

Marshalltown, Dec. 20.—The Iowa Soldiers' Home is at present taxed to its utmost capacity to meet the demands made upon it for applications for new membership and to furnish accommodations to furloughed members who are returning to the home because of the present severe cold snap. Every room in each department of the institution is full and sixty more beds are now in use than at this time last year. Still the home is not able to care for all who should be cared for. Already fifteen or twenty applications for apartments are on file from old couples and there is not a vacant room in the old people's building, which was built with a view of satisfying all possible demands. Some of the hallways are already equipped with beds and members are sleeping there. The failure to secure a lot of new beds ordered is causing much inconvenience just now, and as soon as they can be secured they will be placed in other halls and the condition will be somewhat relieved. The actual membership, present yesterday, was 753, 680 of which were men and 73 women. Present and absent, the membership roll shows 822, 722 of which are men and 82 women. With 61 civilian employes, including the 44 women employed in the various departments, this makes a family of 814 members to feed each day.

BUDD WINS THE HAZARD CUP.

Des Moines Man Beat Parmalee in Shooting Off the Tie.

Kansas City, Dec. 23.—Charles Budd, of Des Moines, won the Hazard cup, valued at $450, and emblematic of the world's wing shot championship at Blue River Park, by defeating Frank Parmalee, of Omaha, in the shoot off to decide their tie, when each man made a straight score of twenty-five birds. Budd, who shot first, made a clean score on his five birds, but Parmelee's fourth bird dropped dead outside of the bounds. The weather was ideal for the sport and the birds were fast.

This was the last day of the mid-winter tournament and two events besides the inaugural handicap for the Hazard cup were decided. In the Omaha-Kansas City team shoot, Omaha defeated the local team by a score of 227 to 217. Each man shot at twenty-five birds and the highest individual scores were made by W. D. Townsend and F. W. Fogg of the Omaha team, and J. A. R. Elliott and C. B. Cockrill, of the Kansas City team, each of whom killed twenty-four. In the finals for the "Dickey bird" shoot, which was commenced Thursday, Barton Lewis, of Norborne, Neb., made a score of 145 out of a possible 150, and won the match.

GOVERNOR'S OFFICE FORCE.

Governor-Elect Cummins Names His Personal Assistants.

Des Moines, Dec. 20.—Governor-elect A. B. Cummins has announced the appointment of his office force to take effect when he becomes chief executive. The appointment of staff and adjutant general will be made in a few days. The office appointments follow: Secretary to the governor, John Briar, Polk county; pardon secretary, Burgess W. Garrett, Decatur county; pardon clerk, Earnest O. Patterson, Adair county; requisition clerk, Rufus H. Harvey, Polk county; general clerk, Major A. S. Carper, Polk county, (to take effect April 1st, 1902, and until that time E. P. Davis, Davis county, stenographer, Isabelle Wilson, Appanoose county (temporarily retained); janitor, usher and messenger, William Coalson, Polk county (temporarily retained.)

Burned Herself to Death.

CUMMINS HAS A SCHEME

METHOD TO GET AT EQUITABLE RAILROAD ASSESSMENT.

A Commission to Inquire Into Railroad Values and Methods of Assessment.

Des Moines, Dec. 23.—Postponement of the railroad assessment from March until August; the appointment of a special non-partisan commission of three men to examine into the subject of railway values and to report a detailed finding of facts and conclusions prior to the August assessment; the recommendation by the commission of what changes, if any, are necessary in the railroad assessment law of the Thirteenth general assembly—in brief, this is said to be the plan with reference to the railroad assessment question which Governor-elect Cummins has under serious consideration.

Mr. Cummins for some time has made no secret of the fact that it is his informal opinion that the present railroad assessment is too low, but concerning an increase, how much and how distributed, he frankly confessed that he lacks the necessary information, and has said under the present method of making reports he does not see how he or any of the other members of the executive council can acquire it. He is disposed to think therefore, that the information absolutely necessary to a comprehensive and thorough consideration of the railroad assessment question can only be acquired by a special inquiry, the work to be completed in time to give the executive council opportunity to make an intelligent assessment in August. It is said to be Mr. Cummins' idea that no railroad assessment in Iowa has ever been more than a sweeping guess. He believes that if the assessment were once started right, any executive council could then make, from year to year, the additions or subtractions that might be necessary.

It is not understood that Mr. Cummins will touch upon the railroad assessment question particularly in his inaugural address, but that he will take it up in a special message to the legislature to be sent in soon after the legislature is organized. In this message, it is said, it is his intention to outline fully his propositions.

TALK ON REDISTRICTING.

Many Plans are Under Consideration at Des Moines.

Des Moines, Dec. 21.—While there is no positive assurance that the question of redistricting will come up at the next general assembly, the presence in the city of scores of politicians in advance of the convening of the legislature and the discussion around the hotel corridors lends color to the argument that at least a half dozen maps will be offered for consideration by the legislature. In fact, the opinions as to what the division should be are so widely different that more than one heated debate will be scheduled from the moment any of the plans for redistricting are offered for consideration.

One of the politicians that has a plan to be urged upon the legislature stated yesterday that he would consult various members and secure broad endorsement of his map, before he gave it to the general public and that if he feels that it would not win it will not be presented. The plan being most discussed of course is that of Payne of Nevada, which was first in the field. This will be urged upon the house and senate, but whether it will precipitate a vote on the question is not at all certain.

A number of the districts that have been clamoring for a long time for a change in the line of the districts are beginning to realize that there is an advantage in the large districts and the politicians from those localities are not so anxious as they were in the past. The power of the eleventh district in the last campaign is particularly noteworthy and this is one that is changing front in the matter of drawing a new map of congressional districts.

The fact that many of the proposed changes would almost completely alter the political census of the state so far as leaders are concerned will kill off the maps as soon as sprung and it is certain that none of them will meet with pronounced favor in all localities.

Southwest Iowa Horticulturists.

Red Oak, Dec. 21.—The Southwestern Iowa Horticultural society closed its session in this city yesterday. Officers were elected as follows: President, J. H. M. Edwards, Logan; vice-president, A. F. Collman, Corning; secretary, W. M. Bomberger, Harlan; treasurer, O. H. Barnhill, Shenandoah. Directors: First district, Henry Shield, Shenandoah; Second district, H. D. Bullock, Nodaway; Third district, A. F. Collman Corning; Fourth district, C. H. Dear, Missouri Valley; Fifth district, James McGinnis, Griswold; Sixth district, A. L. Plummer, Ivy. The society is growing and each year is doing more to develop fruit growing in this part of the state. Mills county is the leading county in southwestrn Iowa in fruit growing, having about 200 carloads of apples this fall. Secretary Bomberger is endeavoring to perfect an organization for business purposes of the orchardists in this part of the state. The society will meet next year at Clarinda.

Des Moines' New Court House.

Des Moines, Dec. 21.—The supreme court having refused to reinstate the injunction restraining the building of a Polk county court house, the contract for the erection of a new court house was let by the board of supervisors to the Capital City Brick and Pipe company, of Des Moines, and to H. S. Schlueter, of Chicago, at a total of $232,873.

LONG INDORSES VERDICT

SUSTAINS MAJORITY REPORT OF COURT OF INQUIRY.

Holds that Sampson Was in Command at Santiago and That Question Was Not Before Court.

Washington, Dec. 23—Secretary Long has disposed finally of the Schley case so far as the navy department is concerned, by acting upon the findings and conclusions of the court of inquiry.

He approves the findings of fact and the opinion of the full court; he approves the majority opinion where there is a difference in the court; he holds that the court could not have entered into a consideration of the question of command at the battle of Santiago; and finally he accepts the recommendation that no further proceedings shall be had.

The secretary also has declined the application of Admiral Sampson's counsel to enter upon an inquiry into the question of command and has notified Admiral Schley's counsel of that fact as a reason for declining to hear them on that point. Secretary Long's approval of the majority report was as follows:

"The department has read the testimony in this case; the argument of counsel at the trial; the court's findings of fact, opinion and recommendation; the individual memorandum of the presiding member; the statement of exception to the said findings and opinion by the applicant; the reply to said statement by the judge advocate of the court and his assistant, and the brief this day submitted by counsel for Rear Admiral Sampson traversing the presiding member's view as to who was in command at the battle of Santiago.

"And after careful consideration the findings of fact and the opinion of the full court are approved.

"As to the points on which the presiding member differs from the majority of the court, the opinion of the majority is approved.

"As to the further expression of his views by the same member with regard to the question of command on the morning of July 3, 1898, and of the title of credit for the ensuing victory, the conduct of the court in making no finding and rendering no opinion on those questions is approved—indeed, it could with propriety take no other course, evidence on those questions, during the inquiry, having been excluded by the court.

"The department approves the recommendation of the court that no further proceedings be had in the premises.

"The department records its appreciation of the ardous labors of the whole court. (Signed

"John D. Long,
"Secretary of the Navy."

The text of the secretary's letters to Admiral Sampson's attorneys and to Admiral Schley follows:

"Navy Department, Washington, Dec. 20, 1901.—In view of the department's approval this day of the recommendation of the court of inquiry in the case of Rear Admiral Schley, that no further proceedings be had, and of the fact that the question of command was excluded from consideration by the court, the department will take no action upon the brief filed by you in behalf of Rear Admiral William T. Sampson. Very Respectfully,

"John D. Long, Secretary."

"Messrs. Stayton, Campbell & Theall, Johnston Building, No. 30 Broad Street, New York."

"Navy Department, Washington, Dec. 20, 1901—Sir: Referring to the department's letter of the 13th inst., you are advised that action today has been taken upon the findings, opinions and recommendations of the court of inquiry in your case, and upon the minority opinion of the presiding member, and a copy of the indorsement embodying such action is herewith transmitted for your information.

"In response to your request of the 18th instant, heretofore acknowledged, that if a protest should be filed by Rear Admiral W. T. Sampson relative to the question of control of the naval force during the battle of Santiago and credit for the victory won in that battle, you be accorded an opportunity to present, through your counsel, oral argument against such protest, you are advised that a brief on this subject has this day been filed by Messrs. Stayton, Campbell & Theall, counsel for Admiral Sampson.

"In view, however, of the department's approval of the recommendation of the court of inquiry that no further proceedings be had, and of the fact that the question of command was excluded from consideration by the court, no action will be taken upon said brief, and reply to that effect (copy enclosed) has this day been made to counsel for Admiral Sampson.

"A copy of the report of the judge advocate of the court and his assistant upon your communication of the 18th instant, objecting to the approval of the findings of the court, is also herewith transmitted. Very Respectfully,

"John D. Long, Secretary.

A friend once apologized to Robert Louis Stevenson for not visiting him, and said that the real reason was that he did not know where Samoa was. Stevenson replied that it was simple enough to find it. All you had to do was to sail out of San Francisco on a ship, and take the first turning to the left.

GAGE WILL RETIRE.

Has Requested President to Relieve Him From Cabinet Duties.

Washington, Dec. 21.—It is Secretary Gage's intention to relinquish the treasury portfolio as soon as President Roosevelt can find a suitable successor and he so informed the president. Mr. Gage would like to be relieved before spring. The president has done all he could do to dissuade Secretary Gage from retiring and will possibly continue to use his efforts in that direction. Secretary Gage's determination to retire was made known to the president some little time ago, just how long is not known.

MILES IS REPRIMANDED

SEVERELY REBUKED BY SECRETARY OF WAR ROOT.

His Cincinnati Interview on the Schley Court of Inquiry Result Is Not liked.

Washington, Dec. 23.—A determination on the part of the administration absolutely to terminate further discussion of the Sampson-Schley controversy took shape in the publication today of some remarkable correspondence that has passed between Secretary Root and Lieutenant General Miles, relative to the latter's interview, published in a Cincinnati paper, commenting on the Schley case. When the interview appeared it attracted considerable attention officially, but after the lapse of two days without any sign of official action, the conclusion became general that the interview would be ignored. Therefore, the publication of the full correspondence on this subject created a sensation in army and naval circles. It is seldom that so severe a reprimand is administered to an officer of high rank in either service. What the result will be cannot be foretold, although it is assumed that General Miles will submit without further comment.

The nearest parallel to this case of late years, excluding the incidents connected with the celebrated beef inquiry, was that of Rear Admiral Richard Meade, who, upon returning from a cruise in Venezuelan waters with the white squadron accorded an interview to a New York newspaper, severely criticising the administration for its lack of vigor in dealing with the Venezuelan question. The outcome of that case was the early retirement of the admiral from active service.

That General Miles appreciates the situation is shown by the deep concern he manifested Saturday and his frequent visits to the office of Secretary Root. It was necessary for him to write two letters to meet the demands of the department, and even then there was no expression of satisfaction on the secretary's part of the second explanation. However, Secretary Root himself regards the incident as closed. At least, he does not propose to take any further action unless obliged to do so.

STARTING A NEW REBELLION.

Movement to Overturn Administration of President Castro.

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, Dec. 23.—Gen. Luciano Mendoza, president elect of the state of Carabobo; Senior Antonio Fernandez, war minister under President Andrade, and Senor Lutowsky, war minister in former President Crespo's cabinet, rebelled Thursday against President Castro near La Victora. The revolutionists reached Cagua, on the way to Ville de Cura, where their partisans had concentrated from all of the surrounding districts. The movement, it is asserted, had long been premeditated and is in accordance with that of General Matos, who is expected at Martinique tomorrow. It is considered a terrible blow against President Castro, who immediately upon hearing of the uprising, dispatched troops from Maracaibo by rail, but found the lines destroyed at Cagua. Traffic on the German railroad is interrupted and telephone and telegraph lines have been cut. Another uprising, it is reported, has taken place near Valencia, and it is said that the entire country is ready to take up arms against the administration of Gen. Castro. The government censorship is strictly enforced. Official circles in Caracas consider the Mendoza movement an extremely serious one and fear that other uprisings will occur.

REPLY TO SCHLEY'S OBJECTIONS

Washington, Dec. 21. Judge Advocate Lemley and Solicitor Hanna yesterday submitted to Secretary Long their report upon the bill of objections filed by Admiral Schley, through his counsel, to the findings of the Schley court of inquiry. In substance, this report is an argument supplementary to the argument made by the writers before the court of inquiry; that the court was justified in rejecting Admiral Schley's evidence by the number of witnesses who took issue with him, and that there is no sufficient reason for a reopening of the case as suggested by Admiral Schley.

Start Made at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Dec. 21.—The first public celebration in connection with the world's fair to be opened in St. Louis in 1903, in commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the Louisiana purchase, was held yesterday, when ground was broken on the site in Forest Park. This day was selected for the important event because it is an anniversary of the formal transfer of the Louisiana territory to the United States. The day was a holiday in St. Louis and throughout Missouri, as well as in most of the purchase states, whose governors issued proclamations asking for a general observance of it as "Louisiana Purchase Flag Day."

MARY THE MAID OF THE INN....

A Story of English Life.

By JOSEPH HATTON.

say that neither Thompson know anthing about spres. They know when it's supper time, and when to begin to fatten a turkey for Christmas; but I never knew that they could be reckoned upon to know anything else that mattered."

"But they were in the wars before they were pensioned."

"Maybe," said Mary; "that makes no difference."

"Mary," said Jack, when, after a brisk gallop, they were walking their cobs leisurely through the leafy lane that led to the farm, "Mary, you seem to be mighty struck with the foreign-looking man."

"He's not foreign-looking, Jack; and why do you think I'm mighty struck?"

"Because I saw you do what I've never seen you do, except once."

"And what was that?"

"You blushed when he waved his hand at you."

"Blushed! Rubbish, Jack, I did nothing of the kind."

"I thought you did," said Jack humbly.

"That's because you're jealous."

"I wish you'd give me the right to be jealous, Mary."

"You are, without the right," she replied.

"I am, Mary; but if you would give me the right to be, I never would be, so help me heaven!"

"And when did I blush once before," said Mary, "since you have mentioned it, Jack?"

"When I asked you to marry me."

"I didn't blush then, Jack, surely; it was such a silly thing for you to ask."

"Yes, you blushed—because you were sorry to say no; it was not a regular right-down blush, I suppose, but your cheeks went red, and—well—there, we won't talk of it."

"No, you said you never would, Jack; and we have been right hearty friends ever since, have we not?"

"Yes, Mary."

"And always will be, won't we?"

"Yes, please God, if we are never to be anything else," said Jack.

"We settled that long ago," she replied, somewhat curtly.

"I suppose we did," said Jack; then, with sudden fervor, "Mary, you have opened the old sore, or I have myself, and by the Almighty that made us both, I have lost the power to bear it any longer."

"Jack Meadows!" exclaimed Mary, the color leaving her face at this unexpected assault. "What is the matter with you?"

Jack slid from his horse and stood by her bridle.

"You are the matter with me, Mary! I love you beyond repair! I can no longer live without you! If any other man won you I should kill myself or him! I am mad! That look you gave yon stranger has made me mad! Something in my heart said to me, 'Jack, tell her what you feel, ask her once more to soften to thee!' And I've done it!"

"Aye, thou's done it," said Mary, assuming the local vernacular, as country people will when they are in trouble or in very great earnest; "and I am sorry for thee, for I can never love you as you'd have me do and that is as certain as death."

"Mary, you have broken my heart!"

"Then, surely, thou are selfish, Jack. I've told you always there is no man I respect so much, no man I honor more; I feel towards you as I might towards a brother, but I can never marry a man I don't worship; why should I? I am not like other lasses; I am a tomboy, old Taylor says, and I'm more like a lad than a lass. I've known you, Jack, ever since I was a child—and—there, I'd never have come out with thee if I'd dreamed thou'd begin at me again."

"I couldn't help it," said Jack, his voice trembling, his face as white as the ruddy streaks in his cheeks would allow, his knees tottering under him. "I saw thee look at yonder fellow, and I fear you think he's sort as you could worship."

"How dare you say so, Jack! Why, he only came into the house last night."

"There is such a thing as love at first sight," Jack replied, "and there is such a thing as love that thinks nowt but of her, thinks nowt but for her, would die to please her and would not live to cause her a minnit's sorrow—that's my love Mary that's my love."

He leaned against his horse's neck and covered his face with his hands.

"You have made me very unhappy, Jack," said Mary, with something of her natural manner, "and I am very sorry for you and for myself; and now I know there is truth in the ill-omen of putting wrong stocking on left foot, and finding an owl on her nest, which I did this morning, and dreaming you that; I'll try and [illegible] a gibbet and an old damned conceited fool to think any lass could care for me, much more thee above everybody, but——"

"Not care for you, lad? Half the fine women in Yorkshire would be glad to marry you."

"And I wouldn't swap thy little finger for the whole lot on 'em!"

"Why has God made me so perverse?" Mary thought to herself; if not in those words, in that spirit, as she turned away, adding aloud: "I don't want to see the colt now, Jack, and the coach will be in before I get back, and I think I'll go now, lad, and——"

"Thou'll not go without me, Mary, more so as I reckon I'll not see thee much longer."

"Not see me much longer? What do you mean?"

"Well, you see, I've had thoughts of migrating somewhere this last few minutes—I mean few years— and I donnat know that I may not tek it into my head to do it next week, or tomorrow, or some day soon, and we won't mek difference in going about with each other now I've towd you all I feel, as we should hev to do if I didna go away. And there, donnat mind me if I am not quite explaining just as easy as usual, but we'll be friends and all that for the present, eh?"

"Yes, yes!" said Mary, and Jack mounted his horse and they walked them nearly all the way back to the inn.

The truth was that Jack Meadows, through the instinct of his own love, had surprised Mary's secret before she herself knew of its existence. She had fallen suddenly in love—love at first sight—with Richard Parker, and he with her.

CHAPTER—VII.

Mary Lockwood had given her heart to Dick Parker without a thought of Jack Meadows, her uncle, or anyone else. She seemed to be under a spell from the first moment the young stranger had spoken to her.

And he was a nobleman. She never doubted it. Morley said he had "the manners of an aristocrat, and the extravagance of a prince." He suggested in a mild way that these were the very reasons why Mary should beware of his attentions.

Mary said blood ennobled a man's actions. If they estimated it so highly in a horse, why not in a man?

Old Taylor, who entered into the discussion on the second day of Parker's stay at the inn, agreed with Mary, but at the same time said, girls must mate with their equals.

Mary had replied that girls had no choice in the matter until they were asked.

Dick Parker had heard this latter remark as he entered the little bar-parlor, for within 24 hours he was on familiar terms with the household.

Presently, when she was alone, Dick said: "Will you meet me in the abbey this afternoon? I want to say something to you."

"Can't you say it here?" she replied.

"No; besides, you know all about the abbey, and I would like to see it with you."

"I will ask my uncle," said Mary.

"Is that necessary?"

"Yes," said Mary, well knowing it was not; but she wished to have an authorization for the pleasure he felt it would be to walk alone with the stranger, who spoke so softly, looked so handsome, and paid her such pretty and evidently such sincere compliments.

"Then ask him, will you? I am going to fish in the river on the other side of the abbey; we might meet on the banks and then I could talk of the monks of old, of glee maidens, and the days of romance."

"Uncle," said Mary, as old Morley came into the little room, "can I show Mr. Parker the abbey?"

"I should think so, indeed; I would like to see the lass or lad, or parson in black for that matter, who knows more about it."

And yet, in his way, he had really fallen in love with Mary Lockwood.

He felt that he could sacrifice anything for her.

At one moment he had half a mind to tell who he really was and counsel her to accept the honest man whom he had seen riding with her; half a mind to advise her thus and ride away back to town, and leave Yorkshire and Bellingham, and the rest to Foster; half a mind to seek other employment, to go to the Low Countries and fight the Spaniards; but his good emotions were as evanescent as was his character; and just as he felt most penitent Mary looked up at him with her blue eyes, and seemed to invite his further speech, and with not a shadow of reproach in them for his quick, if not abrupt, declaration.

"I have heard of love at first sight, and laughed at it," she said, leaving her hand in his, as he sat down by her side, "but I did not know what it was."

"And do you love me?" whispered Dick, "as I love you?"

"I think so," said the infatuated girl.

[illegible] cy conquered, she is utterly, [illegible] your lessly a slave; her love is worship, her devotion idolatry.

Mary, though she had only known Dick Parker for a moment as it were, gave him her confidence as if they had been brought up together from childhood, as she and Jack Meadows had.

"Do you only think so?" he asked.

"I am sure so," she answered; and the bold wooer stole his arm round her waist and kissed her.

She sat there as if in a dream—this practical, clever, athletic horsewoman, this free, honest, open, fearless, masculine woman, as she loved to think herself—sat there with her hand in his, listening to his honeyed words, and answering them now and then in whispers, and feeling too happy for words.

There was a public footpath through the abbey in those days, and when Jack Meadows years before had tried to make love to her, Mary had been very quick with excuses for not loitering, lest people passing to and fro should think it odd.

But with Dick Parker she thought of "nothing or of nobody."

They got up from her favorite seat, and walked along the chancel and into the chapter house, and away into the meadows, Mary telling Dick now and then some pieces of interesting history connected with the ruins; he responding with accounts of the gayeties of London.

The sun was setting when they stood by the river at the spot where Dick had beeen lashing the quiet waters. He picked up his creel out of the grass. There was a brace of fine trout in it, a tribute rather to the river than to the skill of the angler. Dick packed up his tackle, slung the creel over his shoulder, and fisherman and maiden wandered homewards through the fields.

The shadows fell soft and still about them as they crossed the bridge and entered the roadway opposite the inn. Already the blinds were drawn, and the warm light from the autumn fires made a beacon of the house for travelers in the coming darkness. Mr. Taylor and his friend, Wilson, were in the bar, and so was Squire Bellingham.

"Ah!" said old Morley, when Dick with a laugh exhibited the results of his day's sport, "you should get Jack Meadows to show you the way; or even our man Tom. I've known Tom to whip out the brace of three and four pounders many a time before breakfast."

"I'm not much of a fisherman," said Dick, "and I've been fishing part of the day in the abbey, talking of the days of monks and nuns, and ancient almoners, and the like, with our fair hostess."

"I reckon Mary knows every stone, and corbel, and shaft, and broken arch, and ivy stem in the place," said Morley.

"But she doesn't honor every one of your guests as she has honored this gentleman, I think," said Bellingham.

"I've shown many a gentleman and lady over the abbey before today," said Mary, rather sharply.

"No doubt, no doubt; and they were to be envied their guide," remarked the 'Squire, smiling, but looking rather askance at Parker.

"That is true," said Parker.

"You are remaining in thees parts," said Bellingham, "longer than you intended at first?"

"No," said Parker.

"There is better fishing farther north," Bellingham rejoined; "but not so interesting as the abbey."

"Nor the beautiful guide, you were going to add," said Parker. "Well, I agree with you, and, believe me, sir, for it is the truth—I have an honest man's reverence and respect for both."

"Spoken like a man," said Taylor.

Mary smiled in a friendly way at Taylor, and left the room. Bellingham said: "I hope so."

"You are my elder in years, possibly my great superior in wisdom; but I do not know that age or wisdom give you the right to hint that I am not speaking the truth," said Parker.

"Good-night," was Bellingham's reply, "I see the groom has brought out my horse. I sleep at Harrogate tonight; but we shall doubtless meet again. I meant no offense. Good night, Morley, good night, all."

Meanwhile, within three days of Mary's ramble with Parker in the abbey, all Kirkstall knew that it was all over with Jack Meadows chances of ever marrying Mary Lockwood.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL

Des Moines, Dec. 23, 1901.

The program arranged for the next quarterly conference of the superintendents and heads of state institutions will include a prayer by Dr. J. F. Kennedy, secretary of the state board of health, on what has been accomplished by special institutions for inebriates; a paper by Judge Kinne, of the board of control, on facts and statistics regarding institutions for the feeble minded; a paper by Mrs. Johnson, of Red Wing, Minn., on the duty of the state providing for orphans and other dependents; a [illegible] by Annette Volding, of this city, the [illegible] been announced.

The supreme court has refused the application of the "river fronters" for a renewal of the restraining order that prohibited the Polk county board of supervisors from letting a contract and going ahead with the construction of the new court house. The restraining order had been dissolved some time ago and the petition for its renewal was generally construed as the last hope of the faction opposed to the construction of the new building on the site of the old. The effect of the court's action is to insure the early commencement of the structure. The contract will be awarded at once and work will likely begin early in the spring. The hearing of the application for a new trial will be considered by the supreme court in January, but will not interfere with the letting of the contract and preliminary work.

Members of the state executive council were called together for the purpose of consulting with Attorney General Mullan in reference to the matter of bringing action against ex-State Binder Lafe Young, to recover $4,798.33, which he is alleged to have overdrawn during the two years he was the incumbent of that office. Mr. Mullan stated in a communication to the council that the report of the expert accountants, Phil. H. Skinner and W. C. Hedges, gives largely their conclusions and not a statement of specific facts upon which a legal opinion could be based. When the council received the communication there was an immediate conference arranged and Mr. Mullan was called in to personally state his findings of the experts' report. He explained that he could not bring an action to recover with only the findings of the experts on which to form a basis of suit. Mr. Mullan stated the character of the information he wanted and the members of the council decided upon W. M. Wilcoxen of Des Moines, as an accountant fitted to procure the information. A resolution was passed instructing Wr. Wilcoxen to co-operate with the atorney general in getting "facts as distinguished from conclusions."

J. C. Cottrell of Plymouth county has filed contest papers with the secretary of state and will contest the election of E. O. Fields as representative. Mr. Cotrell was elected as representative on the democratic ticket two years ago. He was defeated for re-election by Mr. Fields, the republican nominee, by a vote of 15. Irregularities in the count are alleged. The papers have been filed with the secretary of state by Mr. Cottrell's attorney.

The committee of the executive council that was named at a recent meeting to select expert accountants to examine the state departments held a meeting and agreed on a chief accountant and assistant. A. L. Dinio, of Alta, former clerk of the revenue department of the auditor of state's office under C. G. McCarthy, was agreed upon as chief accountant. C. C. Clements of Marengo, one of the state bank examiners, was selected as assistant. The committee was unanimous in turning down P. H. Skinner and W. H. Hedges, the experts who made the examination of the state offices last year, and who made allegations of overcharges of $4,798.33 by ex-State Binder Young in the biennial period ending last January, not to speak of rudely stirring up the oil inspectors, the mine inspectors and one or two other branches of the state administration.

The board of control employes were made happy by the announcement of a substantial increase in salaries for the coming year. The salary of Secretary F. S. Treat was increased from $1,800 to $2,000 a year. This is the statutory limit of the salary of the secretary of the board. About a year ago Mr. Treat's salary was increased from $1,500 to $1,800. A. B. McCown, the accountant of the board, has been granted an increase to $1,600 a year. His former salary was $1,380. Nearly all of the employes in the office of the board were advanced. The increases add about $1,000 a year to the salary list. All of the employes of the board's office have been in its employ for a long period and the members feel their efficiency warrants an increase in salaries.

A young girl, coming away from the library, is greeted by another at the foot of the steps: "Hullo, Florry, what are you doing here?" Florry (in discontented accents)—"Papa sent me here to find out about King Alfred." The other girl—"Alfred. What about him?" Florry—"Papa asked us at tea last night what was all this fuss about Alfred and his millinery. [Laughter.] Not one of us could tell him, and he sent me here to find out." The other replied: "You stupid! Why, it's a drapery around his statute, of course."

Published Thursday.

In spite of contest the legislature will witness serious attempts at an entire redistricting of the state, for congressional purposes. Several carefully prepared slates have been fixed up, one of them attaching Hancock county to the new Eleventh District, and another hitching us onto the Fourth. The first is stated as arranged for the benefit of A. B. Funk, of Spirit Lake, cutting out Judge Connor, of Denison. It is not in evidence at this writing that Hancock county has any all absorbing ambition to get into the annual scrimmages of the lurid Eleventh where statesmen are always thicker than bull thistles in a sheep pasture, and where "knives in the back" are the principal signs entitling men to enter the political wigwams.

The proposition to accord to Senator Allison a unanimous election as his own successor, by the united acquiesence of the democrats in his selection, would be one of the most gracious and complimentary concessions possible to make to the honor of Peerless Iowa, and not one iota of harm could come of it to the democrats. The eclat of such an endorsement would be but a fitting tribute to the unparalleled career of Iowa's noblest and most potential son, and would redound to the credit of Iowa democracy as nothing else could as the situation stands today Let us hope that the conservative element of democracy will subscribe cordially to this movement, and, while in no way militating against aspirants of that party, such an act would very much dignify politics, than which few things are more desirable as the horoscope of our grand state now indicates.

Some of the papers of the state are intimating that Senator Dolliver is considering the advisability of opening headquarters at Des Moines, during the coming session of the legislature to heighten his chances for election to the full term to succeed himself. Don't you believe in any such necessity. Senator Dolliver knows the temper of the people of Iowa far too well to for one moment doubt the outcome. He has not stood upon Iowa's rostrums for so many brilliant years and expounded scintillations of logic and loyalty to republican cohorts, to not feel and know that those lessons have sunken too deeply into the minds of his audiences to not bear fruit at such times as now confront him. If ever a man were safe in the hands of a people no man was ever more so than John P. Dolliver, barring possibly Senator Allison. The senatorial delegation of Iowa in Washington is fixed and unalterable, until the Grim Reaper interferes, unless all signs fail and men's solemn pledges are hollow mockeries.

Gov. Leslie M. Shaw has been tendered the secretaryship of the treasury to succeed Gage. This morning's papers state that Gov. Shaw has accepted.

Dr. Zinn last week received a letter from Dr. Richter, formerly of this place. He was in New York. He stated that after the holidays he would go to his new home in Scranton, Penn.

Appropriate exercises to the occasion were held in the German M. E. church Christmas eve. After the program the usual distribution of gifts was made, and the children's hearts made happy. A large audience listened to the finely rendered program.

The Messenger was in error last week when it stated that Mr. and Mrs. Irving Mulkins, who passed through town on Monday of last week, were enroute to Goodell. They were going to Klemme where they went to visit Mrs Mulkins' parents.—Meservey Messenger.

When the late Li Hung Chang visited Germany a few years ago he was asked: "How do our women compare with those of China?" "I really cannot tell," said Li, slyly, fastening his eyes on the corsage of a lady who was present. "we never see half as much of our women as you do of yours."

THE DES MOINES DAILY CAPITAL

A Great Daily Newspaper for the Year 1902 for $2.00.

On December 28, the fifty-fifth anniversary of the admission of Iowa into the union, the Des Moines Daily Capital will be offered for $2.00 for the entire year of 1902, by mail only. This is the Capital's fourth annual "BARGAIN DAY." Present subscribers by paying their present account and remitting $2.00 for the new year can get the paper at this price. Write your letter and mail your check for $2.00 on December 28 and send the same to Lafe Young, Des Moines, Ia. If you are already a subscriber send the Capital to your friends for a Chritsmas present. The Capital is a superb metropolitan evening newspaper, publishing the full leased wire report of the Associated Press, furnishing all the news of Iowa and the world. Its market reports are unexcelled. It is printed in two colors on the finest press in Iowa. Excellent mail facilities make it within the reach of every home in Iowa. In 1902 the Daily Capital will be by far the greatest newspaper in the state. Remember the date, December 28, three days after Christmas, three days before New Year's.

Dr. Wallace, optician, will be at Harr's drug store, Thursday, Jan. 2, 1902.

Quite a time took place here Tuesday. One of Schroeder's turkeys got away and flew to the roof of the meat market building probably not intending to grace the table of any Klemme Christmas dinner. But some of the boys armed with 22 rifles soon changed the mind of Mr. Turkey. Billy Lau was the lucky man to shoot the "turk" hitting him right square where "Mary wore the beads."

The anniversary of the advent of Christ into the world was celebrated on Christmas eve at the English M. E. church by the customary Christmas tree with its appropriate decorations and exercises connected therewith. The program was well rendered and highly appreciated by all present. At its close the distribution of presents gladdened the hearts of the little folks and older ones as well. Praise is due the different participants in this event for the successful way in which it was carried out. It was an enjoyable evening for all present.

A MOST LIBERAL OFFER

All our farmer readers should take advantage of the unprecedented clubbing offer we this year make, which includes with this paper the Iowa Homestead, its special Farmers' Institute editions, and the Poultry Farmer. These three publications are the best of their class and should be in every farm home. To them we add, for local, county and general news, our own paper, and make the price of the four one year only $1.45. Never before was so much superior reading matter ofiered for so small an amount of money. The three papers named, which we club with our own, are well known throughout the West, and commend themselves to the reader's favorable attention upon mere mention. The Homestead is the great agricultural and live stock paper of the west; The Poultry Farmer is the most practical poultry paper for the farmer, while the Special Farmers' Institute Editions are the most practical publications for the promotion of good farming ever published. Take advantage of this great offer, as it will hold good for a short time only Samples of these papers may be examined by calling at this office.

OLD AND NEW.

I cannot joy with those who hail
The new-born year;
I rather grieve with those who give
The dead Old Year
A tender tear.

The New—what know I of the New?
I knew the Old!
God's benison upon his corse,
On which the mold
Lies stiff and cold.

Here in the shadow let me stand
And count them o'er,
The blessings that he brought to me,
A precious store—
I asked no more.

He brought me health—a priceless boon
To me and mine;
He brought me plenty for my needs,
And crowned my shrine
With love divine.

Ah! when I think—suffused with tears
I feel my eyes—
Of all the dear delights he brought:
Yet stark he lies
'Neath Winter skies.

Therefore I cannot hail with joy
The new-born year;
I rather grieve, with those who give
The dead Old year
A tender tear.

After Ten Years'

The story of Two New Year's Eves

WALTER CARSON leaned back in the easy chair, drawn up before his sitting room fire at his Duke street chambers in London. The clock had struck 10, and the sonorous boom from Big Ben came floating over the Green park as a sort of benediction on the rapidly dying year. The roar of the great city without was not lacking in its element of melody, and the noise of merry revelers in Piccadilly completed a strange yet fascinating tout ensemble. Passing down the street came three young men singing that old Southern song, "I'se gwine back to Dixey." The words and the melody startled Carson from the reverie into which he had fallen. Sitting upright in his chair, he said, aloud:

"What memories that song recalls! How my loneliness grows upon me! What a fool I was ever to have indulged in the thing called love! But there, I've tasted the poison and must abide by the result. What's that result? Pleasing? Why cannot I be of the gay throng outside? Here in this mighty crowded city I am as lonely as a man lost in a desert." He rose and, going to the other side of the room, opened a cabinet and took from it a bundle of letters, some dozen. They were faded and bore traces of much handling. After reading, he replaced them, and, walking to the photograph of a child on the wall, indulged in soliloquy.

"I know you not, my sweet child, but your mother was always, and always must be everything to me. How hard and cruel seems the world! Your mother and I parted ten long years ago this night, to meet again in two years time! What happened to prevent us? I wrote many times, but no reply ever reached me. Three years after we separated a letter came from her, and in it I read: 'Now that I am married, perhaps you will write.' Life seemed a blank, and I came to London, a wayfarer, caring not what became of me. I turned to literature, and have been what people call successful. But what is success without the power to experience that which makes it other than a metallic gratification? Eighteen months went by before I next heard from your mother, and then your photo only reached me, since when all has been silence! Your mother married a good man, and I pray for her and for you, too, baby, that you may grow up in her footsteps!"

The circumstances under which his letters to the girl went astray were to him mysterious, but, as a matter of fact, easily explained. The girl was the daughter of a country lawyer, and had made her acquaintance when she was staying in a boarding house in Bloomsbury, in which he was also a lodger. Her reason for being in town was that she might improve a somewhat neglected education, and she was taking singing lessons at a school of music in the neighborhood.

An aunt took away this unwanted daughter from among the large family at home, to be a companion across the Atlantic, and suspecting her of flightiness, opened her letters in the capacity of guardian. The first of Carson's epistles—he was a cautious man and did not commit himself to paper until he could not resist doing so—arrived when the aunt believed she was arranging a highly desirable engagement for her niece, and on the principle of doing wrong that good may come, she kept back the notes of this obviously poor suitor.

Carson often felt desolate, but never so utterly as then, and as he paced the floor the laughter of the happy crowd seemed to mock him. He rang the bell and ordered some tea. The demure little maid looked at him, and, going down stairs, said:

"Poor Mr. Carson, he looks so strange and miserable!"

Returning, she found him sitting in his chair gazing with half-closed eyes into the fire. Placing the tea on a small wicker table by his side, she attracted his attention by the question, "Anything else, sir?"

"No," was the reply; "but, see, this is New Year's Eve. You've been a good servant to me, at least. Buy yourself something," handing her a sovereign.

The amount of the gift bereft the girl of the power of speech, and with a curtesy, eloquent in itself of gratitude, she left.

Carson, sipping his tea, again soliloquized. "It's now within an hour and a quarter of the New Year. What will that year bring into my life? It cannot bring the light of love and companionship. The same round of weeks and months, and so it will be to the end. Ten years ago, in Old Kentucky, we said 'Good-by.' It was a 'good-by' forever."

Apostrophizing the absent woman, he continued: "Leila, Leila, to my grave I take with me the love I bear you. Why did we live to be parted so ruthlessly? What strange fate has so guided our destinies?"

He turned to the story of Evangeline and read of the sufferings of that heroic character. The reading soothed him and he fell asleep.

The clocks were striking the twelfth

"I KNOW YOU NOT, SWEET CHILD."

stroke of midnight when he awoke. He barely opened his eyes, then closed them again, and listened to the joyous salutations of people meeting in the streets. He was not selfish, neither was he bad natured. No man who every truly loved can be altogether either. As he listened he said:

"I wish for all a bright New Year, and Leila, my absent Leila, whom I shall never see again, may your life know no sorrow, may yours never be the aching heart, and may you be blessed in your children growing up around you. My Leila——"

He did not finish the sentence, but the tears came trickling down his cheeks as he realized his barren life. Then he became conscious that some one had come into the room and been a witness of his weakness and his secret—secret because society said Walter Carson carried his heart on his sleeve and was incapable of deep affection. So sitting up and turning round he was startled to see seated on a chair a tall lady, clad in deep mourning and veiled so heavily that he was unable to distinguish her face.

"Madam," he inquired, too taken aback even to get up, "I should like to know why I am thus honored?"

"I came in with the New Year. Not an omen of ill-luck, I hope," replied a musical voice; "but I first want to know if Walter Carson is not an assumed name?"

"Why do you ask such a question?"

"For the best of good reasons, and as you will not tell me, perhaps you will allow me to say that I think your real name is Herbert Wilton," proceeded the mysterious stranger.

Carson was utterly unprepared for this, and his surprise was painfully manifest. Appearing not to notice it, the lady went on:

"You are unhappy, I know, Mr. Wilton. I shall not call you Mr. Carson. I am certain of it, because I was watching you for ten minutes before you opened your eyes. Can I be of any help to you?"

"I don't usderstand you, madam," answered Carson. "I have no trouble, at least none that you could assist me in."

"Has it any connection with an old love affair?" very slowly asked the veiled visitor.

"I must decline to discuss my private matters with an utter stranger," replied Carson, jumping up.

"Am I an utter stranger, Herbert?" responded the stranger, also rising, and as she did so throwing back her veil.

"Leila!" gasped Carson, looking incredulously into her face.

"Yes, Leila," was the answer whis-

"I CAME IN WITH THE NEW YEAR."

pered, while her arms stole round his neck, "come back to you with the New Year, never to leave your side until it so pleases God."

Then they sat down and she told him how, three years before, after being left a widow, she determined to find out what had become of the sweetheart of her younger days. How, by a chapter of happy accidents, she learned that he was in London. How, on knowing this, she hurried over land and sea, and just at the birth of the New Year entered his room. She saw the tears fall from his eyes, heard her name mentioned, and his blessing go out to her. All doubts were then at an end.

"My children will be here by the next boat, and you must be to them a father. Now I must go, as I'm weary with the excitement of the day."

Carson drove her to her hotel, and to him the New Year bells never seemed to have rung such merry peals. They rang into his life a New Year is every sense. A few days later there was a quiet marriage, and on the following New Year's Eve, as Carson and his wife listened to the hour of midnight strike, they thought, with hearts full of love and gratitude, of the joyous meeting twelve months before.

Hopes of the Future.

With the coming of the New Year all our hopes of future good for ourselves and for humanity at large receive a new impulse and an accession of power. If we are alive to the wide extension of knowledge, the conquest of the material world, the imminence of new and important discoveries and changes which shall make the possibilities of life more interesting and beautiful, we cannot but rejoice that we are born into this wonderful epoch. Tennyson's poem, written in the flush of young manhood, voiced the scientific fact in eloquence that can never be forgotten, but the thoughts of men are widened by the process of the suns. It is truly to the thoughts of men that we owe all the triumphs of civilization, the triumphs of religion, art, industry and science, as in the last resort all that is and all that we hope for resides in the thoughts of men and in the feelings and emotions which give birth to these thoughts, and between which there is such a constant interaction.

When he crosses the threshold of the New Year isn't "Father Time" a step-farther?—L. A. W. Bulletin.

Her New Year's Present

Estelle, Maude and May Robbins stood in the window with their heads close together.

"I am so sorry," whispered Estelle. "I do so want to make mamma and papa a New Year's present and I have spent all my money—every cent."

"So have I," said Rosy, "and I have not kept even a piece of ribbon or an ounce of worsted."

"It is too dreadful," Maude whispered. "If that horrid Miss Croker had not insisted upon our buying those little books at the fair we would all have had plenty of money. I wonder how long she is going to stay. She is so fussy," said Maude. "Nothing suits her. Sometimes she says: 'This egg is too soft, Lizzie; take it away and bring me another.' Then Lizzie makes up a face and I have to laugh."

"Well, but Maude," said Estelle, who was the eldest, "that is wrong. The girl who is hired to wait on the table should never make faces, no matter what happens; and you must never laugh at her again. I am sure Miss Croker saw you this morning."

"But she is fussy," said Ray, "and I wish she would go home."

"Mamma likes her," replied Estelle. "You know she was mamma's teacher once and some one left her a big fortune and so she stopped teaching."

"And mamma says, too, that she is very charitable and gives heaps and heaps to the poor people," put in Ray.

"Then I wish she had bought those books herself instead of making us spend all our money," grumbled Maude.

"If we had been honest and said right out, 'I want all my money for myself,' perhaps she would," said Estelle.

"Tomorrow is New Year's day. It is too late to get anything now," sighed Ray.

"If we only had some of that lovely wool Miss Croker has been winding for the last three days, we could knit mamma some beautiful mats for her dressing case. I could knit one before dark," said Estelle, mournfully.

"Could you, my dear?" said a voice close behind them.

The three children turned and saw Miss Croker sitting in a rocking chair just behind them. They did not know how long she had been there or how much she had heard, but she had three large balls of brilliant colored wool in her lap.

"Are you sure, Estelle, that you could make a mat before dark?" said Miss Croker, looking over her spectacles at the three blushing faces before her. Maude and Ray answered "Yes," very shyly.

"Then," said the lady, "sit down there on the sofa and I will give you each one of these balls of wool."

"You are very kind," said Estelle.

"Thank you, Miss Croker," said Maude. But Ray, remembering that Miss Croker must have heard her say she wished she would go home, wanted to hide herself. However, she came out from behind the curtain and seated herself close to Estelle. Miss Croker then gave them each a crochet needle. "This blue ball is for you," she said, placing the wool in Estelle's lap. "The mauve for you," and she dropped another ball in Maude's hands, "and the pink for little Rosy Ray."

The children laughed merrily, but at the lady's last words their faces grew very long. "Now, girls," "I want three mats for my dressing case at home and I know you will be delighted to make me a present before I go, which will be very soon now." She looked at Ray while she spoke and then left the room.

"Horrid thing!" said Ray, as the door closed. "I won't knit a mat for her. I thought she meant to give us the wool."

"It just serves us right for talking about mamma's friend as we did," replied Estelle. "We will have to knit them. Come, Ray, I'll begin yours, and Maude, don't you remember? Make a chain of three stitches and the next row plain."

They were all three fond of this kind of work and presently forgot their disappointment.

The sun was just setting when Estelle said: "There, that's the last of the wool and my mat's done. But just see what a big wad of paper Miss Croker rolled her wool upon." She tossed the paper under the grate and fastened off her knitting neatly.

"And mine's finished," said Maude, and here is another great roll of paper, and there is something hard in it. Maude opened it slowly, laughing as she did so. A bright five dollar gold piece.

"Oh, look! Just look! I wonder if Miss Croker meant to put it there!"

"I am sure I don't know," answered Estelle, but wait until Ray has finished her mat then we will go and ask her."

"It is done," said Ray, "and here is another five dollar gold piece. Estelle, you'd better get a poker and pull out that paper you threw under the grate."

Estelle soon had the paper in her hand, and sure enough, there was a third gold piece hidden away in it.

"She must really intend them for us," said Ray. "I feel so ashamed because she heard me say, 'I wish she would go home.'"

While the three girls with the money in their hands and the mats in their laps were wondering what they ought to do, Miss Croker walked in.

"So I see my mats are finished," she said. "They are very pretty and I will keep them always in remembrance of my three little friends."

Estelle held up the shining coin. "I found this in my ball," she said.

"I put it there as a little surprise for you," replied Miss Croker, "and now I hope you can buy some small gift for your mamma and papa. Then she added, "Come, children, hurry on your wraps and I will take you down town to choose your presents."

Never did three little girls dress in such short time.

Miss Croker took them to such wonderful stores and was so pleasant and kind that the three little girls never forgot that New Year's Eve.

The gifts that they carried home to their parents, which were selected under Miss Croker's advice, were really very pretty.

CONGRESS.

Washington, Dec. 18.—Senate—After the transaction of routine business in the senate today, Platt of Connecticut, offered a resolution suspending the rule providing for the appointment of members of the various senate committees by ballot. The resolution was adopted. Platt then submitted another resolution appointing formally the committees for the Fifty-seventh congress. The names of the members of the committees have already been published. It was adopted.

House—The bill to provide revenue temporarily for the Philippine islands passed the house today by a vote of 163 to 128. Five republicans —McCall, of Massachusetts, Littlefield, of Maine, Heatwole, Eddy and Stevens, of Minnesota—voted with the democrats against the bill, and three democrats—Robertson, Davey and Broussard, of Louisiana—voted with the republicans for it. Meyer, a democrat, of Louisiana, was paired in favor of the bill with Foster, an Illinois democrat. Warner, of Illinois, who voted against the Porto Rican bill in the last congress, voted for the Philippine measure today. Crumpacker, of Indiana, who also voted against the Porto Rican bill, was absent.

In the course of the debate, the democrats were several times taunted with their failure to present an alternative proposition for the pending measure, but just before the vote was taken on the bill the attitude of the minority was defined in a motion recommit, offered by Richardson, the minority leader. It instructed the ways and means committee to report the bill back amended so as to reduce the customs and internal revenue laws of the United States to a revenue basis, and to extend them to the Philippines until the latter, with the aid of the United States, should be able to set up a stable and independent government. This proposition did not command a republican vote, and the three Louisiana democrats above mentioned all voted against it.

The speakers today were Messrs. Hepburn, of Iowa, and Dalzell, of Pennsylvania, for the bill, and Messrs. Henry, of Texas, Williams, of Mississippi, McCall, republican, of Massachusetts, Greene of Pennsylvania, and McClellan, of New York, against it.

The bill passed imposes the Dingley rates on goods entering the United States from the Philippines, and the rates established by the Philippine commission on goods entering the Philippines from the United States. It also provides for the collection of tonnage taxes on vessels plying between the United States and the Philippines, and that foreign vessels may ply between these ports until January 1, 1905. The duties and taxes collected under the provisions of the bill shall go into the Philippine treasury, to be expended for the use and benefit of the islands.

Washington, Dec. 19.—Senate—The bill temporarily to provide revenue for the Philippine islands, which was passed by the house yesterday, was referred to the committee on Philippines. Senator Hanna introduced a bill granting a pension of $5,000 a year to Mrs. McKinley, widow of the late president. A bill was introduced by Penrose reviving the grade of vice admiral of the navy and promoting Admirals Sampson and Schley and Captain Clark to that rank. Adjourned till January 6.

House—Before the house adjourned today over the holiday recess, a special order was made for the consideration of the Nicaraguan canal bill, beginning Tuesday, January 7, and to continue until the bill is disposed of, the order not, however, to interfere with revenue or appropriation bills. The session of the house was brief, the major jportion of the time being occupied by Mr. DeArmond, of Missouri, in making a personal explanation regarding reports circulated in his district concerning his course in the matter of the extension of the rural free delivery.

FIRST CABINET CHANGE

Resignation Has Been Accepted, but the Change Will Not Occur Until January 15.

Washington, Dec. 18.—Charles Emory Smith of Philadelphia has tendered to the president his formal resignation as postmaster general, to take effect early next month, and Henry C. Payne of Wisconsin, vice chairman of the republican national committee, has accepted the tender of the office, to which he will be nominated immediately after the holiday recess.

Mr. Smith has agreed to remain until January 15, if necessary, but will return immediately thereafter to Philadelphia to resume the editorship of the Philadelphia Press.

This change in the cabinet was formally announced at yesterday's session of the cabinet. All the members of the cabinet expressed their profound regret and the president paid a very impressive tribute to the services and personality of the retiring member of his official family. He said that he had sought to persuade Mr. Smith to alter his determination and to remain in the cabinet, but without success, and he finally accepted Mr. Smith's resignation as decisive.

Mr. Smith first announced to the president the latter part of last month that he had decided to return to his editorial duties. The president at that time urged him to remain. Mr. Smith, however, had been frequently reminded by his business associates of the duties devolving upon him and was anxious to return to them. He had several talks with President Roosevelt on the subject, and finally, on Saturday afternoon last, formally tendered to the president his letter of resignation.

The late Lord Morris did not gain a very favorable impression of the house of lords when he made his first speech there. When asked how he got on, he replied: "Well, I made wan mistake. I should have practiced spakin' to a lot of grave-stones before I addressed their lordships."

It is said that when in India, Winston Spencer Churchill, Lord Randolph Churchill's son, presented a copy of his first book to General Tucker, who, previous to his South African command, was all-powerful at Secunderbad. "Do you like it?" young Churchill inquired of the general. "Haven't read it. Is it meant to read?" "Why, yes." "Wish you'd told me so before. I keep it hanging up in my dressing room, and tear off a page every morning to wipe my razor on."

A story is told of a conscientious ministerial golfer who had been offered another pastorate, much better than the one he held, and with an ideal golf course attached. The family were all enthusiastic players. Happening to call one day at the minister's dwelling, a friend of the family and a golfer himself met the daughter in the hall and asked her: "Is your father going to accept the offer?" "Well," the girl replied, demurely, papa is praying for guidance in the library and mamma is upstairs packing."

President Harper, of the University of Chicago, recently received the following letter from a prospective girl-student at Pecatonica, Ill.: "Dear Dr. Harper: I know you will be pleased to learn that I have decided to attend the university school of education this fall. I am going to Chicago next Saturday on the morning train, and as I have never been in the city before, I would be glad if you would meet me at the depot. I am five feet, six inches tall, have light hair and eyes, and a pleasing appearance. I shall wear a dark-brown traveling-skirt and a blue waist, with white yoke. I think I shall know you from your pictures, but for fear I make a mistake, will you please wear your card in your hat?"

A Blacksmith's Story.

Goodland, Kans., Dec. 23.—N. E. Albertson, a local blacksmith, had almost decided to give up his shop altogether on account of Rheumatism which had crippled him so that at times he could not use his hammer.

His shoulders and arms were so sore that he couldn't sleep at night. He had suffered for years, but was gradually getting worse, till at last he had about made up his mind to give up. But just then he heard of some wonderful cures of Rheumatism by Dodd's Kidney Pills and thought he would try for a cure once more.

They cured him completely and he has not a trace of Rheumatism left. The shop will not be given up and Mr. Albertson may be seen there any day hard at work as if nothing had ever ailed him.

ANOTHER GERM DESTROYER.

Herpicide Is Death to Dandruff Germs.

The germ burrows into the scalp, throwing up the cuticle in thin scales, called dandruff, or scurf, and digging at the root of the hair where it saps the hair's vitality. First comes brittle hair, then lusterless and dead-like hair, then falling hair, and, finally, baldness. Nine-tenths of the hair troubles are caused by dandruff. Without dandruff, hair will grow luxuriantly, as nature intended. "Herpicide" kills the dandruff germ, leaving the hair to grow unhampered, as it does with the American red man.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

Fatal Accident Near Meservey.

J. H. Pals, who resided three and one-half miles south of Meservey, on the old Van Duren place, met with a very tragic death on Tuesday morning. He was trying to unload a large round water tank which he had hauled from his father's farm the evening before. He had the tank off on one side of the sleigh and was trying to hold it up while his wife drove the team which pulled the sled from under it. It proved too heavy for him and forced him under it to the ground. His wife was alone and unable to release him and hurried to Mr. C. Stadtlander's, their nearest neighbor. Mr. Stadtlander not being at home his wife returned with Mrs. Pals, but the two were unable to extricate him. Mr. H. Gruis was summoned and with the aid of a pry they were enabled to get the body out, but life was extinct.

This is one of the saddest of sorrows that can befall a young wife—they having been married less than a year. He was an industrious man, full of energy and with the brightest prospects. A host of friends mourn his early demise.—Meservey Messenger.

GREAT OPPURTUNITIES.

The Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Norther Railway Company is nearing the completion of it's 140 miles of new extensions in the very richest portion of Southwestern Minnesota. The six new towns, Reading, Wilmont, Lismore, Kenneth, Waters and Conger are rapidly becoming commercial centers for the rich and already thickly settled country surrounding. There has been no "Auction sale of lots" or any attempt to "Boom" these towns; their growth being the result of a demand for convenient markets.

It is the purpose of the railway company to encourage the continuous substantial growth of the towns on their lines. In order that each town may receive the attention of "ownership." it has been decided to sell each town entire, including all unplatted land to private parties. "Something New Under The Sun."

All doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucuous membrane causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhales have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practioner who has for many years made close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh, by removing the cause, stopping the disnarges and curing all inflamation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full months treatment and everything necessary to it's perfect use. "Snuffles" is the only perfect Catarrh Cure ever made as is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflamation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve Hay Fever or Cold in the head. Catarrh when neglected often leads to "Consumption—Snuffles will save you if you use it at once It is no ordinary remedy but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure Catarrh in any form or stage if used according to the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case without cost to you beyond the regular price of "Snuffles" the "Guaranteed Catarrh Cure." THE NORTHWESTERN AGRICULTURIST is the leading farm, livestock and home paper in the West. It interests every member of the family, having departments devoted to the interests of women as well as of men, on the farms in the Northwest. It is filled with instructive and interesting reading matter from beginning to end. The various departments are under the charge of practical men, who have made a success themselves on their particular line on which they are writing. Amongst the department editors who contribute regularly to The Agriculturist, are Prof. Thomas Shaw, Professor of Animal Husbandry at the Minnesota State Agricultural College. Professor Shaw edits the sheep, beef cattle and horse departments; A. K. Hyatt, a dairyman known all over America as a practical and experienced dairy writer; Forest Henry, editor of the swine department, a man who has paid off mortgages by raising swine in Minnesota, and who is himself making money in swine raising now, not as a breeder but as a feeder of swine for market; A. K. Bush, in charge of the horticultural department, State Lecturer on Horticulture at the Minnesota Farmers' Institutes. These are only a few of the more important departments of the paper. Sample Copies will be sent free to all who are interested. The Northwestern Agriculturist is published semi-monthly, and already reaches over 66,000 farm homes twice a month. Subscription price fifty cents a year.

HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

BALTIMORE, MD., March 30, 1901.

Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to sing, and this kept on getting worse until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain Very truly yours,
